was looking forward to "restful and profitable time" in the Dominion, where he conference with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other Canadian leaders.

He said his mission would begin next week again in Washington in what he described as democratic frank talks with President Hoover.

Although he had made many visits to Niagara Falls, Mr. MacDonald never tired of it, he said, and he enjoyed the annual lunch of fish and chips at the falls along the Niagara River.

There the premier, his daughter, Ishbel, and others left their cars to stand for a time on the edge of the cliff precipice from which the falls plunges into the American side. Then from across the island on a trestle built out to the edge they viewed the Horseshoe falls on the Canadian end.

A ride on "The Maid of the Mist," a small steam boat, completed his tour up the Niagara gorges in comfort.

After that departure was made for Toronto where Mr. MacDonald will remain until tomorrow evening as a guest at government house.

RUSSIA AS CUSTOMER

The Amfers Trading Corporation, official representative of Soviet Russia in America, became its business operations in this country in nineteen hundred and twenty-four, buying two hundred thousand dollars worth of goods. In the year nineteen hundred twenty-five, Amfers purchased and exported to Russia American machine tools to the amount of six hundred thousand dollars. The business has continued to grow until it totals more than 40 million dollars. In nineteen hundred twenty-eighteen-nine, during the five days of the machine tool exhibition held recently in Cleveland, Amfers received Thomas Edison and many inventors and engineers from all over the world to inspect their products.

Mrs. G. P. Scott, president of Amfers, who has not paid their dues for the coming year do so as soon as convenient, in order to the welfare of the business. Amfers has been organized by Mrs. Charles North of the great men of the United States. Benjamin Franklin, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Thomas Edison and many inventors and engineers from all over the world to inspect their products.

According to an official of Amfers:

"The same engineer came to the exhibition to inspect all the new models of machine tools and the new methods of production. Their purpose was to select proper equipment for the new plants now under construction in Russia."

Several industries are being restructured on a modern technical basis. The government appears to be realizing rapidly its program of industrialization. Possibilities of export of machine tools and other goods to Russia are enormous. It looks like a great opportunity for certain American industries if they are ready to grasp it. Russia's political theorizing has little time in view developments.

PATRIOTIC ROW

William B. Shearer, the big navy baldie, distinguished himself a short time ago by launching an attack against the Federation of Churches in America for its peace pronouncements. Now the boldie has turned. And incidentally the Daughler of the American Revolution, Mrs. Ordey, is the American Revolution, a bit of a time was very sympathetic toward the Church, particularly in favor of verbal lambasting in patriotic Boston.

Reverend William L. Stidger, speaking at Congregational-Episcopal Conference, decried that organization and others for "allowing themselves to be made tools and accessories" of Hitler.

"The next institution to be disgruntled," he says, "ought to be the Daughters of the American Revolution, a lot of old ladies who sit at home basking in the unearned increment of dead ancestors, satisfying their sense of self-importance by reading tort the stupid propaganda of war, and allowing Hitlerites to use their organization as a can's paw to rake the hot coals out of the fire."

And now, no doubt, the D. A. R. ladies will take adequate care of the Reverend Mr. Stidger.

When Shigaiji undertook to deliver war, he hadn't seen anything yet.

FLYING FOR ARCHAEOLOGY

Now that Colonel Lindbergh has taken to archaeological flying, this next up-to-date method of seeking out remnants of ancient civilizations may be regarded as a permanent accomplishment of all future discoveries and explorations.

The palest digging in cans will continue, as before, but transportation in and from such sites will be easier and safer than ever before. Also the location of hidden, undecorated places, rich in history, for the archaeologist, will be hastened. Earth and sea betray many of their secrets to an aviator's eye.

DEATHS

CURTIS — Mrs. Eliza Curtis, 74 years old, died early yesterday morning at the residence, "The Sunburst," 100 South Main, miles northwest of Twin Falls. This body rests now in the chairman's funeral parlors. Arrangements for funeral services are to be completed when word is received from relatives elsewhere.

SOCIETY AND CLUBS

Mrs. E. B. Williams
Phoenix, 300.

Compliments to Miss Melba Nelson, wife of Leavenworth, and Mrs. Mary Jane Marlow and Mrs. Margarette Marlow, who were married with three tables of honor, Sunday evening, at the J. M. Maxwell home in Seventh Avenue East. Miss Louie McRae won the prize for high school and David was the one to give the gift, who was also presented with a party gift. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the games.

In honor of Mrs. Alice Hilles, a bride of next month, Mrs. Charles Hilles gave a tea at her home in Phoenix Avenue. A color scheme yellow and blue was featured with centerpiece in the tables. Sixteen guests were served a meal consisting of ham, eggs, bacon, and other delicacies in harmony. The room was decked with bouquets of lilies. Mrs. Hilles was assisted in serving by Mrs. Merrill Ayres and Mrs. Jeannie Bulles.

Men and women who are, or have been prominent in the affairs of the United States were brought to the attention of the Twentieth Century Club members at the general meeting Tuesday at the Hotel Idaho, where Mrs. Irene Franklin, Mrs. Merritt Ayres, were divided into three groups, most of them having been given the name of a noted woman, whom they were required to impersonate, using a short sketch of their life. The group was entered into competition.

The Devil's Mantle

By Frank L. Packard

I am writing home about Break O' Dawn, cut in the little red-haired skipper. He is a bit of a scamp, and I am trying to help him get a better hold, and I think he is, that I know of and that I've had my eye on for a year past. And as for you, I'll say it's a lucky thing that there is David, where she is, and a doctor and a lawyer reading along with that there tric, and you're coming along. The tric will put as much money in my pocket as ever, and when we'll want to go to the doctor and get a look at some of the out-of-the-way places? The day never been to be before.

Savvy? On top of the tric, and me humanizing. I ain't sayin' it would be a good idea, but if you can't or won't do it, do it in the meantime you're safe, and at the end I'll stake my money we'll run 'em down. What do you think now, my friend? I am still up to the game of Alec Dunn?

Peter's hand gripped suddenly hard on the arm of his chair. Well—where he started at the little red-haired skipper on the bed. Who was grillin' him? Peter, I guess, was goin' to say, if he'd come into the lounge, we've a neat little station partitioned off there—"you might like to tell the story yourself."

"I think," he said slowly, "that you are right and that I'd be a damn fool if I didn't—but—" He broke off sharply.

"What?" ejaculated Captain Josephus Mumum, who cut in on that chap broadcastin' his song, a' dire dare he's doin' if he and the set, or us call it, are both in the lounge?

"Well," chucked the little man on the bed, "there's nothing worse than "dumbfounded." And if you don't have good reason, you can't be dumbfounded over somethin'—What?"

But this time Peter did not answer. He had come to an abrupt halt in the center of the room. Some one was knocking at the studio door.

"Sorry," Peter looked impudently at Captain Josephus Mumum. The knock was repeated.

"Now don't you make no breaks, any how," cautioned the little red-haired skipper. "And if you do, then whatever you do, don't be late." Come in."

The dozy young man, a young man with small black eyes, whose hair was almost too carefully powdered and who was attired in dinner clothes, stepped across the room, and came to a standstill just short of the open doorway.

"What's goin' on, a concert? The same voice that chanted lullabies to his baby, and the mother of the bed.

"I am afraid I am intruding," he said apologetically. "You are just right there."

"Don't worry more about that," said Captain Josephus Mumum with infinite civility, "and if you're too tired, just sit down and take a rest. You're not too tired, but remember, baby, that you're still in the open doorway."

"That's what's goin' on, a concert! That's what's goin' on, a concert!" The same voice that chanted lullabies to his baby, and the mother of the bed.

"It's that—internal steward, Lahot Khan?" said the young man, with a snarl. "The one that was in here. You know, internal steward, he always all over the place. But he's on deck and he's makin' hay in the lounge. I'll stop it at once!" He turned as though to put this threat into execution.

"Don't you do it! I'm so sorry I mentioned it," extenuated the little red-haired skipper promptly. "We didn't have no singin' on the Break O' Dawn, and we done good. Let the boy alone and come in, Mr. —" he paused interestingly.

"Teafair's man," supplied the young man. "He hesitated a moment, then added, "I'm not a teafair's man, but they say he is."

"What was the issue anyhow? That went against the gristle to hide, to another as assiduous name? Yes, he's a teafair's man, but he's a teafair's man, I'm told."

"Well, if you're sure I'm not keen,

COUNTY'S FINANCIAL NEEDS CROWD LIMIT IMPOSED BY STATUTE

Auditor, in Report On Records For Five Years, Points Out Conditions

Bringing About Changes

Twin Falls county, banding approximately a quarter-million dollars each year, has a number of years been in financial difficulties, and in its report on county conditions, H. C. Hansen, Twin Falls public accountant, asserts in his report on an audit of all county offices, that sales and delinquent tax records cover five years period ending January 12, 1928.

Continuing, the auditor sounds warning note.

"Unless the county can levy sufficient taxes to cover the expenses of operation of the county, it will take a heavy financial sacrifice," Hansen says. "I am afraid that the auditor's report," he says, "the strength that the county now has will be gradually used up, and then it will be necessary to register warrant and pay interest."

Law Operates

Illustrating this point, the auditor reports that there are no new taxes included in the audit. "The county is limited by law state to a maximum levy of 40 cents on each $100 for its current expense fund. On Twin Falls present valuation this levy will yield approximately $100,000, while the revenue producing offices approximates $45,000, so that the total income available is $175,000 which is less than the county's estimated requirements."

He further states: "To meet the difference between the estimated and actual field-tax rates paid by the county and surplus must exist, or interest bearing warrants must be issued, to be paid out of proceeds of a levy for warrant redemption fund the next year."

During the period covered by the audit, it is estimated that $75,000 in the county's surplus funds is shown.

Condition of funds:

Condition of the several funds at the close of the audit period was shown as follows:

As compared with these property assets, the total in the county's general fund portfolio, liabilities on account of credit, per cent of bonded debt, bonds $23,000; bridge bonds $27,700; capital surplus $381,588.

Lowering Bonded Debt

During the period covered by the audit, the county has redeemed $125,000 bonds, paying out $75,000; court bonds balance, and paying $25,000 on account of bridge bonds; $20,000 on account of road bonds; $30,000 on account of fair bonds; and $10,000 on account of court trial bonds; totaling $43,000 road and bridge bonds to be paid out in 1932 and $27,000 Hansen bridge bonds balance is to be wiped out in 1937.

The auditor recommends that the county bonds be held in the auditor's department to be revised in order to make accounts in relation to the budget available more readily.

Surety bonds for all county offices and departments are found to be in full force and sufficient.

Insurance on buildings and equipment was found to be in full force and adequate.

FINAL CALL COMES

TO MAN IN SLEEP

W. D. Gurwell, 75, Found Dead in Bed at Daughter's Residence Near City

William David Gurwell, 75, was found dead in his bed, in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Barbara Hansen, at Hansen's Flat orchards, seven miles southeast of Twin Falls, early Tuesday morning a little while after he had been observed sleeping peacefully. Death was attributed to a heart affection for which Dr. G. C. Hansen, his son, had been caring.

The award is to be made on a basis of percentage of gain over last year.

Two years ago, Mr. Gurwell had been picking apples in the orchards Monday day.

The body now rests at the White mortuary.
