TEMPERANCE UNION BEGINS CONVENTION

Election of Herbert Hoover Termed "Great Victory" By National Organization Head

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—Election of Herbert Hoover as president was termed a "great victory" by Mrs. Ella Alexander Boole in her address as president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union at its opening session of its fifty-fourth convention in Tremont Temple tonight.

"There were many issues," she said, "and such a large number of women and their interest in this cause resulted in greatly increased registration and interest in the election. There has never been a presidential campaign in which women have taken so active a part. The slogan 'I am for Hoover' rallied the women of the nation."

Women Prove Loyalty "The people of America have proven they are loyal to their constitution. They do not want it changed. They have not forgotten the old days when the liquor traffic was legalized and, although there were many important issues, the men and women of America have been willing to trust these men with these undoubted friends of prohibition."

"We still believe prohibition is the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic," she said, "and we appeal to the public to give it a chance by obeying the law voluntarily. We appeal to the press for loyalty to the constitution and to the support of the method adopted after long years of

RELIEF LEGISLATION FARMERS' PRINCIPAL NEED, SAY GRANGERS

Dairy Industry Held to Be In Comparatively Satisfactory Condition by W. W. Deay, Head of Idaho Organization

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Relief legislation is the outstanding need of American farmers in the opinion of most of the state masters of the National Grange, expressed in reports submitted today at the fifty-second annual convention of the organization.

Decreased value of farm lands, and high taxes were noted among difficulties yet to be surmounted before the farmer reaches the economic status of other workers. The dairy industry was held to be in a comparatively satisfactory condition, but nearing the saturation point in development by W. W. Deay, National Idaho Grange leader.

Forming the farmer, the "foolish" of politicians, Palmer declared that millions of dollars have been expended in all other industries.

But when farmers ask for equality," he said, "their efforts are in vain and they are informed that their bill is improperly drawn and that it would not benefit agriculture, but that they elect this person or that person they are sure to get relief."

Agriculture has continued to decline, he declared, because of lack of proper organization while other industries

More Vessels Come in as Detailed Story of Vestris' Sinking is Written Into Official Government Records

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The detailed story of the sinking of the Vestris was being written on the official government records today as more of the ships of the rescue fleet came to port with living and dead.

Scattered families were reunited, the survivors were found by joyous relatives and friends. But in other quarters, only sorrow prevailed as 72 bodies were laid out for identification by officials shook their heads negatively in answer to anxious queries of those seeking some word of the unreported.

At the end of the day all the rescue fleet had reached port and the latest count of those who had survived and who were lost failed to improve the list of 114 dead. Thirteen bodies were brought to New York on the destroyer Shaw. The battleship Wyoming arrived at Hampton Roads with nine survivors and the French tanker (Continued on Page Two)

But while the number of awards doubled, the total of the annual awards has increased more than 400 per cent.

When the distress signal was at last sent out, hours late, they said, the crew was left to its own devices and the passengers neither were told to don life belts nor given any assistance in getting to the lifeboats.

"None of the witnesses saw any officers except the captain on deck while the crew was making vain attempts to launch the lifeboats.

The survivors testified at the opening session of the federal inquiry before United States Commissioner Francis C. Sweeney, assisted by United States Attorney Charles Tuttle and four assistants. Today's witnesses were all passengers, beginning with Frederick W. Buhl, whose wife and seven-month-old baby were lost when the ship sank, and ending with Carlos Quirroz, channeler of the Argentine consulate general in Washington. Tomorrow officers and members of the crew of the Vestris will be called.

Tuttle said he was not sure of jurisdiction of today's session that he was not sure about the jurisdiction of United States courts in the matter, the Vestris sank in British waters.

LACK OF DISCIPLINE AND ROTTING BOATS DRAWING CRITICISM

Man Who Lost Wife and Child in Mad Scramble Relates Experiences; SOS-12 Hours too Late Declares One Passenger

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Six survivors of the foundered steamer Vestris today charged under oath before a United States commissioner that the disaster was marked by entire lack of discipline, that neither officers nor men were equipped to meet the emergency, and that three were needlessly wasted by rotting lifeboats which no one knew how to handle.

When the distress signal was at last sent out, hours late, they said, the crew was left to its own devices and the passengers neither were told to don life belts nor given any assistance in getting to the lifeboats.

"None of the witnesses saw any officers except the captain on deck while the crew was making vain attempts to launch the lifeboats.

The survivors testified at the opening session of the federal inquiry before United States Commissioner Francis C. Sweeney, assisted by United States Attorney Charles Tuttle and four assistants. Today's witnesses were all passengers, beginning with Frederick W. Buhl, whose wife and seven-month-old baby were lost when the ship sank, and ending with Carlos Quirroz, channeler of the Argentine consulate general in Washington. Tomorrow officers and members of the crew of the Vestris will be called.

Not Sure of Jurisdiction

Tuttle said he was not sure of jurisdiction of today's session that he was not sure about the jurisdiction of United States courts in the matter, the Vestris sank in British waters.

"What I want to find out is whether charges are true that American citizens have lost their lives at sea through negligence of the United States government, and that lives of American citizens whose people will be called to account by this office. We'll talk about jurisdiction later."

The first and most dramatic witness was Puppe. In a broken voice—crying up and down once breaking off his testimony to remove his spectacles and polish them—Puppe told how he stood with his wife and baby in a British lifeboat.

"I was absolutely sure must have been called for help."

"Suddenly, though we heard no orders and though no officers were in sight," he said, "the crew began to take the lifeboats. You could see that none of them had ever tried to lower a lifeboat before. They ran from one child to another, taking things from one and putting them into another."

"At night, when we were out in the lifeboat, I was told by one of the men that I saw men taking things from one boat and putting them into others. They were fixing a few with spare equipment, planning to ride in them themselves, and they winked to their friends to join them."

"I saw two lifeboats," Puppe testified, "still clinging to the ship when she went down."

"I saw a dagger in my hand with a new pearl grey hat resting on its knee, furnished some of the most dramatic moments of the afternoon. In broken English he described the confusion on the slanting deck of the Vestris Monday morning."

"Man I knew, a pupil," he

CASUALTY LIST MAY BE REDUCED THIS SEASON

said, "came up to me and said, 'Things are getting bad. I just saw an officer pull a gun on a negro seaman, and the negro grabbed the gun and threw it into the sea.'"

"Anyone with common sense," Quirus said, "would have seen an S. O. S. from the Vestris more than 12 hours earlier than Captain Carey did."

His dark eyes flashing with indignation, Quirus declared that men were separated from their wives as the lifeboats were filled and their places in the lifeboats taken by members of the crew. He said that, as one boat was being lowered a hole in its side—"an old hole," he said, "dark around the edges."

Flares Broken

Wallace Sinclair, one of the calmest passengers, said that the flare signals that nobody could get it opened until a negro seaman finally chopped it open with a hatchet. The members of the life crew in that lifeboat, he charged, knew where the flares were. "We had to find them ourselves," he said, "and when we did, and finally got them out of the carrier, half of them broke."

By Sinclair said the lifeboat, in which he rode, was not a "patrol" of pain as big as his hand and leaked through the seams.

Sinclair charged that there was "an awful lot of water" in the lifeboat, and that the passengers were getting the lifeboats down, or getting the passengers into them.

"I did not hear, at any time," he said, "any of the passengers to put on their life belts."

Herman Ruckert, Leipzig, Germany, a first class passenger, gave a graphic picture of the way the ship lurched before the storm that struck it almost as soon as it got to sea.

"At dinner on Sunday," he said, "there was a port hole that wouldn't close. A woman was drenched and had to move to another table. The same thing happened there. Next the ship gave a great roll. Dishes went everywhere and one man was thrown under the table."

The next morning he opened his cabin door to see a steward running by with a life belt on. "Should I also have a life belt?" he asked. He said the steward told him he might as well. That he said, was all that was done by way of preparing the passengers to go overboard. He got into a lifeboat, but it leaked so much that he jumped out and swam to another, which was rowed away from him. "Then the boat he had been in sank. He said it was the roughest sea he had ever experienced and he had travelled widely."

The witness, Walter Spitz, a business man of Bern, Switzerland, testified in German through an interpreter. It was he who told of seeing a great hole in one of the boats into which women and children were placed. The hole was knocked in the boat, he said, while the crew was getting it loose preparatory to lowering it. But the women and children were put in anyway and then left swinging in the davits, until the Vestris sank and carried them all down with it. Spitz himself got into a boat crowded to the guards, and as it was lowered it turned over and all were hurled into the water.

Mythen reached Brooklyn with 37 bodies, the day more details of the disaster that sent the liner to the bottom 200 miles off Hampton Roads than 12 hours after she was sunk.

Combined, each feature went to live coverage for 228 persons—120 of them passengers—who left New York Saturday for Barbados and South America.

Stories of two women will never be told. Captain William Carey went with his ship and never will answer the criticism against him and his crew for their work in meeting the disaster. Neither will Michael J. O'Loughlin, radio operator, ever tell how and why he stayed at his post until he was unable to save himself. But his devotion to the radio man's code of the sea has been a outstanding tale of heroism in the entire account of the wreck and his name will be inscribed on the monument in Battery Park erected to the memory of wireless men who have kept the record unsullied.

In the extra frame, rolled to break the time, the Wire-farmers topped 53 pins to 42 for the Habers. The incandescent quintet took the last mix, 703 to 670. The scores:

The remainder of the week will be devoted to ceremonial work and next week the Grange will consider its legislative policy. The present program includes opposition to the Columbus river basin navigation project.

UTAHNS WILL MEET TWIN FALLS SQUAD ON LINCOLN FIELD

Granite High School Schedules Grid Contest With Bruins; Two Terms Played 6-All Tie Last Year; "Flu" Prevails

Definite announcement was made yesterday by the Bruins coach, R. V. Jones, that Granite high school, Salt Lake City, would come to Twin Falls for a game November 23. Negotiations have been going on for the last three or four days and the agreement was reached late yesterday after an exchange of telegrams.

It was necessary for the Bruins to obtain permission of the state board of control to play an out-of-the-state team. Scheduling was received early in the week. Coach Rex Sutherland of Granite, also was forced to obtain approval of his state board to play in Idaho.

Played 6-6 Tie
Bruins and Granite played a 6-6 tie in Twin Falls last Thanksgiving in one of the best games seen on the local field in several years. The Bruins this year are out to wipe out that tie. Granite has many of their players by graduation last year. Among them is the famous Smith twins that held down the ends. Coach Sutherland has always had a team in the running for the Utah title and the Bruins will go up against a strong aggregation here next week.

Squad Depleted
The Bruins squad was somewhat depleted yesterday with five men still confined with influenza. Coach Jones, himself a victim of the malady, believes that the squad will all be able to don the moleskins again next week and have four days of preparation for the Granite team. Only one light workout has been held this week but every day has been utilized with chalk talks.

Scheduling of this game will give Bruin fans a chance to see two more games of first class caliber. Both Bruins in the event they win from Nampa, will meet Twin Falls in the state title contest here on Thanksgiving day.

BEARS AND TROJANS STILL IN DEADLOCK FOR COAST LAURELS

Brilliant Grid Season Nears End in West; Cougars Lead Stanford; Oregon Elevens Meet

(By The Associated Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 15—Football is nearing the end of a brilliant season in the West but the deadlock between California and Southern California for coast conference championship honors is as tight as it was the day after these teams played to a scoreless tie five weeks ago.

While both elevens snap into action again this week-end, only Southern California—putting its conference-standing in jeopardy. The Trojans defeated Washington State's Cougars, a rough, tough squad of stalwarts who have bowled over opposition in an alarming manner and now are in third place in the 10-team circuit.

Cougars Lead Stanford
The Cougars have won four games and lost only to California's Bears. Consequently they are ahead of Stanford in percentage standing.

Another game will bring the Washington Huskies to Palo Alto for their annual brush with Stanford's Cardinals. Although defeated, the Huskies surprised everyone, including themselves, by holding California's Bears to a 6-0 victory, predicting Stanford victory, the critics are only concerned with the score, some favoring the Cardinals by one touchdown, and others up to three.

Oregon Elevens Meet
Oregon and Oregon State, great rivals, appear evenly matched for their year's classic at Corvallis. Both have heavy, powerful teams. Idaho, meeting Montana in the last of the conference—this—scheduled for Saturday, should have but little trouble whipping the Grizzlies. Montana has won all three of its conference games this season.

California, winner over Washington, has a set-up in the Nevada-Willamette will use the game to polish up its offense for Stanford, a week later. University of California, Los Angeles, expects to make in another non-conference contest.

LEGACY... THE NEW AND MODERN PATTERN... ADDS NEW BEAUTY TO THIS FAMOUS SILVERWARE SET

The silverware merchants around town, as you may know, are now holding a special Value Demonstration of 1847 ROGERS BROS. Silverplate.

Just to prove that the finest of all silverplate is likewise the most reasonably priced!

But the hit of the show... "the big number"... is the famous Pieces of 8 set in the new LEGACY pattern. A 34-piece service in knives (with stainless blades) forks and spoons in a new and modern art design, at $36.85, with a handsome buffet chest FREE.

When 1847 ROGERS BROS. announced the "Pieces of 8" idea two years ago, it was greeted like a transatlantic fier. "Why, that's what we've been waiting for," said smart hostesses everywhere. Eight of each piece, instead of six... so there's always a "spare" or two for the unexpected guest.

But now, to the utility of the Pieces of 8 set, has been added the modern beauty of LEGACY... the span-new pattern, first to reflect the modern art in silverware.

ADDISON T. SMITH BACK
FROM BOISE CONFERENCE

Congressman Addison T. Smith returned yesterday from Boise where he spent four days in conference with United States Senators John Robinson and Governor H. C. Baldrige.

During the day he conferred yesterday with members of the King Hill irrigation district board of directors who are seeking extension of time for payment of charges for construction of the King Hill project.

Maintenance charges on the project, they told the congressman, are so heavy that it is impossible for farmers to pay both maintenance and construction charges.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith expect to remain here until next Wednesday when they will leave for Washington, stopping en route for a few days' visit at the home of their elder son, Hugh T. Smith, Pittsburgh.

Well Spouting Flames

DESTRUCTION of the West End of the Santa Fe Springs oil field was threatened when a well of the Bell View Oil company came in a gusher, exploded and then spread flames to other wells in the district. The Bell View project, located near Whittier, California, continues to throw a flame 100 feet in the air.

EXPEDITION SEEKS TRACE OF NORTH AMERICAN FLAMINGOES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—An expedition has been sent out from Aberdeen, Md., to search for traces of the last colony of flamingoes in North America, feared wiped out by the hurricane in September. Arthur Newton, president of the American Nature association, has been informed. From Andros island, off the Florida coast, Elgin W. Forsyth, commissioner and warden at Mangrove Cay, says two hurricanes passed over the island and no doubt destroyed large numbers of the birds. One storm was August 6 and another September 19.

He says he sent out an expedition in June to locate the flamingo colony because it was nesting time. The men ranged the Grassy creek area and reported seeing only three birds. He concludes:

"I fear the bird life of the colony generally has suffered disastrous losses and the need of conservation is greater than ever."

Andros was declared a flamingo sanctuary by the British government after bird lovers of the United States and England became aroused at the wanton killing of the birds by natives.

"After the disastrous hurricane of W. Webster, Rexburg and J. E. McClelland, superintendent Aberdeen station, University of Idaho experiment station.

The evening program will feature addresses by Dr. Frederick J. Kelly, president of the University of Idaho, and Governor H. C. Balch, Idaho, and Governor H. C. Balch, Idaho. A musical program for the evening will be provided by Rexburg people.

at San Juan, Ida Jewell D'Egbert reported on the damage done to trees in the area known so well by the American soldier in the Spanish-American war 30 years ago. She told of the remarkable "comeback" of boxwood three feet at the trunk which were sprouting and growing and replacement they are bushing forth. She saw a three-foot stick driven by the 140-mile wind into a Royal palm at Lares, Porto Rico.

DIVORCED COUPLE RIVAL CINCINNATI ICE DEALERS

CINCINNATI, Nov. 15 (AP)—From opposite sides of a city lot, Mrs. H. H. Wellman and her divorced husband bid for the neighborhood ice trade. The "ice war" between the woman and her former spouse began last summer when a divorce decree separated them and dissolved the ice-dispensing partnership. The court awarded her the home, and Wellman the business, on an adjoining lot.

Mrs. Wellman erected a station only "a shout and a couple of holes," as her former husband said, from the "old place" at business. So keen is the struggle for the trade that both keep their places open all night. Wellman sleeps in the rear of his place.

"I remember her when she was beautiful"

IT WASN'T so long ago either. Her complexion was the envy of every girl and woman. Her radiant manner was felt the instant she entered the room. . . . But now you'd hardly know she was the same person. Her animation is gone—her clear skin is sallow. She's always tired.
