8000 PERSONS FLEE WHEN GREAT DYKES BREAK IN BELGIUM

Food, Clothing and Redding Being Rushed Into Stricken District By Red Cross; Soldiers Begin Rehabilitation

(By The Associated Press) BRUSSELS, Dec. 28.—(AP)—Eight thousand persons are in desperate plight because of the breaking of dykes along the Scheldt river with resulting inundation for the lowlands between Termonde and Hamme. A strong westerly gale driving the swollen waters of the river was the cause of the breach in the embankments.

Fifteen villages which were similarly inundated a month ago and which had been made nearly habitable once more by strenuous industry are again under water. Great numbers of cattle were drowned and wide spread destruction done to property. Many families who have lost everything are resolved to leave the district altogether. One farmer in despair at the ruin of his farm committed suicide.

Weeks of Work Destroyed All of the dykes built by army engineers have withstood the new flood but one of the largest breaches made a month ago which was being filled under private contract has again opened and the reconstruction work of four weeks has been destroyed.

Two battalions of the soldiers have been sent on special trains to strengthen the dykes and repair the breaches. Food, clothing and bedding are being rushed in Red Cross cars to provide for the most urgent needs of the stricken population.

Veteran River Man Believes Idaho Adventurers Perished In Swirling Colorado Waters

Emerly Kolb, on Return From Deep Gorges of Grand Canyon, Reports Examination of Abandoned Scoop Indicates Hansen Couple Encountered Death on Trip; Equipment Still in Craft

(By The Associated Press) PEACH SPRINGS, Ariz., Dec. 28.—Conviction that Glenn R. Hyde and his wife had perished in the swirling waters of the Colorado river was expressed tonight by Emerly Kolb, veteran river man, after he returned here from the deep gorges of the Grand canyon.

Kolb reported that examination of the scoop, in which the couple had attempted to shoot the river rapids indicated that disaster had overtaken them not far above where the craft was found, lodged in the rocks which clog the tortuous canyon river bed.

Apparent testimony to the tragic end of the Hydys' adventure was found in their log book, which was recovered with other personal effects and camping equipment from the stranded scoop. Entries in the diary, with code notations, recorded the progress of the Hansen, Idaho, couple. The last notation, made on November 30, reported their arrival at a point 12 miles below Diamond creek, and that they had "shot" 16 rapids that day.

Searchers Form Theory The location of the pilotless scoop, 14 miles below Diamond creek, indicated to the returned searchers that Hyde and his wife had been lost in the rapids within the last two miles above there.

Opinions were given that the couple, who were managing their untimely craft by means of dug fore and aft sweeps, had been hurled from their sweeping scoop into the raging waters. One entry in the diary indicated: "Continued on Page 2, Column 11"

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 28.—(AP)—David J. Pugh, chief deputy state treasurer, confessed this afternoon to embezzling more than $100,000 of the state's funds and giving himself up to Sheriff Clifford Patten.

The pecuniations came to light just a week before Pugh was to relinquish his post in the treasurer's office due to a change of administration. Pugh appeared at the county jail this afternoon after he had made a confession to State Treasurer John Walker in which he declared he had used approximately $100,000 in state funds to bet on horse races. He was taken to the home of Sheriff Patten, where he made a statement to The Associated Press.

"Fireworks" Left "I guess I got over my bow but the fireworks," Pugh said. "The only thing I regret is that it all leaked out before I had a chance to communicate with my attorney. I was in a very tight spot. I had a personal friend and this morning he called on me and asked me to make an immediate admission of the books. "I don't know the exact amount of the shortage but an auditor called in 15 minutes how much money I owe. The money all went on the horses. In fact, I spent a lot of my own money that way. My friends have assured me that restitution will be made. I don't know how soon I can get out of here."

Treasurer Walker declared that the loss is covered by bond. Pugh was bonded for $50,000, according to Walker, and the treasurer's office as a whole is covered by $300,000.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE USES BIRD DOGS ON ISLAND QUAIL HUNT

(By The Associated Press) SAPELEO ISLAND, Ga., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Quail game bird which ended President Coolidge's hunting in Virginia a month ago, fell victim today to the chief executive's marksmanship. After half hour's hunting with Colonel E. W. Starling, Mr. Coolidge returned from the thickets and fields of Sapeleo island with six birds, the majority of which, members of the party said, had been shot by the president himself.

Today's hunting took place at a remote section of the island, which is almost a separate island in itself, and has been named for Black Bear. The party, which is said to have made its headquarters there at one time.

The English system of stationing the birds in pens and using beaters to flush the birds in their direction was abandoned today for the more familiar method of using bird dogs to find the game. Four well-trained animals were provided by Mr. Coolidge's host, Howard E. Coffin, from his private kennel. The president used 12-gauge double-barreled, hammerless shotgun. Mr. Coolidge and Mrs. Coffin had planned to go along today and possibly do some shooting themselves, but at the last minute, after being warned of the brambles and undergrowth which would be encountered, they abandoned the idea.

Stis For Portrait Mrs. Coolidge spent the day by allowing for the portrait which is to be hung in the new home of the New York Geological and Mineralogical society. Mrs. Coolidge also is in progress. Mr. Coffin has prepared an active and interesting program of guests. Tomorrow a deer hunt is planned and later they are to be visitors at a game plantation. The president's party will run wild over the island, a performance in distinct contrast with the Western redneck which Mr. Coolidge witnessed in South Dakota. Then, the island negroes are to sing their old spirituals for the president while a blacking motion picture film is made.

If an American wanted to be to the United States what Mussolini is to Italy, it is suggested that he would have to become President, Vice President, Secretary of State, Secretary of War, Secretary of the Interior, Secretary of Commerce, Secretary of Agriculture, Secretary of Labor, Chairman of the Republican National Committee...

It seems an incredibly large order for a mere mortal to fill. Contemplating Mussolini's ability to hold down all the Cabinet positions he has assigned to himself, one is forced to the conclusion that the man does not fill them all, but has a genius for convincing subordinates of his right to the glory and publicity.

19 Idaho Agricultural Crops Worth $91,544,000, Federal Report Shows

HARVEST FOR 1927 BRINGS $11,237,000 MORE THAN IN 1928

Decrease in Valuation Due to Reduced Production Volume and Lower Prices; Lack of Precipitation Detrimental

BOISE, Dec. 28 (AP)—Idaho harvested $91,544,000 worth of crops during 1928 but fell $11,237,000 short of reaching the value of 1927, as revealed in the annual report of J. H. Jacobson, agricultural statistician for the United States department of agriculture, released here today.

The value of the same 19 crops reported on this year brought in $127,812,000 last year's crop brought in. These values are based on prices prevailing December 1, except for those crops marketed earlier in the season, for which seasonal prices are used. The decreased valuation is due largely to reduced volume of production and lower prices received for most crops.

Stock Prices Advance
"It should be remembered that the above values do not tell the whole story, a large portion of food crops are fed to livestock and livestock prices are at a higher level this year. Also, additional millions of dollars are brought into the state by wool and the poultry and dairy industries. It is reported that state banks have deposits $5,000,000 more than last year.

The growing season was abbreviated by a prolonged period of high temperatures and lack of precipitation which materially reduced yields. Excellent weather conditions during harvest permitted gathering of crops with minimum losses.

On the basis of December 1 prices, the hay crop leads all others, with a value of $30,124,000. Production is less by 547,000 tons than in 1927, but the price averaged $10.88 against $9.69 a year ago. Quality is generally good, due to lack of rain during harvest.

Wheat Crop Third Largest
There were 10,488,000 bushels of winter wheat and 18,304,000 bushels of spring wheat or a total of 28,792,000 bushels produced. This is the third largest wheat crop produced in Idaho, it being exceeded in 1923 and 1927. The important wheat area of North Idaho was handicapped by drought, but excellent yields in eastern counties partly offset this loss. The value of this year's crop is $25,912,000 compared with $31,570,000 for the 27,374,000 bushels produced in 1927.

Reports from the field indicated there were about 1000 acres of wheat not harvested this year. The remaining 116,000 acres produced 19,720,000 bushels valued at $6,874,000. In 1927, a total of 12,000 acres produced 24,380,000 bushels with a December 1 value of $13,409,000.

Potato Crop Near Spot
"Extreme heat and disease reduced the acre yield to 170 bushels, whereas in 1927, the yield was 242 bushels per acre. Prices December 1 averaged 45 cents a bushel against 55 cents last year. Potatoes were the only crop up in Idaho agriculture this year.

A BIRDSEYE-STYLEVIEW IN TWIN FALLS STORES

Review of Current Fashions Gleaned From an Inspection of Local Firms

By THE NEWS SHOPPER

SPRING FLUTTERINGS
My mind was made up to talk safety first about dressy or formal frocks but with all the merchants advertising hints of the new spring clothes, and the very air itself as warm and bright, to end in a knot at the side could I do? I was utterly defenseless. So I had to take a peek into things, and try to discover just what the next season will bring.

We are undoubtedly in for more complicated clothes. Waistlines rest at the top of the hips, or slightly higher, but become the upper part of the dress is cut straight and simple, and is often in one piece with the hip yoke, one does not get the effect of the old-time fitted dresses in any sense. Even the so-called princess treatments are simple and youthful. Flat hipsters are insisted upon.

Beaver of this fallness is usually mounted quite low. Pleats are attached down to within a foot of the hem; circular flappers are placed on the straight, foundation at the same height.

Even sports dresses are being shown with the skirt flaring at the back and straight at the front. The irregular hemline is advanced to afternoon dresses of plain form type, printed chiffon or light georgettes. There are outstanding frocks, often shown without coats, and the skirts are full, with points, or rounded panels which flit the hemline, most often at center and on directly at front or both, rather than at the sides. When coats do accompany these dresses, they are three-quarter or hip length.

Necklines for daytime on both coats and dresses emphasize scarf treatments, often quite wide and long. Sometimes the scarf is attached from a yoke at back, sometimes it is attached at center back inside another small collar, sometimes it is part of a beret.

As for materials—georgettes, plain and printed silks. There is a new French silk, new in its utilization for women's dresses, as several of them are actually silks for ties, of the type known by everyone, it is facinating and sometimes printed, featuring designs of one or two colors on a contrasting ground. This ground may be a fall, a sun, or some sort of floral. This new fabric in silks has created a general feeling for facinate and printed weaves of this despatch, suitable for frocks.

Some weaves are washable, and are, in fact, shirtings, plain or printed with tiny checks or diamonds. Then there is a printed novelty, crepe de chine, in design of lustrous appearance on a dull ground, and featuring simple designs like regular arrangements of tiny dots, small crosses, and stippling.

Among the newest fabrics is a printed gabardine, with special printing due to that fine check or cross-facet. Then there are prints on moccasin, ottoman, radium, taffeta, and rayon. All these weaves indicate a penchant for finely grained silk in print, which is in accord with the trend in plain silks.

All these weaves are novelties, and the majority of materials shown are crepes and chiffon. Printed satin crepes are also shown.

Napoleon shapes and trapezoids are smart shapes for spring hats in solid and felt. But for later spring and summer, this promises to be a big straw year. There is a real variety in types, but there is one thing to be queried of all the straw, whether they are bodes or broad, and this is softness and adaptability.

and jacket—the jacket being one of the finger-tip length—and is applicable on the summer.
