IDAHO LEGISLATURE REMOVES EDUCATION BOARD RESTRICTION

Bill Passes in Senate by Vote of 24 to 18 But Stirs Up Round of Protest Requiring One Hour's Time On Floor

(By The Associated Press) BOISE, Jan. 29.—The Idaho senate today passed a bill removing restrictions on the number of students of teachers from any one state educational institution...

The debate in the senate was almost the whole show in the legislature; for the house quietly passed three similar measures with only a trifling ripple over far a witness could be compelled to attend to it.

Senator Nelson, Kootenai county, opened the senate session in the afternoon and introduced the education committee bill which would eliminate that clause in the present law providing that not more than one representative of any state educational institution shall be on the board of education...

Provision Insult He declared such a provision was an insult to University of Idaho students and a reflection upon the state...

Immediately after the vote on the bill, VanHousen, Democrat, and McMurry, Republican, turned their fire on Senator Isaacson...

Declaring he had a son who had graduated from the university and a daughter who was now attending school, Senator Isaacson said he would vote in such a way as to leave the boys and girls of our children would go to schools in Montana and Utah and return to become members...

HAGENBARTH WARNS AGAINST LOW TARIFF

Wool Growers' Chief Executive Points to Foes of Organization and Urges Cooperation

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 29.—P. J. Hagenbath, president of the National Wool Growers' association, in his address at the annual convention of the association today said a false prosperity outlook on the wool industry has started certain American manufacturers and retailers to encourage an attempt to throw it into direct European competition by tariff tinkering...

Founded on the false premise of unusual prosperity on the part of the wool growers and on the other hand of the textile industry, he said, "the wool growers and theorists have concluded that in building up the wool textile industry the best plan is in a measure to tear down the wool industry."

Urges Cooperation "It is proposed that the tariff on wool be generally decreased in order to make cheaper raw material for textile manufacturers," he said. "It is our duty through organization and cooperation to guard against the unscientific tariff tinkering which will prove injurious not only to ourselves but to the country at large."

"I might add also that we are facing the initial stages of an additional supply of lamb for the American market, especially along the two western coasts through the importation of surplus lamb from New Zealand. Australia and Canada. The importation of such lamb is small, but it should be stopped before it reaches flood proportions."

The president also recommended the establishment of a national wool selling agency for scientific distribution of products.

The purpose of the experiments is to simulate natural lightning so far as possible so that its effects on transmission lines can be studied.

Manning will be the youngest American ever to command a ship of the American tonnage.

The orders from the shipping board were the result of thousands of letters from all over the country asking that other cities than New York be given a chance to see Captain Fried, whom George S. Mabee, of the United States Lines called "the greatest officer of the American Marine ever developed."

"They say that the radio has removed the romance of the sea," Friedman replied as they shook hands. "It has been removed the romance of the sea."

Immediately following the news of the rescue, the shipping board ordered Captain Fried to make a tour of the country to tell the story of his adventures.

He had been carried on the floe about 25 miles, he estimated, before a change in the wind sent the huge ice cake back and piled it up on Ellingree Island about 10 miles from shore.

On the island Sweet found shelter and food in a light house, and remained there until early today when he began his perilous journey to shore.

Sweet was crawling up the icy bluff at the edge of Gross Village when found by Henry Sullivan and taken to the latter's home. With the village snowbound excepting for dog team communication, preparations were made to take him on a sled to Leavitt, 30 miles north of here, and thence by motor to this city for hospital treatment.

While on the island, Sweet said, he heard the roar of two airplanes, that were sent out to search for him, but, because of his frozen hands he was unable to signal them.

(By The Associated Press) NEWCASTLE ON TYNE, England, Jan. 29.—The Prince of Wales today in his personal visitation of the mining district south of North England spent one of the most cheerless days he has ever devoted to his country, perhaps not even excepting his visit at the front in the World war.

He encountered homes where death had fallen within a few hours of his arrival and everywhere poverty was evidenced by empty grates, improvised and inadequate clothing for children and men without overcoats shivering in the winter blast that caused the prince to wear two.

Tramps About Villages He tramped about the distressed mining villages of Durham, entering the cottages of the miners, and returning into their condition and wanting and bringing a new air of cheerfulness wherever he went.

"He used his automobile only to convey him from village to village. He shook hands with the village girls who lined up to greet him the moment his arrival became known.

The day was only the first that he intends to devote to familiarizing himself with this least prosperous section of the kingdom which he may head some day.

IDAHO LEGISLATURE REMOVES EDUCATION BOARD RESTRICTION

(Continued From Page One) The board from which our students are barred. Senator Whitten interpreted the present bill as a step toward what would seem the university has been working for some time—domination of the board. The constitution originally prohibited a former representative of the board a member of the board. He said the present law allows and now you want to break down the bars altogether. Senator Nelson explained that the limiting clause which was put in the law at the height of the light between the university supporters should be eliminated "as a gesture of peace." Senator Nelson moved that the upper house passed house concurrent memorial number one asking congress to provide the water resources of the Big Lost river project. Senator Lammie, Butte county, said the valley was in the "very grip of bankruptcy" due to attempts to irrigate two large acreage projects by a Carey act project. He said only about 3000 acres were cultivated whereas before creation of the project about 40,000 acres had been profitably cultivated by settlers who had begun pouring into the valley as early as 1870. The memorial had previously been passed by the house.

PROCEDURE PROBLEM CUTS HOUSE SESSION SHORT SECOND TIME

(Continued From Page One) At the outset, Representative Wood, Indiana, called the bill up and asked that it be sent to conference with the senate. Had this motion been adopted, the house, for the time being at least, would have been prevented from voting on the $21,000,000 increase in prohibition funds which was tacked on the measure. By the senate with the provision that its expenditure should be met by the president. Shortly after the Wood's motion had been offered, Representative Garner, Texas, with a number of other Democrats favors approval of the prohibition item, countered with a suggestion to debate the proposal.

After further discussion, Representative Wilson, Michigan, moved that the bill be referred to a committee. The motion was supported largely by Republicans, with Democrats voting in the negative.

In one of the shortest sessions since it began its tariff revision hearings, the house yesterday and means committee, to-day, considered a bill relating to fruit juices, bitters and agriculture and cleared the way for consideration tomorrow of the cotton schedule. A final vote next week on the year-old cruiser construction bill was assured today when the senate entered into an agreement to hold debate on the measure beginning Monday.

Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, immediately asked for retention of this provision. He contended his confidence tonight that this clause would be kept in the bill despite the promise of early action by the president if the time provision is kept. Senator C. G. Cannon, the Republican leader, repudiated the agreement which brought the bill to the floor. Senator Cooledge, a "warm" indorsement of the position the president has taken, when Senator Cooledge, Republican Nevada, one of those supporting the time limitation, declared the Hoover measure should be "looked at in a broad way."

From there the journey was continued by means of an arm truck under the power of an engine and assisted by two to three horses. Arriving at the edge of the Minidoka project drifts became so deep that it was necessary to use poles as the custom of the old time Indiana. Two poles were fastened on either side of a loaded horse, and the body suspended between in a mortician's basket. The free ends of the poles were pinned to trees along the route.

WINTER LAYS HEAVY HAND ON EDEN AREA

Storm Worst in 20 Years; All Roads Blocked; Attendance at High School Cut in Half

EDEN, Jan. 29 (Special to The News)—One of the heaviest snowfalls experienced here since the winter of 1909 has been in progress during the last week. It is estimated that the depth Monday had reached an average of 20 inches on the level. Business is at a standstill as north and south roads are practically impassible, and east and west roads are fast-filling with snow.

The rural mail carrier managed last week to make "putt" the route each day. In many instances farmers along the route are assisting the carrier. High school students living in the country find it difficult to reach school. The attendance at the high school Monday was slightly over 50 per cent. A number of students are remaining in town. The grade school attendance is nearly normal as the majority of the pupils live near town.

East End Ranchers Plant Farm Forests

BURLEY, Jan. 29 (Special to The News)—Farmers in Cassia county on the Minidoka project have shown more interest in planting farm forest trees during the last year than heretofore, according to the annual report of County Agent W. W. Palmer.

Sixteen farmers produced 8500 trees to be planted in wood lots and as windbreaks. All were black locusts, except about 800 which were mainly box elder and white ash. They were set out principally as wind breaks. Demonstrations were carried on by the county agent in part cooperation with the U. S. Forest extension division forest officer.

One result demonstration is being carried on at the W. H. Clivick farm, which it is proposed to continue for a term of years. Three hundred black locusts were set out this year as a windbreak for homestead and orchard. Corn was planted between the rows, which was cultivated and irrigated. The trees, which were small saplings, made good growths, some sending out new shoots of over seven feet in length during the season.

Stop us if you've heard this one . . .

"MY DEAR, I simply dread this daily shopping!" How many times have you heard that story? More than once, we'll bet a hat. And if you ask the woman who "dreads shopping" just why she does so, you'll usually hear something like this:

"It takes so much time! I start out and look and look and look . . . and by the time I've found what I want I'm dead on my feet. All in, my dear. I mean I really am!"

You can do a friend like that a real service. Ask her if she reads the advertisements. Usually she'll look surprised and say, "Not very often. What has that to do with it?"

Tell her how you have your mind all made up before you hang the market basket over your arm . . . how you're able to save steps, budget your expenditures neatly, get what you want—and all with a minimum of time and effort. Simply because you have the news of the shopping world at your finger-tips all the time, by reading the advertisements every day.

Advertisements are news. Vital, practical news.
News you need to keep on tap.
