KELLOGG'S PACT TO BAN WAR CONGRESS'
NEXT BIG PROBLEMSenate Will Begin Work at Once
On Peace Treaty; Will Take Up Consideration of Bill For
Cruiser Construction Next(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Returning from their annual session, the Senate will begin its session to-morrow for almost immediate consideration the dominant problems of this session—the Kellogg peace treaty and the naval construction bill in the senate and tariff revision in the house. The Senate will start at once on its task with the peace treaty having a promise of first consideration and the bill to construct 15 cruisers next in line. Then the house will take up tariff revision but disposition of this controversial question will go over to the new congress coming in after March 4.Senators Reach Agreement
The treaty and navy bills are likely to be voted on by the Senate before the adjournment of the legislative session, probably for at least two weeks but an agreement reached today by Senators Borland and Hale, sponsors of the two propositions, will give the treaty the first try out. The agreement also is expected to lead the way to a compromise on both within a reasonable period.

The house has almost a clean slate with only the annual appropriation on bills awaiting its attention. Establishing a record, the house disposed of four bills of its own measures affecting the navy and it is ready now to finish up this work.

Look to Hoover Veto:
Probably of more interest than all else to congress is the approach of the Senate to the case of Franklin D. Roosevelt. In conferences which it is believed will be held during Mr. Hoover's stop here, leaders hope for an answer on farm relief.

Some of Mr. Hoover's hardest workers are in the Twin Falls, Sandpoint, "Boron," Idaho, and Brookhart, Iowa, are demanding that farm relief go over to the Hoover administration and they want a special session of the new congress this spring for that purpose.

Declared Public Utility

The state of Tennessee had declared the gasoline to be public utility in view of its universal usage and indispensability with the object of meeting the previous decisions of the supreme court regarding the fixing of commodity prices.

The claim that the price-fixing law was warranted because the sale of gasoline in Tennessee was monopolized by certain dealers was not sustained by the facts the court said.

The validity of the law was challenged by the Standard Oil company, Louisiana, and the Texas company. The oil companies denied unfair practices insisting that the law did not pose the threat of ultimate consumer but to keep in business middlemen who were being injured by the producing companies selling directly to filling stations and other retail dealers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Russia, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Rev. O. L. (Go Lightly) Merrill, globe trotter and lecturer, who died recently in San Diego, California, left a last will and testament in which he left his Bible to "the churches to get 'some Christianity' to freedom, 'to knock off the shackles that bind her,' his 'best wishes and blessings to the thief and the woman,' and his alarm clock to the Minneapolis police department.

The document was made public here by a son, Lowell Merrill. "For half a century I have emitted the flying alarm clock to the public," he said. "I intended to continue to do so until I died, but I am afraid I might—Candide—would not become disengaged," it said. "I have gone everywhere except in Tibet and bankruptcy."

Football Fans Discuss Greatest "Boner" in Gridiron History

WEIRD 75-YARD RUN NOT "DUMBNESS" ON PART OF WESTERNER

Royal Reigels Heart-Broken;
Denies Being Injured or Unconscious of Proceedings; Georgians Visit in Mexico

(By The Associated Press)
PASADENA, Jan. 2.—The weird 75-yard run of Royal Reigels, California center, to his own goal line, echoed by the thousands of Bear followers, who in the Rose bowl here yesterday saw their team go down to an 8-to-7 defeat before the Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech, primarily because of that hapless blunder, re-echoed today wherever gridiron fans gathered.

This freak play of modern gridiron history, though it brought the Southern California fanatics in the neighborhood of the Georgia Tech 20-yard line, was not the result of "dumbness" on the part of the blonde Bear player. It agreed, in every detail, with the O'Keeffe Price's forecast it would prove to be a "break" that favored Tech.

Reigels Heart Broken
Reigels was heartbroken today over his blunder. He offered no alibi, and would not talk about it, chiding father to forget. Appressed after the game, the hard-bitten planter denied there was any "break," and as a result was unconscious of what he was doing.

"I was running toward the sidelines and when I picked up the ball I let it go. I thought I had it under control. I leaped right off into a touch tackle. In pivoting to get away from him I completely lost my bearing. I didn't want out of my head at all, and I hadn't been hurt. I think I showed that when I came back in the second half and played through."

Erases Part of Stigma
Reigels, in the second half played brilliantly, erasing part of the stigma of his previous blunder with his defensive work.
Sports writers here complimented the Southerners for following the ball and the "Warner Mitzel, Georgia Tech's star halfback, for the dashing runner he proved himself to be, but they left out the story that the "break" decided the game. The California got her share of breaks and took advantage of them.

After visiting San Diego and Tijuana, Mexico, today, the Georgians will return to Atlanta and leave for their home state tomorrow at 11:30 A. M.

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Jan. 2 (AP)—Football records become a little hazy with the year. The record book of baseball is checked on past performances of the gridiron, but it has been at least one or two pale-blue moons since—anything so startling has occurred as Roy Reigels now found his toward his own goal line.

"Such things have happened before, but not as a deciding factor in so big a game." That about sums up the impression of football men hereabouts toward the question of precedents for Reigels' run, which you can't say there has long been—the famous case of "Smoky" Dored, one-time major league ball player, who ran nearly 200 yards to a touchdown and then, upon discovery of his error, over 100 yards the right way for a score. But Reigels had no such luck.

Edwin E. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, said the run "was very easy, as I read the play for Reigels to go wrong. He was not accosted or ball-carrying and he probably came out of the play—but he was being spun around—he just lost his sense of direction, as he says."

The most famous incident of this sort, I recall, really never happened in a basketball game some years ago between City College and Cornell. A City college substitute came in and became rattled as he hit the ball, shot it through his fingers, and it went through the hoop that turned out to be the decisive margin.

Other sports have their equivalents. Golfers occasionally know their opponents' balls, for example. In polo, where the great chess-like art of the player's "set-mate" becomes confused, sealing second with the base ball is one of baseball's prime stunts and catching a "crab" in the base of all offenses.

A NEEDED REFORM

It is time something was done toward releasing public building projects in Idaho from the grip of the money lenders.

Under existing state law, counties, school districts and other municipalities may levy taxes up to the limit to pay their taxes and interest charges, but they cannot accumulate money for building programs.

It is estimated that when money is borrowed for public building programs, fifty cents out of every dollar raised goes to pay interest charges and only fifty cents of the dollar actually goes into the building.

The bonding system is not to be blamed. In fact, without bond issues, the measure of development in Southern Idaho during the past twenty years would have been impossible. But some provision should be made to permit an alternative policy so that counties and districts in position to do so, could carry out improvement programs on a cash basis.

Steps in this direction were taken by the last session of the state legislature, and may well be followed up by the session that convenes in Boise next Monday. The proposition, presented two years ago, would have permitted school districts to levy taxes for building programs authorized by the voters, all the money thus raised to be spent as fast as it is accumulated, in carrying out these programs.

The measure failed in the dying hours of the last session only because objection was raised that it provided no penalty for possible misappropriation of the funds, and there was no time left to amend the bill to meet this objection.

With the probability that normal growth of population will require a new school building in Twin Falls within the next year or two, Twin Falls people have a real interest in methods of financing such undertakings, and will regard the action of the legislature in this regard with more than ordinary interest.

NEW SUMMER HOTEL

The idea of establishing a summer hotel at Ketchum should be well received in and around Twin Falls, and for that matter throughout a large part of Southern Idaho.

The Wood River country has long been the favorite playground of the people of this section—it's scenic attractions are unsurpassed—the high ways are a joy to motorists, its hills and streams afford every variety of open air sport, and constitute a veritable paradise—especially, and throughout the summer months, when the years are sunshines of friendliness and hospitality has been built up which adds much to the pleasure of a visit.

Such an enterprise should prove paying proposition, and would undoubtedly attract increasing numbers of tourists and visitors year by year without in the least interfering with or detracting from any part of the present hotel and general cutting facilities.

Development of recreation, as a business goes steadily on. People are willing to pay for this kind of entertainment and pay liberally. It is to be hoped that nothing interferes with the plans of the promoters in connection with the proposed new enterprise.

PRISON POPULATION

The prison population of this country is increasing faster than the general population. In one of the Middle Western states the difference is striking. With a gain of state population in ten years amounting to thirty-eight per cent, there is a percentage of one hundred and four per cent. The national average is not so high, but high enough to cause alarm. What is responsible for this remarkable increase? Are people becoming more criminally inclined?

ed since the war? And if they are, what is responsible?

Can we still blame the moral let-down resulting from the war, or shall we blame prohibition, or some other cause? Or are there more people?

Public institutions for the simple reason that we are enforcing the penal laws better than we used to?

In any case, this question is more important than some of our political questions that arise more discussion.

LAW IN MEXICO

President Coolidge gave Mexico a fine Christmas present. He announced on December twenty-five that summary executions were abolished. Not merely for a Christmas holiday either, but for as much future time as he could speak officially.

Respect for human life, he declared, will be as strictly enforced as ever, but persons caught in open rebellion against the government will be turned over to the regular authorities for formal trial like other malefactors.

Instructions to this effect were given to the Mexican war department, which immediately passed the word on to its military commanders throughout the country. In the past it has been customary for commanders to execute rebels by drumhead court martial. Courts-martial have been committed by such procedure.

Here is another notable step in Mexican progress toward orderly and responsible government, reassuring alike to Mexico and neighbor nations.

It is estimated that when money is borrowed for public building programs, fifty cents out of every dollar raised goes to pay interest charges and only fifty cents of the dollar actually goes into the building.

The bonding system is not to be blamed. In fact, without bond issues, the measure of development in Southern Idaho during the past twenty years would have been impossible. But some provision should be made to permit an alternative policy so that counties and districts in position to do so, could carry out improvement programs on a cash basis.

The measure failed in the dying hours of the last session only because objection was raised that it provided no penalty for possible misappropriation of the funds, and there was no time left to amend the bill to meet this objection.

However, I am satisfied in my broken resolutions. There'd be a few broken resolutions. There'd be a few living ones.

Well, at least No More!

POLICE CHIEF ASKS FOR LARGER FORCE

Record of Twin Falls Department Unsurpassed in State, Asserts Ralph E. Leighton

Although, in the estimation of Ralph E. Leighton, Twin Falls police chief, the record of Twin Falls police department during the last year has not improved, he nevertheless, in his state regardless of numerical strength, the chief is willing to concede that there is room for improvement.

"The record, the best improvement," he asserts, "had come about through more men and shorter hours."

The police chief's views in this regard were expressed in a letter written on New Year's day to J. E. White, Twin Falls' commissioners public safety, which set forth the record of arrest by the police of 21 men, all of whom subsequently pleaded guilty to felony charges. The letter was inspired by a published expression of opinion that the police department should be improved.

Cooperate With County

In comment on the record quoted, the police chief continued in his letter:

"Of all the above not a one stood trial. All entered pleas of guilty. In my opinion that has been a tremendous saving to Twin Falls taxpayers."

We have had the cooperation of the sheriff's force, that of the state attorney's office, and in turn have cooperated with them on cases that are not mentioned here.

The above record is not surpassed by any police department in the state regarding minor felonies, though a fingerprint record bureau has also been established that is rapidly gaining the reputation of being on of the best smaller bureaus in the Northwest.

Need Larger Force

No doubt there is room for improvement, think the best improvement could come about through more men and shorter hours.

"We have realized that the people of Twin Falls were heavily tax burdened and that the city commissioners could do nothing but increase the law enforcement. We have tried to cooperate in the saving of this money to the citizens by doing the work with few men and long hours."

"The public could reduce their own burden by becoming more cooperative by being a little more law abiding. The man who drives recklessly or drunkinely, the man who carries a forged or fictitious check, the man who patronizes a bootlegger, and the man who does not pay his property taxes in the protection of his property is simply adding to his own tax burden. A little more cooperation from the public would be one way of improving the police force."

EX-SAILOR MUST FACE BUHL FORGERY CHARGE

Braxton Brang Walker, 10, who, at San Diego, California, last May, received a bad conduct discharge from the United States navy, will be returned from Seattle where he was arrested yesterday to answer to felony charges of forgery and stock at Buhl last month, it was stated at the sheriff's office here yesterday.

Walker used the name of James Walker while in Buhl and is alleged to have issued about $150 in bad checks, mostly to persons who had checks were in possession of the county attorney's office yesterday, all of them were signed with the forged signature of George Hoffman, Buhl district farmer by whom Walker had been employed. The forgery was so good, officials stated, that many of the bad checks were accepted by Hoffman's bank.

The "bad" check described in the complaint on which warrant for Walker's arrest was issued, was drawn on the First G. A. Dixiebank, in Buhl, was one drawn on a Buhl bank for $10 last December 15. It was made payable to James Walker and bore the signature of George Hoffman, who is alleged to have been known as "the boy" to James Walker, and was cashed at the Golden Rule store in Buhl.

Extradition papers for Walker's return to Idaho were prepared in the county attorney's office yesterday, and will be signed by the sheriff's office, the state attorney's office and the city attorney to Buhl for the governor's signature. The deputy will continue on to Seattle to return with the accused youth.
