GERMANSHIP BUCKS STRONG HEAD WINDS OFF ATLANTIC COAST

Through of 100,000 Persons to Greet Gigantic Craft On Arrival in Lakehurst at End of 4100-Mile Trip

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, (Sunday morning), Aug. 4.—The Columbia Broadcasting company received a radiogram from its correspondent aboard the Graf Zeppelin at 2 o'clock this morning saying an attempt to broadcast to America proved unsuccessful due to too great a distance.

The message sent by Frank E. Nicholson, the pilot, was "TRIED TO BROADCAST TO YOU BUT IMPOSSIBLE. DISTANCE TOO GREAT. OUR TRANSMITTER NOT WORKING. ENOUGH. SHOULD REACH AMERICA SHORTLY BEFORE NOON. WILL ADVISE TIME AND PLACE."

The reception of the Zeppelin was not given. The "divisible" Graf Zeppelin was making a bee-line across the last reach of the broad Atlantic with the hope of making New York by noon, at the earliest estimate.

The opposing winds which had retarded her during much of her air voyage had lessened, but there was a prospect that squally weather with rain might be encountered near the American shore.

As the giant airship narrowed the gap between her and the shore of the United States, radio contacts with American stations grew more frequent and more often came the message of reassurance: "ALL'S WELL."

CASSIA COUNTY SEEKS POWER PROFIT AUDIT

Copies of Petition to Interior Secretary Sent on Irrigation District

BURLEY, Aug. 3 (Special to The News)—Copies of a petition to the secretary of the interior asking for appointment of a committee to investigate distribution of power profits arising from the sale of Minidoka dam power, have been served on the Burley Irrigation District.

At present, commercial power profits are distributed to the two irrigation districts of the Minidoka project on a basis of 50 per cent to the Burley Irrigation district, and 50 per cent to the Burley Irrigation district, or pumping station, as to the north side and the south side, respectively.

Recently, Secretary West refused to grant a petition in the order of the secretary of the interior made in 1924 appropriating power profits at 4.4 per cent and 50 per cent. It was claimed by the North Side directors that proper regard was not had for the proportion of expense incurred by the north side settlers in construction of the Minidoka dam.

It is now sought to reopen the case by submission of what is claimed by the North Side directors to be new evidence. The new evidence specified is the alleged cost of $18,000 in transmission lines charged to the North Side and that the North Side also paid for two power stations to step down power voltage. It is also asserted that no consideration has been heretofore given to the relative proportions of ownership of the two districts in power profits.

wood, George Pettibone, and Charles Meyer were tried on a charge of complicity in the assassination of Governor Frank Steunbeger. None of the three was convicted though the fight sent two attorneys to prominent positions in Idaho. Hawley to the governor of Idaho, and William Edgar Borah to the United States senator.

Hawley was elected governor in 1910 and served one term and was nominated for the Democratic party for reelection; but was defeated by John M. Hialina.

One of his great ambitions he was doomed to disappoint. Two times he sought a seat in congress. First when he lost to Fred T. Dubois in 1898 and later when he opposed James H. Brady in 1906.

He was born in Dubuque, Iowa, January 17, 1847, of English, Irish and Dutch ancestry. His mother, Mrs. Catherine Hawley, died when he was but an infant. After graduating from high school he followed his father, Thomas Hawley, to California.

Gold In Idaho-Lure

Attracted by reports of gold in the Salmon country in Idaho, in 1863 he left his home in California to take up an abode in a new country which he ever afterward made his home.

He returned to California in 1864 to study law but in 1868 returned to Idaho to resume his mining. He was elected to the lower house of the legislature in 1870, to the upper house in 1874, was district attorney for the second judicial district from 1878 to 1882; practiced law at Halley from 1884 to 1888 when he was appointed United States district attorney for Idaho by President Cleveland.

In 1890 he moved to Boise and in 1902 was elected mayor. He was called to practice law from then on, the practice being only interrupted by his service as governor in 1910-1912.

In 1915 he married Mary E. Bullock and eight children were born of whom six survived to maturity. Edgar T., his one son served in the Philippine war and in the aerial service in the World war. Jess B., his second son, took up the practice of law and served in the trenches during the war. His third son, James H., also studied law and served as the first lieutenant in infantry in the World War. Harry was a sergeant in the field hospital corps. His oldest daughter, Emma, married Rully-Atkinson and his younger, Jessie, married E. W. Tucker.

It was during his law school years in California that he took part in an adventure that sounds almost as wild as the days of his adventures. Shortly before returning to Idaho in 1868, he engaged in a filibustering expedition that carried him deep into China, and nearly resulted in his losing his head.

Loath to Tell of Incident

Somewhat loath to tell of the incident, the story has never appeared in any of the numerous biographies of his life. It was gleaned piecemeal by his son, Jess Hawley, who often remarked "I'll sometime get him to tell me more about it."

With a group of other young men, some of them presumably law students, he was lured from San Francisco by reports of the trouble incident and he went down the Chinese "wall of isolation" for foreign powers.

Arriving in Shanghai, he and his companions, who included a Chinese gunboat, with a view to sailing it up the Yangtze river to join the rebel Chinese. Captured in the raid, they were quickly taken to the city and imprisoned in the in the disreputable Chinese jails of the period. Americans being held in disrespect by the Chinese at that time, the men who had passed as British subjects and were finally released.

The Hayward-Pettibone-Meyer trial, unquestionably the most notable one in Idaho history, was held in Boise during which the capital city, Boise, was virtually in a state of siege. It was a case of the state forces lined up against the Western Federation of Miners in the old Idaho case that had arisen in the troubles in the Clear Aldenes when mines were cleared, men's jobs were shot down and strikers were herded into the "bull pen" to await trial.

It was a clash of local talent seldom brought together. On the one hand was Harry, Federation of Miners labor lawyer. With him served Borah as associate counsel. On the other side was the Attorney General, Darrow, who even then a power to be considered in legal circles.

Only one man, Harry Orchard, was sent to prison for the assassination of Governor Steunbeger. He was charged with the crime of which the planning of the bomb which killed Steunbeger was his only incident.

In commenting on the trial in his History of Idaho, Mr. Hawley said: "While most of the people of Idaho believe that the acquittal of Hayward and Pettibone was a miscarriage of justice and while the trials of these persons cost the state of Idaho a large sum of money, no convictions were had. Still the results of the trial were seemingly worth the effort that had been made. At the next election of the Democratic party for reelection following his acquittal, Hayward was elected as secretary-treasurer of the Federation and the members of the executive committee. He was also elected to the Idaho State Bar Association. His attempts to legalize the mining sections of the west were abandoned by the Federation of Miners. The movement for labor troubles in the mining sections of Idaho, nor in most of the mining states of the West.

"The miners' unions composing the Western Federation have as a general thing been under the management of law abiding men and have existed in the various communities where they existed in upholding the law."

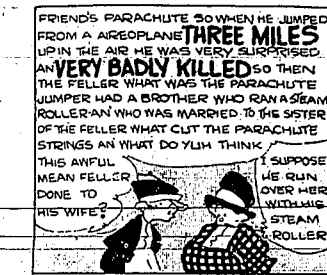

His career as governor was quite as splendid in his own right as it was in the eyes of his subjects.

Taking the oath of office on January 2, 1911, he inaugurated a campaign to relieve the most taxable property on the assessment rolls, finally increasing the valuation of the state, according to his own account, from $1,270,000 to $320,784,000. In the process of doing this, a burden on those properties previously heavily taxed to support the increasing burden of the government forced upon a growth in the regular session of the legislature failed to pass a satisfactory tax bill and he called this extraordinary session to complete the work. Moreover, he pushed work on the new capitol building, being the first governor to take up the work in the new state capitol.

During his term of office he and former governor James H. Brady promoted one of the most spectacular undertakings in the history of his country, the Western war. Jess B., his second son, took up the practice of law and served in the trenches during the war. His third son, James H., also studied law and served as the first lieutenant in infantry in the World War. Harry was a sergeant in the field hospital corps. His oldest daughter, Emma, married Rully-Atkinson and his younger, Jessie, married E. W. Tucker.

It was during his law school years in California that he took part in an adventure that sounds almost as wild as the days of his adventures. Shortly before returning to Idaho in 1868, he engaged in a filibustering expedition that carried him deep into China, and nearly the aged politician arose from the audience to look the crowd in an enthusiastic uproar for nearly an hour.

His first contact with miners organizations came in the fall of 1902 when a band of miners determined to sack the Clear Aldenes of the Hills mine which had refused to accede to their demands for increased pay.

While milling around preliminary to making a charge on the mine, which was protected by 40 armed men, Hayward then deputy prosecuting attorney, wormed his way to the center of the crowd, mounted a table which had been placed by union miners from which to harangue the crowd, and there began to beseech the men to keep the peace as he related the incident later, one of the men tripped a rifle on his throat and kept it there during the entire speech.

"I never did know why he didn't shoot," he said.

The address directed the miners from their plan and a settlement of the trouble was effected.

During his service as United States district attorney, he was actively engaged in prosecuting Mormon polygamists under the Edmunds act.

Praised as a remarkable trial attorney he was credited by Senator Borah with having "saved the necks of more men he defended and sent to prison more murderers he prosecuted, than any man in Idaho."

JEROME FAIR BOARD PLANS ATTRACTIONS

Special Fireworks, Free Acts, Circus Entertainers and Races On List

JEROME, Aug. 3 (Special to The News)—Delights fireworks and pyrotechnic displays, and what are described as "bigger and better free acts" are planned for the Jerome county fair, September 26, 27 and 28, according to the fair board which met August 1. It was also planned at this meeting to continue the night programs which give people too busy to be present at the fair during the daytime opportunity to attend.

Among other attractions approved by the board this year is the engagement of Al Nuttle, musical clown, who plays fifteen different instruments, and as many as eight at one time. Nuttle has been in this line of work for more than 37 years and has traveled with Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers circuses. Frank Zerk and his novelty circus troupe has also been signed up for a first appearance in Idaho.

The fair board reports that it is concentrating its efforts to have more and larger community exhibits this year. More prize money is offered to induce communities to participate and additional space is being offered to display the exhibits to better advantage. The program list has been revised to provide for more entries and special money will be awarded for displays of potatoes, beans and corn.

Construction of a more spacious building to house the women's exhibits, floral displays, school, arts, and craft exhibits is being considered by the building committee. The plan is to put this structure at the present location of the dance pavilion.

As the date of the Jerome fair, September 26, 27 and 28, do not conflict with the dates of other nearby fairs, the program committee expects many of the entries to come from Southern Idaho for the running and novelty races. Auto races may have a part on the program, but nothing definite has been decided upon in this regard.

KEEPING FIT

SOME folks are old at forty years, others are young at sixty. Yet those young at sixty may have been less fortunate in life than those old at forty. It is simply a matter of "Keeping Fit."

Generally the successful person wins out because he has a keen intellect. He has trained himself to keep his mind clear and his body strong through a variety of active, healthy recreations.

When you build a substantial bank account and "keep fit," you can have this combination—financial means and the opportunity to enjoy them.

Another Record! a Million SIX CYLINDER CHEVROLETS on the road in less than eight months! Less than eight months have elapsed since the first Chevrolet Six was delivered into the hands of an owner—and already there are more than a million six-cylinder Chevrolets on the road! And the reasons for this overwhelming success are easy to understand. Into a price field that had hitherto been occupied exclusively by four-cylinder cars—Chevrolet has introduced a six-cylinder car of amazing quality and value. Not only does it offer the smooth, quiet, velvety performance of a great six-cylinder valve-in-head motor—but, from every standpoint, it is a finer automobile than was ever before thought possible at such low prices! Its beautiful new bodies—which are available in a variety of colors—represent one of Fisher's greatest style triumphs. And its safety and handling ease are so outstanding that it's a sheer delight to sit at the wheel and drive. In fact, the new Chevrolet Six has completely changed every previous idea as to what the buyer of a low-priced car now has a right to expect for his money. You owe it to yourself, as a careful buyer, to see and drive this car. For it gives you every advantage of a fine six-cylinder automobile—in the price range of the four and with economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon! Come in today! SPECIAL RADIO PROGRAM. EDEN BOARD FACING BUSSING PROBLEMS

Transportation of School Students Issue Confronting District Trustees

EDEN, Aug. 3.—Transportation of high school students is one of the problems that is at present confronting the Eden rural high school trustees. An increase of students from the rural sections the last year and the new students to enter high school this coming year has caused considerable agitation from parents to have a truck placed on a route to carry the students from and to school. To meet this need in a way, the trustees at their last meeting voted to ask for bids for the furnishing of transportation of the students this year on a route of approximately 20 miles. The time for the opening of the bids will be at the next regular meeting of the board on Monday evening, August 12th. Transportation during the past year has been left with the parents with students living at distances of more than two miles being paid at the rate of 5 cents per mile one way each day. During the past winter conditions were such that many light cars used by students were unable to make the trip and many accidents resulted. The question was discussed at one time last winter, but no action was taken. The board is understood as reserving the right to reject any and all bids. However, if the cost is not too high some definite action may be taken towards the establishment of a route.

The necessary repairs to put the Eden grade school in condition for the opening fall term were authorized to be made at a regular meeting of the board of trustees held Tuesday evening. The budget for the coming year was set by J. H. Henry. Other business transacted included the employment of teachers for the coming year. Chubbuck and Miss Nellie Foster were contracted for to fill the two vacancies created by the new qualifications of teachers that goes into effect this year. Mrs. Chubbuck is at present teaching a summer school at Fort Hall. Miss Foster is a Heyburn young lady. For the convenience of students the trustees voted to order texts of history and civics for the coming year. The texts for the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades will be changed. The civics will change in the sixth and eighth grades only. These books will be on hand at the school and purchases can be made by students direct from the superintendent. The first inspection of books for certification was completed in this county Wednesday. Mr. Pierce of the county of Idaho is the supervisor assisted by the county agent. Thomas Speedy had charge of the work. Approximately 400 acres of Great Northern wheat is being harvested here. These fields were all reported in excellent condition. Very little moisture being present in any field. The condition of the crop being better than last season, although a little later. A general inspection of beans in the field will be made just prior to the time of harvesting.

MOSKOW COW SETS ENDURANCE RECORD

Idaho Piebe Pricilla Completes Eighteenth Continuous 100-Pound Milking

MOSCOW, Aug. 2 (Special to The News)—Breaking records is not necessarily confined to airplane endurance flights. The University of Idaho college of agriculture has a Holstein-Pricellan cow that bids fair to break state and university records for continuous milk production.

Idaho Piebe Pricilla, purchased three-year-old, owned by the university, Monday completed her eighteenth continuous day of milking over 100 pounds a day. This bovine aristocrat began her record on July 14 with a mark of 102 pounds. Monday, July 29, her daily production reached 110.2 pounds. The following day her mark was 109.3 pounds, and up to noon Wednesday she had produced more milk than on any previous half-day since her record began.

During the past 30 days she has produced 324 pounds of milk, or approximately 12 1/2 gallons a day, compared to the three-gallon daily production of the ordinary cow. Professor F. W. Atkeson, head of the department of dairy husbandry, is watching her unusual performance closely, and believes that there is a strong possibility of her breaking both the state and university records reached for daily and total milk production. Idaho Piebe Pricilla is the daughter of a 30,000-pound yearling record cow, and her ancestors for three generations back have been bred on the University of Idaho farm. She was sired by a bull secured in exchange with the University of Nebraska, Idaho sending to Nebraska the famous show bull, Mastador. The Nebraska bull is of the King Segis line of breeding.

State Ready to Launch Drive Against Speeders

BOISE, Aug. 3 (AP)—Emphasis is to be placed on speed-law violations on state highways in a drive by highway patrolmen next week; the department of law enforcement announced today. Care and prudence on the part of drivers are to be inculcated, says a letter of instruction to patrolmen, but it is undesirable to have the idea prevail that Idaho has no speed limitations.

FILER MAN ESCAPES INJURY BY BIG BEAR

Frank Dahlquist—Short of Munitions Wounds Best Before Firing Fatal Shot

FILER, Aug. 3.—Frank Dahlquist, who is well known in and about Filer, has a very thrilling experience one day last week with a 400-pound brown bear.

Dahlquist is tending sheep on the range near the south fork of the Boise river for Ralph Conant and Guy and Ray Shuter. It was the herder's experience to come upon the bear while alone and he had with him a rifle for which he had only one shell. At some distance his marksmanship was such that he quite seriously wounded the animal. It was evening and by the time Mr. Dahlquist could return to the camp it was too late and too dark to return and kill the beast. After considerable search, he found only one more shell for the rifle and the following morning early he went in quest of the bear. Following the blood prints to a canyon where the bear lay in hiding it was his experience not to see the beast until he was almost upon it. Within distance of some 8 or 10 feet the bear sprang in an upright position and in the direction of Mr. Dahlquist. Undaunted by the closeness of the beast he raised the rifle and shot the animal squarely between the eyes, costing about $400 at the old dehydrating plant on Wall street between Third and Fourth avenues west and will be able to park eight car loads a day.

TWIN FALLS COUNTY BUSINESS PROSPECT BETTER THAN USUAL

Increase in Value of Farm Products; Marketed Will Total $2,000,000 More Than in 1928; Says Wight

That the farming and business outlook for Twin Falls community and county is unusually good, is the conclusion drawn by Newell S. Wight, secretary of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, in a survey made of the conditions of crops and prices of products. Mr. Wight estimates that there will be $17,000,000 worth of products marketed this year in comparison with $15,000,000 marketed in 1928, an increase of $2,000,000 in the sums received by farmers this year over last.

"Our Principal Crops Strongest" "Analyzing the reasons for such a remark the causes may be readily seen. The survey shows that nearly all of our principal farm crops will be either above average or average in yield per acre and the price of most of these will be above normal. This is especially noticeable in our bean crop, which represents the largest acreage in our community of approximately 60,000 acres for Twin Falls county. Outlook for yield is excellent and recent developments show that beans may be contracted for September delivery at from 6 to 6 1/2 cents per pound, when in past years 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 cents per pound was considered a fair price. Estimates of various products close the bean situation indicate that from 25 per cent to 38 per cent of the Twin Falls bean crop is now ready for market and marketed as an early delivery crop. Such early quotations are invariably representative of a year of high prices throughout.

"The wheat crop, being represented as moving in area of our cash crops, is a specially bright outlook for yields at this time. Also, estimates of probable price of wheat range at from $1.25 upwards, whereas average prices in the past have been around $1. The general shortage of crop and surplus in Canada and other wheat territories together with whatever buoyant affect farm relief legislation measures may bring about are attributes which will tend to stimulate the price of the crop.

"Other Crops Favorable" "Potatoes are thriving and early prices are considerably better indicating a lack of surplus stock in other parts of the country, hence good returns are anticipated on this farm product for this fall.

"Some hay has already sold at $10 in our stacks which is above the average price in past years, which usually ranged around $8.50 per ton. Apples, which constitute about three-fourths of the fruit crop in this community, are now commanding $1.15 with bright outlook for the future considering the shortage of fruit in certain sections of the United States which shortage will undoubtedly be supplied to a certain degree by apples from Idaho territory. There is regret, of course, that the recent heat wave throughout the large portion of the United States has cut the yields and quality of many kinds of farm products. However, this condition, insofar as Twin Falls county is concerned, re-acts to the benefit of our growers and tends to point towards higher average prices for all of our standard farm commodities here. Dairy and poultry products have been steadier than most years in the past and command favorable prices with good outlook for the future. Onions, the small seed crop, and the prairie crop alone seem to be wavering in price and probable future outlook. These conditions for sheep and

ATTORNEY SUGGESTS RAILROAD TO JEROME

T. K. Hackman Believes Link Would Unite Interests in South Part of State

That instead of pushing for the construction of a line of railroad south from Boise to Winnemucca, the people of the Idaho state capital and the rest of the southern Idaho unite in effort to induce the Oregon Short Line Railroad company to construct a connecting link from Twin Falls to Jerome, thus giving the region direct connection with the coast without any expensive construction work and without arousing opposition of competing lines, was the suggestion made yesterday by Turner K. Hackman, Twin Falls lawyer. Speaking of this matter Mr. Hackman said:

"In addition to efforts now being made on behalf of the people of southern Idaho I would suggest that we make a united, earnest effort toward the construction of a very important but all-important connecting link of railroad. We should have a connecting railroad between Twin Falls and Jerome. Only a southern Idaho union in effort to induce a freight route from all southern Idaho to Jerome, Nevada, thence over the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific Railroads to San Francisco and Oakland. A railroad is already in operation from Jerome through Bliss to Boise, and beyond. The construction would embrace the building of a bridge. Twin Falls and Jerome counties have demonstrated that this can be done by building such.

"If a railroad is constructed West from Boise the Snake river must be bridged. If a railroad is constructed from southern Idaho to Winnemucca, Snake river must be bridged."

"The construction of the road to Jerome would undoubtedly mean a railroad division point in Twin Falls, a pay roll which all must admit would be a great advantage to this section. It would be a sufficient feed supply of forage which is somewhat dry but ample for requirements. The sugar beet prospect for 4th year has never appeared more favorable, and the average of this crop in our community is larger than at any time in past years. An increased production of this crop has always had a favorable stabilizing affect on farming and business. "In general in this community the agricultural outlook for Twin Falls community has a brighter aspect for more of our principal farm crops than for several years past and it would appear as a conservative estimate at about 10 per cent to indicate that Twin Falls county should market $17,000,000 worth of farm products this year, as compared with $15,000,000 for 1928."

23,000 TOURISTS AND 6000 AUTOMOBILES AT CAMPS IN TWIN FALLS

Managers Estimate Number of Visitors; Believe Registrations for Present Month Will Set Record

Over 23,000 persons traveling in some 6000 automobiles this year have stopped at tourist parks of Twin Falls, according to fairly conservative estimates reported Saturday by park managers, who make anticipatory projections for registrations at their camps during the month of August.

The managers, in general, believe that the volume of business by the close of the year will be slightly greater than that of last year. "Travel, they say, has been delayed this year because of the late season. More tourists come from California than any other state, with Washington second, a survey of the camps reveals.

Keen Interest in Bridge An interesting feature reported is the heavy increase in the number of tourists visiting Yellowstone park. Also, declines in those in charge of camps here, many of which have been in the Twin Falls area, have been noted.

"That tourists are more particular now than ever before about camp equipment was indicated by the managers, one of whom declared that the only thing we can do is aid refinements and give them what they want if we are to remain in business." Another commented on California tourists, saying that they, "of all who visit his park, demanded the finest cabins and in many instances entered complaints.

Expect to See Indians At least one tourist and his family, traveling in the West for the first time, seemed disappointed over the country. "Where," inquired the tourist in a serious manner, "are the Indians and cowboys?"

"Traveling equipment found in the camps include almost every type of automobile vehicle ranging from the completely equipped, luxurious, special-built coach, to the ordinary "flyer." Almost every town and city in the United States is represented in the course of a summer, camp proprietors report, and recently a car bearing license plates of the Canal Zone stopped here.

Highway Board Votes To Resurface Roads

Twin Falls district highway board in session here yesterday voted to fill holes in the mile of hard surface highway south of Hansen, and to resurface a mile of gravel road connecting with this highway. It was also decided to resurface about three miles of road south and east of Kimberly. The new vehicle tractor, which is out of commission, is being repaired. Contract for a carload of lumber was awarded to the Home Lumber company.

New York Barber in Twin Falls After Walking 9000 Miles in Three Months

That he has wagered $40,000 against $20,000 that he can make a transcontinental hike of 12,000 miles without a penny in his pocket in 300 days, carrying a 37 pound grip on his back, and has covered 9000 miles of the distance in the first 87 days, beginning May 1, was the statement made by Otto Carter, New York City barber, who arrived here from the west and appeared at police headquarters just before 10 P. M. Friday. He will take over 200 days to make the other 4000 miles Carter estimates.

He said that he would not make himself but would admit that making 100 miles a day for 90 days, accepting no rest until he got to Pendleton on the way home, was traveling some. He says he has a wife and four children in New York.

According to Carter's story he left New York City May 1 and hiked to the most southern part of Florida, whence he turned west and after passing through Louisiana and Texas he went into Mexico at Juarez, and hiked through that country as far as Douglas, Arizona. From Douglas Carter says he went west to San Diego and from there north to Portland and then turned east via Pendleton, La Grande and Baker into Idaho. He expects to go from here to Chicago from that point eastward to Portland, Maine and thence

CANAL BOARD AGREES ON EASEMENT VALUES

Director Accepts Gault's Report On Cost of Operation of Milner Dam

Twin Falls Canal company board of directors yesterday passed a resolution accepting the estimate of Homer J. Gault, engineer of the federal reclamation service, made in November 1928, fixing the cost to be paid to the Twin Falls Canal company by the North Side Canal company by the American Falls Reservoir district No. 2, at $109,081 for the right to use Milner dam in connection with its water distribution system, and also fixing the share of cost assessed to the new district at 19.58 of the entire cost of operation and maintenance of the dam. Of the principal sum of $109,081 named in the report, the Twin Falls canal company will receive $41, the balance of $-11 will go to the North Side company. It is understood that right to use in this case does not involve ownership by the new district, which will have simply an easement. In order to determine all legal issues, the board instructed its attorney, Judge James R. Bothwell, to bring a friendly suit covering all points involved. It was stated that the board of directors of the new district and their attorneys, W. G. Bissell and P. T. Stupphen, Goodwin, have agreed to this course of action.

The American Falls Reservoir district No. 2, is popularly known as the Minidoka extension project, and was organized to furnish a supplemental water supply to lands in the vicinity of Blackfoot and Gooding in the Magic dam project on Wood river. The main canal of this district is now under construction.

Boston Street Boys Find New Combination Sport Using No Costly Equipment and Little Space

BOSTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Forced by necessity, boys in a hillside district of Boston have succeeded in the seemingly impossible feat of combining the features of football and baseball in one game.

What's more, the game is a good one, with offense and defense well balanced, and it is ideally adapted to the conditions under which the boys have to play. Furthermore, it is readily understood and can easily be played by anyone having a knowledge of baseball.

Yankee Sportsmen Liken French Turf King to Man o' War

"Hotweed," Three-Year-Old Undeclared Champion of Parisian Derbies, Gains High Esteem of Visitors

By THOMAS T. TOPPING (Associated Press Staff Writer) PARIS, Aug. 3.—The Man o' War of France, American horsemen here are calling Hotweed, undefeated three-year-old champion, winner of that most exclusive of double events, the French turf, the French derby and the Grand Prix de Paris.

The nervous, high-strung son of Bruleur out of Seaweed, has won $80,000 this year alone, with the season at Deauville and autumn racing at Longchamps yet to come.

Hotweed has delivered the goods every time I have called upon him, and he always appeared to have something in reserve.

Some pessimists among the trainers at Maisons-Laffitte and Chantilly argue that, although a great horse, Hotweed can not compare with Man o' War or Epitaph.

So Mr. Edmond will not retire or sell Hotweed until he has disputed the Arc de Triomphe stakes and the municipal cup and handicap, where four, five and six year olds also are entered.

Hotweed is one of the best thoroughbred American jockeys who hails from Kentucky, but has been campaigning on the French turf for 15 years, piloted the strapping bay in all his victories.

Hotweed has delivered the goods every time I have called upon him, and he always appeared to have something in reserve.

Rickard's Friends Plan For Memorial

HENRIETTA, Texas, Aug. 3 (AP)—It is Henrietta's ambition to pay proper homage to her most illustrious son, Tex Rickard, by erecting a $200,000 memorial in his honor.

A hall of marble and stone is to rise on the site of the dilapidated one-story frame building that Rickard called home. It will be Henrietta's tribute to the Texas champion who rose to immortal heights in the kingdom of sport.

While the nation remembers George L. Rickard as the premier promoter of boxing history, Henrietta thinks of "Dink" Rickard, ranch hand and town marshal, who left Texas for the good life, always impressed Henrietta more, perhaps, than his promotional genius.

Brands of ranches where "Dink" Rickard worked will be inscribed on bronze plates set in stone. One room of the memorial will contain mementoes of the promoter's life.

Mandell Gets $47,300 for Trouncing Tony Canzoneri

Champ Points Out Error In Training For Titular Fight

King of Lightweight Down-hearted and Would Not Have Blamed Manager if He Had Been Called Out

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Sammy Mandell, world lightweight champion, will receive approximately $47,300 for polishing off Tony Canzoneri in their 10-round title engagement in the Chicago stadium last night. The challenger will be enriched to the extent of $23,150.
These figures are based on the unofficial receipts checked up today by the Illinois state athletic commission. The gross receipts were reported to be $136,191.26, with state and federal taxes amounting to $10,422.58. The total paid to Mandell, according to unofficial figures, was 20,713, with possibly 3000 complimentary ticket holders.
Mandell and Canzoneri were understood to have received 60 per cent of the net receipts, with 10 per cent going to the champion and 20 per cent to the challenger.

Mandell was a downhearted winner. He said today that he was not himself, and that he would not have blamed Eddie Kane, his manager, if Kane had tossed him out of the ring. The fight appeared to have been overfanned, and his marvelous cleverness alone carried him to victory.

Marietta College Will Renew Rowing as Sport

MARIETTA, Ohio, Aug. 3.—The Marietta college crew will take to the water next fall for the first time in 20 years.
Bill McDonald, captain of the 1928 University of Washington crew, will coach the college oarsmen.
Starts may use both the Ohio and Muskingum rivers. Marietta included rowing in its sports from 1871 to the turn of the century.
The Marietta Kiwanis club gave the college four racing shells, two training rigs, a training barge, coaching launch and a permit boat house in Halsted park on the Muskingum. Competition will be on an international basis until enough interest is aroused to warrant intercollegiate competition.

Youth Uses Odd Helmet To Dive for Golf Balls

DALLAS, Aug. 3.—Retrieving lost golf balls is deep sea diving, in a sense, for Clarence Chandler, Dallas high school youth.
His pocket money comes from pellets he finds in the Dallas Country club lake. The deep sea phase of Chandler's work is provided by a home-made tin bucket he wears over his head while diving. A friend on shore pumps air into his headgear through a tube attached to it.
"They laughed at his contraption originally, but Chandler now launches his bucket. He claims he can find 50 golf balls an hour in the lake, and profits from their sale provide a fair income."

Rookie Rule May Hit Texans' Superiority

DALLAS, Aug. 3.—The Texas league's long list of victors over the Southern association in the annual Dixie series, broken only once by Mobile, may become a memory since adoption of the five-rookie rule by the Lone Star circuit.
Southern association adherents always have claimed the Texas superiority was due to the absence of a rookie clause, and use of the spit ball by its pitchers. If they are right, the Dixie title will go in the old south at the close of this year's campaign.
The Texas league now has a far more stringent rookie rule than the Southern, and the league's supply of spit ball twirlers has dwindled to three.

Cleveland Air Line To Chicago Oldest

CLEVELAND, Aug. 3.—The "oldest living" air transport line in the United States, based on a list compiled by the government in Washington, is the one between Cleveland and Chicago.
Two other lines, started, respectively, in 1914 and 1918, antedate the Cleveland-Chicago project, but both have passed into the limbo of aviation's awkward early years.
The list also includes an experimental air mail service between Nassau Boulevard and Mineola, Long Island, in 1911 which lasted only a week.
Cleveland is also the terminus of the second oldest line still in operation between Cleveland and New York.
Casualties among new aviation transport projects have a tendency to decrease each year while the number of lines inaugurated is increasing.
Between 1919 and 1925 the number of lines in operation varied from five to 10 annually. In 1926 the number jumped to 18, with only five suspensions. In 1927 there were 24 lines, and only three of them discontinued operations.
The total number of lines now in operation, says the department of commerce survey, is approximately 68 domestic and nine connecting cities outside the United States.

Connie Mack Says Present Team and 1910 Champs Best

Veteran Manager of League Leaders Refuses to Make Comparison On Account of Difference in Conditions

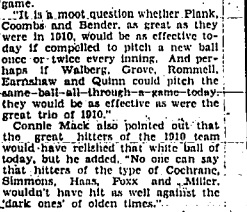

(By The Associated Press)
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3.—Manager Connie Mack of the league-leading Philadelphia Athletics, believes both his 1929 contenders and his championship team of 1910 should be considered as "great teams," and he is unwilling to draw a line of comparison between them.
To rate one team as better than the other would be unfair, said the veteran manager, because conditions in baseball have changed.

"It may be," the A's leader conjectured, "that the 1910 team would not be so successful in this day and baseball age; and it might be that the 1929 club would not have been a world-beater in these days of the big league."
"I can say this: Both teams hustled every minute." But, consider: In the days of 1910, one run was much more important than in this day and baseball age. And it might be that the 1929 club would not have been a world-beater in these days of the big league."

HELEN WILLS, returning from England, says that to her tennis is a game and not to be taken seriously.

Nowadays—well, the box scores every fortnight are a single run and you've got to see the sacrifice or "squeeze" employed except in the very late stages of the game when the one run is as large as five or six in the earlier innings.
"Sometimes, in the old days, we would be able to go through an entire game with one ball, and at the end of seven or eight innings, that ball was far from being a pleasant surprise."
Nowadays, two dozen, maybe seven dozen, new balls are used in every game.

Bush is 25 years old. This is his fifth year with the Cubs.

Canadian Aviation Hero Now Repairs Typewriters

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 1.—Captain W. C. Mackenzie, noted Canadian war ace, who was officially credited with downing 23 German planes, is rebuilding his body and fortunes in San Antonio.
Ex-service men here have helped him to establish a typewriter and gun repair business, the only type of work his health will permit him to do.
Mackenzie arrived in El Paso without a cent after his motorcycle had burned near Uvalde, Texas, while he was en route to the Pacific coast. For 10 years in hospital, he has attempted to regain his health. He is an expert at repairing airplane engines, but is not strong enough to do that work.
He has not flown since German anti-aircraft fire wounded him as he was trying for his twenty-sixth victim during the war.

The Great Three-Fuel Hart-Parr 12-24

In official tests, conducted by nationally known engineers who used cheap distillate for fuel, the Hart-Parr 12-24 registered a drawbar pull of 2,950 pounds at 2.77 miles an hour and 2,192 pounds at 3 1/2 miles an hour. On the belt it pulled 32 horsepower, which means at least a 24-inch separator. The Hart-Parr is a three-fuel tractor, burning gasoline, kerosene or distillate equally well. It is the one tractor that develops tremendous power from the cheapest, low-grade fuels. Hart-Parrs are made for small, medium and large farms and have three forward speeds to speed up hauling and field work. Ask for a demonstration.

Counties open on August 10 for sage hens are Adams, Blaine, Boise, Butte, Camas, Cassia, Custer, Elmore, Gem, Gooding, Jerome, Lemhi, Lincoln, Minidoka, Twin Falls, Valley and Washington.

Those opening on August 20 for 10 days are: Blannock, Bear Lake, Bingham, Bonneville, Caribou, Clark, Franklin, Fremont, Jefferson, Madison, Power and Teton.

Hunters of ruffed and native grouse from August 10 to August 20 in Adams, Blaine, Cassia, Boise, Elmore, Gem, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka, Owyhee, Twin Falls, Valley and Washington.

The best of the hunting opportunity will be in the southern border counties. From Madras in Owyhee county came the report that hunting for both sage hens and grouse would be excellent, the young birds being in good condition and plentiful.

Other good reports came from Dubois, Arco, Ketchum and Gooding. In central Idaho, and from Manpa in western Idaho, Glenn Ferry and Pine in Elmore county reported nothing to speak of in the way of hunting.

The fishing map changed very little during the week. The principal change was in the marked improvement in the upper Snake river section.

H. H. Kennedy of Henry's lake said the fishing was "too good" at the mouth of Targhee creek and other streams in the vicinity. From St. Anthony came also a favorable report. Department of reclamation reports of the week indicate that water was very low in the Snake river in this vicinity, assuring a healthy appetite for the big boys in this part of the river.

Further down the river the report was the same as last week—good fishing in all the rapids from American Falls to the Hagerman valley.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Three months from the firing at Geneva last April of the first gun of the international campaign of the Hoover administration for further naval limitations and reductions, definite steps to that end were taken.

By executive fiat, the cruiser building program of the two leading naval powers of the world, Great Britain and the United States, stood temporarily suspended to await the outcome of treaty negotiations.

And from Japan, third member of the great naval trio of the world, came expressions of authorized spokesmen endorsing these preliminary moves to ease the naval armament burdens of the world.

Thus swiftly flowed the currents of events in the course of nations towards the ultimate goal of world peace. Following the signing of the Kellogg anti-war pact, statements were seen as putting theory to practice.

Officials Amazed
Probably in neither the United States nor Great Britain, however, was such startling action dreamed as possible when Hugh S. Gibson at Geneva on April 22 amazed the preliminary commission on armaments of the League of Nations with his new American bid for cessation of naval rivalries.

When Gibson made his famous proposal that the naval powers seek a new "yard stick" for purposes of limitation and reduction of fleets, it was interpreted as an effort of the Hoover administration to plot a new course clear of the rocks that wrecked the Coolidge three-power naval conference at Geneva.

Yet in fact, the Gibson offer was addressed to all naval powers. Before the outlines of any forthcoming plenary conference to widen the scope of the Washington commitments can be visualized, the attitude of France and Italy must be known.

Gibson told the Geneva gathering that his government stood ready to commit itself to naval reductions—however drastic. It would insist, however, he indicated, on reduction as well as limitation, and that every category of fighting ship be included in the scope of such commitments.

WOMEN'S BEAUTIFUL FEET MAKE CAPITAL NEW CINDERELLA CITY

Slippers of Gold and Silver, Satin and Rich Brocade Go Twinkling Down White Steps of Marble

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Washington is a Cinderella city, with women noted for their beautiful feet. Many women from South America, where generations of dancing ancestors have gone into the making of their arched insteps and slender ankles, live here.

Women of Latin American countries are taught to walk. At evening affairs, their beautiful slippers, coupled with their way of walking, always attract attention.

The Pan-American band concerts, which are invitational affairs, bring out a large number of Spanish speaking diplomats, their wives and daughters. In summer the concerts are held outdoors on the esplanade. Slippers of gold and silver, of satin and of rich brocade, are twinkling down the white marble steps in front of the uniformed band.

Above the feet skirts swirl and dip alluringly. Their wearers know how to make bodies and faces become a part of the feet. They know how to make poetry out of motion, by watching the feet one can tell the Latin-American women from any other race.

Display Unequaled. One band concert was attended by representatives of 40 Spanish speaking nations. The display of pretty history and slippers probably could not have been equaled at a similar affair in any other city in the country. Invitations are sent members of the diplomatic corps from 6 to 8 weeks before the concert. Their engagements books usually are filled with these invitations.

The minister of Venezuela, Senor Carlos Grisanti, and his three daughters, to the concert. Senor Angel Morales, the Dominican minister, and his wife, to attend, as do the Minister of Guatemala, Senor Adrian Reinos and his wife.

Blaise Mrs. Hoover took a White House party to one of the first concerts of the season, some one from the executive family is nearly always there.

Attends Concert. Mrs. J. H. Lappe, Mrs. Hoover's sister, who is often a guest at the White House, attended the concert given by the army band after its return from Spain.

The esplanade of the Pan American building with the sunken pool and tropical garden makes an ideal setting for the display of beautiful gowns draped with gay Spanish shawls.

The band is stationed at the edge of the pool at the foot of the marble steps, leading down from the building. After the guests are welcomed by the director general, S. Rowe, they come through the building and down the steps to the seats in the garden. Feet show up to advantage then.

Basques in Gem State Yield To Influences of Americans

Susie Madarleta (left) and Mattida Anduliza are two of the prettiest maidens in the Basque colony of Boise, Ida. ho.

BOISE, Aug. 3. (AP)—American school influences are breaking down the social isolation and assimilating a people whose pride of race has long been proverbial.

The Basque colony in Boise and in northern Idaho is said to be the largest in America, numbering some 1500. Many of them have come into considerable wealth through careful husbandry of their resources and their residences in Boise are among the most picturesque in the city.

Nearly all are built of brilliant golden-yellow stucco with red tile roofs, with expansive lawns and iron fences highly decorated. Here and there are brightly stained walls set up about portions of the lots, the walls topped with the familiar red tile.

Although the elderly are inclined to adhere to the culture established by ancestors who for years maintained their independence of French and Spanish civilizations that invaded their homelands in the Pyrenees mountains, the younger members are leaning to the social life of their community.

American dances and music are replacing the ceremonial and dances of the Basques but occasionally even the new generation reverts to the colorful customs of the ancient clans and the picturesque of the old order lives again.

During the first years of the migratory movement to this section, the early arrivals adopted a novel system of bringing over more of their countrymen.

As each arrived he started a bank account from his earnings to pay back the friend already here who financed his coming.

Promptly with payment of the debt, each began piling up an additional sum to send in turn, to another of his countrymen and by this means the members of the growing colony not only increased their numbers but developed a saving and investment that laid the foundation for present prosperity.

Movies Rule Out Baldheaded Clan

CHICAGO, Aug. 3. (AP)—If you are baldheaded you have only one chance in 4000 of entering the movies, so you might as well save railroad fare. So said George O. George, Los Angeles, in a speech here. She has made a survey which developed that gray haired persons have one chance in 700 of being seen on the screen—other things being equal. Red heads have on chance in 10; bobbed heads three out of five; blondes, one out of five; brunets, two out of five, and long hair, two out of five.

SHOPPING BY AIRPLANE APPEALS TO ACTRESSES

PARIS, Aug. 3. (AP)—Airplane shopping trips between Paris and London are no longer the things of dainty originality that they were once. They have become a regular London actresses, Tallulah Bankhead and Margaret Bannerman among them, are frequent round trip passengers on the service. They leave London early in the morning, arrive in the Rue de la Paix before lunch, make their selections at the dressmakers and are back in London in time for dinner. They have even been known to sneak shopping trips to Paris on days when they were playing.

Miss Bankhead recently ordered half a dozen costumes, attended a lunch at which she was honored guest and ordered an automobile on a one-day trip to Paris.

Margaret Bannerman's shopping is quickly finished, for she always goes to the same designer who knows her needs so well that she can complete costumes without fitting.

BOHEMIAN GIRL WINS WEALTH WITH MURALS

Talent Makes Olinka Hrdy Almost Financially Independent Within One Year

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 3. (AP)—A talent for mural painting has made Olinka Hrdy almost independently wealthy less than a year after her graduation from the University of Oklahoma. This girl of foreign parentage, who came to the university in 1923 with few friends, has since then secured more than $10,000 since she finished school last year.

As her alma mater she has left an art treasury valued at thousands of dollars by lending critics. Medieval collegiate themes characterize her murals which have made a show place of "The Copper Kettle," a student eating house. Her decorative work in the university's residential halls has attracted hundreds of visitors.

As a timid girl speaking broken English, Miss Hrdy came to the university in 1923 from a Bohemian settlement in Prague, Oklahoma. It took her five years to win a degree because she worked her way, painting pictures to earn her meals.

O. B. Jacobson, director of the university school of painting and design, was so impressed by her ability that he secured her two years' work at decorative painting about the campus. Before she was graduated Miss Hrdy had left a heritage of art to the school that discovered her talents.

CASH REWARD EVADES NOVELISTS OF SPAIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. (AP)—Novelists in Spain generally have to struggle hard in order to live. Their earnings, even those of the successful ones, do not compare with the profits derived from their pens by American and English writers. So says Senora Concha Espina, one of the foremost Spanish novelists in the United States to lecture.

Senora Espina is eager to write a novel with an American background, probably dealing with life in co-educational institutions which she will visit.

"Women here," she said, "are certainly extraordinary creatures. They are not only beautiful, but seem to be quite active." This morning, from the windows of her room, 1 set hundreds of thousands of them, rushing in the street—office girls, shop workers.

"In Spain women are just beginning to enter business. Perhaps during the next few years they will be just the same as their American sisters."

GOWNS FOR EVENING DEFINITELY LONGER

Ankle Length All Around Quite Likely For Formal Dresses For Evenings

BY NADEJDA BEAUFORT (Associated Press Fashion Editor) PARIS, Aug. 3.—Regardless of what length designs clothes may develop in the fashion collections for autumn which are about to be shown here, evening dresses and probably wraps, it is generally agreed, will be definitely long. Ankle length all around is quite likely for the formal evening dresses developed in sheer materials. Hemlines, it is thought, will remain erratically uneven, but on the whole they will be placed further down and permit less frequent use of shoe hinders.

In order to provide adequate covering for the feet, evening wraps, as illustrated by six new fur models, must be longer than their skirts.

The result may be a general trend toward the cape-type wrap with circular flounces or the negro motif, which follows the hips. Some of the newest and most successful velvet summer wraps have the cape line with shaped flounces much longer in back than at the sides and front.

Specialists in classic tailormades and cloth dresses report just changes in the lengths of skirts, although the tendency for the last six months, they say, has been very gradual lengthening. Tailors at present should keep the top of

Cruise of 35 Big Bombing Planes and Report of General Balbo Show Great Forward Strides of Aviation in Italy

Nation's Military Strength in Air About Equal to That of France, With Possibilities Looming for Leadership of All European Powers; Miles of Commercial Lines Double in Year

By ANDRUE BERING.

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

ROME, Aug. 3.—The cruise of 35 big Italian bombing planes to the Eastern Mediterranean and the Black sea, the annual report of General Balbo, undersecretary for aeronautics, have combined to reveal again Italy's astonishing growth in aviation.

The country of Ferrarin and Del Prete and Major de Bernardi now occupies one of the chief levels in European military aviation, only a little behind France, ahead of Germany and the equal of England. In another few years Italy may be leading all Europe in military and naval aircraft.

At the same time, the commercial aviation is moving quickly forward. Within the last year, the land and water, have been opened. Overcoming her geographical difficulties—namely a mountainous backbone running down her long torso—Italy is connecting all her major cities with passenger and mail lines.

Print Air Schedules

Local newspapers print timetables of the air lines, and do schedules of the railroads. Nine times run out of Rome, north, east, south and west, across land and across water. Every day a regular line starts from Ostia, Rome's old seaport, and flies across the Tyrrhenian sea to the island of Sardinia. Every day another plane arrives from the island. From the same point seaplanes take to the long flights up the coast to Columbus city, Genoa. In the same direction seaplanes depart for Barcelona, Spain, and fly along the Ligurian coast, past celebrated Monte Carlo and Nice, in the opposite direction to Naples, Palermo, and Tripoli, in North Africa. Field planes take off from the Littorio field, a few miles away, for Milan, Venice and Vienna or Bologna.

Through Italy similar activity in commercial flying is continuing. Italian planes link the eastern and the western mediterraneans, unite the old cities of Rome and Greece, connect two continents, Europe and Africa, and bind Latin and Nordic Europe.

General Balbo reported to the Chamber of Deputies that in 1928 six new lines, and in 1929 another six, were put in operation. The total number covered by the air lines doubled in one year, from 4000 to 8000 miles.

Mileage Doubling. Every day a regular line starts from Rome to Paris and London. Italy is likewise on the line from London to Paris. French air mailers, in a few weeks ago, assured Italy that communication with her own planes from Italian points to Tunis, where thousands of Italians are living.

The government of Mussolini is doing all it can to encourage civil aviation. In 1927 the government advanced $1,750,000 and in 1928 $2,500,000 for the purpose. The present budget calls for $3,400,000. The government, moreover, has encouraged the formation of flying touring clubs, and has ordered the construction of 500 touring planes, called aeroplanes, of standard type, to be put at the disposal of the clubs.

Military Strength Great. With reference to military aviation, General Balbo did not reveal numerically the strength of the Italian air service, but a number of incidents have disclosed as remarkably large. The fact that Italy holds the world records both for speed and distance argues that the mechanical side of her air fleet is well advanced. The criteria to be used to both ends of the Mediterranean and to England by her bombing fleets forecast "high" ability to cover "near" distances without mishap.

Italian pride in all this was reflected by General Balbo when he said that the "Army of the Sky", as it is called here, "constitutes by order of the Duce the most perfect instrument of power Italy possesses."

Hunts to Exterminate Rats Become Popular

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Rural England still rides to the bonfire now and then, but in some parts of the country fox-hunting is sliding into the background while sportsmen trail the cunning rat. Rats, it seems, are becoming altogether too numerous in Buckinghamshire and other counties, and hunts are being organized to thin them out. Men and women who otherwise might be getting their exercise trailing the fox combine sport with public usefulness by ridding the rats.

Japanese Ruler Goes On Rough-Rice-Diet

TOKYO, Aug. 3.—To maintain his own health and at the same time set a useful example to his subjects, Emperor Hirohito is making half-polished rice the basis of his diet instead of the glutinous white kernel esteemed by most Japanese.

TREASURE HUNTERS BUSY IN POLYNESIA

Expeditions Seeking Loot Continue Efforts Even After Many Others Fail

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Aug. 3.—Treasure hunting may be on the decline in more populous parts of the world but in southeastern Polynesia the mirage of buried loot ever is an attraction. The future of one expedition to find anything resembling the riches supposed to have been brought to these parts by free-booters during the revolution of the past century in Peru and Chile does not seem to deter the organization of a new expedition. They follow one after another at regular intervals.

The Atoli of Pinaki, in the Peimotu or-Dangereu Archipelago, has been virtually home to the treasure seekers. One man has lived there eight years digging the coral sand from end to end, but the millions in gold and jewels he has discovered have been taken from rich chieftains of Peru never have materialized.

Mexican Papers Have No Mercy For Debtors

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 3.—Mexican newspapers handle deadbeats without gloves. After newspaper bill collectors have exhausted their strategies and letters to the delinquent fail to produce payment of overdue subscription or advertising accounts, the newspaper publishes a boxed announcement something to this effect:

"Senior blank will please have the kindness to call at this office and pay the money he owes this newspaper." If that does not get results the newspaper presents a photograph of the debtor and proclaims to its readers that the senior whose likeness is shown would confer a great favor if he would pay his honest bill.

The GREEN SHADOW

by Herman Landon

"You two are going to be friends," she announced with a smile. "You might as well be now."

"We are two shy and timid souls," Dale bantered, trying to ease the tension. "Please give us a little time."

Alsworth yawned superciliously. His jerking head was wreathed at Dale's swollen and discolored jaw. "Not shy," he drawled. "Merely cautious. Friendships should always be cultivated to slow music."

"And green heels," Dale let slip out. Adele gave Dale a startled glance and Alsworth a disapproving one. "I can supply the music," she declared with an effort at light conversation.

"Music with claims that soothe the savage breast," Alsworth quoted, but it can't reduce Mr. Dale's swollen jaw. That's what makes him self-conscious and dazed. Don't try to captivate him into a friendship, Adele. Friendships should be spontaneous, and they should begin as early in the morning."

"The midnight hour," she said, "is a better time." Dale suggested, with a level smiling glance at Alsworth.

"Adèle!" he exclaimed and despairing glance, but she tried again. "Why, you speak as if entering into a friendship were a deed of darkness like burglary."

"Please don't speak of burglaries," Dale begged with mock seriousness. "It's a most unbecoming metaphor."

"Adèle's dark eyes narrowed. "You don't mean to say you have been robbed?"

"Not exactly. All the burglar loot was a part of my self-esteem and a few particles of cuticle off my jaw."

"That's where the former is easily replaced," Alsworth remarked.

"Paull," said Adele sternly. "I think you are horrid. Please don't mind him Mr. Dale. He is a little out of sorts this morning. He has suffered a grave disappointment."

"That's my burglary! He didn't get what he was after."

"Oh, but Mr. Alsworth's disappointment is of a different sort. He has received news from his last of his late brother."

"That's unfortunate. Brothers and burglars are bad lot."

Alsworth yawned ostentatiously then glanced at his watch. "That reminds me. I have an appointment with a man who in a little of time, Adele, hope to see you. It will be a little later than with an impatient smile and an indolent swag he left the room. Adele turned shortly. "His face was a little flushed and the regular beats with a puzzled and disappointed expression. "I wanted you two men to like each other," she said with a slight pout, "but instead, you behaved as if it was a case of first things first. He had a little of Dale's smiling gaze was a little rueful. She looked very attractive in her smart morning frock, and a trace of pink on her cheeks. "I thought you had not been difficult to perceive the relationship between her and Alsworth's interest in her was a little different. Her mind was exactly the type that appealed to many women. He smiled a little and he could force a smile at any time. "He regarded him dubiously. "Had you met Mr. Alsworth previously?" she asked.

"I never saw his face until this mornng," declared Dale truthfully.

"She continued to search his face for some clue to the mystery that hid in it. "Next time you meet, I want both of you to be more cordial. You see, Paul and Adele, I don't like you very much."

Dale bowed slightly. "It is a little of the same old story. Another young life headed straight for the 'catastrophe' of a heart break and tragedy.

"It's a strange thing," she murmured. "Men don't generally like Paul until they have known him long and he is a heart breaker and a hypocrite, but it is all on the surface. I am sure you will like him very much when you know him better."

"I hope so," Dale murmured awkwardly. "He was in a mood for insincere flattery." "By the way, how much does he weigh?"

"Nothing," she said simply, her face coloring. "It's really my duty to tell him, but I don't know his weight exactly."

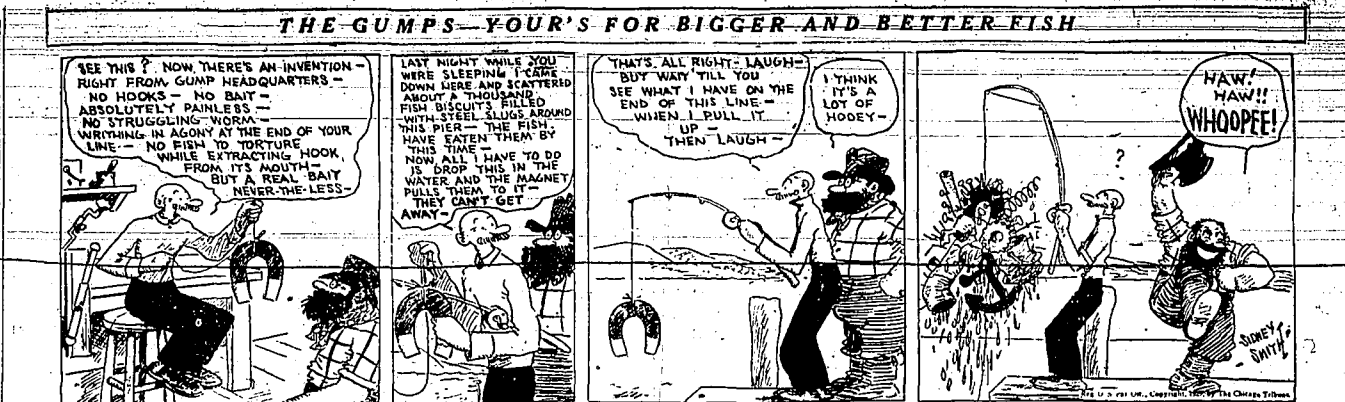

"But it doesn't seem right. Time after time I have been asked to tell you what my father and how Doctor Moffett is trying to blackmail him, and I simply can't tell him anything about it. I know it isn't fair to Paul. Since we are going to be married, I oughtn't to keep any secrets from him, ought I?"

Dale looked out the window. The bitter, devastating irony of the situation was acutely depressing. "It is my business to tell him and I have already told him, then she could tell Alsworth nothing which he did not already know. Alsworth would be sure to tell her father, a blackmail and perhaps a murderer.

"You reproach yourself too much," he said lightly, although his heart was heavy. "Nothing can go seriously wrong with a girl like you, as long as she is bound to her father and her business."

"If your instincts tell you not to mention the matter to Paul, then don't mention it. Wonder if it is so simple as all that," she murmured doubtfully. "How can I know my father's are right?"

"I don't know," she said, and she assured her, reflecting that a woman's instincts were often truer than logic and reason. Perhaps they would save her in with the excellent doctor the moment I turned my back.

"But how would Dr. Moffett know that you are the Picaron?"

"There I am stumped," said Dale in a queer voice. "I haven't a shred of an idea. Until last night, I could have sworn that you were the only person in the world who knew that, and you had known it only a few hours. Then there is another person who suspects something of the sort, but it's not much more than a guess with him."
