GERMANS SEE YOUNG AS ONE MAN ABLE TO SETTLE PROBLEM

Cabinet Discussions Develop Unanimity of Opinion That American Alone Can Avert Experts' Failure

(By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, April 29.—Cabinet discussions with Dr. Hjalmar Schacht here today developed unanimous opinion that Chairman Owen D. Young of the international committee of experts for reparations was the only person now with power to save the conference. It was said that any compromise plan that the expert might suggest beyond what the allied creditors would not meet definite objection from Germany provided it was not so inflexible that it would cause economic conditions there would be no possibility of revision. In other words, even supporting Mr. Young should submit figures beyond what the German economic experts consider the present capacity of Germany to pay, this figure would probably be accepted provided it could be revised if found impossible of fulfillment.

ENTERS CRUCIAL WEEK

PARIS, April 29.—The reparations conference today entered on a crucial week in the estimation of persons closely connected with its labors. This week will decide, it is felt, whether the experts' report now in the process of formulation must be closed with or without a definite settlement as to the amount of reparations and as to how it shall be paid by Germany to the creditor countries.

There will there be a reversal of the situation that will permit hope of a settlement depends in the general opinion of expert circles on what happens in Berlin. It was considered possible that the financial situation in the German capital might provoke such a change of heart as to permit a renewal of negotiations on a hopeful basis. There were persistent reports that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, leader of the German delegation, has been in negotiation with the other experts concerning an eventual settlement. Details of this nature were lacking. What was more certain, however, is that since the Allies and the German government have agreed to meet in London, the American Legation has been endeavoring actively to provoke new offers that would make continuation of the negotiations possible.

LINDBERGH AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Charles Lindbergh, leader of the German delegation, has arrived in the capital today and said his plans were "indefinite."

PROPOSED RATE CUT WILL BENEFIT IDAHO

Recommended Schedule to Save Grain Growers More Than $1,000,000 Yearly

BOISE, April 29.—Savings of more than a million dollars to Idaho grain growers are represented by submitted freight rate schedules approved by the interstate commerce commission following a series of hearings over the past several days. Boise attorney, who represented the Idaho public utilities commission at the hearing, said today:

Proposed reductions vary from 8 to 16 cents a hundred pounds. Some other states were also in line for reductions. Lampert said, though in Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Montana and Minnesota and Oregon faced recommendations for increases. However, Lampert pointed out, these states formerly enjoyed advantages over Idaho.

Details Unsettled

All factors of the proposed rate schedule have not been worked out though some cases have been given over to 1924 when Idaho first filed a complaint against rates which it was claimed set the stage at a disadvantage. Lampert said he will file exceptions to the commission's report and oral arguments will be heard May 27 in Washington. Lampert will again represent Idaho.

The entire transcript of testimony taken by Examiners Arthur R. Mackay and George W. H. Smith, and a collection of reports from representatives of 182 interests, consisted of 33,000 pages. Lampert said. An additional 10,000 pages from other hearings were made part of the record.

Officers in New Mexico Find "Wild Man" Living in Mountain Peak Cave

DAWSON, New Mexico, April 29.—New Mexico's wild man, who for more than six months has lived in a mountain peak cave, subsisting on the flesh of his own kind, was captured by a posse near Kochler, New Mexico, today.

He gave the name of J. H. Morris, and the police believed him to be a lunatic. He is about 45 years old and labors under the hallucination that designing relatives who seek to kill him are constantly on his trail. His left leg was crippled.

Inside the cave were found the pelts and bones of the stolen sheep. Deputy sheriffs found the man asleep under a tree.

He was "wild" and the freezing winter in the mountains in his cave with no bedding and no clothing except the tattered rag he wore, is a mystery.

LEGION COMMANDER VISITS BEA STATE

Paul V. McNutt Points to Result of Bill's Failure in Address at Caldwell

CALDWELL, April 29.—Failure of the $1,500,000 hospital construction bill in the closing days of the seventieth session of congress has left 518 mentally ill veterans awaiting hospitalization by the government. Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, decried at a banquet of the third district of the organization tonight.

Commander McNutt's visit here marked the beginning of a tour that will take him to several Idaho cities including Boise and Gooding, and the visit to the latter city including participation in dedication of a veterans' memorial.

He said there was no hope that the special session of congress would take up the hospital legislation and he will next December when the seventy-first congress meets, before it can be considered.

Critics Crowd's Attitude

"It is easy enough for the crowds to cheer when men march away to be measured belt of martial music. It is easy enough for the same crowds to cheer when the same men are taken to the gallows. It is easy enough for the same crowds to forget. But there are two organizations which do not forget. They are the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary.

"Very early in the history of our organization we have had the example of the American Legion Auxiliary, which has been the relief of the disabled men of the American Legion brought about the formation of the American Legion Auxiliary as the Veterans' bureau. The American Legion has been responsible for every veteran's need."

SALT LAKE CITY, April 30.—Search for a lone gunman with a red-dish stubble beard who single-handedly robbed the cashier of the Murray State bank and escaped with $120, extended into near-by states tonight.

Sheriff Clifford Patten asked officers of neighboring states to cooperate in the capture of the robber who fled from the scene of the robbery in a small black sedan bearing California license plates.

The robber is described by Albert Hazegren, the cashier of the bank, as about 5 feet 8 inches tall, 35 years old, and wearing a red-dish stubble beard, wearing a grey cap and a dark overcoat, the holdup, a brown overcoat. An overcoat believed to be the one worn by the holdup man, was found near the Murray some time after the robbery.

NEWTON, Ia., April 29.—Mrs. Fred Jasper and Miss Stella McCord, who flew from Newton to Chicago today upon learning of the critical illness of their father, M. A. McCord, here, left their plane at Clinton, Iowa, and a train for Newton, they notified relatives tonight.

The plane was found that weather conditions were too poor to continue flying to Des Moines tonight as had been planned.

The two women began their race with death early this morning. Notified of their father's illness by wireless Sunday while on the liner Baltic returning from Europe, they boarded a plane at Curtis field, New York, shortly after the boat docked early today. SOVIET RUSSIA AND GERMANY CRITICIZE DISARMAMENT PLANS

Count Von Bernstorff Shows Signs of Strain and Defeat in Carrying On Contest in Face of Odds

(By The Associated Press)
GENEVA, April 29.—Republican Germany and communist Russia are dissatisfied with the work of the preparatory disarmament commission. No one can forecast what the nations may do in reducing the scale of their armaments at a later international conference, but neither Germany nor the Soviet Union are showing signs of strain and defeat.

In short drastic phrases he gave evidence at today's session of the disarmament conference of Germany's elation and profound disappointment over three developments of the work here.

Chinese Project Falls

The first was the delegates' decision last week to limit trained reserves. The second was the rejection today of the Chinese project to abolish conscription and the third was a subsequent decree of the delegates not to talk of reducing armies but only of limiting them.

When the commission today refused to substitute the word "reduction" for "limiting."

In the high school, which will be constructed beside the old gymnasium, there will be a combination and study hall. The grade building will contain an assembly hall large enough to accommodate 500 students.

COOLIDGE ESTABLISHING RECORD IN NEW PURSUIT

NEW YORK, April 29.—Although not a professional writer, Calvin Coolidge today was credited by Ray Long, editor of Cosmopolitan magazine, with a three-and-one-half-months' writing output that might well be the envy of many of his professional contemporaries in letters.

Since January he had written his autobiography of 45,000 words, most of which already has appeared in serial form, and in addition several articles on peace and other subjects for various magazines.

In commenting on Mr. Coolidge's literary output Mr. Long said he knew of few professional writers, "and no other public man who could equal the former president's record."

Secretary of War Plutarco Elias Calles described the insurgents as in no position to offer further resistance of any importance.

The army of General Lazaro Cardenas continued its methodical advance northward through southern Sonora and the vanguard of the forces of General Juan Almazan passed through Pulpito canyon into eastern Sonora. Rebel General Caraveo who had attempted to hold the canyon with 2500 men retreated toward Agua Prieta on the American border when the federals sent a flanking force over the mountains to attempt to cut him off. NEW YORK ACCIDENT CLAIMS FOUR LIVES

Collison on Uptown Elevated Structure Sends 44 Passengers to Hospitals

NEW YORK, April 29.—Four persons were killed and 44 were injured today in a collision on an uptown elevated structure of two trains carrying approximately 3500 men and women off to work.

The collision killed three persons outright and fatally injured another and caused a stampede of passengers in which dozens were trampled.

Early investigation attributed the collision partly to the fact that perfect safety had been subordinated to the urgency of meeting office time clocks, demands for punctuality, and partly to a motorman's relaxing his vigilance.

The crash occurred at 8:15 o'clock as the height of the rush hour.

Signal System Over-Ridden

The signal system, investigators indicated, had been overridden by the rush hours, the red lights being "keyed out" to permit the trains to proceed westward in both directions. The signal system was supposed to be inoperative at that time.

James Conner, motorman of the subway train was instantly killed as were William Williams and Charles Smith, standing at the front of the subway train and Edward Walsh, junior, 17, standing on the rear platform of the uptown train. Michael Moran, another passenger, died in a hospital later of a fractured skull. Of the 44 injured, 22 were reported in serious condition.

Cullen opened his cab and said "Hello" Andrew Concorn, tripper at the station, who had been on duty at the time told the district attorney later, "I said to Cullen, 'I'm going to key you through. Look out for the L train ahead of you.'"

Cullen said "all right." He kept on until he was about a car's length from the L train and I think his mind must have been on something else until he looked up and saw the danger for the air brakes screamed just before the crash.

SPOKANE, April 29.—The Chronicle says it has learned that Northern Pacific track between St. Paul and Spokane will be shortened by nearly 400 miles and that 90 miles of track under construction will be between Seattle and Spokane, if plans of the company officials materialize.

Construction of a 12-mile tunnel under the Cascade mountains with the same sort of grade as the existing building of a new main line from Lewiston to Ellensburg and establishment of a new main line from Pasco to Lewiston and over to Pasco and Ellensburg also are reported under consideration.

Guardsmen and Family Narrowly Escape Death

BOISE, April 29.—His car hurtling over a 10-foot grade and grabbing upon a railroad track after a sheer fall of 30 feet, Captain Ray S. Perrin, Boise military instructor of the Idaho national guard, suffered broken bones and dislocated shoulder and his wife and child received less serious injuries.

The accident occurred last night between Le Grande and Meacham, Oregon, on the Blue mountain highway. Perrin, who with his wife and child, was on his way back to Boise, Idaho, where he had a new battery of guard artillery, said the car struck a patch of loose gravel and then tumbled over the edge of the cliff on the grade. It turned over several times.

MCGINRY MOVES FOR FINAL SENATE VOTE ON RELIEF MEASURE

Chairman of Agriculture Committee Gives Notice of Intention to Demand Immediate Action On Bill

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 29.—Notice was given tonight by Chairman Charles McNary of the agricultural committee, that a final vote on the farm relief bill would be sought before the week-end adjournment on Friday.

Before the final vote is reached, administration leaders will call for a decision on the new agriculture section proposed by President Hoover against which they claim to have a majority.

Advocates of the debenture plan today continue their efforts on its behalf but a division of sentiment was noted among them over the amendment proposed by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, to provide for the sale of debenture rates whenever overproduction is forecast in a debenture crop.

The amendment was opposed on the floor by Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, who with Senator Norris is among those who have introduced bills for the debenture section.

The Arkansas senator contended that the amendment in effect penalized the farmer for putting to use a production advice issued in government bulletins.

Specials Better Headway

The senate was offered 11 bills more than an hour to farm relief discussion today, but Senator McNary hoped to make better headway tomorrow and Wednesday so that a vote on the debenture section might be taken before Thursday.

The amendment of Senator Norris was offered by him in the hope of gaining support for the debenture section. It provides a graduated scale of reduced debenture rates when increased production is forecast, the reduction being in comparison with the rate of increase.

Senator Caraway described the amendment as a proposal in direct conflict with the policy of the agricultural department.

"We have been paying our production advice to the farmer," he said, "and now we are turning around and saying we will penalize him for following it."

Chairman McNary has called a meeting of his committee for tomorrow to discuss the amendment. The agricultural department experts believe the debenture plan should be made public.

This testimony was understood to indicate that the debenture plan of Senator McNary declared after the experts had been heard that their testimony "was a very favorable impression upon the committee. The testimony was given before President Hoover had stated his opposition to the debenture plan."

Schmelting and Paulino Uzcudun Will Battle For Charity

Gotham Milk Fund Gets 50 Per Cent Of Gate Receipts

German's Resemblance of Dempsey and Popularity of Basque Woodchopper Make Outstanding Card

By JAY R. VESSELS (Associated Press Sports Writer) NEW YORK, April 29.—Thanks to charity, Max Schmeling and Paulino Uzcudun are going to fight this summer. The bout was promised long ago but Young Max was so entangled in a mesh of managerial difficulties that things seemed hopeless.

Then the various managers and promoters with claims on the German heavyweight's services yielded to pressure on behalf of the New York milk fund and agreed to agree long enough to make the scrap possible. It will be held at the Yankee Stadium the night of June 27.

A half dozen prominent including managers and promoters, had a half-dozen different kinds of contracts with Max, as the key figure, causing an impasse in the plans to match him with Paulino.

Charity Gets Credit. None would touch a man until the charity proposal developed. Refusal would have brought public disfavor, so there was nothing for the most obstinate to do but step into line. All did most of them modestly emphasizing their own generosity in doing so.

The fight, which will have more significance perhaps than any since Gene Tunney fought Tom Heeney in the same ring last June, not only will put an estimate of half million in Father Knickerbocker's milk account, but it also will provide a red-hot topic for the fall.

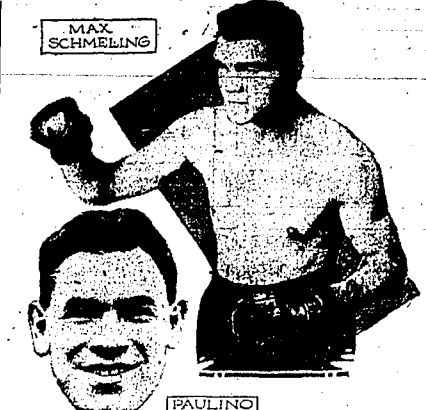

Schmelting's resemblance to Jack Dempsey and Paulino's standing as a popular performer, combined with the fact that the bout may produce a worthy candidate for the heavyweight title, make it the best heavyweight card since the last Dempsey-Tunney battle.

Boxing men predict the gate will not run under a million dollars.

Charity will get 50 per cent of the profit.

Final papers will not be signed until Schmeling returns from Germany but theaters probably will take a percentage amounting to at least $100,000 each should the gate gross a million.

There will be a large contest to what the winner eventually will get for, he virtually will be assured of a million dollars by the end of September, with the crown at stake.

MAX SCHMELING
PAULINO UZCUDUN

Charity will be well repaid for making possible the June 27 bout between Max Schmeling and Paulino Uzcudun. It will receive one half of the expected million-dollar gate.

EDEN, April 29 (Special to The News)—A long baseball game for grade school boys' team was staged here Wednesday afternoon at the Greenwood school when the Greenwood and Hillsdale boys played a 14-inning game. With two down in the last half of the fourth, the Greenwood team managed to put across the winning run and break a 3-3 tie that had lasted from the seventh inning. At the end of the ninth Manager Dunn of Greenwood replaced Grose with 12-year-old Hayden Metz. The winning run came in the last of the fourteenth when one of the Hillsdale boys let a pop fly get away.

McNary Moves For Final Senate Vote On Relief Measure

Norris amendment, the National Grange, which has advocated the debarment plan for a number of years, sent to each member of the senate a letter advising that the organization is in favor of Senator Norris' proposal.

"A check on over-production formed a part of the export debarment plan as first proposed to congress by the Grange," it said.

The Grange added that in presenting the export debarment plan it never "had any thought of asking for a subsidy or a bounty for agriculture."

"As we view it," said the communication, "the Grange contained in the bill now pending before the senate would simply give the export branches of our agriculture the benefit of one-half the protection which the tariff is supposed to give American producers."

In the meantime the House decided to take up on Wednesday several other proposals its agricultural committee has approved to further the general program of farm relief. The bills that were approved today were the Haugen measure to broaden the definition of oleomargarine and to make several changes in the federal warehouse act, the Reichman bill to provide for assisting representatives of the department of agriculture abroad, and the Mappes bill to prescribe minimum standards for canned farm products.

Several other measures still are to be considered by the committee, one being the Summers bill to provide for licensing dealers in perishable farm products. A similar bill, introduced by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, will be taken up by the senate committee in the near future.

FARMER LOSES LIFE IN CAVE-IN OF WELL

Rescuers Bring Body to Surface 24 Hours After Small Slide Traps Worker

DRUMMOND, Wis., April 29 (AP)—Buried alive at the bottom of a 35-foot well for almost 24 hours, John Hanson, Bayfield county farmer, was brought to the surface, on his thirty-third birthday, late this afternoon, only to be pronounced dead.

Virtually the entire population of this little farming community had been gathered at the scene of the cave-in since yesterday afternoon in an effort to rescue Hanson. The shaft was so narrow however, that only one man at a time could descend.

Hanson clambered to the bottom of the well, whose side walls he had reinforced on Sunday afternoon. He had hardly started to erect a new wall, when timber with which he had braced the shaft gave way.

He was buried under an avalanche of dirt and debris, but the timbers held about him in such a way that an air-pocket was formed and the full weight of the cave-in kept off his body.

Rescuers were able to talk with him for several hours Sunday night. Then another cave-in cut off all means of communication. When a rescuer reached the man's head this afternoon he still was breathing but by the time he was brought to the surface, 16 minutes later, he was dead. He is survived by a widow and five children.

the word "limitation" as applied to armed forces. Count von Bernstorff virtually accused the victorious nations of continuing neglect disarmament.

It now seems likely that the United States delegation will not submit a written statement to the preparatory commission outlining the American conception of equivalent naval tonnage as proposed by Mr. Gilson. Each of the big naval powers will be given an opportunity to draw up its own formula of interpretation and later the delegates will compare notes. It was understood, however, that the Americans were prepared to give oral explanations if requested.

AROUND THE RING

Still Air-Wise

Babe Is Clever.

By EDWARD J. NEIL (Associated Press Sports Writer) NEW YORK, April 29.—W. L. (Young) Stribling, citizen of Macon, Georgia, aviation enthusiast, and heavyweight boxer who has just won a big percentage for another comeback at the ripe old age of 25.

"The boy" as his dad and manager, "Pa" Stribling calls him, is in New York looking for a chance to elbow his way into the picture, preferably by way of Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish Basque whom most of the heavyweights shun.

If Max Schmeling remains in Germany, "W. L." may get the June 27 date with Paulino at the Yankee Stadium on the 15th of June. Otherwise, he probably will tackle K. O. Christner in the semifinal.

Stribling did not come to New York in his mind. After "shoping around" among the promoters, "W. L." hopped to Paris to Detroit for the aviation show.

Out in Indianapolis, the other fighting member of the Stribling clan, W. L. brother "Babe" Stribling, a lightweight, also had some air-wise. He is taking a 10-week course in flying, boxing now and then on the side.

"Babe" Stribling is known as the "conviver" of the family and though still under 20 can take care of himself in any company and language anywhere. He is a demon trader.

Once when "W. L." was about to start one of his earlier "crucial" battles in Atlanta with Frankie Carbone, tough light heavyweight, "Babe" nearly threw the fight into his hands.

"Pa" was worried over the match and so was "Ma" and even "W. L." was a bit anxious. Carbone had a great reputation as a puncher.

The fighters were in their corners, adjusting the handkerchiefs nervously, when "Babe" appeared at the corner, tugged at the "W. L." to draw him into the picture, preferably by way of Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish Basque whom most of the heavyweights shun.

"New 'W. L.'" he grumbled seriously, gazing intently at the picture while all around him turned the preparations for the contest. "If you were I, would you trade this knife for my camera. I think it's a real good deal."

Idaho Vandals Have Powerful Backfield

Coach Leo Calland Shows Optimism Over Prospects For Moscow's Grid Team

Regular games between the Reds, captained by Dieth and the Grays, captained by Calland, will begin Saturday. It was a real football game last Saturday, with the first touchdown being made since spring training started. Both teams were evenly matched and the large crowd of spectators witnessed some hard ball playing.

Coach Calland has divided his men into the varsity and super- varsity for this week, getting the best men on one team so they can have a chance to work together before spring training is over. Injuries have not hit the Vandals heavily this spring but with four on the list. Besides Owens, there are Calvin Southers, Spokane; Wesley Shuffitt, Escalante, and Clarence Dittman, Aurora, Illinois. These men suffered minor injuries in Saturday's game.

COUNCIL ADVANCES LICENSE FEES FOR TENT THEATRICALS

Amendment to Ordinance Increases Charge From $25 Per Week to $50 Daily For Transient Troupers

Twin Falls city council in regular session last evening, raised the license fee for theatrical performances given under tents from $25 per week to $50 per day, and amended another ordinance to include phonographists in the list of astrologues, seers, fortune tellers and clairvoyants who are required to pay $10 per day license for practicing their professions or arts in Twin Falls.

Members of the council voted unanimously to support the mayor's lead in raising the license fee for tented theatrical performances on grounds, the licensees, which pay real property taxes and are called upon for donations to various local subscriptions, were entitled to that measure of protection.

The advance agent of a troupe of 20 players under contract, this season with Tobey Walker, scheduled to open an engagement here next Monday, told members of the council the increased license was prohibitory. He argued further that there would be no real show as long as the higher fee was charged, because, he said, it is impossible to stage theatrical performances in local theaters since they have been equipped for talking pictures.

Almed at Gyples
The ordinance amendment relative to phonographists was aimed at artists who recently rented two business houses, one on Shoshone street north, and another on Main avenue south, in which to practice their art.

Both measures were adopted under suspension of the rules requiring three separate readings. Violation is designated a misdemeanor punishable by maximum fine of $100.

Postpone Organization
Newly elected members of the council were sworn into office at last evening's meeting, but organization of the council by designation of department heads was postponed. Last evening's meeting recessed to this evening to discuss organization of the council and preparation of the municipal budget for the fiscal year that opens May 6.

Newly elected members were: R. E. Boller, mayor, re-elected for two years; P. J. Douglas, commissioner, re-elected; and Thomas Sanderson, commissioner, re-elected, for four-year terms. Mr. Sanderson is member of the council, re-elected, succeeded Ralph B. Smith, who retired last evening after serving for four years as a member of the council and commissioner of streets and water works.

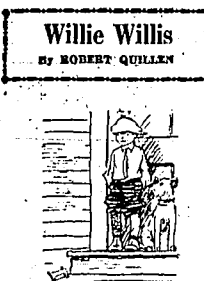

At Work On Figures
Typewritten statements showing appropriations and expenditures in each department for the first 11 months of the current fiscal year, were distributed to the council last evening, among members of the council for their guidance in preparing the budget for the coming year. The budget, which is to be published four times, will include a statement showing revenues and expenditures for the last year, together with an estimate of receipts and disbursements for the new year. The appropriation bill may be adopted at any meeting of the council after the last publication of the budget. It is the purpose of the council to pass the appropriation bill in order to make funds of the current year available for payment of claims against the city June 1.

Under New Procedure
Application made by Mrs. Amelia Dalstrom, owner of property on Heyburn avenue at the north municipal boundary, for permit to connect that property with Twin Falls sewer system was the first of its kind to be received since adoption of a new procedure requiring the applicant to enter into contract with the city for that purpose. The applicant was granted subject to the approval of the city attorney.

TWIN FALLS STAKE GETS WARM PRAISE

Elder McKay Compliments Religious Spirit of Membership of Congregation

Praising the members of the Twin Falls Stake of the Latter Day Saints church for the progress made in completing the structures so far, they have and paying for it as it went up, Elder David O. McKay, Salt Lake City, of the quorum of the Twelve apostles, assured nearly 300 present members of the congregation last Sunday night that they would never regret the contributions they had made to the work. In part he said:

"I am glad to see that a woman who ever regretted having made contributions for this purpose either religious or educational for your children and your children's children and I hope you will push right forward and the next time we have a conference here it will be in the upper room. The music has been most inspiring to me and the speaking I have heard here from both young and middle-aged has been most encouraging."

John The Baptist testified that Jesus Christ was the author of the Holy Spirit and continued, asking in the words of the apostle Saint John:

"What seekest thou?" "They," he answered, "were seeking just what you are seeking, young man. I care not what your vocation, belief, or what your religion may be, but I think when you don't have to think, but there is one thing you are seeking to know just the way they are, whether or not Jesus is divine. It is the longing of every soul to know the immortality of life."

Points Out Reasons
Elder McKay then proceeded to point out numerous reasons for belief in the divinity of Christ, urging all to accept the invitation of his apostles "come and see." He pointed out the efficiency of the Holy Spirit, the power of the Latter Day Saints church and pointed out that to hold it together there must be a common interest and that a religious one.

Other speakers during the meeting Sunday included President L. O. Kirkman of the Twin Falls stake, who urged the people to together in accordance with the teaching of the church and to love one another in a true Christian spirit. Elders George Everett, Gordon J. L. Madson, J. N. Daniels and Earl Ward, spoke extemporaneously.

Among those who presented missionary work were Elder John L. Husaker, Miss Mabel Davis, Elder D. P. Allen, Elder F. Hunt, Elder Floyd C. Little, the last two from the stake.

During the afternoon session E. M. Guest read a text from the Book of Mormon and delivered address on it. President J. W. Richens urged obedience to law. Elder McKay spoke at both sessions during the day.

During the morning session, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hapley sang a duet, "O Love Divine." At the afternoon session of conference, solos were rendered by Clifford E. Tolman of Murtaugh, who sang "It was for me," and Professor W. R. Ruppinger of Hull, who sang, "Open the Gates of the Temple." The Twin Falls Stake choir sang two anthems, "Sing His Praise" and "We are not ashamed to Own Our Lord."

GRIM REAPER CALLS EARLY DAY SETTLER

Cephus D. Welch, One Time Owner of Large Land Interest, Answers Summons

Cephus D. Welch, 73, an early settler of the Twin Falls country and at one time owner of extensive farm property in this district, died at 6 P. M. Sunday in the county general hospital here from effects of a heart attack. The body was taken to the Grossman mortuary, and according to arrangements announced last evening, will be taken next Wednesday to Mr. Welch's old home in West Middlesex, Pennsylvania, for funeral services and burial.

Coming to the Twin Falls country soon after building of the irrigation system from Butte, Montana where he had been engaged for years in mining, Mr. Welch purchased farm lands here and was for some time actively engaged in farming and stock raising. Some years ago he disposed of his property holdings and converted his interests into securities.

Struck By Machine
He had spent a number of winters in California, and had returned from there only a few days when he was struck down by an automobile on Shoshone street on the night of last March 8. Under treatment at the hospital he seemed to recover rapidly and had been discharged from the institution for some days when he was advised to return for treatment last Saturday on account of the condition of his heart.

Mr. Welch was unmarried, and his only surviving relative, so far as inquiry yesterday disclosed is a sister, Miss Estel Welch, West Middlesex, Pennsylvania, who in reply to a message, has directed that the body be taken there for burial.

Mr. Welch was a member of Twin Falls lodge of Elks. Officers of the lodge took charge of arrangements for return of the body to the former home, and Frank McAulay, a number of the lodge, will accompany the body.

Russia's Poor Roads Annually Cost Nation $1,000,000,000

SOVIET WITHOUT ONE STRETCH OF HIGHWAY PAVED FOR 100 MILES

Majority of Villages On Byways Impassable During Long Periods — Rainy Fall and Thaws of Spring

By EDWARD ANGLY (Associated Press Staff Writer) MOSCOW, April 29—In all the vast land that is Russia, there is not 100 miles of smooth, paved road, such as the motorists of western Europe and America know.

The majority of villages are on byways that are impassable during two long periods each year—in the rain and mud of autumn and the sloppy thaws of springtime.

In these seasons villages by the wayside are cut off from the main markets. Except for the radio they are isolated. It is estimated that the economic cost resulting from these conditions amounts to $1,000,000,000 a year.

There are a great many people in slow moving Russia who think that something should be done about such a situation, and not in a slow moving way. A few have even started to get together recently. They adopted a building program for the next five years, but it still remains for the government to approve of it and put up the money, for fulfilling it.

Facts interesting to the congress brought out some interesting facts. It was asserted, for instance, that on the dirt roads the cost of transporting grain by wagon for 100 miles comes to 60 per cent of the value of the load. Extending the figure into miles, if one went 100 miles by wagon on a dirt road in Russia, the cost of transport would equal the value of the load. And most of the Russian roads are of dirt in the summer, in winter snow and ice make them impassable by sleigh.

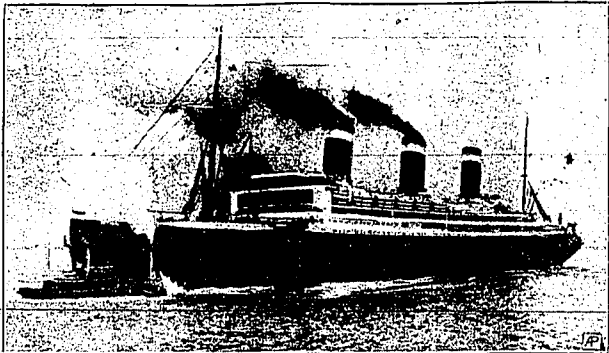

In the absence of paving, the roads of Russia are divided into dirt roads and "hard" roads, most of the latter being of cobblestone. Riding over them in an automobile gives one much the same experience to be had on an electric horse.

Accepting the figures presented at the congress, there is only one-tenth of a kilometer of hard road in Russia for every 100 square kilometers of territory. Purely in terms of area, there are 42 kilometers of hard road in Great Britain, 127 kilometers in France, 110 in Belgium and 100 in the United States. The most densely populated New Zealand, each has more miles of good road than all Russia, occupying a sixth of the land surface of the globe.

Taxes Low Abroad Taking it by population, the United States has five miles of hard road for every 100 inhabitants. Russia has less than a tenth of a mile for the same number. In county, state and federal taxes the American citizen pays a good many dollars each year for building and maintaining highways. For all her road building and repairing Russia taxes her citizens less than 25 cents per capita.

The good roads congress drew up a program that called for the expenditure of 1,500,000,000 rubles in the next five years. This would provide 2200 miles of smooth pavement, 3000 miles of cobblestone roads and 10,000 miles of gravel road. Even with that most of Russia would still be bogged down in the mud a part of each year. And so far the money for the modest program made by the roads congress has not come from the national till.

ELECTRIC PLANT MAY RISE NEAR KING HILL

Denver Engineers Consider Plan for New Mutual Company in South Idaho

DURLEY, April 29 (Special to The News)—What may develop into a new factor in the power situation of southern Idaho is the proposed entry into the field of a mutual company, with its headquarters in Denver, which has been speedily crushed and outlawed through the pressure of a wholesome and rugged public sentiment.

The dam is to be 85 feet in height, with a maximum development in sight of 100,000 kilowatts. It is proposed to install two units at first, with a capacity of 33,000 kilowatts. Two main power lines are to be built, one on each side of Snake river, to serve the territory from King Hill to Rupert on the north side, and from Blaine to the south. The latter propositions have been made to the Mariuaga Irrigation district, to furnish power for pumping, and to the Mindoko Irrigation district. The south side Mindoko project is left out of consideration, as power is already furnished from the Mindoko dam government plant.

To Cost $7,500,000 The completed project is estimated to cost $7,500,000. It is said that the financing and construction will be in the hands of Wood and Weber. The method of financing will be by means of bonds. Wood and Weber, it is said, constructed and financed the successfully operated municipal electric plant at Colorado Springs, Colorado. H. T. Henderson, Twin Falls, who is also engineer of the Mariuaga Irrigation district, is the local engineer of the new project. Mr. Henderson recently left for Denver on business in connection with development work in the enterprise. Twin Falls men reported to be interested in the project include A. L. Swain, E. L. Ashton, A. B. Colwell, George Herritt, George C. Wiley, Peter Ericson, T. M. Baird and Judge James H. Bothwell.

JUST IDAHO

Comment on Current Conditions in the Gem State By GUY FLENNER

THE STATE WE DO NOT LIVE IN We do not live in the state of dread that some do because of the annual recurrence of tornadoes, earthquakes and floods. These are unknown in Idaho.

We do not live in the state of uncertainty about crops that perpetually concerns the public of some neighboring states. Idaho knows nothing of disastrous droughts. We do not live in the state of lawlessness that makes existence a horror in some sections. Whatever lawlessness has ever shown itself in Idaho has been speedily crushed and outlawed through the pressure of a wholesome and rugged public sentiment.

We do not live in the state of Utopia, but we do live in a state of security, healthfulness, progress and opportunity.

The Why of the Buses With increased revenue in all other departments of the Union Pacific system, President Gray reports a decrease of more than $1,500,000 in passenger revenues for last year. This is attributed largely to the short haul competition of motor vehicles.

The entrance of the Union Pacific into the motor bus business may mean curtailment of some of its train service, notably local service. Again this may not be found to be necessary. All we know now is that the system is going into the bus business and that it will vastly improve that convenient and rather fascinating mode of transportation in its field because it is a master in the realm of transportation, whereas most all our motor bus business has been in the hands of transportation amateurs.

This venture will materially increase the Union Pacific investment in Idaho, which already amounts to near-

The State We Live In

By BYRON DEFENBACH

Idaho's first era, that of discovery, ended rather definitely on Christmas, 1811; it was succeeded by 50 years of exploration and fur-trading. The third era, that of mining and railroad building, had its sharp beginning with the discovery of placer gold at Pierce in 1860. Placer mining as a dominating industry lasted less than 10 years; by that time the best ground had been worked over and many of the people engaged in the industry had left the territory.

In 1870, there were only 15,000 people in Idaho, one person to each six square miles. Although this figure was doubled by 1880, the decade is considered the duldest 10 years in all our later history. Its only high-lights were the construction of our first railroad, coming into Franklin from the south in 1874, and a series of Indian wars, the Shoshone fight definitely ending our Indian troubles.

In 1870 the Utah Northern was built through Pocatello and north to Butte. It was a cliche little road, the rails only three feet apart as against the standard of over four and two-thirds. The rails were so light as to merit for the line the description of "two streaks of rust and a right-of-way."

During the next decade Idaho's first daily, the "Halley Times," began a career that ended in the territory's first newspaper of any kind had been the "Golden Age" published at Lewiston in the early sixties.

The narrow-gauge road was widened; the Northern Pacific and the Oregon Short Line built across the state; the Great Northern followed in 1890. But the great event of these years was one that remained and continues to influence us. In 1884 rich ores began to be uncovered in the Coeur d'Alene district; there was the usual rush into the country. Some of the veins then discovered are still being worked.

In 1885 the legislature appropriated $80,000 for the construction of a capital at Boise. A meeting-place for the legislature thus having been provided, taxpayers needed consideration; $20,000 was set aside for an insane asylum at Blackfoot.

On July 3, 1890, the state we live in was admitted into the Union, an event which may be looked upon as the beginning of our fourth period of progress, that of permanent settlement and the predominance of the agricultural industry.

The dividing line between these two periods is not so sharply drawn as the others. But by 1890 our population had reached over 88,000, nearly six times that of 20 years before, nearly one-fifth of what it now is. Mining continued; it will always be an important industry in Idaho, as facilities of transportation are extended and improved processes of extraction are found.

But it was now primarily an agricultural people. Men rushed into Wardner in the '80s to mine; those that have come since have come to farm, either the soil or the farmers.

The last two, together with others for neighboring farmers, were excavated by a trenching machine which digs 200 feet to 400 feet per day.

Voice of Barthelmess in "Weary River" Feature

Richard Barthelmess is now heard as well as seen. The star of two-score features, famed for his "Tollable David" and his "Patent Leather Kid," is now being heard for the first time in "Weary River," his newest First National starring feature to the Orpheum theatre today.

In "Weary River" Barthelmess not only talks but plays the piano. A Vitaphone test proved his voice of excellent quality for talking pictures and advance notices predict unprecedented success for the initial Barthelmess feature.

"Weary River" is from the short story by Courtney Ryley Cooper. It relates the story of a convict who sings over the radio, becomes famous and wins the love of a girl. It is a wide departure from anything Barthelmess has done heretofore and offers him the sort of human characterization in which he excels.

The cast supporting Barthelmess is headed by Betty Compton, playing the feminine lead. Others in the cast include William Holden, Raymond Turner, George Stone, Louis Natheaux, Robert O'Connor and others.

"The Broadway Melody" Idaho Theatre Triumph

Scenes never before enacted in a local theatre came to pass Sunday during the showing of the screen's first all-talking, all-singing and all-dancing dramatic sensation, "The Broadway Melody," which opened to capacity crowds at the Idaho theatre.

As throngs of beautiful dancing girls from the famous Ziegfeld "Follies" made their appearance on the screen and danced to the theme song from "The Broadway Melody," the enthusiastic audience burst into prolonged applause of similar popular successes, has the most artistically colored photograph employed during the eye-feeding number, "The Wedding of the Painted Doll." Page is another prominent member of the cast.

If you see no other picture during the year, make sure that "The Broadway Melody" is given that distinction. It is the most perfect entertainment yet brought to us through the medium of the talking screen and will strike a responsive appeal for all who see it.

STATISTICIAN AVER'S FOREIGN TRADE WILL CONTROL PROSPERITY

Roger W. Babson Declares Commercial Welfare of United States Depends on Expansion of Markets

By ROGER W. BABSON
BABSON PARK, Mass., April 23 — Statisticians clearly show that the future prosperity of the United States depends upon more rapid expansion of its foreign trade. Some of our key industries are reaching the point where the domestic market cannot keep pace with the vastly increased rate of production. Hope for future industrial expansion in the United States at anything like the rate we have experienced during the last five years can only be fulfilled by intensive development of foreign markets. Leaders of our greatest industries now realize this fact and are doing everything in their power to develop foreign sales.

Foreign Trade Increases
Export figures in 1928 totaled $5,125,000,000, an increase of 5.4 per cent over 1927, and 23 per cent over five years ago. Also the first quarter of 1929 has witnessed the heaviest export trade of any similar three months period since 1920. There are still, however, some people who look upon foreign trade as a matter of secondary importance and not a vital influence on our prosperity. They point out that only 10 per cent of our total production is exported anyway. They forget that this 10 per cent, which in 1928 amounted to over $5,000,000,000 is the marginal quantity which largely determines the price at which the other $45,000,000,000 is sold. If our export surplus were not shipped abroad, but were dumped on the domestic market it would at once cause such a business panic as this country has never experienced.

New inventions and new manufacturing processes are largely increasing our capacity to make more goods in a shorter length of time. Thus far by maintaining high wages and keeping employment steady the public purchasing power has been able to keep pace with increased production. There is a limit, however, to the amount of goods which any population, even one as rich as that of the United States, can absorb. Already the domestic saturation point is reached in a number of lines. This does not mean that consumption will necessarily decline or remain stationary, but does mean that the rate of increase in domestic consumption of goods will gradually flatten out. Manufacturers will need to be strongly entrenched in foreign markets if they are to maintain their rate of growth. Furthermore, these companies who have best developed foreign outlets will be the ones to make the greatest profits in the next 10 years. Similarly, the most popular securities will be those of companies with strong foreign connections. Particularly is this true in industries such as automobile, iron and steel, airplane, farm machinery, radio, and communications. One of the first questions which investors will ask in the future, when engaging merit of a stock or bond, is whether the company behind it has developed strong foreign trade outlets.

Rapid Expansion of Trade
Ever since the war there has been a noticeable tendency for United States trade with Canada and South America to grow faster than its trade with Europe. Partly no doubt, this was due to the impoverished condition in which Europe found itself following the war. Also it was due to the initiative of our department of commerce and to a number of energetic far-seeing business men in this country. At any rate, expansion of trade with South America gives promise of tremendous growth during the next 10 years. From 1922 to 1928 our exports to South American countries gained 80 per cent, with Europe they gained 40 per cent, and in fact 1928 exports to Europe were lower than in the two years following 1921. Among the countries in South America where our trade is most rapidly growing are Argentina, Brazil and Colombia.

When President Hoover made his god-will tone of Latin-America he undoubtedly foresaw the time when American industry will be closely tied up in trade relations with these countries. Also, there is a movement on foot to construct an international highway running from Texas through Mexico, Central American countries, Colombia, Brazil, Argentina and other South American countries. This project of course, depends upon the cooperation of those countries, but it is more than a mere dream. The time may come when all of North and South America will be united by well paved highways, as well as by direct railway communication and shipping lines. Furthermore, South American securities, particularly the railroads and public utilities, may become more popular in the New York market.

Must Become "World-Minded"
A narrow-minded policy of isolation will never allow us to achieve the economic expansion which is our destiny. Our business men must learn to understand the peoples of foreign countries—their habits, ideals, customs and trade practices. We must think in terms of world problems rather than merely national problems. Foreign trade in the last five years has failed to be sure, but

JEROME CAMPFIRE GIRLS PREPARE FOR MAY FETE

JEROME, April 23.—The "Na-Han" group of Campfire Girls met Saturday afternoon at the home of their guardian, Mrs. Duffy Smith. The afternoon was spent in making the costumes they will wear in the May fete. Eleven girls were present. They will meet next Saturday afternoon at the home of Bulfinch Burcken.

About 12 members of the Jerome Rifle-club were engaged Sunday afternoon in constructing an open air range, four miles east of town. They hope to have it complete and ready for rifle practice in two weeks.

The members of the Christian Endeavor society of the Christian church, held a box social Saturday night at the church. Members of the young people's organizations of the local churches, were invited guests. Games and contests were enjoyed during the evening.

R. R. Guemmer is erecting buildings on the property south of town, facing the Lincoln highway, for a tourist park. There will be a grocery, service station and a number of cabins when work is completed.

UNITED STATES BUILDS SHIPS

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The volume of ship building in 34 American yards has increased 50 per cent in the last year. A summary prepared by the government bureau of navigation shows a total of 167,662 tons of steel vessels now under construction. A year ago the total was 110,127 tons.

But to the extent that it would have benefited business men as a whole had taken active interest in the development.

In formulating our new tariff law, we must realize that an extremely prohibitive tariff will react adversely on foreign trade expansion. Certain industries are entitled to some additional protection, but any sweeping upward revision in the tariff will set back American foreign trade 10 years. In the matter of reparations settlement, cooperation with foreign central banks and other measures looking toward financial rehabilitation abroad, we must be actuated by a sincere desire to help these other nations. A prosperous customer is the only good customer, and if we would expand our foreign trade, so necessary to the continuance of our own prosperity, we should attack these world problems in a sympathetic and helpful spirit.

Business by the Babsonact is now increased by 50 per cent compared with 3 per cent above a year ago.

Struggle to Hoist Value Results in Draw in Battle With Opposing Force

By JOHN F. HUGHES (Associated Press Market Editor)—CHICAGO, April 29.—Struggles to hoist or to overturn grain values today met, but a single result—an all-around decision that the battle was a draw. The narrow results in the grain market today were a result of a struggle between two opposing forces, one to hoist and one to lower values.

COUNT LUCKNER THE Sea Devil

By LOWELL THOMAS Copyright by Doubleday, Doran & Co.

And then came the sailor's worst enemy, scurvy. Our diet of hardtack, lack of exercise, and general hardships brought it on. Our knees swelled up so badly that we had to cut our trousers. The rocking of the boat knocked them together against the wooden sides, and then the pain was almost unendurable. Our lips were black and broken. Our tongues were swollen and hard. It was as if you had a stone in your mouth. Our feet became raw while we tried to recede. Our teeth felt as though they were sticking far out of our jaws. They hurt constantly and were loose as if they were going to drop out. With these shaking teeth we ate our hardtack. I never before knew how hardtack was. It was almost unmanageable, and it seemed as if something were pressing our eyes right out of their sockets. We got water in our teeth, and could hardly stand any more. We had to slide around the seats to do what had to be done in navigating the boat. In scurvy, the blood turns to waste in the legs and arms and up the neck. When it reaches the heart you die. Where the blood is water the flesh is white and you can see the line of the white crepe slowly up. We wondered who would be the first—the first to have the line of white rise to the heart. My boys made a bet to show the line clearly, and mark its daily progress upward. It was a kind of sport. It was keeping a daily log, a log of death. Parmlen was the youngest, the one who was nearest death. We thought, as a relief from these sufferings. The prospect of its arrival became more and more attractive.

I said, "Let us take pieces of ballast iron and tie them around our chests. One piece and in a few seconds all of our pain will be gone." "Yes, all right." There were mutterings of assent. But Parmlen, the youngest, the one who was nearest death, picked up the comic volume, Fritz Reuter's "Trip to Constantinople," and began to read in a funny way. We all laughed at the book that had earned many a hard hour here on this ghastly voyage, and now, perhaps, it saved our lives.

And so we continued on with but one instinct left in us, the sailor's instinct to navigate his craft. Mechanically without any particular hope, without any thought of the future, we trimmed the sails, guided the helm, and calculated our position as best we could. Nautical science was a long job among us now. We were too far gone to reckon exactly where we were, and were only guided by our steering. All we knew was that we should steer to the west where the island groups are.

I won't try to say how we felt when we saw a speck of horizon and the speck grew bigger and turned into the familiar green of a tropical island. We had been so much of dead men, who had thought that nothing could make us glad again. By Joe, that sight gladdened our hearts, though. We grew very weak, but we felt the necessity of happiness. As we drew near, we thought of nothing but land, fresh water, and soft food, a soft banana, for our loose, shivering, nerve-ridden limbs of capturing ships. Never mind being taken prisoners. We headed straight toward a small pier that stuck out into the water.

A crowd of a hundred natives, perhaps more, were gathered at the landing place watching us as we came. They were ferocious looking black warriors. We had now passed from the region of the brown, dolent, Polynesian to that of the black, warlike Melanesians. "What ugly creatures," I said to Leudemann. "They look like cannibals." He nodded. "They are, but they are not as fierce as you have stereotyped a negro in us. It certainly looked like a cannibal island, and we were still in the region of the ferocious thought of our skin and our bones being fattened up in preparation for an old-time South sea banquet. "Get the boat for action!" I ordered. Even in our present straits, we could still remember our old naval ways.

SURVEY REPORTS ON RAFT RIVER DISTRICT

Official Compiles Results of Studies on Possible Water Supply Increase

BOISE, April 29 (Special to The News)—The Raft river valley, in southern Idaho, is a broad, flat valley with many thousands of acres of nearly level arable land. The entire summer flow of the Raft river and its tributaries is now utilized for irrigation. About 8000 acres of land in the vicinity of Malta is irrigated by this surface water. A large tract of arable land, however, remains uncultivated because there is no reliable water supply for it, and some of the land that is under cultivation is inadequately supplied by flood water. In order to obtain information as to the feasibility of increasing irrigation supply with water to be drawn from wells, an investigation of the valley was made by the geological survey, department of the interior, in the autumn of 1928. A report giving the results of this investigation has just been prepared by Harold T. Stearns, who was in charge of the field work. This report has not been published, but typewritten copies of it have been filed in the following offices, where they may be consulted by the public: Geological survey, Washington; Geological survey, room 222, Federal building, Idaho Falls; geological survey, Federal building, Boise; Idaho commission of reclamation, Boise; office of the Mindooka Irrigation district, Rupert; and the office of Frank Riblett, Malta. Mr. Stearns concludes from his study of the available data that the ground-water supply is adequate to irrigate an additional area of 10,000 acres, but because of the limited water supply in the other data he recommends that the initial ground-water development should not exceed 4000 acres, and that further development should be governed by the results thus obtained.
