LEADING NATIONS IN AVIATION OPPOSING LONG OCEAN FLIGHTS

Strong Revelation Against Importance Given Daring Aerial Journeys Manifested by Representatives of 3 Countries.

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Strong revelation against the false importance being given long distance flights, especially trans-continental journeys, especially in the United States and other countries today as fear for the lives of the St. Raphael's crew, became and is being given.

At Buffalo, N. York, the committee on air laws of the American Bar association expressed hope that legislation might be enacted which would prohibit flights across the ocean.

"Gambler's Hazard" Characterizing the Ocean flights as a "gambler's hazard," influential German delegates declared the importance being attached to them and urged that the men, machines and money be better kept in other lines of development.

Despite the long list of attempts which nature opposes the missing with her tiny wings to the land.

Slight Hope Held Some slight hope for the St. Raphael and its passengers. Strong revelation against the false importance being given long distance flights, especially in the United States and other countries today as fear for the lives of the St. Raphael's crew, became and is being given.

TRIAL OF FLOGGING CASE IS UNDER WAY

Court Hears Graphic Story of Family Being Routed From Home at Night and Beaten.

TYLER, Texas, Sept. 2.—A graphic story of how a family was routed from their home at night, marched away into the woods and flogged by four masked men was told today by one of the victims, J. R. Richardson, a cotton picker, in district court, where one of the alleged floggers is on trial.

Masked Men Enter House "My wife was sick in bed, my four children were in bed, my father-in-law, my mother-in-law and myself were sitting in the parlor."

"They ordered me to put up my hands and my wife to get out of bed. My wife and I were marched from the house to a place in the woods where they flogged her."

"With Osborne finally took the rope and tried to bring every bone in my body. Osborne is also under indictment and awaiting trial."

DISBARMENT CASE IS BEFORE HIGH COURT

Idaho's Bar Commission Act Attacked as Unconstitutional by Counsel for Boise Lawyer.

BOISE, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Idaho's bar commission act was attacked as unconstitutional in that it created a closed corporation with legislative and judicial powers contrary to the constitution, a U. S. district judge ruled today in a report submitted to the federal circuit court in Denver.

Both Damper and Downs were disbarred following convictions in federal court of having taken obscene materials to the United States mails. All cases were taken under advisement.

"The defendant is a wealthy farmer and dairyman and members of the Richardson family were tenants on his property. He is specifically charged under the state anti-making law and being a member of the bar which on the one hand is a flogging Richardson's wife and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. W. A. Straps."

RECEDING WATERS IN CANAL GIVE UP BODY OF TWIN FALLS MAN

Searchers Recover Remains of L. Johnson, Believed to Have Taken Own Life While Brooding Over Financial Affairs.

The "low lying" canal last evening gave up the body of Len J. Johnson, 41, Twin Falls district farmer, who disappeared Thursday leaving a note that on the face of his head and knees he was better after I am gone and everything is over with.

The body was found soon after 3 o'clock in the bottom of the canal about a half mile below the highway bridge two miles south of Twin Falls, where Johnson had been observed wandering early Thursday afternoon by his eldest son and where he is believed to have entered the stream with the purpose of ending his own life.

TROOPS GUARD PROPERTY AND LIVES OF AMERICANS

Search for the body was begun Thursday afternoon, in spite of the fact that the body was believed to have been buried in the canal. The searchers at this time formed a line across the stream with intervals of about 200 feet.

Previously, press dispatches indicated that the body had been found until the search was discontinued. A message today from the embassy's information continued to be that the remains of the body were believed to be buried in the canal.

While a special session of the senate is likely if approved by its leaders, it was reported today that Mr. Coolidge has not changed his opinion as to a special session.

Mr. Coolidge likes particularly the sentence of the editorial declaring: "The suggestion that discussions on trade barriers are directed at United States in the same sense that are directed at European countries is gratuitous and the implications do not operate in the direction of improvement in international commercial relations."

In Line With Views - This view has always been held by both the president, namely, that the tariff was given out in London and signed by a large number of international bankers, had reference only to the tariff walls standing between European countries.

The discussion was brought up voluntarily today at the executive offices of the international conference in the Portland area. It seemed to be considerable confusion in the press and in the minds of some members of congress over the main feature.

Approval was given by the president to the request of the navy department to send Lieutenant "Lody" for a race to international air races in Vienna, on a cruiser, while he had not favored such a course.

The present map of the Antarctic regions, therefore, is mostly blank with a few patches of known territory along the coast and one or two narrow paths penetrating inland.

The best known region is the land directly south of New Zealand, traversed by Shackleton, Scott, and Amundsen. The world is still hazy in regard to the high mountain ranges which exist near the south pole.

TIME PIPE TO STEAM PRODUCTION OF OIL

Secretary of Interior Advises American Bar Association Oil Surplus is Dangerous.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 2 (AP)—The present reproduction of about a million barrels of oil daily amounts to gambling with future national safety as issued by Secretary of Interior Hubert Work today. He appealed to the legal profession to formulate a "sane and positive course that will protect our national structure in the years to come."

Addressing the mineral law section of the American Bar association, the interior secretary said that the need for conservation of oil in the ground was never more apparent than now if "our future needs would be assured" by "our national life surely safeguarded."

If federal or additional state legislation is necessary, he declared, it is evolved the better. "If the remedy rests with the oil industry, it is the industry's responsibility and the wholehearted cooperation, or through compulsory unit pool operation, or some other method, the time is preeminent."

Much Oil Wasted - The secretary, who is chairman of the federal oil conservation committee, said that the tremendous output of production of the Sackover and Seminoole pools with its attendant waste of billions of dollars of valuable gas, and the "constructive statement" industry to save an over competitive industry from itself.

Statistics for which he would not vouch but which he said were verified by the industry, indicated a decline since the peak of 1924 of over 100 million barrels in the market value of oil company stocks represented on the New York stock exchange. Some, he said, indicated that the value of the industry as a whole to be nearly a billion dollars.

These losses suffered by the industry as a result of general public, he said, since nearly all the large producing and refining companies now are owned by the public and the industry as a whole to be nearly a billion dollars.

More authority is needed for governmental activities in aid of business, but the oil industry, at least, seems to appreciate that the first step is to win public confidence by taking the public into its confidence.

THE SPORTS OF A DAY

TIMELY HITTING IN THIRD AND KEELEY'S HOMERUNS CONTEST

Earwood, Rook Pitcher, Plays Leading Role In Ogden's Downfall and Bruins Take Fourth-of-Series by 5 to 1.

Timely hitting in the third inning and KEELEY's home run in the fifth gave the Bruins a 5 to 1 victory over the Ogden Grinders and evened the count for the series here yesterday afternoon.

Daglia Effective at First. Big Pete Daglia started on the mound for the visitors and was effective in the first and fourth innings, when the batters to face him went down in order.

Daglia in Trouble. Daglia got in trouble again in the fifth frame, when KEELEY, second man up, got hold of one high and struck the ball. The ball was well hit and sailed over the left field wall.

Walters Back at Third. Johnny Walters was at third again yesterday and he didn't seem much the worse for his injury, leading the Bruins attack and scoring three times in three trips to the plate.

RATE WILL REMAIN LOW ON GILT-EDGED PAPER, DATA INDICATES

Roger W. Babson Believes Money Will Continue Easy and Discusses This Phase of Market in Weekly Review.

(Special to The News) BABSON PARK, Mass., Sept. 2.—Roger W. Babson today discussed the money market in his weekly interview. Mr. Babson feels that money rates will continue low for high-grade loans but may stiffen for loans of questionable security. His complete statement, with the reasons for these conclusions, is as follows:

Statistical Situation The last comptroller's situation and the recent reports of the Federal Reserve bank show that the business situation is fairly sound. Of course, loans are high, but discount rates seem to hold them and the reserves of most banks are very satisfactory; in fact, the rate of increase in liabilities of the Federal Reserve bank is running better than 70 per cent. Another feature in connection with money rates is commodity prices. Although certain commodities have strengthened in price during the past few months, yet there has been no appreciable increase in the commodity price indices. Until there is a marked increase in commodity prices or a marked reduction in bank reserves, there is little reason for expecting generally increased money rates. This, of course, is on the assumption that our stock of gold continues as at present. If anything should happen to cause extensive exports of gold, then this would necessitate a restriction of circulation and a consequent stiffening of rates. It truly would be a good thing for the country to have this take place, but economists do not anticipate any such gold exports. Some believe that the recent increase in the price of cotton and certain of the cereals will tend toward higher money rates, as more funds will be required to finance the crop as prices advance. This would be true if the price advance was due to increased demand, but when it is due to decreased production, the result is debatable.

Bankers More Careful For some time conservative bankers have been disturbed by the stock market manipulations which have been in progress on Wall street. Conservative bankers have disapproved of the work of pools and have believed that prices of many securities are well out of reason. These conservative bankers, however, received little or no support. Their warnings fell on deaf ears. Many of their banking friends were themselves in these pools, and even the pools were being financed by the bankers. After the terrific break in Manhattan electric supply stock and certain other stocks, all bankers began to discriminate somewhat in their collateral. Those who had been operating in these pools came to their senses and listened to the advice of their older and more experienced friends. Although further readjustment in stock market quotations is inevitable, yet the market is in a much stronger position today than it was on August 1.

The general attitude of bankers today is to discriminate loans much more carefully. Where the security is beyond question, very low rates are quoted. Moreover, rates on such good collateral will probably continue low for some time to come. On the other hand, it is much more difficult to borrow today on less satisfactory collateral than it has been for some years. As a result of this discrimination, it is now very easy to get money on good security and rather difficult to get money on poor security. During the past week I have heard of several instances where the same bank is loaning to some concerns at 3 3/4 per cent and is charging 8 per cent to other concerns. This is an illustration of what I have said before, namely, that the world is ruled by feelings rather than by figures. Theoretically, money rates are governed by bank statements and other statistics, but actually, money rates are determined by the feelings of bankers. Today statistics suggest continued or even lower money rates, but feelings and confidence have been shaken.

Bond Market Outlook When the above reasoning is applied to the bond market, it means that poor bonds remain uncommenced and with an increase in demand, while speculative bonds may tend to decline. The bond market is determined largely by supply and demand, and this is largely determined by the attitude of the banks. When more banks wish to buy bonds than sell bonds, bonds go up in price; when more banks want to sell bonds than buy bonds, bonds go down in price. The outlook for the coming winter is that the demand for high-grade bonds may increase, while the demand for low-grade bonds may decrease. Hence we may see the paradoxical situation of high-grade bonds increasing in price and low-grade bonds decreasing in price. Of course, the word "bond" does not mean what it used to mean. Only a few years ago when I was upon the street nearly a corporation bond was a bond. Today the word "bond" means a security which really is no more than preferred stocks have been called bonds in order to make them sell. As a result, there are many so-called bonds on the market today which do not deserve the name and which suffer in the general readjustment which is ahead of us. On the other hand, there are many more good bonds on the market today than ever before. Hundreds of millions of preferred stocks have been sold and the money has been used to strengthen the position of outstanding bond issues. Many bond issues which were in a questionable situation ten years ago are now absolutely secure, due to the huge amounts spent on equities which serve as additional security for these old bond issues. Furthermore, the general demand for preferred stocks has enabled bankers to secure a greater equity for many of the new issues, especially public utility issues which have recently been sold. For these reasons I am optimistic on the bond market situation as a whole. A great many good issues are available today, and most of them are destined eventually for higher prices.

General Situation The most uncertain factor in connection with the money market is the future attitude of American investors regarding their foreign loans. This is an important factor in connection both with interest rates and general business conditions here. In this country, when American investors purchase foreign bonds, it means that gold is shipped abroad or foreign investments are reduced, or Europeans are making purchases in this country. All of these things temporarily benefit the business situation and permanently benefit conditions if the foreign bond purchases are good. To the extent that American investors purchase foreign bonds, many of the best issues are still very speculative, as indicated by the high rates which they pay. Although the attitude of American investors toward foreign bonds will be an important factor in determining domestic money rates, yet it is impossible to forecast when American investors will decide to do in connection with the purchase of such during the next year or two. Here again it must be remembered that the world is ruled by feelings rather than by figures. Undoubtedly has come down to normal. For the first time since 1924 the Babson chart has come down to normal. We have nothing to fear for this will be a healthy situation. This decline in business has, however, been a distinct factor in keeping money rates low. In view of what has happened in general business and in the stock market during the past few weeks, it is very important that business men and investors carefully watch conditions from now on. Although business is ruled by feelings rather than by figures, it is true that figures go a long way in determining feelings.

RUSSIAN COMMISSION BUYS SHEEP IN IDAHO TO IMPROVE FLOCKS

Representatives of Soviet Government Selects Blooded Hampshire Ewes and Rams to Build Up Home Industry.

In quest of the best of America's purebred sheep for improvement of Russian flock, a commission of four representatives of the Russian government arrived at Twin Falls on Friday and during the afternoon and evening purchased 169 registered Hampshire ewes and rams. The commission will continue inspections in this county today with the additional purchases. The animals purchased here are to be shipped during the last days of September from New York to Leningrad.

Members of the commission are accompanied by G. I. Rubin of New York, representative of the American Trading corporation, through which the purchases are being made. On their inspection of flocks in this county, the commission is accompanied by Donald McLean, secretary of the Idaho Wool Growers' association, L. B. Breckridge, president of the Idaho Hampshire Breeders' association, and S. H. Gillette of Cassiopolis.

The commission is composed of livestock specialists whose knowledge of the subject is readily apparent to breeders with whom they have come in contact. Valentin S. Ushakov, representative of the people's commissariat of the department of agriculture, is chairman of the commission. Other members are Michel S. Pertekovich of Moscow, manager of the bureau of animal industry of the Russian department of agriculture; Alexander Romanenko of Rostov, specialist in animal breeding of the North Caucasian department of agriculture; N. P. Shtinsky, wool and sheep specialist. The commission has twice before visited the United States on the mission that brings it this trip to Idaho, and on the present trip it has already purchased about 2000 breeding sheep to be shipped to Russia in Ohio, Utah, and Wyoming. The commission came here from Spencer, Idaho, where they purchased 45 sheep immediately following the national ram sale at Salt Lake which they attended and patronized liberally.

Born in Attraction

Members of the commission stated last evening that they had been charmed to visit Idaho on their present tour as well by appreciation of the fact that Idaho is the home of Senator William E. Borah, whom they regard as an outstanding friend of Soviet Russia, as by the fact that Idaho is becoming well known on account of its purebred sheep industry. They voiced a high praise of the quality of sheep grown in this region.

SCHOOL TUITION IS SET FOR NEXT YEAR

Scale Is Announced by Superintendent; Registration Will Begin Next Week.

Tuition fees for the Twin Falls public schools for children outside the district will be $4.00 a month for high school students, $4.75 a month for junior high and $6 a month for the grades. It was announced Friday by Superintendent W. B. Smith.

Although registration of students will be held next week in advance of the opening of school on September 12, a few students and pupils will be out during that time, having already registered. All who have rooms in their homes which are willing to register to teachers are asked to register them at the high school so that an alphabetical list can be given to teachers.

Improvements Complete

All improvements on the school are completed, and the putting of the floors and washing of windows mark the end of the general overhauling.

ROCK CREEK WATERS SWEEP AWAY CORPSE OF UNKNOWN VICTIM

Unavailing Search for Body of Dead Man Seen in Stream Last Night Will Be Resumed This Morning.

The body of a dead man was reported to have been seen by several in Rock creek near the railroad bridge here about 7:45 o'clock last evening. A little more than an hour after the time that the body of Len J. Johnson was recovered from the body of the coroner on the part of Coroner P. J. Grossman, assisted by the police, deputy sheriffs and a number of volunteers with the search for the body of Johnson, was abandoned at 11 o'clock for the night, to be resumed this morning.

Ask for Lookout

Coroner Grossman stated last night that systematic search would be resumed early in the morning and request is made for everybody in the vicinity of Rock creek to keep a lookout along the stream. Rock creek has been a roaring torrent since the "low line" water was turned into it in connection with the search for the body of Johnson. The water will be down this morning.

Many See Body

The body of a first body—Harold Perrine, 10, who lives at Washington street and Fourth avenue west, who reported to his mother. Others who saw the body were Joe Meekam, 40, Third avenue west and Lynn Landon, 41, Third avenue west. None of them were with the coroner. The body was seen by the coroner and the police. The body was seen by the coroner and the police.

By the Time the officers arrived the corpse was swept away in the rushing stream. The body was built on bank and partly washed back and forth along the stream, but without discovering the object of their search.
