Graf Zeppelin Passes Over New York During Midnight Hour for East

last of the passengers clambered into the cabin. Harsh commands were shouted in the murky hangar, where a powerful search light shined on the great ship moving majestically into the open. The night was dark, save for the eastern horizon where a quarter moon pierced the murk with a gray radiance. More curt commands, and then the ship came to rest.

Where will the other two sleep?

Dr. Eckener shrugged, grinned and pointed upward. "On the roof," he said. "Suppose," one reporter said, "that like the moon, which you are flying between Germany and Tokyo, have any provisions been made for emergency repairs?"

"Provision," Dr. Eckener repeated, "what provision could be made? That is a wild country. It is not like New York."

"What would happen?" William von Meister, American representative of the Zeppelin Works, interrupted. "Is that to earth and aid would be sought from whatever inhabits the country might have Russians, Mongolia, savages?"

"But you do not have to feel anxious for us about those savages," Dr. Eckener entered in with a slight raising of his eyebrows. "We have great guns on this ship and if those savages try anything with us, oh, ho, ho."

For a moment the reporters thought they had stumbled on a story, but then they remembered that the Graf Zeppelin was a commercial ship which could not by any possibility have a hidden arsenal, and Dr. Eckener joined in their laughter.

Boy's Fidelity to Boss Breaks Coup

"Trouble anyway," one of them said after they had argued with him for some time.

"All the other boys are fixed. Their numbers will agree, and yours won't. You just wait."

That gold worried Harold. So when he got back to the office he told what had happened.

When Harold went after those police detectives and a man from the Wall Street bureau of the Associated Press, they waited in the office, while Harold went in and cuffed the figures. As he came out, a man stepped up to him and said:

"The guy with the money is right across the street."

Builds will return the body there for burial

In her book Mary told of those who wrote passionate passages of persuasion to her—of undying love, of unchangeable affection—and of them all she turned her back, retreating to her shell of ego.

In her "Story of Mary MacLane," she ran the gamut of egotism and penitence. She was according to her, the most beautiful, as well as the ugliest girl in the world and on that range of life and its overtones.

Then Mary faded. But in the madstrom of 1917-1918, Mary essayed a comeback and wrote again. In her first book she dipped her toes in life. In the second book waded into the stream and from the view of a spinster she chronicled, "I, Mary MacLane," she wrote:

"I am of little importance to the bright world so dearly and damnable important to me. I am rare, I am exquisite. I am pagan within and without."

"I want a lover—some lover. I want my body for this long journey of woe and loneliness from birthday to death-day."

There through the timber. The trees destroyed were second growth of good size, which had grown up since the pioneer days, when the land was originally cut over. Much of the new timber was a half century or more old.

The combination of a stiff wind and the lack of humidity of recent days made the task of combating the flames exceptionally difficult.

Burroughs reported late Wednesday afternoon that the homeless had been cared for, and as the mine store and office were saved there was no story of loss.

The life that had brought Quartzburg into being in the rich placer gold mining days of the sixties had revived recently through gold ore strikes in the vicinity, and resumption of the quest for the yellow metal.

of popularity. That is proved by the good showing they all made. In the second place, the whole affair suggests some pleasant thoughts about the intelligence, training and interests of America's youth. These forty-nine boys are not the only ones in the country who could pass the tests. America is blessed with a fine crop of boys.

HANDY PASSPORT

The New York lady who broke into Russia with only a visiting card for a passport may have started something. It was very irregular and un-Moscowite, but the Soviet officials after a prolonged quizzing admitted her not merely without the usual passport but without the usual assistance. The plain little card backed by self-assurance got her in.

The incident is a reminder that there is far too much passport nonsense now, in nearly all countries. Before the war it was possible to enter almost any foreign country without a passport, though travelers were usually obliged to carry them for identification. Today the elaborate system that has grown up is annoying and expensive. As the nations grow in mutual acquaintance and good will, this sort of thing ought to disappear. Eventually a mere calling card, supported when necessary by identification data of some sort, may suffice to call on any civilized country.

THE EDISON WINNERS
The forty-nine would-be Edisons did very well in their examination. Warner Brotherton Huston, nineteen, who won highest honors, handed in his paper just five minutes before the five-hour time. The boys' first-grade studies were made up of a last-minute decision to add four more scholarships. Boys from Connecticut, Indiana, Pennsylvania and New Mexico won these. Young Huston is from Seattle.
The examination was far from easy. It involved a few mathematical and scientific problems which boys particularly interested in the subject probably worked out. Then there were questions requiring some broad general information. There were a few questions, no doubt meant to test character, which it would be hard for a mature man or woman to answer. The question, "What is the probability of being arrested through the ages, with no completely satisfactory conclusion in sight." The success of the test suggests several things. In the first place, the forty-nine boys were well chosen. None of them had reached the final trial on mere luck.

many photographs which she had taken, also jewelry and other articles of interest collected during her journey.

Miss Jessie Buckingham, Boise, who has been the guest of the Misses Alene and Gertrude Seal, her aunts, at the home of Mrs. Morgan G. Seal, Wednesday.
The Misses Seal entertained a dinner at their home on Third Avenue North for Miss Buckingham, Miss Lena Hamilton and Miss Janda E. Eden, and Miss Margaret Owens, Twin Falls. After dinner the party motored to Eden, where they visited Mrs. Barbara Noble. Monday evening, Miss Janda Day was hostess to the party at a picnic dinner at her home on Third Avenue. Afterward returning to the Day home for a slumber party. Tuesday the group gave a party at Durke's. The next morning a picnic was enjoyed, followed by a picnic Wednesday morning for home.

Twelve members of the Community Church Ladies' Aid were present at the meeting held in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon. After the usual business meeting the time was spent with needlework and conversational. At a late hour the hostess, Mrs. Peterson, served delicious refreshments. The next meeting will be in two weeks in the church parlors, with Mrs. Fred Hills, hostess.

Miss Ann Wagner and Miss Nell Kinley gave a delightful surprise party Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Bertha and Mary Alice Eden. The early part of the evening was spent at the theatre, followed by dancing at the Wagner home on Sixth Avenue East on the lawn, which was brilliantly lighted with Japanese lanterns. At the close of the evening refreshments were served. Those present, in addition to the honored guests and hostesses, were Misses Helen Sweninger, Mildred Cole, Gladys Hanson, Beckwith, Mary Casey, Cecelia Beckwith, Messrs Owen Buchanan, John Macaulay, Nick Wagner, Harry Hallgren, Lester Ditter, Ray and Ralph Asendrup, Albert Strunk, Bill Muskitt and Carl Moberg.

Silver in the chair, plans were made for a picnic to be held at the home of Mrs. Ray Cochran in the near future. The program in charge of Mrs. G. B. Holland consisted of an interesting talk by Mrs. L. G. Kirkman on "Peace," and several harmonious selections by Miss Gladys Davidson. Refreshments were served by the hostess during the social hour. Guests of the club were Mrs. L. G. Kirkman, Mrs. Ray Trend-well, Misses Hazel and Gladys Davidson, also jewelry and other articles of interest collected during her journey.

Mrs. E. G. Nowings, Long Beach, Mrs. E. G. Gooding and Mrs. D. B. Smith, Shoshone, were luncheon guests at the home of Mrs. Morgan G. Seal, Wednesday.

Theatres Alice Joyce Plays Role Of Mother in "Squall"

Alice Joyce has one of the strongest and most sympathetic roles of her career in "The Squall," the first National specialty which comes to the Orpheum today.
Alice Joyce portrays the very difficult role of Maria Lajos, the mother and wife, whose desperate efforts to protect her husband and her son from the wiles of Nubi, the gypsy slave, are almost in vain.

Alexander Korva directed "The Squall" from the Bradley King screen version of Jean Bart's daring stage play. The cast includes Myrna Loy as Nubi, Loreta Young, Zsuzs Pittis, Harry Corning, Nicholas Soussanin, Marcia Harris, Carroll Nye, Richard Tucker and others.
Both the play and the screen version enjoyed successful engagements on the stage and screen. There will be no advance in prices during this engagement.

WEEDS ON HISTORICAL WALK
CHALLENGE TO SOMEBODY
Editor Twin Falls News
My Dear Sir:
I may be wasting your time as well as my own, but I walked up to the post-office from the hospital this morning, and the sight of the weeds along the walk, and the prospect of the crop of weeds from the Bull thistles and Chinese nettles makes me wonder what use the walk will be another summer, they are so much thicker than they were last summer. They are not acquainted with any of the business men, or I would try to get them interested. There's no one there that thinks it's their business. Coming home I saw a lady walking to town, in the middle of the road. New-don't have to do that, but it spits all my pleasure in walking to do the weeds as tall as I am. Can't you interest some one in getting them mowed down before they are all blossomed out? Can't some of the many fall-birds be set to work?

Yours respectfully,
O. C. Greaves.

DON C. WADSWORTH needed something to build me up after an operation for hemorrhoids about two months ago, he sent me a bottle. "I was so weak after my operation, my friends had just about given me up. My color left me and the very sight of food nauseated me. My limbs twitched constantly from nervousness. I had pains in my back and my kidneys worried me a lot. I just couldn't sleep. The third night after I started taking Sargol I slept all night without waking. That's when the improvement started—and in thirty days I've actually gained fifteen pounds! My appetite is keen now and anything agrees with me. The pills are fine and didn't even cause discomfort right after my operation. I'm just a better man in every way now and I believe that anybody who is run-down should certainly give Sargol a trial." Leaves For Home—Mrs. Maude A. Slichter, Yuma, Arizona, left for her home last evening after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Mette Hunt, who is recovering from an operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Slichter, who was an employee in the Vogue five years ago, is now employed by the J. C. Penney company in Yuma.

Will Occupy—Risebe Building—The Meitz grocery will move from its present site at 157 Main avenue west into the Risebe block, 142 Second street east, next door to the Risebe-photograph studio within a few days. It was announced last evening. The date of opening has not been announced. The present home of the Meitz Grocery will be occupied after September 1 by the third Skaggs Salsbury store for Twin Falls.

Will Resume Trip—Mr. and Mrs. C. P. McGriff and son, Melburn, will leave this morning on a trip which will include a visit to Seattle and to points in British Columbia on the north and south on this journey some time ago, intending to visit points east of the mountains and then return. They returned from Colorado, however, 10 days ago, determining to divide the trip.

Offered New Position—J. H. Jamme, district scout executive of the Snake River council, Boy Scouts of America, has received an offer to become assistant scout executive of the Spokane council. It was learned here today. It is stated that Mr. Jamme has the offer under consideration. A substantial increase in salary would, it is stated, go with the new position. Mr. Jamme, who is now at Camp Goodwin, was in Twin Falls Tuesday night.

Will Return to Boise—Clayton Jensen, Boise, of the Columbia Gorge Motor Coach system, who has been in charge of the station here during the absence on vacation of W. C. Sorenson, Twin Falls agent, expects to return to Boise on the return here of Tuesday morning. Mr. Jensen says that the transfer of the Columbia Gorge Motor Coach line between Twin Falls and Salt Lake City to the Pickwick stages, which took place August 1, is not expected to affect the schedule of any of the stages. The only difference involved will be transfer of passengers here. Mr. Sorenson, who spent a week in the hills, is expected home today.

Idaho Bean & Elevator Co. ANNOUNCEMENT Twin Falls Warehouse Our new warehouse, leased from the Palace Sand and Gravel Co., at Twin Falls, is all completed except for installing the bean cleaners, which will be done in the very near future. Our Twin Falls office is located in this building, and is located at the east end of Main street, one block off the pavement, with a graveled road to the building. Our sign is plainly visible, enabling you to find our place. This building is 100 by 100 feet, giving us storage room for approximately one hundred cars at this point. Three large unloading doors, and private switch makes this a great deal like our house at Filer, in that it is away from the congested traffic, enabling us to give you the best of service. The place where you get unloaded quick! Filer Warehouse We have completed an addition to our warehouse at Filer, office enlarged, scales conveniently placed—and a graveled road right to the door. We believe now that we have one of the best and most convenient warehouses at Filer, which enables us to store approximately one hundred cars of beans. Contracting The past few days there has been a lot of talk about contracting beans. The amount of beans actually contracted is hard to estimate; in my opinion, not as many as some might think. Whether this is good business or not remains to be seen. I wouldn't care to make any prophecies either way at this time. Our policy has always been against contracting, and our opening prices in the past have invariably been higher than the contract prices. As other dealers on the tract are contracting, we are in a position at this time to offer you the following prices: September delivery, $6.75; October 15th, $3.25. I see no reason why September and middle of October beans should not bring good prices. I base my opinion on the fact that we had had a clean-up on all varieties of beans in the past season. We have other announcements to make before the bean crop is ready to harvest which we believe will be of benefit to bean growers. We would like to make a personal call on every bean grower on the tract. However, if we are unable to do this, it will be because we haven't the time, and we hope that you will realize this and not feel that we have slighted you intentionally. Seed Beans We have always been believers of good seed beans, and for this reason, last spring we shipped another car of dry land seed from Montana to our Filer warehouse. All reports coming in from the growers, and what we have seen ourselves, indicate an exceptionally fine stand. We believe that this is the proper time to select your seed, while it is growing. We will gladly furnish you with the names of growers who have these beans. We would appreciate you coming in and looking over our new warehouses. If you are too busy, call us at either of the telephones listed and if there is any way that we can be of service to you we will only be too glad to help you. CONGRESSMAN TALKS ON Tariff at Rotary Club

Congressman Addison T. Smith spoke yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the Twin Falls Rotary club at Tom's cafe on the manager in which a tariff bill is drafted. He also described the abolition of the old executive session system in the senate, and the failure of Vice President Dawes in his effort to induce the senate to curtail debate.

FRED FOSS APPLIES FOR PERMIT FOR NEW BUILDING

Fred Foss, of Twin Falls, planner-homesite, applied Wednesday for municipal builder's permit for construction of a brick building, 50 by 115 feet, to replace the building that was destroyed by fire some months ago. It is to be built at an estimated cost of $10,000, and will stand on the site of the burnt building, on Second avenue south, between Second and Third streets. Application for the permit was made through F. R. Thompson, contractor, as agent.

Cassia Superintendent Conducts Examinations

BURLEY, Aug. 7.—Special to The News.—A teachers' certificate examination will be held in the office of Margaret Buchanan, county school superintendent, starting tomorrow and continuing through the week. Mrs. Buchanan says that there will be at least 15 applicants for school certificates, the largest number to enter the examination on record. Examinations will be for all classes of county certificates. Accredited teachers from other states must stand examination in only one class.

Dr. McClure discussed the tariff in relation to the sheep industry which is to have been United States Senator John Thomas' subject. Senator Thomas, it was announced, was announced to Washington Sunday for conference with Senator Swoot and Secretary Marshall of the National Wool Growers' association, relative to the new tariff. The new tariff bill, it is claimed, is not altogether satisfactory to wool growers. The industry, he declared, has not been hurt so much in recent years by importation of wool as it has been by importation of rags and shoddy, which displace nearly a million pounds of new wool annually. Wool growers asked increasing in duty on rags and shoddy to 30 cents from 7 cents a pound, but the cabinet approved only 8 cents duty.

Duty on lamb, raised by the house from 4 cents to 7 cents a pound, Dr. McClure declared, is not only ample but in fact an embargo. Praised Livestock Industry Congressman Addison T. Smith praised the abolition of Idaho's livestock industry toward increase of the state's taxable wealth which, he asserted, offers the only solution for the problem of reducing taxation. Mrs. Minnie Miller of Thousand Springs stock farm, Wendell, told of her recent visit to the home of Hampshire sheep in England, and emphasized the advantage of stability which the industry in England enjoys. A program of entertainment included several numbers by Mr. and Mrs. James H. Shearer, Pasadena, California, former Twin Falls residents, who are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Breckenridge. Mrs. Shearer sang a number of Scotch and French folk songs with accompaniment at the piano by Mr. Shearer. Miss Winifred Langlois, Burley, assistant secretary of the Idaho Wool Growers' association, gave two musical readings and a vocal solo. Gene Abner, Twin Falls, intempered an accordion solo with witty references to well known Idaho sheep men, and later played two piano solos. Three young men sang a number of popular songs, playing their own accompaniment on banjos.

"Frontier" Settlement to Flourish Near Boulder Dam Site

UNMANNED TOWN WILL INCLUDE HOMES FOR FORCE OF 1000 MEN

Dr. Elwood Mead Approves Place For Community to House Builders During Period of Eight Years

By FRANK I. WELLER (Associated Press Feature Writer) WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Two miles from Boulder dam, by a circuitous route through crags that stud Nevada's side of the Colorado river, lies a comparatively level plateau.

It is to be the birthplace of a new town, a "frontier" settlement that is yet unearned but destined to flourish amid scenic splendor long after its houses have tethered the tremendous resources of Black canyon.

From as the government gets a contract for power sufficient to repay the cost of the dam—the first of the ultimate force of 1000 workmen will start tunneling the "width of rock" that rises abruptly from the water's edge. Others will build coffer dams and divert the river from its bed, through the tunnels, leaving dry ground for those who are to work on the main structure.

Approves Site It is to house these men and their families, approximately 400 persons, that Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation, has approved the site for a town that may begin to form within the next year.

Twenty-eight miles from Las Vegas, Nevada, the site nestles in a canyon that opens out fan like into a gravel-strewn valley. It takes down on a panorama of the Colorado river. Upstream, huge black cliffs rise perpendicularly from the water—and have rock—mountainous stretches away for 100 miles in the background.

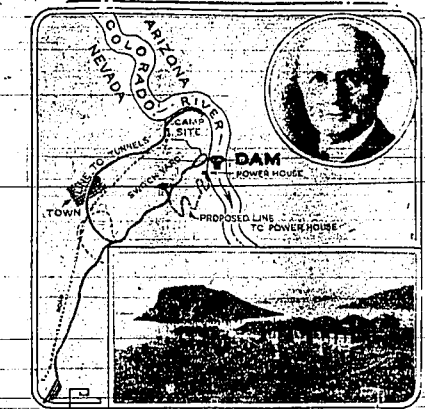

Between the town and the dam site is a mass of broken hills around which the river describes a two-mile arc. Even the proposed railroad for which the Union Pacific now has application pending, does not try to cross them. Coming up from the south, it slopes at the ridge and sends a spur on each side of the river, cutting through the proposed town site and the other leading direct to the dam.

The plans place the town on both a railway and a highway, on a uniform slope that falls 600 feet in the two miles to the river. From the edge of the canyon it is a sheer drop of 1000 feet to the bottom.

Work Below Town Most of the work on the dam will be done at a level of 1000 feet below the town. Every morning and night of the eight years it will take to build the dam the workmen will be lowered into the canyon by elevators and brought out again to ride back to their home in the cliffs.

Their little community will have stores, churches and schools. Their homes may be built either by the government or contractors. The government will retain ownership of the land and lease it to those who live on it or use it for commercial purposes.

Although the heat is intense in June, July and August, the winters are delightful. The healthful climate, plus the combined attraction of a gigantic engineering that has taken place here, is expected to make the town that is to be born of toil and privation a winter resort in the lap of topographical grandeur.

THE GUMPS - JUST A LITTLE TIP

The GREEN SHADOW

by Herman London

"It's a trick!" Summers shouted. "I know this bird. He's full of tricks. You are ridiculous, my friend," said the Pilearon. He held the cigarette between his fingers and blew the smoke toward the ceiling. "Surely you don't begrudge me a cigarette. It is my habit."

But Summers was feeling decidedly quizzical. The cigarette did not look like the ordinary cigarette to him. Besides, he thought he saw a look of great intensity behind the cooper's man's mocking smile. And he had seen many an apparently innocent act of the Pilearon's turn out surprisingly in the past.

While four pairs of eyes stared at him the Pilearon lightly against the chair that served him as a bulwark, and continued blowing smoke with outward placidity. The Pilearon's attention was divided between the Pilearon's cigarette and the Pilearon's cigarette. Ferryman appeared and took the cigarette from the Pilearon's hand. "Don't let him break your glasses down," he said.

"The window!" Quick Ferryman, the Pilearon's man, called out. "A hubbub sounded outside the window. The lights blazed up again. "We've got him!" cried a voice outside.

With a hoarse cry of relief Summers sprang to the window. A street lamp and a street light revealed two uniformed men struggling with their prisoner. It was a brief struggle. Their captives were quickly subdued. "Caught him just as he jumped out the window," one of them triumphantly announced.

"Summers' head over the sill and dropped to the street level. In the dim light he glanced at the prisoner. "Somebody threw me out," he stammered. Dr. Moffet's Ultimatum

At 1 o'clock the following day, Captain Summers walked into the court and grumpy sat down at the table in the court. "Soup veal cutlet, coffee—make it snappy," he growled at the waiter. "I'm hungry and I'm hot."

"Home," said Dale. He dusted the back with the napkin and sat down with a grin and petulant air, as if he hated his captives. "I'm hungry and I'm hot," he growled at the waiter. "I'm hungry and I'm hot."

"You have a genius for making a fool of yourself," the Pilearon pursued. "You are a genius for making a fool of yourself," the Pilearon pursued. "You are a genius for making a fool of yourself," the Pilearon pursued.
