Charles Diehl of Idaho Football Squad Gets Invitation to Try for All-Western Squad.

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Dec. 1.—Charles Diehl, of Pley, guard and line captain on the Idaho football team, who has just closed the season, will be in the lineup of western stars in the annual east-west charity game at San Francisco, December 28. Diehl, one of the leading players in western football this year, was invited by C. E. Hollinger, football coach at Washington State college, who drills the western stars, to participate in the game.

The Pley boy has just completed three successful years of varsity football. Two of his years were at the University of Idaho. He was captain of the team in his first year. In this position he earned widespread recognition and the majority of coaches named him in all their selections. During his high school career Diehl was a fullback and was given this position on the all-state team.

Though Charles has played his last football the Idaho Vandal squad is not without a representative of the Diehl family. Gordon Diehl has completed his first season as a tackle and has two more to play.

AMERICAN STANDARD OF LIVING RISES TO HISTORY'S PINNACLE

value of imports was about 6 per cent less during the last fiscal year. They again a fall in prices occurred after allowing for which there is a quantitative increase.

New construction undertaken in 1927, amounting to some $7,000,000, 000 in value, constituted a powerful factor in maintaining business activity and prosperity," Mr. Hoover added.

"He paid high tribute to the management of American railroads, and pointed out that the continued advance in the efficiency of the railways which has been going on since the war had reacted favorably upon the entire economic structure."

The rapidity of freight transportation in the United States had increased since 1919 by 30 or 40 per cent.

In seeking out the causes of the material prosperity, Mr. Hoover described, P. Dana Durand, of the department's bureau of statistical research, laid down the proposition that "extraordinary increase in the production of American industry during recent years had most to do with a corresponding advance in the standards of living."

Between 1899 and 1925 the output of agricultural products increased about 47 per cent, Durand said, "that of mining about 248 per cent, and that of manufactures about 178 per cent, while the volume of retail service increased by 199 per cent. Meanwhile population had grown only about 38 per cent, so that per capita output rose also by about 55 per cent."

"When that comparison," it was added, "failed to measure fully the progress in production, since larger proportions of the country's population in recent years have engaged in professional, mercantile, and service occupations, rather than in actual production."

"The true causes of the prosperity and economic progress of the country are not difficult to discern," Dr. Durand continued. "At the foundation of the rich resources of the country, not taxed by an excessive population, and the energy, intelligence and activity toward work of the producing population."

"In our earlier days, advances was in considerable measure attributable to the opening of new resources, but during the past quarter century this has not been a major influence. The principal factors in the recent increase in productivity are what may be called human, as distinguished from natural factors."

"Of the most profound modern tendencies is the swiftly expanding use of electric current."

"For the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, Dr. Julius Klein, its chief, pointed out that American foreign trade today represented 16 per cent of the world's total commerce, whereas in 1912 it represented only 11 per cent. He predicted that "manufactured goods will continue to gain in relative importance in our export trade," while the growth of population at home will "continue to call for the consumption of a larger and larger proportion of foodstuffs and raw materials produced by our farms."

"He foresaw vigorous competition for foreign trade in the future, but predicted that with proper effort on the part of American business men, "we should be able to maintain our share of the steadily expanding world commerce."

"Heaven knows. But anyhow I shouldn't live alone." She laughed pleasantly.

"Now, now," she reproved him, smiling. "Don't flatter. Consider the stately pines, the rugged coast and the surging surf."

"Good-by. The best of luck to you. For myself I wish no better luck than with the Good Life Island."

A LITTLE THING

A Los Angeles murderer named Mrs. Hazel Hull who killed a man supposed to have been responsible for her daughter's trouble is set free because a grand jury refused to bring in an indictment.

One can understand the action and even sympathize with the unfortunate girl and her distraught mother, yet in taking this action the grand jury simply struck another blow at the already weakened structure of criminal law enforcement.

Juries have taken similar action in similar cases again and again but such a course is somewhat unusual in the case of a grand jury.

Thus the announcement is again broadcast that, under certain conditions, it is all right for persons to have their hands tied behind their backs and assume the office of executioner the better to assuage their feelings and satisfy their desire for quick revenge.

The doctrine has long been accepted. Perhaps if people believed a little more in the certainty of legal punishment for crime there would be lots of the personal application.

But whether one believes or not the principle is utterly and absolutely wrong.

CRUISERS

The "Ty Mince," "Taint Mince" did lay had nothing on those patriots who see a British naval building program—that we need some cruisers and ought to go ahead and build them, but that we don't need a huge number of them. It likewise appears sensible to many citizens to base that number on the present naval situation and the carefully studied needs imposed by our obligations in the Pacific, the Caribbean and the Atlantic.

A great body of thoughtful and patriotic citizens agrees with President Coolidge about our cruiser building program—that we need some cruisers and ought to go ahead and build them, but that we don't need a huge number of them.

Relations with Mexico are notably better since the financial diplomat, Mr. Morrow, went to Mexico City to represent the United States.

A recent dispatch shows that Mr. Morrow is given to direct, personal action instead of formality and red tape.

While regardless of Mexican feelings and Latin-etiquet, he pushes the personal equation as far as possible. His doesn't send notes to his own officials, but goes and sees them, talks things over and thrashes them out in a candid and courteous way, and thus usually comes to a satisfactory understanding.

It is the way intelligent and business American business men usually transact important business at home. The only wonder is that it does not seem to little in international diplomacy.

both struck up the hill of the cottage. From the wide window of the living room there shone a round circle of misty light, pale, wavering and uncertain, but a light.

"It's no earthly light," Gay said moodily. "It's a ghost. I tell you, Auntaintry, the spirits are abroad this night. Say what you like, queer things are going on. I feel it; I am all creepy, and—oh, look! Oh, it is the hand! Oh!"

Her voice sank away breathlessly. Watching, suddenly outlined in the misty orb of light had been the reflection of a hand, reaching out, slim, shadowy and ghostly.

"Oh," Gay murmured sickly, "oh, it is his hand!"

Auntaintry was shaken. Her arm beneath Gay's hand trembled. But she was firm. She did not believe in ghosts.

"I saw it," she said wearily. "It was just the reflection of a hand, or a spray of twigs, moving in the wind. Look, it is gone. There is no light, there is no hand. It was the light from a boat reflecting against the leaves."

They often fell into the same trap. (Continued in next issue)

"FALL OF THE ALAMO"
With Davy Crockett at the Fall of the Alamo, the big Sunset Production super feature, has the unique distinction of celebrating the ninetieth anniversary of the night, by being re-lived on the screen.

Just ten years less than the century mark is being celebrated between the time Davy Crockett fell in the cause of Texas freedom and the time Ouellet Landis, enacting the role of the hero re-lived that heroic event.

This great historical epic opens a two-day engagement at the Rialto theatre, beginning today. It is one of the big spectacular productions of the cinema season.

"GARDEN OF ALLAH"
One of the greatest desert romances ever filmed. "The Garden of Allah" a big screen production for Metro-Goldwyn of Robert Hitchcock's famous novel comes to the Idaho theatre Sunday for a three-day run.

Filmed in the sand wastes of the Sahara, the locality in which the story takes place, it has authentic reality. It tells the tale of a "Tropic of Capricorn" love for an English girl, of his marriage to her, and of his subsequent return to the monastery after three months spent in the desert.

Allice Terry in the role of Dominie, the girl who sends her lover back to the right seclusion of his cell even though she is rapturously in love with him at the time, has the greatest opportunity of her career. She is supported by Ivan Petrovich, a Serbian leading man new to American audiences, and a cast of continental players.

"THE DEVIL'S SADDLE"
The Hopi reservation near Flagstaff, Arizona, was the object of an annual influx of sight-seers, but the lure because of a rumor circulated that the entire arrangement was artificially constructed for the purpose of pleasing the tourists' eye. But the fact is that every inch of scenery is genuine.

This is the testimony of Al Rogell, director of "The Devil's Saddle," the Ken Maynard western photoplay which is at the Orpheum theatre today and tomorrow.

Rogell, searching for a perfect locale for scenes of the early Indian, moved his entire company to the Hopi reservation and discovered everything that his emulous had reported was accurate. Cliff dwellers almost in the vicinity of the reservation, the Americans living in the fashion and scenery of the most exquisite nature served the director's purpose and was used to notable advantage in the new thriller.

When at last they made ready to retire for the night, she and Gay should have the solitary bed, and she herself would sleep on the couch.

"She's afraid of me, I do believe," Gay thought to himself. "She wants the room between us, in case I turn violent." Her lips twitched with amusement at the thought as she crept beneath the white covers.

Auntaintry turned out the lights, and went, about the room from window to window near the blinds. When she came to the window that showed the Lone Pine at the top of the hill she gave a sudden little exclamation.

"What you leave a light on?" she asked.

"No!" With a bound Gay was out of bed and at her side by the window.

COOLIDGE WILL NOT ACCEPT NOMINATION DECLARES STANFIELD

Former United States Senator From Oregon Says President Meant What He Said; Discusses Man and Affairs.

"I cannot tell you will be the republican nominee for president but I can tell you will not be Cal Coolidge," said Robert Stanfield, former United States senator from Oregon, at his home at the Perrine hotel last evening.

President Coolidge, meant what he said when he declared that he did not "choose to run," he meant that, he would not accept the nomination, in phrase that, he will not intimate that his first statement was ambiguous or that he had not meant what he said and that he will not run.

"I think the people believed his statement was made in good faith," Mr. Stanfield continued. "A few politicians are trying to give a different construction to the statement intended by the president but I do not think they received many and will not induce him to change his mind."

Helps Lowden Cause. "I notice that Vice President Dawes has declared for Lowden. In that case, it makes Lowden a more important factor in the race. But I have no idea of who will get the nomination on a two-thirds ticket. Depends on Two-thirds.

"So far as the democrats are concerned, my judgment is that should the two-thirds rule be abolished, Smith will be nominated but unless that should be done I cannot see how the democrats could elect anyone other than Copeland, that Smith would not seek to abrogate the two-thirds rule is a natural one for him to take, but perhaps his friends will not be bound by his stand. Smith is a man of ability and as governor of the state of New York, would seem to be the logical nominee. I do not believe, the wet and dry issue have any place in the contest. The two-thirds rule should be enforced as much as Senator Borah does, but I am convinced that both parties want it enforced. Of course, should any party declare against its enforcement, that would make it an issue and the party doing so would be overwhelmed. Nor do I believe that the religious issue would cut much figure in the event that Smith should be nominated.

"I think the republicans will be more than they would gain by raising that issue. Many voters would resent it. No Place in Campaign.

"While congress has power to reimburse the sufficient amendment to the state legislatures, Mr. Stanfield declared, "I am sure that it will not take the initiative in doing that after it has been adopted. Those who want it taken out of the constitution should raise the issue in the legislatures and have them petition congress for its submission. The national administration has nothing to do with taking it out of the constitution and while congress technically has such power, to submit it, I am sure it will not exercise it. So, if it is an issue at all, it is an issue for the state legislatures.

"The logical thing for the republican party to do is to make a strong declaration in favor of the things for which it has stood; the protective tariff and the like. The logical thing for the democrats to do is to stand by their own principles and meet the issues.

"Whether should raise irrelevant questions. I cannot see anything but republican victory next time, but then, you know, I am a republican. We have plenty of good presidential timber in the republican party. I know 100 men in the democratic party who would make good presidents, too, only they are not generally known. The reason for that is that our party has gotten in power and the democrats haven't, so our leaders have gotten before the people and the details have not."

Senator Stanfield, accompanied by his brother, H. E. Stanfield, and J. B. Anderson, and Ed Ziegler of the Boise neighborhood, are here on a sheep deal. Senator Stanfield said that he had bought some ewes from Clyde Bacon. He said that no deal of very great magnitude was pending.

The Gifts That Never Die. Illustration of a woman in a dress, holding a gift box.

THE Diamond that blazed forth in the engagement ring of Great-Grandmother is today gracing the dainty hand of one of her descendants. The loving gift of many, many years ago lives on. And so it is with all Diamonds, Watches and other fine Jewels—they never die but rather grow more precious as the years roll on. There is great wisdom in the selection of Jewelry as gifts and it is equally as wise to select them at this store where reliability of quality and value are ever present.

HUNDREDS ASSEMBLE TO PAY RESPECTS TO C. J. MILLER MEMORY

Buhl Business Houses Close During Funeral Services for Canal Director and Former Legislator.

(Special to The News)
 BUHL, Dec. 1.—Business was suspended in Buhl this afternoon while one of the largest assemblies of its kind in Buhl's history gathered at funeral services to pay a final tribute to the late Carl J. Miller of Buhl and Castleford, Twin Falls Canal company director and former state representative, who met tragic death in a crossing accident at Curry last Tuesday.
 The assembly numbered more than 200 persons and included many expressions of personal friends and fraternal and business associates from Twin Falls, Boise and other communities throughout the county and state. It overflowed the Methodist church in which the services were held. A procession of floral offerings evidenced the high regard in which Mr. Miller was held in a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.
 The services were conducted under the auspices of the Masonic order, in compliance with a wish that had been expressed by Mr. Miller some years ago, former State Senator J. H. Seaver of Twin Falls, past eminent commander, read the funeral service of the Knights Templar. Seven past commanders of Twin Falls commandery, Knights Templar, composed a guard of honor.
 Delivers Eulogy
 M. M. VanPatton, one time pastor of the Buhl Presbyterian Church, delivered a brief funeral sermon and eulogy and offered prayer.
 Mrs. D. L. Alexander of Twin Falls sang feelingly, with accompaniment played by Mrs. L. J. Johnson of Buhl. "They Shall Hunger, No More" by Mullinger, "Rest, Thou Sad Heart" by Del Riego, and "Rock of Ages."
 Active pall bearers chosen from among Mr. Miller's intimate associates, were B. R. Tillery, Jesse Eastman, R. O. Morse, L. E. McNamara, Harry Webber and F. C. Meredith, all of Buhl.
 Honorable pall bearers were Judge J. R. Bothwell of Twin Falls, C. A. Robinson of Twin Falls, Nelson Hayward of Twin Falls, N. O. Thompson of Boise, Harry Wilson of Buhl, and Theo. Wood of Boise.
 Organizations which attended the services as units included Buhl Rotary club, Buhl lodge, A. F. W. M., Twin Falls county fair board.
 Rotarians Mourn
 With a mourning drap over his chair and a great bouquet of flowers at his place, Buhl Rotary club assembled this evening for a solemn memorial service for which a regular meeting gave way. Former Senator J. H. Seaver of Twin Falls briefly reviewed Mr. Miller's life in this community and his contributions to the permanent betterment of this state and region. Rev. M. M. VanPatton offered the benediction that marked the close of the meeting.
 The body of Mr. Miller was taken by rail after the funeral service to Pendleton from which place it will be taken by motor to the former home at Walla Walla, Washington, for interment following services to be held Friday at the home of Mrs. Etta Stewart, mother of Mrs. Miller. Mrs. Stewart and her son Charles Stewart of Walla Walla, with Marjorie and Stewart Miller, children of Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Miller, accompanied the body, while Mrs. Miller with Martin Miller, brother of Carl J. Miller; Mrs. Martin Miller and Jess Eastman, started on the trip to Walla Walla by motor.

ONIONS BEHAVE "FUNNY" IN FREEZING WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—The onion is a temperamental vegetable. It won't even freeze like anything else. Experiment has shown that onions will cool below the freezing point and still refuse to show the slightest damage. And the more onions that get together, the harder it is to freeze them.

Although the freezing point for an onion is above zero degrees Fahrenheit, a bushel of onions in a standard flat crate was subjected to a temperature of 22 degrees below zero without injury. Another bushel spread out on the floor, suffered a 70 per cent damage, showing that onions in a mass serve as protectors to one another.

Still more subtle idiosyncrasies are seen in the cross current-complexes of an onion's disposition. Under-cooled, but still free of damage, an onion will freeze instantly if stirred. If not handled, however, carefully, spread out into a single layer, in a temperature of 22 degrees below zero for six hours, and then resealed into a basket and then again spread on the floor. At the end of 24 hours the temperature was raised to a temperature of 31 or 32 degrees while the others were in perfect condition.

There is a third erratic behavior. It has been noticed repeatedly that when frozen onions were transferred to a temperature of 31 or 32 degrees the freezing injury was greater than when removed to a higher temperature.

The layer of frozen onions may be damaged and the next one remain normal. Sometimes the injury skips a layer or two as it passes through the center. Frozen tissues appear water-soaked, discolored and somewhat transparent with indefinite scattered, opaque areas.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB INITIATES JEROME GIRL

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, SOUTHERN BRANCH, Pocatello, Dec. 1.—Miss Ruth Shaver of Jerome was one of the 12 new members initiated into the home economics club of the University branch. The club was organized primarily for the promotion of a friendly feeling among the students of the home economic classes. Other new members in the club are Misses Margaret Price, Julia Gibbs and Florence Price of McCammon, Minnie Blum of American Falls, Hedwig Kasper of Piler, Martha Peck and Edith Johnson of Pocatello, Ruth Shaver of Jerome, Thelma Hodson of Blackfoot, Frances Hayes of Nampano, and Cleopha Peterson of Malad.

"IDAHO TAXPAYER" MAKES APPEARANCE

Most Recent Publication of State Chamber of Commerce Tells People State's Story.

BOISE, Dec. 1.—Copies of the November number of the "Idaho Taxpayer," the most recent publication of the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce, are off the press and are now on their way to tell the people of the state the first story of taxation in Idaho.

The "Taxpayer" will be published monthly and each issue will tell in detail some specific story of taxation in Idaho. It is not the purpose of the state chamber to prejudice the reader for or against any situation presented but solely to give the facts that the taxpayer may know the truth.

R. E. Shepherd, Jerome, president of the state chamber, in a letter to the citizens of the state, tells of the organization's work along the lines of aiding governing bodies of the state in working out a more economical administration of governmental affairs. As a slogan the chamber has adopted the following:

"The only effective tax reform—spend less money." In the first issue bonded debt of the state is displayed to the taxpayer in detail. He is shown the total debt of the counties, cities and villages, school, highway and drainage districts of the state is $7,800,297.15. He is also shown that to pay this debt, the various counties, cities, schools, etc., have set aside less than $2,000,000.

Each taxpayer will be interested in his own county, most and the information is so arranged that at a glance he can see just how many bonds the various subdivisions have
