While his court, including the empress, kept watch on the veranda of the sanctuary in more distant pavilions and halls of attendance, the emperor, alone, unseen, unheard, commended "with the spirits of Japan's mythical legends and historical past. In a setting that reproduced the court of his predecessors of two thousand or more years ago, the youthful sovereign re-enacted a ritual that has crystallized the material and spiritual life of prehistoric Japan—a survival of such antiquity as can be proved by archaeological evidence."

60-MILE GALE HOLDS AIRPLANE MOTIONLESS ABOVE CHICAGO FIELD

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP)—Heading into a 60-mile gale, Pilot Howard Stark of the National Air Transport today amazed spectators at the municipal airport by keeping his plane motionless as though suspended in air for an hour.

When he encountered the gale Stark's "right" engine used its full power and then throttled the motor so that the pull of the plane equalled the pressure of the wind, keeping the plane motionless and giving the effect of a motionless airplane.

Plots said they believed he established a record for motionless flying.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—"Our first night on Saturday night, the Vestris began to hit rough weather. As the night progressed, the storm got worse, until before the night was over, we were in the worst storm I ever saw on the sea."

"It was late that night—perhaps a little after midnight—that a thing happened which I believe started the trouble that ended in the tragic sinking of the Vestris.

"Two big waves hit her, all at once. The ship was thrown up, and she went down. I was the only survivor who was able to swim to the surface.

Vestris' Lights --and Shadows

(By The Associated Press) Here and there in the stories told by the Vestris' survivors were little human incidents that sparkled brightly against the background of terror, distress and death. For instance, Alvaro Ramos, an Argentine student on his way home to Buenos Aires, was thrown into the water when his lifeboat failed to launch. The immersion didn't trouble him, because the water was warm but he was bothered by the fact that the dye from his bright necktie had stained the water, coloring his shirt. Ramos, wearing a lifebelt, floated 10 hours before he was picked up.

Walking into the Lamport and Holt offices this noon Ramos told the booking clerk: "I want to engage passage over again."

TRAGEDY'S VICTIMS LAND IN NEW YORK Early Morning Hours Bring 57 Survivors of Disaster to Brooklyn; Captain Praised

NEW YORK, Thursday Morning, Nov. 14 (AP)—Fifty-seven survivors of the foundered Lamport and Holt liner Vestris were landed in Brooklyn early today by a tug which took them off the French rescue tanker Myrion in Gravesend bay.

Eight of those brought ashore were passengers, one of whom was Mrs. C. P. Dietz, Chicago, the wife of a survivor brought to New York yesterday by the steamer American Shipper.

Mrs. Stauffer said that she had heard her husband had been rescued, although they were both floating about in the storm sea off the Virginia Capes when a lifeboat caught her up and pulled away. A few minutes after she reached the pier her husband was taken to her.

DELAY OF CAPTAIN IN SUMMONING AID CAUSES CRITICISM

Narratives Include Heroism, Brutality, Narrow Escape and Suffering—19 Children and 27 Women Are Victims

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Two shiploads of survivors of the Lamport and Holt liner Vestris arrived today to unfold details of one of the most horrible of maritime disasters.

An official inquiry has been ordered, based upon their almost unanimous charges of inefficiency, indecision and delay against Captain William J. Carey and his crew.

Interspersed in narratives of heroism—of the brutality of the narrow escape and of suffering, invariably appeared assertions that if proper steps had been taken by the ship's executives and crew, most, if not all of the 108 now dead would have been alive.

For after seeing the women and children under his care dumped into a boiling sea from shattered lifeboats, his passengers and crew leaping into the waves from the foundering ship, and feeling the bridge on which he stood sinking beneath his feet, Captain Carey, one of his stewardesses, jumped into the sea, or without a lifeboat, though there were plenty to be had.

The composite story of the passengers, reduced to its essentials, is as follows: On Saturday last the Vestris, 16-year-old craft on which Captain Carey was making his last trip before assuming command of the new Vestris, was en route from Los Angeles and Holt line, called for the Barbados and South American ports with 120 passengers and a crew of 108. There were 37 women on board and 13 children.

That very night the ship ran into a blow that steadily increased in violence. The ship had a general cargo of 6000 tons, cloth and automobile parts, and machinery and oil and bulk fuel and other supplies in the gathering swells.

There was little sleep Sunday night and early Monday morning all passengers were called on deck.

At 10 o'clock Captain Carey ordered the S O S call to ship none of which was nearer than 100 miles, and soon after gave the order to abandon ship.

Suddenly the ship wallowed in a rough deeper than any before and the two lifeboats were cracked like egg shells against the ship's side.

By that time the Vestris was sinking rapidly. The boats were successfully launched, but a hole was shown in one and it put off patched with a piece of tin.

The coach feels that a long lay-off before the titular contest would be detrimental to the team, and will arrange a game here for November 22 or 23.

Football Contest Dis closes Glimpse Of Youth's Ambition and Enthusiasm

Important Feature of Gridiron: Battle Between Braves and Bruins is Spirit Displayed, Not Score, Says Ray Foster

That the real thing of importance in connection with the football game played here yesterday between Twin Falls and Boise boys squads was not the final score, or the standing of the teams engaged, or the ultimate place Idaho will occupy in the realm of sport, but was the splendid spirit of ambition and youthful enthusiasm on the part of players and fans, who are developing into athletes. A highlight in the following communication from Ray Foster, of this city:

Oh! say! did you see the mighty struggle on Lincoln field last Monday afternoon?

Who amongst us viewing this gridiron classic was not moved and stirred by the unconquerable spirit manifested by both teams?

Here was youth triumphant, victorious over the veteran. It was a struggle for every inch of ground gained, surging and advancing, then retreating stubbornly under the redoubtable pressure of the opposition. It is any wonder that we yield ourselves hoarse in the excitement and even when defeat finally became the portion of the home teamators was a feeling that after all the big thing was not a matter of figures, but one of spirit. Who can tell what term was chosen by the victors?

After all, both sides won in that contest. For it signified that the qualities that make for manhood, it seemed to cultivate the manly virtues of courage and endurance, and inspires a young man to take as well as give in the battle of life.

Young men of Boise and Twin Falls, how we envied you! How we fought with you and played with you as you engaged in the contest for school honors. It was only a game, but how in earnest you fought as you grinded your teeth and plunged into the fray with determination and grit. How often I wish I could have never giving up while the game continued.

I could not help but think of those young Lechniavars who struggled for supremacy and the airplane soared overhead, that here indeed was the picture of aspiring and ambitious youth. While our bodies are engaged in the physical aspects of life's conflict, who knows how our spirit may be soaring and soaring the higher and nobler things?

Here was a large crowd of young people from the two contending high schools, and they after all represented Idaho's greatest contribution to the future welfare of the state, and the nation. Whether Idaho is ever supreme in the realm of sport we care but little, but we should care exceedingly whether this noble spirit of pride and healthy ambition can be transmitted into the realm of exalted manhood and womanhood.

Let us have many such spectacles as one eyes beheld last Monday and whether our team wins or loses, the spirit of attainment that is inspired by the special advantage to the citizens, both present and future. Let Armistice day hereafter be a special day in which the spirit of youth that won the World war shall be perpetuated and glorified.

PASSENGER RELATES EXPERIENCE DURING 22-HOURS-IN-WATER

most simultaneous, the boat and stern. The ship quivered from end to end. You could almost feel her wobbling. The next day she developed a leak, and I believe that started the leak.

"It was a rough Saturday night-Sunday was rainy. Only four of the passengers besides myself were down for breakfast.

"The minute I stepped out of my cabin that night I began to feel queasy. The Vestris was lying."

"In the dining salon that morning I ran into Captain Frederick Sorenson, and we started in talking over. He did not like that his other, inasmuch as he was a sailor. I decided he must know what he was talking about.

"Whether the other passengers were uneasy, I don't know. Most of them were visibly seasick and spent the whole day in their bunks. As I said, there were only five down for breakfast. No more showed up for lunch or dinner.

"My cabin was on the top deck, and I took up my bunk. It was a 10-foot Monday morning there was the water right on a level with my windows. There was water clanking around on the floor of my cabin, too."

"My steward came in, groaning with a badly wrenched shoulder. The hold was filling with water, and he had been talking with a bucket all night. The cargo had shifted too, and the ship had tipped clear over until the water was on a level with my windows on the top deck.

"I dressed as quickly as I could, as the banana which was all my steward could get for my breakfast, and went up on the bow deck.

"The crew was throwing the cargo overboard. They were all wet and shivering. I looked like a pile of cash and such stuff. Their decks were working so they couldn't get rid of the heavier things, like automobiles."

"A little crowd of men stood up there, leaning over the railing and watching the crew. They had a look of despair, some of them had come out with their life preservers on. They looked badly scared."

DUMB BELLS

"I thought I heard the miller's cry of suffering."

"Once I went back to my cabin to try to remove my money, but I had left an ink-bottle on one of the shelves and was wedged in under my bunk. I got my pocket-book and a pack of cigarettes in my pocket."

"The ship kept on tilting. You could hardly walk on the deck."

"At 10:30 the women and children were brought up and told to put on life preservers. Still we got no definite information from the officers."

"The women were wonderful. Some of them were crying quietly, but there was no hysteria. One of them held in her arms a baby not more than eight months old. All the children had been bundled up. They knew now that they would probably have to leave the ship."

"But this! I said to one little fellow with bright blue eyes, trying to cheer him up. He looked at his mouth, which was crying, and nodded solemnly."

"At 11:30 they started to launch the lifeboats, over the port side. The first boat was on a level with my windows. I took them two hours to launch those boats, an operation that usually takes an hour or so."

"Slow Process
The women were all wet and shivering. I looked like a pile of cash and such stuff. Their decks were working so they couldn't get rid of the heavier things, like automobiles."

women and children—two youngsters were on each boat. One of the women was Clara Bell, with whom I subsequently dined on the piece of wreckage. Another was Mrs. Inove, the wife of the man who was supposed to be in charge of the lifeboats. The ship's lifeboats were aboard, and our crew consisted of four negro sailors. The women were bundled over on her side and sank."

"I think one of the funniest things I saw was 49 men—apparently all life—left on deck when the ship went down her side and diving off from her keel."

"One boat never got away at all. It was an ink-bottle on one of the shelves and was wedged in under my bunk. I got my pocket-book and a pack of cigarettes in my pocket."

while he was flying at an altitude of about 4000 feet. This time the plane tilted forward and the right wing broke off and swerved clear of the fuselage."

All of the victims of the accident were members of the Army's 30th school squadron and had volunteered to make the flight in order that non-commissioned officers who were about to take the flight to get in flying time might attend a football game at the field.

The wreckage of the plane landed six-first in the field and threw the six men into the forward hold, striking their heads against the front end of the cabin of the plane.

All of the men had parachutes strapped on, but did not get an opportunity to use them on account of the terrific speed at which the plane fell.

The victims of the accident were taken to the Brooks field hospital where members of their squadron filed the bodies in order to identify their mangled bodies.

HIGH SCHOOL STOCK JUDGES MEET BEST OF NATION'S TEAVIS

John S. Feldhusen, Twin Falls Instructor, Takes Students to Kansas City to Compete in Nationwide Titular Race

With the money required for the trip to the national stock judging show at Kansas City, provided by the Twin Falls high school team, consisting of John Fred, George Evans and Carroll Baker, will leave tomorrow morning for the city accompanied by John S. Feldhusen, coach and Smith-Hughes agricultural instructor to represent Idaho in the contest. They will arrive in Kansas City Sunday and will judge Monday, returning to Twin Falls the latter part of next week.

Money donated was given without solicitation. The largest sum received was a check for $200 from Howard V. Plank, who, recently retired as general manager of the Oregon Short Line. Others donating were the Twin Falls Flour Mills, the J. C. Panney company, the Pacific Fruit and Produce company, and the Twin Falls county Pomona grange.

The boys harvested about 800 bushels of potatoes in working out their own solution, which will net them about $100. They cleared $1750 on their share of sale at the football game yesterday.

The total balance required to make up the small of $150 necessary for the trip will be contributed by the school.

The team won second place in a contest with 50 teams at the Portland exposition, beating all other Idaho teams entered, and was designated to represent this state at Kansas City.

JAPANESE EMPEROR FINISHES CEREMONY

matched in to other land of this modern world.

Atmosphere of the ceremony was thoroughly primitive, but that of the surroundings was modern. The Japanese emperor were drawn up in their details of the emperor's soldiers and sailors. At the climax of the ceremony, these 700 chosen men presented arms with fixed bayonets on modern rifles.

Another modern touch was the fact that for the first time in history, newspapermen were permitted to approach the place of this sacred rite. A few selected Japanese reporters and two American correspondents, including the representative of The Associated Press, were allowed to take posts a few yards outside of the Sukuden.

There was a tremendous quiet about the whole affair. A careless observer 50 yards distant could not have guessed that a great state ceremony, with 1000 persons in attendance, was in progress less than 200 feet from him.

From time to time the address was broken by weird ritualistic music. The voice of thin soft pipes rose plaintively and supplementarily. Then it quieted away, there were no more of the long chant as the songs of the ancient rice farmers were intoned.

One could hear also the crackling of the plow, the rattle of the wheels and the chirping of night birds and crickets. Once in a while there would be a tramp of marching feet or the subdued rattle of equipment as the guards were changed.

No lights were visible within the sacred enclosure, but the reflection of the glow of the city was on the clouds which hung over the pine grove like a great awning.

What remains of the gastronomical banquet is still to be seen in the celebration, visits to the great shrine at the end and to the tomb of certain of his ancestors military and royal reviews and popular celebrations.

The restoration of primitive Japan in which the "great thanksgiving" was enacted now must be demolished for the bits of twisted logs, thatch roofs and red-ceremonial walls are to be defiled by use for any other purpose, they the august one they have just served.

Charles A. Clary, 21, Venice, California, who was arrested here late Tuesday evening and held for investigation in connection with robbery Monday night of Mrs. Adeline Murray waitress employed by the Manhattan cafe, has confessed to issuance of a number of forged checks, it was announced at police headquarters last evening.

Charges of forgery will be preferred against Clary this morning, it was stated. The complaint, which is to be signed by J. When he was arrested late Tuesday evening he was carrying $11 in change, $2 for some minutes in a chase to find around the block in which the Manhattan cafe is situated. Clary was required to remove high-topped boots that he wore under his trousers.

RED CROSS TO MAKE DRIVE FAR REACHING

Every Person in Community to Be Invited to Join Organization in Local Campaign

Plans are nearing completion for the twelfth annual roll call of the American Red Cross to be conducted here on Saturday, November 17, and in the outlying communities from now to Thanksgiving day as part of a national-wide effort to enroll 5,000,000 members. H. M. Halberstam, national roll representative of the American Red Cross announced last evening.

As a result in the enrollment here will be a corps of approximately 40,000 workers, composed of volunteer women of the American Legion Auxiliary, the Twentieth Century club and the Girl Reserves, under the leadership of the roll call chairman, Mrs. D. L. Alexander.

Will Solicit Everyone

Stretching the fact which only during the roll call held once a year does the organization seek support through memberships for its local work.

Halberstam said that campaign plans will include the extension of a direct invitation to every resident of the community. This will be done by reaching them at their places of business or at their homes.

"The American Red Cross," he said, "merits the support of everyone, the service it is rendering in this community, in the nation, and internationally, are indispensable and must continue. They can do so only with adequate response to the roll call."

Organized Relief Agency Will Be the Only Agency Organized and Equipped to cope with disaster

In this and other communities, it supports the call for help from the smallest towns and the challenge of such overwhelming national calamities as the Mississippi valley flood of last year and the West Indies hurricane of this year. In the last three years it has collected and disbursed for the relief of sufferers from fires, floods, hurricanes and other disasters more than $30,000,000.

"In the field of public health, in service to the victims of the World War, in the prevention of accidental deaths through inspiration in first aid and life saving, and in its many other fields of activity, it is taking the lead and daily performing countless deeds of service."

"The confidence of the American people in their Red Cross is unshakable. They have only to be asked and they will join. This is why we are laying such careful plans to present to every man and woman in this community a personal invitation to join the Red Cross for the ensuing year."

truly American republic which is even tentatively on the good-will itinerary. American marines have been occupying territory in this country for more than a year, having been sent there by President Coolidge at the time of the revolutionary outbreak last year. They were employed by an agreement on both sides to supervise the registration and election for the selection of a new president.

Information also was obtained that Mr. Hoover does not contemplate returning to Washington until the day before his inauguration on March 4. It is fairly certain now that he will establish his headquarters at some point in Florida, and will summon large party leaders and others with whom he will discuss affairs of his administration.

GRAIN PRICES MOVE UP ON DAY'S MART

Flurried-Buying-Pushes Values Upward; Closing Quotations Unsettled; Corn Goes Higher

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP)—Flurried buying set all grain flying upward in price today and there came a reaction. Remarkable curtailment in demand estimates of the 1928 wheat yield in Canada brought about the buying flurry but an increase of over 17,000,000 bushels was shown in world war stocks and wheat there was a good deal more proffering on the part of most exporters than could be absorbed at once.

Rising Wheat Prices—Rising prices for wheat today carried corn and oats to the highest level that has been reached by the feed-grain since reached by this season. As in the case of wheat, however, top quotations failed to hold. It was pointed out that although the Canadian government crop report cut down by 40,000,000 bushels the latest market estimate of Canadian wheat production this year, the world supply total includes 12,750,000 bushels enlargement of the world supply.

WAVE OF INFLUENZA CAUSES CLOSING OF ALL CITY'S SCHOOLS

County Health Board Orders 10-Day Vacation As Result of Epidemic; Cerebro-Spinal Meningitis Claims Boy

An epidemic of influenza that has held a heavy hand on the Twin Falls county yesterday caused closing of all city schools for a period of 10 days.

This action was announced by members of the school board Tuesday evening when Superintendent W. D. Smith reported that 750 pupils out of 10,000 in school on account of illness, and that the teaching staff was seriously crippled by attacks of the malady.

This disease order was issued Tuesday morning shortly after pupils had assembled in their glass rooms. It was issued on recommendation of the health board, which is acting as a means of preventing further spread of the epidemic.

Classes will be resumed Monday. Members of the board are endeavoring to extend the enforced vacation period. It was stated.

Newspapers Offer Aid

No attempt will be made this week to assign lessons for home study, but it is probable that the schools will still themselves of cooperation of the newspapers to publish lesson assignments for next week beginning Monday. Superintendent Smith stated.

While the epidemic is by no means affecting one pupil out of every seven enrolled in the schools, it does not appear to be of virulent form, and, according to school records, pupils suffering from it have recovered sufficiently to return to their classrooms after three or four days absence.

Meningitis Appears

A more sinister note in connection with the community health conditions was sounded early yesterday when it was determined that cerebro-spinal meningitis had caused one fatality in Twin Falls. The victim, Cleve Nelson, 17, 444 Fourth avenue, died at 10:30 a. m. after a brief illness.

Dr. J. A. Mench, who is the county physician in a county board of health, after consultation by telephone with the state department of public welfare at Boise, decided to await further developments before taking drastic action.

Diagnosis in this case, the attending physician stated, was based upon positive laboratory tests made by a pathological specimen of the fluid from the spinal canal being used for this purpose.

How Can You Do It?

THAT'S WHAT THEY SAY
How can you sell Hi-Grade Laying Mash and Dairy Feed and Nut Coal at such a low price?
There are different reasons. First, We have learned to know how, because we are personally acquainted with the needs of the Hen and the Dairy Cow.
Second, our living don't depend on selling Dairy Feed and Laying Mash.
We have other means of raising cash.
For instance, we also know how to run a place.
Our competitors may think we are Jokers.
But we make money selling Stokers.
This is a fact and you should know.
When we put these things across
It makes us feel like heretics.
