When The City Was Young!

A hoodly number of business concerns in this city trace their origin back to the early 1900's.

More sentiment does not perceptibly sway a new generation in matters of business, but age is an invaluable asset. It implies stability. The roots of an institution of covered-wagon days are embedded deep down in the soil of experience.

With enthusiasm it anticipated needs in covered-wagon days, buoyantly it hails the airplane era.

NEVADA HIGHWAYS
There is in Elko County, Nevada, no disposition to permit Nevada highway officials to neglect construction of the highway north from Wells to the Idaho state line.

As a gentle reminder, the Elko Independent said the other day:
"Notice calling for bids for highway construction in Elko County are being published in this newspaper."

"This far no notice has called for bids upon the twenty-mile stretch north from Wells toward Contact. Let the department head in mind it has promised to build that twenty miles this year. Upon basis of that promise, were announced valuable considerations by Elko County."

It may be that advocates of the construction of this road are more plentifully apparent to Elko County than to other communities in the state, although every community is certain to reap a substantial benefit.

The road in question is a part of the Yellowstone-Yosemite highway connecting two great national parks and destined, when it is completed, to be the route over which great streams of tourist travel will pass each year.

It affords also Nevada's only outlet to the north to connect with a great transcontinental highway traversing Spanish Idaho and to give up to travel from the north two direct routes to California, one across northern and western Nevada to San Francisco, and the other through central and southern Nevada to Los Angeles.

Sooner or later the importance of this undertaking will be plain to all of Nevada as it has been manifest for many years to southern Idaho. In the meantime encouragement here to be derived from Elko County's persistence.

IT MIGHT BE WORSE
Straw hats are under consideration in Washington, D. C., heat prostrations are reported in New York. Eight inches of snow fell in Salt Lake City on Sunday and the Twin Falls county is lashed by windstorms in season and out.

AS IT IS
The pomad circumstance of events with their finely drawn lines of precedence and social usage is generally regarded as pertaining to the customs of Europe and in very slight if any sense applicable in our own national capital.

But there is more of it in America than one would suppose. As a nation we love titles and old brand although we very often affect to despise both. In military circles and in certain government functions this tendency is given full rein, with the result that at this moment a frightful problem of precedence is up for settlement.

STATE OIL CONTROL
The American Petroleum Institute wants to restrict oil production for the present year to last year's production, instead of increasing it a couple of hundred million barrels as usual. Everybody recognizes that this would be an excellent piece of conservation. But apparently it cannot be done.

The President and the Attorney General say that the federal government has no authority to authorize such control. It would be the violation of the anti-trust laws. Neither has the federal government any power itself to limit production. That is a function of the states in which the oil deposits are situated.

So it looks as if nothing is to be done. Drillers will continue over-drilling and over-producing, oil will be wasted as usual, and the available supply of this unique fuel will go out prematurely. Proper conservation requires uniform action, which is always difficult to obtain from the states, and also requires central control.

Something might be done by revising the anti-trust laws so as to permit centralized self-control by an industry for proper purposes. Such control would have to be under government supervision which would guard against arbitrary practices, monopolistic prices and other abuses.

The Open Window

By Hugh A. Studdert Kennedy

The other evening as I was browsing around among my books wondering what I should write about in the next chapter of my frame of mind began to open a window. I picked up a copy of "The Diary of a Young Man" by F. Scott Fitzgerald. I felt to thinking, thinking as I have often done what a wonderful thing it would be to have a window in mind the title of what we have forgotten or think we have forgotten. Time was when I knew a great deal about William Bradford Huie. I have since then read all his troubles and triumphs. I still know something, but not in the photographic detail as I once had.

A vast number of books, since the days of the Puritans, have been written about their early history, their early struggles and their early triumphs. By William Bradford Huie, a descendant of the middle of the eighteenth century and was not rediscovered until the middle of the nineteenth, but not long before it was lost. The story of his life and his way into early chapters. There is a story of his life and his way into early chapters. There is a story of his life and his way into early chapters.

THE STORY OF HIS RECOVERY
The story of his recovery is one of the most interesting in the history of books. It is told in the early forties of last century. Samuel Wilberforce, Bishop of Oxford, was writing a book entitled "The History of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America," and his friend, who he sought his information first hand. In due time his work was published in London.

THE SCENE THEN SHIFTS TO BOSTON, some seven years later. There, one day in 1851, a well-known antiquary, John Galt, was looking through some books in a bookstore, to pick up a copy of a portion of it. He was looking through some books in a bookstore, to pick up a copy of a portion of it. He was looking through some books in a bookstore, to pick up a copy of a portion of it.

Guiding Your Child

LITTLE SAVAGES
David's father spoke to the kindergarten teacher with indignation in his voice.
"I want to know how it happened that Tony of Denver was in our kindergarten last year. He is a very bright child. I don't want to allow him in school. He is a positive nuisance. I don't understand how you can permit such things to happen."

all righteously indignant father. "I would have cured him in a hurry."
"Would you have done? You can't beat it out of him, you know. It would be best if you just explain to him why it's wrong for him to do it. He's smart enough, he'd understand."
"Very good," he would understand. But the next time you had the spine, he will want it just as much as he did before. Teachers who deal with many children year after year are likely to learn a wisdom which, for two who are parents of only one or two, is hard to acquire. They know that one moral tale or punishment will not serve to eradicate the selfish little savage who is a part of every child.

George Jessel's Art

Rosa Reilly, the movie critic, is listening to the singing of George Jessel one of the rare delights in the theatre and she finds a picturesque way to describe his talents, having written of this celebrated entertainer as follows:
"Did you ever hear George Jessel's Jazz Symphony? Rhapsody in Blue?"

"Well, let's see. Did you ever dance with the only man to the music of the 'Pilgrim Chorus'—jazzed to such a yearning intensity that your ears and heart seem ready to burst—the religious beauty and the African rhythm almost carrying you out of your senses? If you haven't, you've got something to live for. And one of the best ways of furnishing that lack is to hear George Jessel sing. He has a rare trick: He can't play an unreasonably successful jazz orchestra can't crack barbaric sensuousness into him."

At the time Rosa Reilly wrote those words she deplored that his singing gift was missing in his movie productions, but since then the movies have been given "jazz" and "new jazz" and "jazz" is his shining gift, his story telling, his ad lib wits cracks—are to be heard in "Lucky Boy," a production that is crammed with talking and singing recorded by the RCA Photophone. It is Jessel's first talking and singing feature production and will be shown again today at the Grandmas in care, Margaret Quimby heads the all-star cast.

A tennis tournament is being worked up.

CANAL BOARD DROPS PHYSICIAN'S OFFICE

Organization Abolishes Position On Request of Employees of Institution

On petition of 50 employees of the Twin Falls Canal company the board of directors yesterday abolished the office of company physician and the provision for hospital service for employees.

The employees had been paying a dollar a month into this fund. In the petition requesting its abolition, they asked that the company collect a dollar a month as usual and retain it as a sort of insurance for employees instead of making a definite contract for his disposition as heretofore. No objection was taken on this part of the request and unless acted on favorably later by the board no money will be retained from salaries of men employed.

Pay Employees Monthly

It was voted to pay employees monthly heretofore instead of twice a month. This it was stated, would simplify book-keeping.

Owing to the number of inquiries covering many matters pertaining to the company management of the canal system, Manager John E. Hayes was authorized to draft a statement covering many misunderstood points for general publication in the near future.

Owing to the fact that V. V. Sharp, member of the board was delayed by the storm in Pocatello where he went in regard to pending litigation, some of the routine business of the company was postponed until a later meeting. Judge James R. Bothwell, company attorney and Manager Hayes, who also were delayed in Pocatello by the storm, arrived on the afternoon train. Routine business in their departments, which had been postponed pending their arrival, were then taken up, with the result that the board did not adjourn until about 8 P. M.

APOSTLE DEFENDS BIBLE FROM HIGHER CRITICISM

That the semi-annual conference of the Latter Day Saints church held in Salt Lake City last week was one of the most successful in the history of the church is the opinion of the 20 members from Twin Falls who attended. They state that the tabernacle was full at all meetings and that on each occasion a large overflow meeting was necessary to accommodate the people.

One of the striking features of the meeting was the sermon of Apostle James E. Talmadge on "Higher Biblical Criticism," which he, in turn, subjected to scathing criticism. Talmadge is a noted engineer and geologist and spoke in defense of the authenticity of the scriptural account. He declared that while in scripture ordinarily a day is as 1000 years, the days mentioned in the Bible might have been longer, though it has not been conclusively shown that such is the case.

All members of the Twin Falls church who attended are home except Mrs. L. G. Kirkman, who is visiting friends and relatives in Salt Lake City, and who will be home on the noon train Friday.

Mr. Cosgriff sought to make them admit that they were running away, but they refused to do so. They talked about making the trip as far as Spokane and going over the Blue mountains. FORMER IDAHO RESIDENT BECOMES EMPORIA MAYOR

C. A. Bishop, one time resident of Piler and father of Mrs. Kenyon Green, Twin Falls, was the unopposed candidate for mayor of Emporia, Kansas, at an election last April 2. He piled up a total of 1070 votes.

Mr. Bishop's election, said the Emporia Daily Gazette, has been regarded as almost certain ever since he piled up a commanding number of votes in the primary, and the withdrawal of R. J. Leathersberry from the race made his election almost unanimous.

COUNT LUCKNER THE Sea Devil

By LOWELL THOMAS

Copyright by Doubleday, Doran & Co.

It was a touchy matter to select a name for among a dozen captains, each of whom was full of sensitive digests and thought he was the best navigator of the lot. The French captain, though, Frenchman should be selected, since the most numerous nationality among the prisoners was French. The traditional principle of seniority, however, pointed to the pilot of the oldest skipper, My belief in that principle was confirmed by the fact that the oldest skipper was Captain Mullen of the Plinmore. He had shown himself to be the finest of gentlemen, and then there was the memory of my old ship, which I had been compelled to sink. I appointed Captain Mullen as the skipper of the Cambrome. He was a Britisher. It was reasonable that his ship should sail under British colors. That necessity and the ceremony of hauling down the French flag and hoisting the Union Jack. The French captain did not like it at all.

We looked out the Cambrome's upper masts, so that she could get only her lower sails. She would not make any speed now, and it would take her three weeks to get to Rio de Janeiro, which was the nearest port. Then I expected a pledge from Captain Mullen.

"Captain," said I, "we are releasing our prisoners and they are under your command. I understand perfectly well that what you report our existence will be known. We will be a sailing ship in a world of armored cruisers. We will have more time until we can reach port. We have taken care that you do not get to port too soon. One thing remains, though, to be done, and that is to get within a day's sail of a steamer with a wireless plant. I ask for your word that you will not communicate with any ship until you reach port. We have, I hope, treated our prisoners fairly, and I ask this of you in return. I must have your solemn word on this."

"Count," he replied, "I give you my word that the Cambrome will not communicate with any ship until she is in port at Rio." We shook hands on it, and my mind was at rest. I had to go to the house of the Plinmore's old skipper. He played his part nicely. He passed several steamers on his way to Rio, but never a word to me or whom I knew. He played his part nicely. He passed several steamers on his way to Rio, but never a word to me or whom I knew.

There remained the case of Captain Lecog of the La Roucheoucauld, who thought he was to be released and whom I had promised not to release with the other prisoners. He tried to dissuade me. He was agitated at the thought of being released. He tried to dissuade me. He was agitated at the thought of being released.

GROWERS CONTINUE NEGOTIATIONS WITH UTAH FRUIT PACKER

Meeting Under Chamber of Commerce Auspices Authorizes Naming of Committee to Deal With Jacobs

A group of fruit and vegetable growers and other interested persons at a meeting in Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce offices last evening voted to continue negotiations with H. W. Jacobs, Pleasant Grove, Utah, looking to establish a plant here this spring for preservation of fruits and vegetable crops of this region by means of cold processing.

Mr. Jacobs is president of the H. W. Jacobs company, operator of a cold processing plant in Utah county, and formerly manager for 11 years of the Pleasant Grove Canning company.

Negotiations, it was determined, will be continued through the agency of two committees representing the growers.

One of these committees is to work out with Mr. Jacobs a proposed contract for production of fruit and vegetable crops, and the other committee is to assist in negotiating the contract for growers' signatures.

T. J. Lloyd, chairman of the chamber of commerce industries bureau, who presided at the meeting, was authorized to name two committees. Notice of appointment will be mailed to members of the committee, Mr. Lloyd stated.

Calls for Prompt Action
In order to handle this season's crops, Mr. Jacobs stated, the negotiations must be completed within the next 60 days at the outside.

A tentative contract submitted by Mr. Jacobs at this meeting provided for payment to the grower of a minimum price to cover cost of harvesting the crop, and for a division of the profits between grower and packer, along lines of contracts for growing sugar beets.

The tentative contract provided only for handling of sour cherries of which there is an estimated annual production of nine or ten carloads in this district.

Apprehension was expressed by some growers that contracting for cherries only would involve surrender by the growers of their only "bat" to induce a canner to enter the field to handle other products.

Dealing with this objection, Mr. Jacobs said that he would be glad to undertake preserving either by cold process or canning, any crops which could be produced here in sufficient quantity and for which a profitable market could be obtained. In reply to a question, he stated that he would be willing to amend the tentative contract to include a minimum of acreage as basis for agreement to handle several other crops.

Cooperator Practices Project
The proposition submitted by the Utah packer was praised by D. J. Koenig, Twin Falls, one of the directors of Twin Falls County Cooperative Dairy-men's association, who expressed gratification especially over the fact that it was not proposed to build a "monopoly" but that the contract was based on true cooperative principles.

T. C. Landers, Twin Falls, a grower, announced that he was ready to sign the contract as soon as his terms were agreed upon.

Reviewing the situation with respect to prospects for establishing a fruit and vegetable packing plant here, New

Willie Willis
By ROBERT QUILLLEN

"I don't see why it's wrong to slam the door when it helps you to get the mad dog."

ell S. Wight, chamber of commerce secretary, stated that Mr. Jacobs was the only one among more than four scores of Northern Idaho growers who had replied to the chamber's overtures with a definite proposition to stake his own money and industry and expertise on the enterprise here, without asking for a subscription or bonus.

Explains Cold Process
In explanation of the cold process method, Mr. Jacobs stated that a cold storage plant is an essential factor, but that he did not advise building of such a plant as a part of the packing plant.

The process consists simply in thoroughly cleaning of the fruit and mixing it with sugar in sealed containers.

Frank preserved in this manner for the Eastern market is generally packed in barrels of 450 pounds capacity. The product is comparable to the fresh fruit, and no mold has yet been found to the demand for it, Mr. Jacobs stated.

During the meeting, which was in session for about two hours, considerable time was devoted to general discussion of crop varieties with reference to adaptability to cold processing and gaining, and to their adaptability for production here.

Dr. Walter Carter, federal entomologist; E. V. Gilson, state and federal products inspector and government weather observer; R. E. Brozard, county agent; Ed Vance, Ralph Taylor, and others took part in the discussion.

Grower Claims Market Price For Bean Crop

Terms under which Glenn Thietten, Salmon River project farmer, delivered 9000 pounds of Green Northern beans to the O. J. Childs Seed company, Pile, last fall was the subject of judicial inquiry at trial in probate court here yesterday in the suit instituted by Thietten against the seed company.

In this action Thietten seeks to recover $180, which he claims as the difference between market price of 8 cents and the contract price of 4 cents

HEALTH UNIT TO BE IN TWIN FALLS SOON

County Commissioners' Approval of Appropriation Seals Project Agreement

A full time health unit, with a field agent in the United States public health service who is to be a graduate physician, and two public health nurses and a sanitary inspector working 12 months during the year in Twin Falls county, has been assured by action of the county commissioners in approving a budget providing for the county's participation in the undertaking.

Word to this effect has been delivered by the commissioners to Dr. P. W. Covington, Salt Lake City, representative of the Hooketeller foundation; Dr. Fred T. Fuard, Stockton, California, representative of the United States public health service; and C. K. Macey of the Idaho department of public welfare.

Organization of the unit is expected to be completed within the next few days.

Service to Name Physician
Under the agreement, the physician will be named by the federal public health service, and the nurse and inspector will be named by the county commissioners.

The county's appropriation for this purpose is $4500 for the year, an equal amount to be contributed by the federal state service agencies and the Hooketeller foundation.

It is the belief of the county commissioners that a similar organization operating in this county during the past fiscal year would have saved an unanticipated expense of some $11,000 to the county in combating the influenza epidemic, and would have reduced the number of mortalities.

Expense of testing pupils of a number of the county's schools, which was borne by the state department of public welfare, is estimated to have cost an additional $19,000.

A pound which he received for beans grown on contract with the company. The contract, it is alleged, covered 20 acres of beans on which some 7000 bushels of beans was produced, that were delivered to the company under its contract. The beans involved in this suit, Thietten contends, were raised on land not covered by the contract.

Judge C. A. Bailey reduced the issues in this single day and called for full details regarding the agreement, if any, under which the beans in dispute were delivered to the seed company.

Judgment was withheld and J. W. Taylor, attorney for Thietten, and M. J. Sweeley, attorney for the seed company, were given three days in which to file their claims to legal authorities.

SETTLERS CHARGE LEASE OBTAINED THROUGH FRAUD

Alleging fraud and deception, Peter Christensen and his wife, Marie Christensen, Hollister, have instituted suit in district court here against Murray Brookman and his wife, Hazel A. Brookman, San Francisco, and Fred P. Bates, Twin Falls, for cancellation of a purported deed conveying their farm property of some 330 acres on the Salmon river project to the Brookmans, and for $2000 damages.

The Christensens deny that they ever signed any deed to their land, and assert that they did not learn of its existence until late last month, although it is purported to have been executed in May, 1928.

It is a fact, they allege, that they were induced by Bates about that time to sign an instrument which was represented to them to be a lease.

Brookman was for a number of years representative here of the Salmon river project, and was formerly superintendent of the Salmon River Canal company.

The Christensens' complaint was filed yesterday by E. L. Hayburn and Ray D. Agee, attorneys.

Authority On Vegetable Crops Begins Work Here

W. W. Tracy, Jr., vegetable crops specialist of the federal bureau of plant industry, has arrived from Colorado where he has been engaged in experimental work, and will be associated with Dr. Walter Carter, federal entomologist, in white-fly investigations at the experiment station being established on Blue Lakes boulevard north.

Mr. Tracy is a recognized authority in his field of work and is the author of numerous bulletins and volumes dealing with vegetable crops. His work here will be in connection with vegetable crops that are susceptible to injury by the white fly, and for this purpose a great number of plants for the production of various vegetables will be provided.

ROGERSON WATER RATES PUT UP TO COMMISSION

A public hearing on increase in rates proposed by the Rogerson Water company was given before Will H. Gilson and J. M. Thompson, members of the state public utilities commission, at Rogerson yesterday, and will be continued at a session of the commissioners in the Perrine hotel here at 9 A. M. today.

Members of the commission yesterday viewed the water company's plant and source of water supply and heard evidence offered by protestors against the proposed increase in rates.

The protestors were represented at the hearing by E. V. Larson, attorney, and Shad L. Lewis, who appeared as attorney for the water company.
