Message Tubes Speeding up Business in New York City

WALL STREET SPENDS MILLIONS TO AID IN SAVING FEW MINUTES

Many Institutions Cutting Down Armies of Messengers by Modern Methods
One Firm Operates 15-Mile Network Beneath Ground
Huge Compressors Driving Air Through Tunnels at Terrific Rate of Speed

By WILLIAM R. KUHN, Financial Editor

Associated Press Feature Service
NEW YORK, Oct. 12—Wall Street has spent millions to save minutes, but still carries on its chief function, the delivery of cash and securities, by armed legions of messengers. The one firm operates a 15-mile network beneath ground.

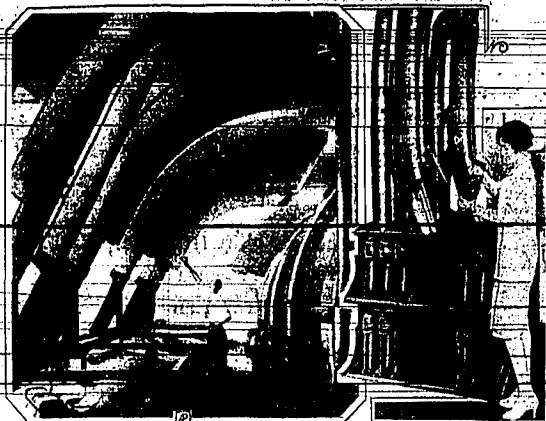

30 Miles of Tending
The telephone booths surrounding the stock exchange floor are connected with trading posts by 30 miles of aluminum tubing. Four 75-horsepower compressors drive air through the tubes at the rate of 30,000 cubic feet per minute.
The New York postoffice has an underground mail service through pneumatic tubes, and it is said that an electric cat was once sent 40 miles per hour by this route to an uptown animal hospital for a cat operation.
Another firm on the old Madison Square Garden site, has an elaborate system of vacuum tubes and vacuum tubes with every other room.
A plant for creating vacuum maintains sufficient pressure to shoot the leather carriers up 17 floors in seven seconds.
The tubes run vertically through eight large shafts with airators and junction points at each floor. Thirty-six operators handle the traffic, which averages 10,000 messages daily.

Two other men who admitted that they were patrons of the games at the time, the officers arrested on the scene, were sentenced to pay $500 fines.
Alleged operators of games taken in the round-up yesterday were Arch Capton, arrested in the basement at the Smoker pool hall, Main avenue east, C. E. Stande, arrested in a card room at the Tamam pool hall, Main avenue east, and Shoshone street south; Clyde Smith and Ted Sorenson, arrested in a card room on Shoshone street, and a cigar and Ray Balmer, arrested in the Abbott room on Main avenue south.

Oil Truck Drivers Strike in New York

Police Ride on Every Load and Guards Stand Over Petroleum Storage Tanks

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—With police riding almost every load and guards standing over storage tanks, the strike of gasoline oil truck drivers tonight went into a week-end deadlock, with both sides making conflicting claims for the duration of the fight.
The strike started in Long Island City, Queens, Saturday and spread rapidly through that borough to Brooklyn and Manhattan and Nassau county on Long Island. Next Hoboken, N. J., where the drivers are not on strike, an oil truck was tipped over and the driver, it is said, was injured and forced to flee from three men.
Similar acts of violence in the city brought on 1000 police guards, 200 of them being collected in Long Island City. Riot guards, equipped the storage tanks of the larger oil companies. Company officials said the 3000 striking drivers had been replaced, and while there was no serious shortage of gasoline in the city, distribution was at least 20 per cent below normal.
The truck drivers union wants a weekly wage increase from $35 to $40 per month, plus a 10 per cent bonus for overtime and recognition of the organization.

Advertisement Leads to Arrest of Man in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 12 (Special to The News)—An advertisement for a "lady detective" led a man to the city jail tonight.
C. J. Runyan, 33, was arrested after officers had received a young woman to answer an advertisement which aroused their suspicions. Runyan, police said, had lied to the young woman how she would be employed in private detective work and when he met her by appointment tonight officers took him into custody.
He said he was a tipster for prohibition agents, but the local prohibition forces declared they had never employed him nor tolerated such methods.
Runyan admitted, police said, that he had married Jean-Jean Stetson, 26, including a bootlegger.

Army Engineer-Chieftain Not Once During 34 Years of Service

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 12 (Pittsburgh Courier)—The engineer who was not once during 34 years of service in the United States Army in Washington. Instead of Panama. That is the measure of Major General Lytle Brown, named chief of army engineers to succeed Lieutenant General Edgar Rigney.
The general's best booster is his wife. "He's as plain as an old shoe," she says. "I didn't know the general was a general until he was promoted to major in 1919. He was approved of the people of the three cities adjacent to the dam, and public tribute was paid him when he was transferred. In addition, he served as engineer of the Chattanooga, Louisville and Nashville districts. The first I learned of it was in the newspaper," she said. "I thought General Brown was killed in Panama. My son, Lytle, received a telegram from him home here on the day of his appointment, but he didn't say anything about the appointment—He merely said that he would live in Washington. Instead of Panama." One of the principal duties of the new engineer chief will be flood control work. Four assignments as chief of engineer districts have fitted him for that phase of his duties.

Newly Developed Slot Machine Garage Provides Storage Space For Large Number of Automobiles in Big Cities

Novel Mechanical Arrangement Raises And Lowers Car Platforms Hanging On Endless Chain Moving in Two Shafts

Motorist Deposits 25 Cents to Obtain Key for Operation of Automatic Machinery in Parking Device

Apparatus Has Advantage of Requiring But Small Ground Area and May Serve in Old Structures

By The Associated Press
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12.—The slot machine garage has arrived. It operates on the endless belt principle, and the motorist parking his car in it would seem much like boarding a motorist wheel.

In the wheel, one seat at a time is stopped at the boarding platform on the ground. When filled it moves upward automatically, bringing the next seat in rotation to the ground level. But the slot machine garage instead of occupying a wide, wheel-shaped space overhead, is like two elevator shafts side by side. One shaft carries incoming cars upward, and the other side brings them down again to street level.

Platforms Hold Cars.
The endless chains move up one shaft, over wheels at the top and down the other shaft, passing under wheels there to turn upward again. Between the chains are slung platforms, like rigid flat hammocks, each one large enough to hold one car.

The machinery moves automatically when the right lever is pulled, and there is one lever for each platform. The apparatus can be run by attendants, or automatically by a slot mechanism in which the motorist's quarter gives him the key to a lever. He pulls it, and the belt moves until the platform which is his "space" comes to rest level.

The apparatus was developed under direction of H. D. James of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. He says it requires a ground space equal only to that of a small car garage. It can be installed in old buildings or new, to any height, the structure of the building will support.

Large Storage Space.
A battery of the units would make a storage garage of large capacity. The platforms are separated by the height of cars, so that four auto stacks up in a vertical space not much more than three ordinary floors.

Even street cars, says Mr. James, can be stacked by a heavier but similar device, while waiting for the rush hour.

Starting a Diesel engine presents much more difficulty than starting a gasoline engine.

The diagram and the photograph illustrate the new endless belt type of parking device. A motorist may drop a coin and take his car up or down.

Two men could try their sun in the sun. Another said half player was Norman McMillan, who saw a "double play ball" from Al Simmons and Lightner. He found for the clean hit that blasted the Cubs' hopes in the final stages of that 10-run rally in the seventh inning. McMillan said he did not see the rest of the Cubs, who could hardly believe that the things they saw the day actually had happened.

McMillan, who was the assistant pilot of the Bruins, called his players in philosophical fashion. "The breaks of the game beat us today," he said, "but we're not whipped in this series yet by any means. We got the worst breaks I have ever seen."

The sun had a lot to do with it. In the seventh the sun shone directly in the eyes of every pitcher. I sent out there. It was just getting down behind the grandstand. Artie Nehf was almost blinded and poor Hack was in a terrible fix out there in center field.

Joe, certain that the series would still be carried beyond five games, to Chicago, couldn't name his pitcher for the fifth game Monday.

SOLUTION OF DEATH MYSTERY BRINGING FAME TO POLICEMAN

Declaration of Disbelief in Verdict of Colonel's Jury Results in Promise

Patrolman Robert Allen

Public Hero in Capital

Career in Metropolitan Department Proves Stormy

One of Individuality

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Robert J. Allen, a "kid cop" just three years on the Washington metropolitan police force, has been victorious in the first skirmish to force denouement of a tragedy that stirred the capital and worried the nation.

Patrolman Robert J. Allen, 22, was found garroted with the cord of his pajamas in his apartment here. She had been strangled by her husband, Robert A. McPherson, Jr., 21-year-old bank clerk.

A coroner's jury held suicide. Lieutenant Edward J. Kelly, chief of the homicide squad, and Inspector William A. Hubble, assistant superintendent of police and chief of detectives, agreed that it was suicide, and the case, to all intents, was closed.

Declares Belief

Allen declared publicly and loudly that he did not believe Virginia McPherson had committed suicide. He felt with no unwarranted confidence "Prove it," he was told, "and you will be a sergeant of detectives." "If your statements collapse you will be stripped of your star and denounced as a damnable traitor to the uniform."

Now the district grand jury after five days of hearings in which Lieutenant Kelly, and Inspector Shelby, clung firmly to their suicide view, has indicted McPherson on a charge of first-degree murder in connection with the death of his wife. Allen's recommendation that Kelly and Shelby be relieved of all duty in connection with the detective bureau until their activities in this case have been investigated.

So young Patrolman Allen is somewhat of a hero here in Washington. The result of the trial remains to clinch his efforts.

Capital Watches Allen

The national capital watched the play and byplay of the "kid cop" vs. his superiors with unabated interest. Allen's persistent claim that Senator Overman of North Carolina, the home state of Mrs. McPherson, to request a grand jury investigation.

The young patrolman wove his case around the fact that he gave him chase to a man who fled from a rear window of the McPherson apartment the night of the tragedy. Only the transcript of the grand jury proceedings, and the trial itself, will clear the mystery.

Allen's career on the metropolitan police force has been one of stormy individuality. He came to Washington three years ago to study law and joined the police force to help pay his expenses.

Almost immediately he became the hunted crusader for "police reform" and has been in the spotlight in several instances of irregularities. He has made him friends and many enemies.

Allen was a pilot during the World War, he says, and was decorated for his air exploits.

A Diesel-principle airplane on its first 500-mile flight used exactly $4.00 in fuel cost.

"Half Marriage" Opens At Orpheum Showhouse

Heralded as one of the finest all-talking productions to reach local screens this season, "Half Marriage" is also Olive Borden's first talking vehicle for Columbia Pictures.

This swiftly moving story of mad Manhattan youth, adapted from George S. Turner's magazine story, "Compagnons," opens at the Orpheum theatre today. Borden fans, who have followed her through her stellar work on the silent screen, will now have this opportunity to hear her talk.

She has been surrounded by an excellent supporting cast, many of whom are prime favorites. Her leading man, Morgan Parley, originated the leading role in the New York production of "An American Tragedy."

Ann Greenway who sings the theme song "After the Clouds Roll By" and Ken Murray, who sings "It's All of Her," each are prime favorites with vaudeville audiences. Richard Tucker, Hedda Hopper and O. Pat Collins likewise have enviable stage following.

"Half Marriage" arrives at its initial talker for Sally Blane, Radio Pictures starlet. The show was directed by William J. Cowen, who created a furore with his "NIGHT MICHIGAN" Daughter.

Gus Arnheim and his famous Coconut Grove Ambassadors are heard and seen throughout the picture in brilliant sequences of the Radio Picture. RCA Phonograph was used to record the feature.

Hoover's Speech Will Feature Ohio River Celebration

EVENT MARKS END OF LABOR TO MAKE STREAM NAVIGABLE

James W. Good, Secretary of War, to Give Address at Pittsburgh

System of 19 Locks and Dams Costs $118,000,000

New Project Brings Threat of Interest in Water Transportation

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 12.—There will be big times on the broad Ohio this month.

Among the celebrants, who will mark man's domination of the river which once ran itself and commerce as native soil, will be President Herbert Hoover.

Harnessed to man's will by a system of locks and dams, the waterway will be inaugurated as an improved highway of commerce, stretching from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Illinois.

The celebration, scheduled for the middle of October, marks the completion of a project about $118,000,000 and costing more than $118,000,000.

Secretary of War to Speak

The secretary of war, James W. Good, will sound the opening of the celebration with an address in Pittsburgh when an inaugural fleet starts at the Ohio's headwaters where the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers join, to avoid its way to the Mississippi.

President Hoover will join the celebrants here, marking the occasion with an address and cruising with the fleet on an eight-day journey to Louisville.

The president will find a river vastly changed from the rapids below the Ohio of 100 years ago.

For many years the Ohio river, La Belle River, as the French called it, was the center of business and social life and the main means of travel in this section of the country.

With the coming of the railroad, the popularity of the river rapidly died away.

River Traffic Returns

Now, with many new barges operating and with the interests in freight transportation by water revived by the Ohio's coming back into its own river men say.

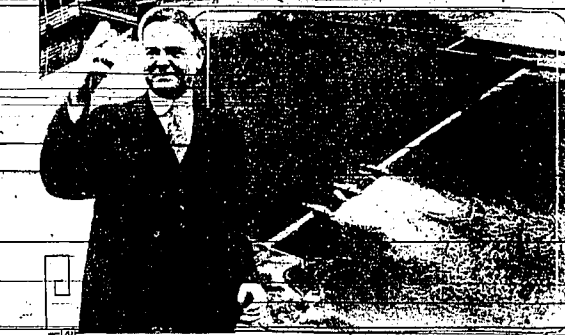

But the old days, the picture-que days, apparently are gone forever.

The 564-mile bulk of the river now has a well-behaved channel nine feet in depth the year around.

There will be continuous navigation at all times except when interrupted by floods of ice.

The series of locks follows a general pattern of having the chambers 110 feet wide and 80 feet long.

The river is divided into four sections under the immediate supervision and direction of army engineers in Pittsburgh, Huntington, Cincinnati and Louisville.

President Hoover will speak at Cincinnati this month at the celebration over the completion of the Ohio river—a dependable water highway—here which will flow "upper left" can now "fly" the 965 miles of river. At lower right is an air view of a dam with locks.

METHODISTS TO PRESENT PASSION PLAY IN CHURCH

The New York World said of this presentation: "It is a unique and important play in any other 'civilized' presentation play ever produced."

The picture is sent out by Rotary and Kiwanis clubs of DeWitt.

There will be no admission charge.

French Royalists Find Ways to Avoid Ban of Church

YOUTH'S EXPERIENCE TROUBLE IN SEEKING MARRIAGE AT ALTAR

Number of Bishops in Republic Sign Proclamation Against Movement

Pretender to Throne Asks to Have Representative at Important Ceremonies

By J. EDWARD ANGLY
Associated Press Staff Writer
PARIS, Oct. 12.—French youths and sweethearts who happen to be both royalists and Roman Catholics have their troubles these democratic days when they want to marry in the way that is the church. In many dioceses they are not permitted to wed in front of the altar.

The carrying on of the royalists with tongue and pen and occasionally more solid weapons began to provoke frowns on more than one episcopal brow several years ago. Early in 1927 the "Action Francaise" daily organ of the royalist movement, was placed on the Vatican index. Later, a number of French bishops signed a proclamation denouncing the movement and calling upon the royalists to give up their allegiance to the "Action Francaise" under pain of being denied the sacraments.

Ban Applies to Dead.
The dead were the first to whom the ban was applied, or, at least, the first to attract attention. Soon after the promulgation of the bishops' several Catholics who were members of the "Action Francaise" passed on to the kingdom that is not of this world. Their funerals were denied entry to the churches in which they had been wanted to attend mass.

In some cases priests conducted the services at the cemetery; in others the families and friends contented themselves with lay services in front of the closed doors of the church, and at the burial ground. This sort of thing is still a frequent occurrence.

Love, too, has found a way. Every now and then the "Action Francaise" prints an account of the couple who most recently succeeded in marrying while remaining true both to their church and the movement to restore the throne.

In many cases the engaged pair turned away from the portals of the church, are allowed in through the back door and married in the sacristy. But just as often they are wed only "in nigra" in the bride's bedroom.

Represent Pretender
Orientales, if the bride or her chosen man is of promise, the due to the pretender to the throne of France, "graciously" deigns to have himself represented at the marriage, usually by Monsieur le Marquis de X, or Monsieur le Comte de Y.

Even if he lives in France, the due would be prevented by the protocol from attending the marriage of commoners. But he isn't in France, and isn't likely to be, for pretenders to the throne are compelled by the republic to stay in exile. The due du Oulze lives in Belgium, and sometimes brings bread and cheese to his subjects—King Albert in Brussels.

grower loses suit for crop damages
Jury in District Court Holds Twin Falls Company Not Liable For Loss

Dan Whaley, Buhl, last night collected $1000.00 from Twin Falls Canal company for alleged damage to a potato crop when a jury in district court here last night returned a verdict in favor of the canal company. Whaley claimed that his potato field was flooded as a result of the canal company's negligence in building a drainage ditch in October, 1928, and that this caused the potatoes to rot in the ground.

The canal company contended that the land on which the crop had been planted was seeped and that loss, if any, was caused by negligence on the part of Whaley.

Idaho Vandals Blank Montana, 19 To 0

Twin Falls Filer And Burley Men in Outstanding Roles

Backfield Line Shift Reminiscent of Old School Flying Wedge Tears Wide Gaps in Grizzlies' Ranks

(By The Associated Press) MOSCOW, Idaho, Oct. 12.—Idaho—Vandals—conquered—the University of Montana football team by the score of 19 to 0 here today in a conference game, the winning team outplaying its opponents in line plunging and intercepting passes.

Regarded as a team which knew the ins and outs of overhead onslaught, the Montana-Grizzlies hedged for three periods before they sent out an aerial barrage, and then saw it smothered all over the field, with too many in Vandal hands for a single quarter. In an effective backfield line shift that was reminiscent of the old school flying wedge—tore wide gaps in the Grizzlies' ponderous line, and set the Vandals for a score, a touchdown by Wilkie, fullback.

After an exchange of punts at the opening period during which Morrison, 24 on a 45 yard punt, Dicht, Filer, Idaho, by 15 yards, the Vandals started an off back and center blocking game that set the ball on the one-yard line.

Two Periods of Punting Then there were two periods of punting, bucking and running, from one end of the field to the other. First play went into Montana territory and then slipped back to Idaho's end, but neither team got within booting distance. The punt time, however, made 12 first downs in the first three periods, with Montana registering one. The looked-for Montana passing attack was soon shown of success. Nine throws were attempted, eight of these, two were intercepted for touchdowns, four were grounded, two incomplete, and only two completed, one for 26 yards and the other for a yard.

Price, Idaho end, snugged a pass early in the period, but was grounded in his track. Owens, Twin Falls, Idaho, substitute quarterback, ordered a series of line plunges that were executed in dazzling style to maul the Montana wall back to its 10-yard line. Owens then tore through the remaining 10 yards for a touchdown. Dicht's try for point failed.

Undaunted, the Grizzlies went after the Idaho line. Dicht, Idaho, half, took a pass and went 30 yards for a touchdown. Dicht failed to convert. The game ended soon after with Idaho 19 yards from another score, after having been installed 15 yards for being routed. Dicht, Idaho, half, played a brilliant game at right halfback for Idaho.

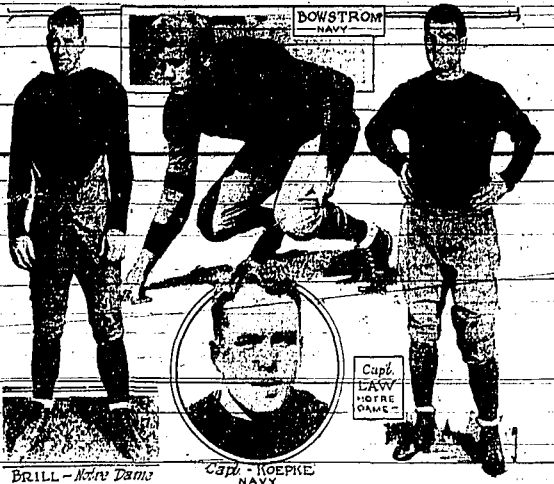

Idaho, scored 19 points in Montana's one in scrimmage and counted 10 first downs to Montana's two. Idaho scored five of these in the last quarter, which saw Montana's great comeback attempt.

Line-up and summary:
Score by periods: Idaho 0 0 13-10 Montana 0 0 0-0
Idaho scoring: Touchdown—Wilkie, fullback, 15 yards; Field Goals—Dicht, try for points after touchdown—Dicht (place kick).

Californians Blast Washington Team's Championship Hope

Dynamic Quarterback Leads "Thundering Herd" Down Field, Scoring Virtually at Will in Three Periods

(By The Associated Press) SEATTLE, Oct. 12.—University of Southern California today secured the Pacific coast football conference championship hopes of the University of Washington by the score of 48 to 0.

After spending the first 12 minutes of the game with their backs against their own goal posts, the Southern Californians were led by their dynamic quarterback, Russell Saunders, burst into a mighty battling rally. "The thundering herd" stampeded up and down the field, scoring touchdowns virtually at will. Four were gathered in quick succession during the second period, two more were added in the third quarter and another was counted just as the final gun sounded.

Coach Knott Barghaw sent in his spectacular halfback, Merick, to replace Pulver. After three Huskies line-analysts which gained seven yards, Knott took the ball and ruced around right end to reach the foe's goal line, but had stepped out of bounds on the 12-yard line.

State Grid Title Winner Will Not Play Northern Champion

Three Districts Of Southern Idaho To Compete For Title

Twin Falls Brains One of Nine Teams Standing Out in Season's Grid Play; Lewiston Eleven Strong

(By The Associated Press) BOISE, Oct. 12.—Three southern Idaho districts will compete for the state high school football championship this fall. But when the winning team is chosen, its glee will be somewhat tempered by the fact that in North Idaho sits a team that did not get in the scruffle.

The Idaho High School Athletic association has ruled that the Idaho district champion will not compete in the latter district. The champion of this district will play the winner of the Idaho Falls district in that district. To the victor will go the spoils.

Disparaging state champions, however, nine schools stand out as the brighter lights of this season.

Three teams outstanding are Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Twin Falls, Pocatello, Idaho Falls, Nampa, Rupert and Wallace.

Bengals Lead in North. A latest survey of the north Idaho high school football situation shows the Lewiston Bengals lifting atop the heap. Their chops and slaying for more meat.

Of course this curly mane of mole-skinned grid-hoppers, outwitted in the Oregon grid that Lewiston beat 14 to 0 last week, but the Bengals showed no much power, smash and strap on that occasion that it's bound to crop out again against stronger teams than Orofino. A yardage count of 482 for Lewiston to 100 for Orofino tells the story.

The Wallace Miners were trounced by the bulkier Colgate bullpups of Spokane 14 to 0, but that doesn't mean it'll happen when Wallace meets some northern Idaho team. The all-time scoring record in the Miners under the tutelage of Meliously Gooding had maintained a 20-to-0 margin indicates that a clash between Lewiston and Wallace would be a worthy spectacle. If it could be arranged.

The Kellogg Wonders played a hard-fought close season with Coeur d'Alene, being barely waded out by one touch-down after they had tied the count in the third canto by a string of forward passes. The score of this brawl was 12 to 6. Bonners Ferry might, after losing many of their early games, be a dark horse in the Southwest conference had to depend for existence on the 1929 Razorbacks as the early-day settlers depended on their lowly namesake, the outlook would be pretty dark. Above are some of the Razorbacks of the gridiron grouped around a genuine Razorback from the Arkansas hills.

Sanjuncos, quad 24 to 6, came back this last week-end and socked the lads from the point 9 to 9.

Three Teams Outstanding. Pocatello, Idaho Falls and American Falls probably will be the principal contenders in the Southeast district. American Falls trounced the Allion high school 33 to 0, as an interdistrict affair. Idaho Falls was held to a scoreless tie on a muddy field by the St. Anthony eleven but vindicated itself in a blaze of glory by trouncing the Tejon high school of Orange 45 to 0.

In the South Central district, Twin Falls, the hero of the lot, flouts on the highest wave after the stellar feat of holding the Allion normal college team to a bare 2 to 6 victory.

Rupert, usually a strong contender, trounced Oakley 7 to 0 and followed it with a victory over St. Joseph's of Pocatello 24 to 0.

Rupert's Powerful Grid Team Looms As Leading East End Candidate For South Central Idaho District Title

Unexpected Defeat of Twin Falls Eleven Aids in Clearing Up Championship Situation; Filer and Jerome Promise To Give Keen Competition in Games

(By E. M. SWELLEY) Aided by the unexpected defeat of Twin Falls by Oakley, the championship situation of the South Central Idaho district is somewhat clearer. Rupert has two hard games ahead with district teams, Bull at Rupert November 1, and Burley at Burley November 11. Both will be hard games and either Bull or Burley is capable of giving Rupert an unexpected setback on a rainy day.

By that time that can make, and help in making, it is a matter of time before the game is done in all its seasons' games is likely to have too powerful an offense, if it has the edge. This year an unexpected loss at Allion, which might be a great individual threat to their team.

A defeat sometimes works that way. The East End candidate looks like Rupert now, but in the West End are two teams as yet undefeated, and neither is scheduled to meet Rupert in the regular season.

Filer Eleven Strong. Filer had a work out with Kimberly that was by no means a walkway. It must be that Filer's players are all Filer. Filer has a good looking confidence, a disease likely to be mighty troublesome to any team, and did not lose a game with the full force of the edge uncovered. After the Wildcats got Kimberly tired, the Filer players ran up a nice score, but at the half they were Filer. Filer has a good looking bunch that can play good football but until they get firmly fixed in their play, they are likely to be a game in four quarters long, and that each quarter has to be packed full of hard fighting to make a winning, their threat will be a bit of a balance.

Powerful Stanford Halfback

HARLOW ROTHEIT, premier snapper of the Cardinal squad, gives beef and punch to "Pop" Warner's 1929 football varsity.

Over at Oakley, the team is ready for more battles. Its early games did not promise too much, and that may not be a contributing factor to Twin Falls' feeling of an easy game. But Oakley has taken from the game some of its spark. It has made the team that gets out of the fumble in play. That change has taken from the game some of its spark. It has made the team that gets out of the fumble in play. That change has taken from the game some of its spark.

It requires no very sharp ears at the games to note that the spectators are not all favorably impressed with the rule change that eliminated the run from the fumble in play. That change has taken from the game some of its spark. It has made the team that gets out of the fumble in play. That change has taken from the game some of its spark.

Under the present schedule the winner of the Southern Idaho district will meet the south central district champion in the latter district. The champion of this district will play the winner of the Idaho Falls district in that district. To the victor will go the spoils.

Disparaging state champions, however, nine schools stand out as the brighter lights of this season.

Three teams outstanding are Lewiston, Caldwell, Boise, Twin Falls, Pocatello, Idaho Falls, Nampa, Rupert and Wallace.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 12 (AP)—For one week during the football season, the Waco team has been playing without Mickey Jennings, head coach.

His name was pulled from the jury wheel and the judge refused to excuse him.

Jennings, however, has a choice of the week he wishes to serve.

Com is believed to have been first shown in Central America.

Some of the causes under the Pacific Ocean lie six miles beneath the surface.

On the north side Coach White's bunch at Jerome is not to be overlooked. Rupert scored 23 points against Shoshone, but Jerome took Shoshone a week earlier by a good score, and when Shoshone's big full back, Barbee, was in action, Jerome was fighting her way through, gaining strength with each week, and with one she threw many games for a week. Both Filer and Oakley, two of these are played at some time.

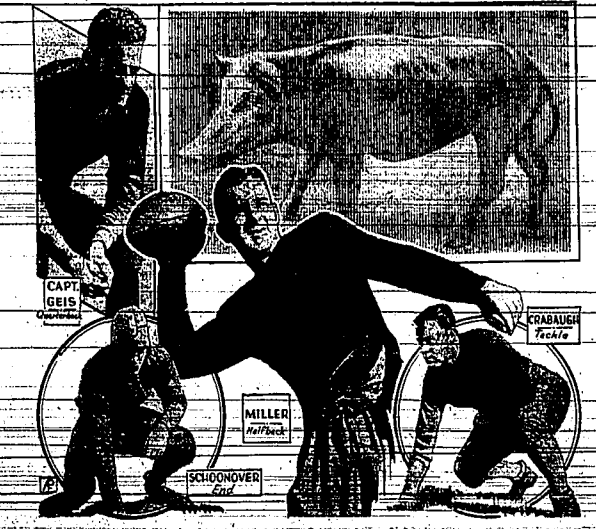

PHASANTS PLENTIFUL AND FAT SAY HUNTERS

Phasant hunting will begin next Tuesday and sportsmen say that birds are more plentiful and better developed than last year and that the season will be a better one than for some seasons.

Sixteen counties open Tuesday and will close November 25 at the end of 41 days instead of 41 days instead of 61 days as in previous years are Ada, Adams, Blaine, Canyon, Cassia, Elmore, Gem, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka, Owyhee, Payette, and Washington.

The big limit is four birds and there is no limit on the number of birds in the case with migratory birds. The territory from Minidoka to Salmon including Gooding and the Jerome counties is said to be well stocked.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Five men who have proved their diplomatic mettle in many an international fire appear as President Hoover's probable choices to represent the United States at the forthcoming naval limitations conference.

That Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state, will head the American delegation is generally conceded. And the choice of Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, long the navy's foremost expert on armaments, was equally expected.

The names of others are yet speculative. Three, however, are favorites in discussions centering on the delegation. Of these, Hugh S. Gibson, ambassador to Belgium, is acknowledged as being the most probable choice.

A recent visit to the White House by Senator Frederiek Hale of Maine, chairman of the senate's committee on naval affairs, and Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia, ranking democrat of the same committee, immediately caused the names of these three to be mentioned in the press.

"The Five" Interesting
The probable "big five" offer an interesting study of personalities. Here are the five seen at a glance:

HENRY L. STIMSON—Not the general type—always direct and forceful. Tall, slender build; gray-blue eyes, light gray hair and closely clipped mustache above a firm mouth. Son of a successful surgeon. Entered a foreign law firm in New York shortly after graduation from Yale. Three years a federal district attorney. Unsuccessful in his quest for governorship of New York.

HUGH S. GIBSON—Just past 40. Leading exponent of theory that "white spotted tea drinkers" should be eliminated from diplomatic corps. Handled defense of Edith Cavell, English nurse, executed by Germans. Son of a town bank cashier. Educated by private tutors and in Paris. First American minister to Poland after recognition of that republic's independence, later minister to Switzerland. One of the most active in recent negotiations for a naval agreement between the United States and Great Britain.

HILARY P. JONES—Fits the name at Annapolis; he was widely liked there. Now he is one of the most popular men in the navy. And he is one of the most forceful advocates of naval limitations. Completed 47 years of service to his country in November, 1927—27 years at sea. Retired at that time in name only; twice since he has represented the United States at a disarmament session. Available any day for active duty.

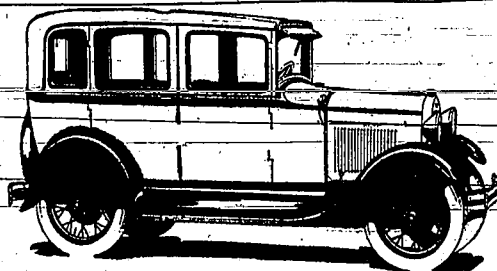

FREDERICK HALE—Chairman of the senate's naval committee. Known by all as "Freddy." Family name has stood for power in national politics more than half a century. Rarely speaks out—rather floor-stands—other subjects than America's navy. Retiring fellow, somewhat short of stature with a head tilted above a firm mouth. Bachelor and 55. Plays golf in Washington, but in Maine his love of the woods asserts itself. One of the strongest factors for "peace in the world."

CLAUDE A. SWANSON—Southerner, of old school and ranking democrat on the senate's naval committee. Wears "dark moustache"—the mark of the "farm and grace" for which statesmen of his section have been noted. Has always worked for what he got. To senate first in 1911 to fill out term of limited from diplomatic corps. Handled, John W. Daniel. There ever since. Served big terms in justice and was secretary of Virginia from 1906 to 1910. Recently said in senate: "I believe the best interests of the United States and Great Britain and the peace of the world would be accomplished by substantial equality of the American and British navies."

Date for Parties Fixed by Prominent Washington Women Soon After Feminine Hens Leave Cradles

By SUE McNAMARA (Associated Press Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Almost before a girl child of a family of wealth and prominence in Washington is out of the cradle, she is dated up for her debutante party.

Mothers often arrange dates for their daughters' coming out parties two years ahead. Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner, who has been a social secretary in this capital city for 20 years and knows all the ins and outs of official social life here, says mothers frequently come to her in the spring to bespeak dates for the winter of the year following.

Mrs. Hagner saw Washington's need for a sort of clearing-house for the social secretary years ago and opened the first social bureau here. Today her business is incorporated and she has all she can do.

HOOKS IN EYES BACK TO BOTHER WOMEN

No Matter What Women Think of Fall Styles Married Men Will Protest

By BARBARA BIRFOOT (Associated Press Feature Writer)

PARIS, Oct. 12.—No matter what women think of the new fall styles men, are almost sure to be against them, particularly married men.

There are old-fashioned hooks and eyes on many of the afternoons and evening dresses Paris favors most. Moreover, the pretty things go straight up the back in many cases and the masculine and athletic woman can't get into them without help.

Another complication in the new frocks is the prevalence of rows of small buttons which actually fasten and are not merely decorative. Swimming

Such buttons range up the front, back or sides of blouse dresses and add minutes to the time it takes a woman to dress.

Even gloves share the tendency to be more complicated and get away from the time-saving slip-on method of other seasons.

Dress gloves with as many as 20 buttons are an odd here and there are designers willing to prophesy the buttons will go all the way to the elbow before they're through.

The lobbyist themselves, of course should be honest enough to tell frankly whom they speak for instead of concealing or misrepresenting the interests of professional others, drastically applied. With such reticence, if it is possible, it should be fairly easy to draw a proper distinction between legitimate and illegitimate activity in behalf of organized groups.

The moral test would be simply this: If the lobbyist is honest and fair, back-hitching is not a moral offense. Back-hitching is a moral offense only if the lobbyist is dishonest and unfair.

THE MODERN TREND
These who read modern novels about with their newspapers must be impressed with the relative cleanliness of the newspaper as compared to the current offerings of fiction.

Here and there sensational news papers flourish and wax fat. Obscure weeklies in large cities battle upon a diet of flimsy and certain type of cheap vulgarity passed for wit in syndicated articles sometimes used by otherwise clean dailies.

But there isn't a great deal of this sort of thing in the Twin Falls Daily News. There was twenty five years ago, and it is growing less popular all the time.

The average modern novel, especially if it be a "best seller," has little of this sort of thing to recommend it. It is today is so bent upon ending a stage a grade that its producers are apparently no longer interested in quality but in realism and indecency.

And in the fact that the new paper has been enabled to make this change with profit is itself a commendation. It is a sign that the newspaper business is today upon a higher plane than at any time in its history and the average publisher gains much of verification from the fact.

Texans Moving to Stamp Out Crime in New Oil Town

Officials Take Steps To Establish Law And Order in Famous "Bay Boy" Panhandle City Of 10,000 Persons

After Three Violent Years of Vice, Notorious Community Faces Final Cleanup Under Martial Rule

With Oil Industry Furnishing Monthly Payroll of $1,000,000, Decent Citizens Oppose Lawlessness

By The Associated Press

DORGER, Texas, Oct. 12.—The bad-boy town of the panhandle is going to be purified if it takes the whole of Texas to do it.

In the three violent years of its life, Dorger has been known afar for its lawlessness. Crime has thrived, state officials charge, and officers sworn to maintain the peace are alleged to have been in the other end of town every time something happened.

Yet the town has prospered despite its bad name, and the substantial citizens are resolved the prosperity shall continue. The population now is 10,000 and the monthly payroll $1,000,000. What at its inception was just another collection of huts on the prairie streets deep with oil and water, now has paving, business houses of all descriptions, churches, schools and a chamber of commerce.

Proclaim Martial Law

The latest move for a cleanup is the martial law proclamation of Governor Dan A. Moody. National guardsmen under command of Brigadier General Jacob F. Wolfers have taken over the entire government of the town. The guardsmen have been disarmed. Two of them were arrested, and the mayor, Glen A. Pace, is under a charge of having caused a murder witness to leave town.

Martial law was invoked after the recent assassination of John A. Holmes, district attorney.

The proclamation charges that one peace officer is an ex-convict—those officers have accepted money for the protection of crime and that threats have menaced decent citizens who might tell what they knew.

Dorger sprouted, hurriedly, in 1926 after a new oil discovery. Within two months 5000 persons were there, a good share of them promoting some type of vice to get life money of the well-paid oil workers.

Prosecution was dilatory, and the Texas Rangers came. They averaged 100 arrests a day until the town quieted. In October of 1926 they came again, under orders of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, and sent them a third time.

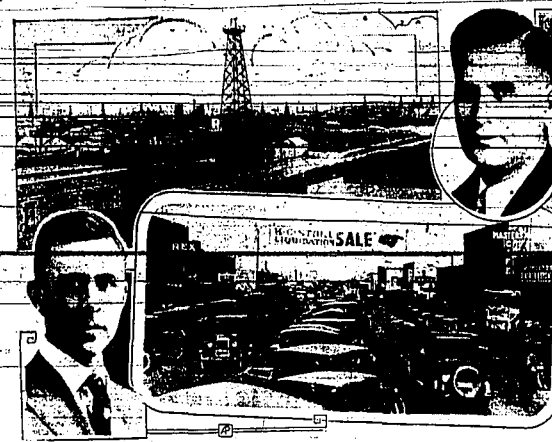

Now, with the drastic regime of Martial law, those who are working for a change, and better Dorger, think the criminal element may be vanquished.

HIGHEST FALLS FOR POWER

LAUBANNE, Oct. 12 (AP).—Switzerland's own record of the highest waterfall harnessed to generate electricity will be broken by the new Dixence power plant. An artificial lake at an elevation of 6000 feet will drop water 5600 feet to the power station. The plant will cost $15,000,000.

Within a radius of 150 miles of Anchorage, Alaska, are plenty of moose, caribou, mountain sheep and goats.

About 35,000 birds are plucked annually at the cape averaging three pounds bird.

Fundamental Economic Importance Of Petroleum Assures Future Prosperity Of Industry, Declares Roger W. Babson

Famous Bay State Statistician Stresses Bright Long-term Outlook for Oil Business Due to Increase in Use of Numerous Products

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 11.—An outlook for the long-term outlook for the oil industry for several fundamental reasons. First, if this country is to continue to grow the oil industry must grow with it. Ten years from now our consumption of gasoline, fuel oil, lubricants, and petroleum by-products will have made the present consumption huge as it is, look small by comparison. It is absolutely essential. Not a wheel of industry can turn without it. Both roads could not operate without it. Steamships would be tied up at the wharves; automobiles could not run; in fact, life as we know it would not exist. Any industry which holds so slight a link to our entire economic and industrial life cannot go backward, but must go forward.

To amass the use of petroleum and its by-products would require billions. They extend from the production of light, heat, and power down through the entire range of industrial and chemical uses even to the preparation of household drugs and cosmetics. Gasoline, kerosene, naphtha, benzine, fuel oil, acids, wax, asphalt, asphaltum, black, fuel gas, petroleum, ether, machine oil, lubricating greases, petroleum, are but a few of the common petroleum products. There are hundreds of others, all with important uses.

"Great" business. There are hundreds of others, all with important uses.

A second great reason for the future prosperity in oil lies in the fact that it is a "repeat" business. For example, when a man buys a tankful of gasoline, it is not "the buying" a job. He will be back at the filling station within a day or so for another tankful of gas, but the job can't be said to have a lifetime. It is this rapid "repeat" consumption, therefore, which makes oil a "repeat" business. It is why this business should prosper in the nature of the age in which we are living. "Machinery," "speed" and "power" are the key words of our present civilization. Petroleum is indispensable to all three. Our growing love of luxury also favors this industry. Household oil burners are installed not so much for economy as for convenience. Our business necessity in many families, but the growing habit of having two or more cars in a family—matter of comfort or convenience—infuse as petroleum contributes to add comfort and luxury in living, it will receive an added impetus to growth.

Still another field for progress, and one with enormous potentialities, is in natural gas in conjunction with oil wells. Industry is just coming to realize the possibilities of piping natural gas to distant consuming centers. Many oil companies are possessed of vast natural gas resources. That they have been wasting much of this gas by allowing it to blow off into the air is an economic few large, and many small operators, however, are still unwilling to play the game. As a result, in spite of our needs, it is not being utilized to the large extent that it constantly threatens to break the market. Perhaps the only way these non-cooperators can be taught a lesson is to let them see the economic danger to decline as they did in 1927, and practically force them out of business. How much water it would be if all units in the industry would follow the clear path of enlightened self-interest which points to the voluntary restriction of production.

Trying New Act

Legislation is being tried in California in the form of the new Lyon natural gas act. It has not been in effect long enough yet to show what beneficial results may come. If there is definite evidence that the new law will succeed, and if the Oklahoma and Texas producers stick to their present attitude of voluntary restriction, recovery in the industry may come sooner than many expect. Regardless of whether voluntary or legislative restriction succeeds, however, economic law will sooner or later compel curtailment.

It is interesting to note that the general stock market declines how drastically inflated many stocks have become. However, from the long-sustained decline the oil area is in a stronger fundamental position than most other groups. First of all the oil is not inflated and their prices bear a reasonable relation to their earnings. Second, while inventories of oil companies are now large, the rate of consumption is holding up well; and with the first signs of restrictive control of production, better times should be seen for good oil stocks.

Those companies in the strongest financial position, and particularly those with large refining and marketing interests should be in the best position to benefit from this improvement while some depends entirely upon the spirit of cooperation shown by oil producers.

It is interesting to note that the fundamental recovery of the whole industry, it is a clear case where all units are working for the good of the industry. Merely trying to beat out the other fellow will retard the progress of all.

Business by the Babson chart is now 1 per cent above normal compared with 1 per cent above normal a year ago.

ENGINEERS REVAMP BOISE RIVER'S BED

Stream Once On Rampage in Flood Season Now Quietly Murmurs Along Course

BOISE, Oct. 12 (AP).—Boise now owns a tailor made river.

It is the self-styled Boise river that changed its course many years ago, and yet it is a very much tamed stream. Where a few years ago it used to run rampant rampages down through the valley, accepting all manner of debris before it, now even in flood season it is comparatively docile.

Some seasons since, a big dam was built 25 miles up stream and this summer the first blow against the desperate business seems to have been struck. With part of the money raised by a bond issue for improvement of the airport, the stream channel has been straightened and cleared through the city.

Where it used to back up pools of water on the airport, now engineers anticipate it will race through its new 200-foot channel sufficiently swift to handle even the usual spring flood without damage.

The Boise is not a sluggish stream. In fact it drops 13 feet to the mile, which is quite a rate in comparison with the Mississippi, which slows along down a slope of six inches to the mile. The trouble with the river has been that it has too many curves to buck in its progress from irrigation ditch to irrigation ditch. Now the most damaging of the curves has been removed.

According to some archeologists the remains of the first church built in England are near the village of Penrhorpe.

Business Men at Burley Play Volley Ball Games.

BURLEY, Oct. 12 (Special to The Spokesman)—Business men have started the fall and winter series of informal volleyball games, using the high school gymnasium as their field of contest. Visitors who have observed some of the games from the gallery have remarked that the business men exercise not only their body muscles, but their voices as well.
 Among Burley business and professional men during several winters past, scheduled games have been announced as yet for this season, but the informal games now played are under the direction of Ed Schneider, originator of amateur volleyball here, James Kinzie, Rev. Valentine Ditch, and others. Meetings are held once or twice each week. About 15,000 minutes of play from Burley and young calves are available in Alaska each year for the fur trade.

THE DESERT AND THE SAGE
 By D. R. CHURCHILL

Dedicated to Helen Planch.
 Could we but read the desert lore,
 Inscribed on Nature's pages,
 There chiselled by the hand of Time,
 Through unceasing ages,
 Or could we catch the crumpled sage
 To tell its full details,
 All its secrets, its heart and knowledge,
 What would be our glory?
 Would it reveal its purpose here?
 From whence it came, and why
 It chose the barren lava bed,
 Where life seemed doomed to die,
 Where fourishment was not a part,
 Where nothing but death life,
 Where life and death mingled,
 Meet in ungodly strife.

Yet still the sage lives on—
 The hungry wolf in quest of prey,
 Scents forth its piercing wall,
 To call the starving pack, to kill.
 One on the desert trail,
 Where in the burning heat of noon,
 Their bloodshot eyes grow swollen,
 Through grit the sun refuse to blink,
 The sage will cast its shadow.

The desert holds grim secrets locked,
 Where strange they repose,
 The sage exhibits a fragrant breath,
 More laving than the rose,
 And this settles its rays of hope,
 Within each wayfarer's breast,
 And drops its purple flag across
 The desert of the West.

Where deeds of man the desert claim,
 One-dial on motor's pane,
 While over their heads the thistle winds,
 And round it spins the sage.
 Across the desert, empty waste,
 Its rays have come and gone,
 To leave its sacred and tempest torn.
