The few house members still in the capital joined in passing a senate bill to advance Commander Richard Byrd, now exploring at the South Pole, to the rank of rear admiral on the retired list of the navy.

The senate adopted a resolution of condolence to the family of Representative Knicker, Massachusetts, killed in an airplane crash here yesterday. Weary from the months of work, the legislators have called off everything for the two weeks' respite.

President Hoover also received from Congress during this period the Bill of Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, extending indefinitely the term of the court commissioner. Idaho, according to his plan, with his recommendation to Congress.

With the tariff again the order of business, the senate interest manifested as to its future and Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, predicted today it would be the middle of February before the bill finally is sent to conference with the house.

of the second young woman; when characteristics were found they were applied to the forged order and, Mr. Larson declared, it was found that the handwriting was identical to that appearing on the forged document.

Mr. Larson quoted testimony of Lisle Smith, Salt Lake City, handwriting expert, for the defense under cross-examination, in the effect that discovery of one characteristic in a questioned document would be an indication, and statistics would increase probability of identification of the author of the questioned document.

It may be shown mathematically, Mr. Larson asserted, that discovery in a questioned document of as many as 20 characteristics of one person's reduced the probability that it was written by another person to a proportion of one in several billions.

In opening argument yesterday, Mr. Larson reviewed the case as presented to the jury, discussing the testimony of handwriting experts and pointing out opportunity that Miss Lowe had to identify the handwriting of the superintendent's office to study signatures of school district officers.

"Why," the prosecutor asked, "did Miss Lowe, in coming to identify the man for whom she said she had carried school district orders, seize upon the possibility that a counterfeit suspect might appear in the county?"

"Captain Porter referred to the accused young woman as the only one in criticism of the prosecutor's attempts to draw from Miss Lowe the same description of the man she named as the one for whom she had carried school district orders."

"Mr. King stood before you for some hours yesterday," Captain Porter said, "yet I ventured to say not a word in criticism of the prosecutor's attempts to draw from Miss Lowe the same description of the man she named as the one for whom she had carried school district orders."

"It has occurred to me," Captain Porter continued, "that perhaps the season of the year will help you in the same question and all kinds of probability and all outside influences, and to judge in the spirit of good will and fairness. You will analyze all the evidence to be brought in."

"It seems to you that the state has failed to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt, it will be your duty, and I commend to you the duty of this young lady, to go home to your parents, and let them be the same joy that is home on Christmas morning that there will be in your own and mine."

Defense objected when the prosecution attempted to place in evidence a number of asserted forged school district orders that the defense endeavored subsequently to introduce in evidence, both attempts being ruled out, the prosecuting attorney reminded the jury, following argument by Mr. Taylor, for who argued that the prosecution should have brought this evidence into the case.

Pointing to asserted failure of the state to introduce evidence to show that cancelled orders had been in the county superintendent's office for considerable periods of time, Mr. Taylor challenged the prosecuting attorney's assertion that Miss Lowe had unusual opportunity for imitating signatures of school district officers.

The prosecution, Mr. Taylor continued, has failed to show knowledge on the part of Miss Lowe or the county superintendent's office that cancelled orders were not being returned to school districts. This situation, he asserted, made it possible for school district funds to be despoiled by unlawful means, and he asserted, "many people in Twin Falls county know that."

"It is not merely a question of whether some victim must be sacrificed to satisfy opinion—some person must find his order that some situation may be altered," Mr. Taylor asserted.

"He appealed to the jury that in its deliberations it should be influenced by public opinion, and not fearful of popular judgment that is often wrong than that it was written by another person to a proportion of one in several billions."

right. "It is always true," the prosecuting attorney declared at the onset of his closing arguments "when one commits an offense that the transgressor is not the only one who suffers. The transgression is brought home to all who hold him or her dear. All must suffer for that one's crime."

"If that melancholy fact to deter us to cause us, who have this duty on our shoulders, to shrink upon a sliver of service as a cause for you or me to evade responsibility? Are we to be blinded by our personal sympathies?"

"If that were the case, no except the lone outcast who has no one to care to justice and punished for his transgressions."

"It would have been a delightful thing to have followed certain suggestions and in this Christmas season when many are celebrating the birthday of him who came to give sinners, and have given this girl her liberty."

"But we are faced with stern reality, and a duty and responsibility, responsibility for you and me to evade responsibility? Are we to be blinded by our personal sympathies?"

"The story told by Miss Lowe on the same stand, Mr. Larson declared, shows conclusively one thing—that she knew that when she endorsed and presented an order for a school district warrant at a bank it would be paid."

Commission Outlines Plan For Merge All Railroads

tion of congress, the plan was assailed from the Democratic side of the senate for its failure to provide through transcontinental lines connecting the Pacific and Atlantic coasts.

The question was also raised at the capitol whether additional legislation is required to empower the commission to carry out its consolidation scheme.

Senator Watson, Indiana, the Republican leader, and a former chairman of the interstate commerce committee, expressed the conviction that additional legislation would be required and he proposed that congress take it up early next year.

Senators, Bitman, Nevada, and Wheeler, Montana, Democratic members of the interstate commerce committee, assailed the plan in the senate. Wheeler opposed the provision that merge the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, asserting it would be a "great calamity" for the Northwest.

Commissioner Eastman, in a separate opinion contained in the commission's report, held that the plan should proceed slowly in this matter, and added that "the best consolidation plan would be one so constructed that if good reason later develops, after it had been more experience, for carrying the process of unification further, it could be done by merely combining some of the smaller systems."

Radical Proposal
Differing radically from present usage, the commission proposed that all railroad terminal properties should be thrown open to all users on "fair and equal terms so that every industry on whatever rails located shall have access to all lines radiating from that terminal, and every line carrier reaching that terminal shall similarly have access to all terminal tracks within the terminal area."

At present terminals are owned in most instances by the pioneer road in that section or a combination thereof with other users paying for the privilege. The commission pointed out that, for years access to terminals has raised questions associated with such terms as reciprocal switching, absorption of switching charges, switching of competitive traffic, and with unjust discriminations and unfair rates.

"The unification of terminal properties should put an end to disputes of this character to the advantage alike of all users of railroads."

Few radical changes were made in any of the Far Western systems, the commission being content to let the Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe stand practically as they are except with the addition of a number of short lines. Their present central units were almost intact.

The Duluth, Missabe and Northern the Duluth and Iron Range, a half interest in the Butte, Anaconda and Pacific and tracking rights and partial interests in several short lines were assigned to the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific in building up a system around it.

In proposing that the Eastern roads be merged into five great systems, the commission settled a long debated question as to what its attitude would be on this, probably the most discussed point of the consolidation, but opened new controversies in so doing.

It would leave the New York Central and the Pennsylvania largely as they now are but would enlarge greatly the Chesapeake and Ohio system by adding to it the Erie and Pere Marquette and a large group of connecting short lines. The Chesapeake and Ohio would, however, lose the Chesapeake and Ohio of Indiana, which it had already been given permission by the commission to lease. It would have the Hocking Valley and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western.

Complete ownership of the Reading and Central of New Jersey would be invested in the Baltimore and Ohio, and it also would acquire a half interest in the Detroit, Toledo and London, the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville, and the Detroit and Toledo short line. The Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh, which it now tentatively controls, it would be permitted to retain, but it would be stripped of the Western Maryland stock of which it has been purchasing during the last two years.

The fifth trunk line system would be built around the Western and the Genesee line. With these roads would be combined the Wheeling and Lake Erie, the Lehigh Valley, the Western Maryland, the Chesapeake and Ohio railroads of Indiana, the Pittsburgh and West Virginia and a half interest in the Detroit, Toledo and London.

Pleasure was expressed by Representative Kocq, Republican, Kansas, co-author of the Hoch-Smith rail reorganization bill, of favoring both four Eastern systems, the proposed fifth trunk line system reaching from Kansas City territory to the Atlantic seaboard.

A separate opinion by Commissioner Porter, who was among those most active on the commission in drafting the program, took issue with the majority on their eastern New England and one section of the Western setup.

He pointed out that the Union Pacific, "financially strong, physically well maintained and efficiently managed, 'stands across the heart of the Great Western empire,' with its main line extending from Omaha to Ogden, Utah; and thence by three lines reaching the Pacific ocean. Under the plan the Union Pacific also would be given access to the Gulf of Mexico from Kansas City."

Mr. Porter said the Western Pacific and the Denver and Rio Grande would extend through much of this same territory as the Union Pacific, and they are now assigned to the Missouri Pacific, but the dissenting commissioner holds the latter road is not strong enough to permit them to provide real competition with the Union Pacific.

"I am persuaded," he said, "that the Burlington system, by reason of its splendid physical condition, its concentration of capital resources, its strong financial position, and its physical integrity, accords much the better parent for a new transcontinental line from Chicago to the Pacific. I would, therefore, in addition to what the majority have allocated to the Burlington system, add the Western Pacific and the Denver and Rio Grande Western. With the completion of the Moffatt tunnel and the Denver cutoff, this route has great possibilities, but it will take a very powerful system such as the Burlington to make it effective."

Days you "see your breath" are much too cold for "wet" gasoline

EVEN in summer "wet" gasoline is sluggish. Heavy kerosene-like particles fail to burn. They filter down into your oil, thinning it, ruining its lubricant value, wasting fuel.
And in winter you will have real trouble. "Wet" gasoline—even so-called winter quality of "wet" gasoline—simply can't vaporize properly. It hits the cold motor and condenses like a damp fog. It forms in droplets on the manifold, on the cylinder walls.
Your battery has a hard enough job turning a stiff cold motor without the added handi-caps of slow starting "wet" gasoline.
Would you like to avoid cold weather starting troubles? Would you like a gasoline that goes all into power and mileage? Shell 400, the "dry" gas is so exactly refined that "wet" fractions are eliminated. It vaporizes completely and therefore starts easily; it burns cleanly and hence delivers maximum power with no oil dilution or waste.
It costs no more than "wet" gasoline. Let every frosty morning remind you of Shell 400, the "dry" gas—no other Shell gasoline is sold.

SHELL QUICK-STARTING The "DRY" GAS
And about oil. There's an oil now that forms no hard, flinty carbon, and that would avoid the endless troubles caused by carbon, and that would save thousands of miles to the life of your car. That's SHELL MOTOR OIL, whenever you buy

With Shell 400, the "dry" gas you can drive out of full thousand mile tanks and have less than 10% gasoline left over oil—wet enough to seriously damage it.
It doesn't take many cold mornings to find your oil will be condensed and gasoline that runs down the cylinder walls. Here's an example—oil left in your oil pan after five hundred miles of running!

IDAHO GETS BID TO TRADE CONFERENCE

Gem State Will Participate in Pan-American-Reciprocal at California Capital

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 21 (Special to The News) — Because of the interest shown by the people of Idaho, in exhibiting at the Western States exposition here last September, in conjunction with the state fair, that state is being invited to participate in the Pan-American reciprocal trade conference to be held here from August 23 to 30, next.

This was the announcement made here today by Simon J. Lubin, president of the Sacramento region citizens' committee which is sponsoring the bi-state confab.

A letter has been dispatched to Governor H. C. Baldrige at Boise, inviting the people of Idaho to take part in the gathering. The governor also is requested to name a committee to aid in mapping out a conference program.

Idaho's exhibit at the Western states exposition this year attracted widespread attention from the many thousands of state fair visitors, and it is believed that the Latin-Americans who will be here for the conference, would be interested in learning more about that state.

Idaho has already given some indication that it will have an exhibit at the 1929 Western States Exposition. These exhibits will be available to delegates to the trade meeting.

All of the 21 countries of the American continent have been asked to participate, and there is every indication that fully 1000 international producers and traders will be here.

FARMERS OF STATE MAKE FAIR PROFITS FROM YEAR'S CROPS

R. E. Shepherd, President of Commerce Chamber, Sums Up Past
Leader From Jerome Sets Forth Industrial Views
Agricultural Conditions Reflecting Favorably Upon Banking

(By The Associated Press)
JEROME, Dec. 21.—"Briefly, we have fared well in Idaho this year."
With that statement R. E. Shepherd, Jerome, president of the State Chamber of Commerce and Idaho's "wise man" on agricultural and business matters, summed up the affairs of the commonwealth in the blustery winds blow out the old year and blew in the new.
With pungent direct statements, based on a wealth of knowledge that is poured out for his examination, he touched briefly on virtually every industry of the state.
"Crop yields in Idaho for 1929 showed a normal average, and so far have sold at normal prices," he said. "There was, however, a greater fluctuation from normal than for some years. The yield per acre of potatoes was less than in 1928, but the cash return per acre is much in excess of the average. There was a marked increase both in acreage and yield per acre in the bean crop."
Opening Market Good
"The open market was good, and a fair share of the crop sold at a high price, this was followed by declining prices for the remainder of the season. Hands and acre are being held for better prices. So with all the various crops, there is more normal and some below, but taking price returns on the entire crop, farming in Idaho was profitable this year."
The dairy industry is on a very satisfactory basis. An increase in production is shown, with an increase in both number and quality of livestock on the farms.
"The sheep business is on a healthy basis, and there is nothing in sight to indicate a quantum drop. There is a favorable increase in the tariff on wool."
"All this is reflected in bank deposits, sales of agriculture implements and building material. More farm lands have been sold to real farmers in Idaho than at any time since the Armistice."
Wheat Growers Organize
"The wheat growers of Idaho are now in the process of organizing so as to develop a local demand for their product. The Federal Farm Marketing act, it is expected that the organization will be completed not later than the first of next March. The act provides for the way of storage elevators will be provided as may be found necessary; and that local organizations in Idaho will become affiliated with the regional or national organization of the Pacific Northwest and through it be connected with the national organization."
The bean growers also have in mind putting themselves in position to take advantage of the Federal Farm Marketing act. Already the woodgrowers' organization is being perfected. Much has been done in the way of perfecting an organization of the lumber industry in Idaho in the time the various agricultural interests of this state will be in position to avail themselves of the advantages of the Farm Marketing act.
"As to the other industries of the state, generally speaking the mining industry is in a healthy and a good condition, and the same may be said of the lumber industry, although there has not yet been a local demand for the product which another prosperous crop year will develop. There is need for much new building in this state, particularly on the farms. This will come with the improved financial condition of the farmers."

A Washington Bystander

By Kirke L. Simpson

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20 (AP)—Secretary Pat Hurley took over the war portfolio in the Hoover cabinet under circumstances which occur well for the impression he has made in Washington as assistant war secretary.
For one thing, and an unusual one, the senate did not even bother to refer his nomination to the committee. It had no more than confirmed the White House communication announcing Hurley's promotion than that confirmation was rushed through in open executive session with a vote and with no discussion.
With Hurley's accession the war department passes again into custody of a veteran. Twice since the war political appointments, those of John Weeks, Massachusetts, and James Goodfellow, West Virginia, was a naval academy graduate.
It has always been gossip that President Hoover originally intended the war portfolio for Bill Donovan, himself an aviator.
In the end, however, the needs of Goddard's political experience and influence on the Hill gave the post to the Iowa and Jim Good worked hard at his job of being an administration spokesman as well as war secretary. He has given speeches to many military concerns of the administration.
Army Men Liked Him
Army men counted heavily on Goddard's prestige in congress. His untimely death was a great blow to them, although Hurley is widely popular already with the

IMPORTANT MOMENTS
A woman who has achieved a marked degree of success in work which demands more than anything a fine public presence and easy self assurance tells the story of her childhood which she feels stands directly on the type of work which she has chosen in which she has attained such extraordinary distinction.
When she was a very small girl it was her father's custom to take her with him on his business trips. He was a lawyer and she used to go with him into the court room, where she would sit for hours on the table while the work of the court went forward.
In the intervals of the proceedings her father and his friends would play with the multitude of the Hoover cabinet. He stands a fine, erect two yards and more, and must have been the very beau ideal of the soldier in uniform back in war days.
This new war secretary was sworn in by his old friend, Associate Justice Brandeis in the supreme court. And that broke a war department precedent that has stood for several decades.
For the department has its own veteran of veterans who has administered the oath of office to every new secretary and assistant secretary since William Howard Taft took charge of the war portfolio.
He is John Randolph, "Colonel" Randolph to legions of folk military and departmental ranks in many years.
Back to Civil War
At an age of 65 years, Randolph still retains chief clerk of the war department as he has been for a quarter century or more.
His war department memories actually run back beyond the Civil war. He often held the Bystander of his recollection of seeing Robert E. Lee ride in from his home at Arlington, nor in the first instance to submit his resignation from the United States Army and cast his fortunes with the native Virginia in the struggle.
Randolph himself is a soldier in that war. He enlisted in the infantry, made up of departmental folk in the first rush.

Tongan Island Natives Take Part in Activities At Brigham University

PROVO, Utah, Dec. 22 (AP)—When a large number of Tongan natives in the Tongan Islands, 8500 miles away in the south Pacific, bade their homeland goodbye, they probably had a very definite idea of the new land where the street cars buzzed and the tropical breezes did not rattle in the palms.
Yet Charles Smith and Tibbitt Hettig are now going quietly at the business of working their way through Brigham Young university and find time to take part in school activities.
Smith teaches the ukulele and guitar while Hettig writes sports for two newspapers. Besides that Hettig is staff sergeant of the National guard outfit at Provo.

DEBT DECREASES

There has been quite a large debt reduction in many parts of the state, and a decided improvement in tax payments.
These are matters which must be gotten out of the way before there will be any considerable amount of money to be put into the state treasury. Snake River Offers Potential Relief for Idaho Farmers

TRANSPORTATION OF PRODUCTS BY WATER LOOMS AS PANACEA

Lewisohn Organization Approve Tentative Details of Plan

Realization of Proposal To Save $100,000 Yearly

Backers of Enterprise Expect Slash in Rate to Coast Points

By The Associated Press LEWISTON, Dec. 21.—The mighty Snake river may play a vital part in bringing agricultural relief to Central Idaho farmers if plans for navigation which have been approved by Lewisohn Grain Growers, Inc., and the Lewisohn Chamber of Commerce are developed. Directors of the new Central Idaho Cooperative association made steamer and barge navigation of the Snake a leading objective of their program at a first meeting.

The transportation of wheat to the coast by water would put approximately $400,000 more into the pockets of the farmers in the Lewisohn region, figures compiled by local operator backers show. The average wheat crop (exclusive of barley) in Nez Perce, Lewis, Idaho, and Shoshone counties and in Asotin county on the Washington side of the Snake is 5,800,000 bushels, most of which flows through Lewisohn. Farmers now pay a minimum of 14.4 cent rate to ship this wheat by railroad to the Portland terminals; to ship it by water is possible for 7 cents a bushel, still leaving an overriding profit.

Rates Would Equal Canada's. The waterway would cut out the central Idaho section on a competitive basis with the western Canada wheat growers—who now hold a distinct advantage over this central market in their grain, the growers contend. Canadian farmers at a distance of 300 miles inland now can ship their wheat to seaport at a cost of 11 cents per bushel, compared to the 14.4 cents charged Central Idaho growers for the 200 mile haul down a water-grade line to Portland.

Although 12 years ago a fleet of steamers regularly plied the Snake and Columbia between Lewiston and Portland—giving this city the title of "Idaho's only seaport"—ranging packers owned by the Union Pacific system is the only large carrier now in service. It is used only to transport wheat from the south bank of the Snake to the railroad along the north shore.

Plan Now Feasible. The last line operating between Lewiston and Portland went out of existence at the close of the war. But fundamental changes in controlling conditions have now made the construction of steamboats and barges feasible, operator advocates say.

The interstate commerce commission is now required by law to adjust rates so that both rail and water transportation shall be fostered; to establish minimum rates on rail lines connecting with water lines and to insure these rates as much above those of water lines as cost of operation by rail is above that by water. On the Snake it has established 80 per cent of the rail rate as the basis for water rates and river men claim this will allow profitable navigation on the Snake and Columbia.

Highways Aid Plan. Whereas the pioneer river lines had great difficulty in getting cargoes at the river banks, modern highways and the new laws permitting the formation of port districts to build terminals and docks will do away with this handicap. Improved highways and the development of truck transportation have brought the rivers within a few hours' haul of the Big Bend, Palouse, Canaan Springs, Antlers-Governor and Omnicilia county wheat growers. Dock of Arlington and The Dalles are great wheat districts with hard-surfaced highway connections to the river. All of these factors are expected to hasten the restoration of navigation, going with the program of the river administration for extensive improvement of inland waterways. The local river committee has already called for plans and estimates for a light-draft type of steamer and barges. The grain growers' cooperative are expected to host the project by making that all new elevators and storage terminals be constructed along the river banks, where they will be accessible to railroad cars and also the river boats—when they are put in operation.

BALDRIDGE TRAINS GUNS ON RAILROADS

Idaho Governor Criticizes Roads For Attempting to Appeal Decision On Line

BOISE, Dec. 21.—(Special) Plans of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads to appeal from the decision of the interstate commerce commission for building the Central Oregon railroad was taken under fire by Governor H. C. Baldridge today.

The governor challenged the fairness of a continued fight of the railroads against the new line "merely because of an agreement between the two lines for a split of the territory."

Prolonged delay in constructing the line, which was projected by the late E. H. Harriman, was blamed by the governor for the retarded growth of the Central Oregon country.

"A glance at the map shows the necessity for the line. The vast territory of Central Oregon which the line would open remains undeveloped almost entirely because of the lack of transportation facilities," he said.

Idaho's need for the line was also recognized by J. M. Thompson, chief of the reviewed by the governor. He cited testimony of the interstate commission, that construction of such a line would virtually double the shipments of products from this section of Idaho within the near future with consequent profit to the railroad.

"As to profit to the railroad," the governor said, "it will be remembered that when the interstate commerce commission first was established it was given power merely to prevent certain unfair practices. The adoption of the Zach-Cummings transportation act in 1920, however, changed the whole basic theory. It recognized the right of the railroads to earn a fixed percentage on their investment, and established a rigid control of the commission over the carriers to give them the rates which normally should produce that return, providing further that any excess should be turned over to the commission for loans to weaker roads. In return for the power of regulating rates thus conferred on the commission, the roads were given an assurance of freedom from cutthroat competition.

"Now the commission realizes that if the Central Oregon investment is made and does not prove profitable the investment will have to be taken into account in rates on other commodities and other lines. It is therefore a danger, inherent in the order, the commission commanded the construction of the road."

Speakers on Attitude. "What will be the attitude of the public," the governor reflected, "toward a railroad that thus acts at naught, the best interests of its clientele, once the facts are known?"

The proposed line would extend 181 miles from Grant in eastern Oregon to Crescent in western Oregon, giving rail transportation to a country now without it and shorten the distance from

Rickard's Passing Plunges Pugilism Into Broad Slump

World of Fisticuffs Closes Books On Another Year—One of Youthful Sensations and Titular Shifts

With Greatest of All Promoters Goes Fighting Career of Old Man Mautler, Fandom's Favorite

By EDWARD J. NEILL (Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The world of fisticuffs has closed its books on another year—a year of youthful sensations, two title changes, vacant championships, rugged battle that strangely enough was the most disastrous as well as one of the most prosperous in all the history of the knuckle industry. During 1929 the boxing game itself lost two figures that can never be replaced. In Miami Beach, Fla., there he had gone to open the winter quarters of Madison Square Garden, Tex Rickard, greatest of all promoters, passed away January 6 after an operation for appendicitis, performed on New Year's day. With him went the glamorous days of million dollar purses, the great ballyhoo, and the crown of leadership he had won maker. In Boston, boxing's most trying days. With the loss of the fighting career of the old man mautler, who had risen with Rickard to wealth and the heavyweight championship of the world, the drawing card the game has ever known. Dempsey stepped into the breach left by Rickard's death and William P. Carey, the new president, built up Jack Sharkey's struggle with Young Bill Strubling for the championship of the nation as the focal point of the year. Carey's victory, on points brought a colorful, unprecedented situation to an unimpressive close February 27 but left the boxing world in a full command of the heavyweight situation. The bout drew $425,000. Besides the death of Rickard and the death of champions, boxing boomed throughout the nation. Arenas are held in Detroit and Boston were joined by the $1,000,000 stadium in Chicago, and the New York Coliseum, developed by Jess McManis, Rickard's old matchmaker. Louis had his "arena" seating 21,000. While Dempsey took his first ring as a promoter with Stumbo J. Pugaz in New York and failed, he set a new record for receipts and profits during the indoor season, signing 24 indoor shows there, 1929-1928 with total receipts of $1,265,712.

Retirement Leaves Muddle

Sharkey's retirement in 1928 left a muddled picture in the minds of many who were not greatly relieved by an influx of foreign fighters, the retirement of Gene Lougan as lightweight champion, a ruler to enter the bigger class, and considerable activity among the lesser contenders. Sharkey returned to action and knocked out Lougan in the first round of a battle that drew $300,000. Sharkey thereby won general recognition as the American champion. Two new champions were crowned and three successfully defended titles. Jackie Peilow won the welterweight crown from Joe Dundee in a foul in two rounds at Detroit July 25 and Christopher "Babe" Battalino did the same in two rounds at Hartford in 10 rounds September 22. Sammy Mandell warded off Tony Canoner's lightweight title in two rounds at Dayton August 2, and Mickey Walker gave the leading middleweight contender, Ace Hickins, a bad beating in Los Angeles October 29 at the National Boxing Association declared the 160 pound title vacant. Tommy Loughran retired from the light heavyweight division after defeating both Walker and Jimmy Draddock in the heavyweight class but Panama Brown won the recognition of both the association and the New York state athletic commission as heavyweight ruler.

Death Summons Two World-Famous Sports Chieftains, Tex Rickard and Miller Huggins, During Passing Year

Successful Fight Promoter and Mighty Yank Manager Leave Envyable Records of Faithfulness for Work

By ALAN GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Two of the most famous makers of world's champions died during 1929, a year that marked the passing of many notable figures of sport. Tex Rickard, the most picturesque and successful of all boxing promoters, died during the first week of January at Miami Beach as he was in the midst of plans for developing the Florida resort as a winter boxing capital. Miller Huggins, mighty ball manager of the New York Yankees, died in September, his health undermined by the strain of the pennant race in which his club was beaten for the first time in four years in the American League. New York was hit hard by the loss of these two dominating forces in its sport activities. Each, along separate routes, had contributed many of the most dramatic features of the competition which they figured. Each was forced to overcome extraordinary obstacles to success after coming to New York at about the same time.

Wins Catalina Open

TONY MANERO of New York won a $7500 purse by placing first in the annual Catalina Golf tournament.

Victim of Barling

The dare-devil sport of auto racing cleaned among its victims Leo Dible, killed in a crash on the sands of Daytona Beach in an attempt to break the world's straightaway record, and Ray Keesh, one-time holder of this speed record. Keesh was killed at Altona, N. J., shortly after he had won the blue-ribbon of American long-distance racing in the 500-mile Indianapolis sweepstakes. Baseball, in addition to Huggins, lost John Conway Toole, president of the International League; George Stallings, one-time "miracle man" of the Boston Braves when they won the world's series; 1914 Harry Frazee, famous as the man who sold Babe Ruth to the Yankees; and Carl Hubbs, long-time National League batting king and later an umpire and Joe O'Brien, former president of the American association.

1929 World Tennis Drama Features Bill Tilden, Helen Wills and Three Famous Frenchmen in Leading Roles

American Stars Vainly Seek Right to Davis Award in Barnstorming Journeys On Ramparts of France

By TED VOSHUGH (Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The world tennis drama of 1929, in which the great French players and the American standbys, Helen Wills and Bill Tilden, retained leading roles, lacked nothing in elements of color, suspense, and human interest. For the second time in as many years the American forces led by Bill Tilden vainly stormed the ramparts of France seeking to capture the Davis Cup. Playing without its greatest star, René Lacoste, the French gained the necessary three victories by virtue of Henri Cochet's clean sweep against Tilden and young American youth. Tilden split his baggage. To make it interesting, Tilden spilled the bounding "Baque" and "Young American" on the persons of John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, played inspired tennis to win the doubles from Borotra and Cochet. The conquests of the French Musketeers were again invincible in Europe. They not only won the Davis Cup but vanquished large fields in the French and English championships. Henri Cochet won the stakes in both major events and was again acclaimed the first ranking player in the world. The 36-year-old Tilden's triumph over a nice collection of his youthful countrymen to win his seventh American championship in 10 years was the high spot of the season at home. Tilden found the going arduous at times as he fought with René Frank Shalme and then John Van Ryn pressed him hard in the final of the season at home. Tilden found the going arduous at times as he fought with René Frank Shalme and then John Van Ryn pressed him hard in the final of the season at home. One-Sided Races in Big Leagues Tend To Lessen Interest

Baseball—Expert—Predicts Split Season For Two Circuits if Future Follows Practice of Past

Athletes Ability to Shut Out Seven Clubs Early in Season Damaging to Gate-keeper's Business

By JAY VESSELS (Associated Press Feature Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Another year like 1929 in the big leagues and they will be talking about a split-season. That is how one-sided the "races" were. The Athletics didn't give any of the other seven American league clubs a look in after June 1 when they had a five-game lead in the American League. The Cubs established their monopoly one month later. Philadelphia checked in 16 games ahead of second-place Yankees and Chicago holed after the finish line 10-1-2 games in front of the Pirates, the runners-up. Nothing but an old-fashioned seven-game world's series could have saved the season, yet the Athletics were outperforming and from the standpoint of the gate-keeper's business, which the regular program has cut down to four games to one, was just as devoid of thrills as the regular program. The outcome was popular, however. Perhaps nothing could have brought greater satisfaction than to have Connie Mack and his Philadelphia Athletics, who were the only club to win a world championship, been able to play a regular season of 160 games. The "Philadelphia" successful drive was scarcely less noteworthy than the failure of the New York Yankees, the pre-season favorites.

Relief in Players

Some relief to the drab pennant chase was afforded by the individual play of several young and remedial players. Lefty O'Doul, a New York Giant cast-off showed great batting form throughout the season and was the only major league player to hit .400. This gave Lefty the National league batting title. Shining the National league spotlight with O'Doul was another Philadelphia swatter—Chuck Klein, Chuck, a graduate of the Three-I league, celebrated his season and was the only major league slugger to get a home run by bagging 13 homers and setting a new National league record. Few Pennsac came back from the minor to help put Cleveland back on the baseball map in a surprise showing that gave him the league batting championship with 34 home runs and 34 RBIs. The most valuable player award was indicated in an unofficial consensus obtained by The Associated Press.

Fosnes Has Rival

Like O'Doul, Fosnes had a rival for high honors in the New York club. Twenty-year-old Wesley Peirce is the man. Pitching his first big league baseball, Peirce won 21 ball games and established himself as one of the best young pitching prospects in the majors. Two other first-year men ranked with Peirce in the New York club. Fredrick, Brooklyn outfielder, set a new National league mark for two baggers with 17 home runs and 17 RBIs. Boston fly slugger and first baseman, Fred Haney, handled 13 chances in a single game. He had 11 put-outs and one assist. The coldest statistics for the flag were marred by an unusual number of managerial changes, two of which were made before the season ended. The Chicago Athletics, who had been worth to Bill McKechnie in mid-year and with two months to go Donie Bush stepped in at Pittsburgh in place of Jewel Egan.

Panther Star Goes West, Says Coach

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 21 (AP)—Assistant Coach Alex Stevenson today denied reports that Joe Donohoe, all-American end on the University of Pittsburgh's football team, might be behind when the Panthers go to the Pacific coast to play the University of Southern California. Stevenson said that Donohoe would not make his first professional debut until next year. Stevenson said that Donohoe would not make his first professional debut until next year. During Week Bruins Test Strength Against Boys of Hollister and Win by One-Sided Score, 35-4

Twin Falls Girls, Indians of Buhl, Hagerman and Kimberly Players Enter Pre-Campaign Struggles

By E. M. SWEENEY
THE high school basketball teams at the West End of the South Central Idaho athletic district have opened up in practice games, affording something of a view of the season's prospects. The Bruins played the Indians of Buhl and won handily, 35 to 4, disclosing a considerable willingness and playing spirit, and revealing some weaknesses which the coaches will be after with great promptitude. Seven players got a chance in that game. Weaver and Morgan at guard have good height for their work, have had enough competitive experience to be steady under fire, and had a nice sense of time in their individual defense work. On offense, at starting plays from a team change, they are not as quick as they will be a little later, probably due to the change of pace and style game-play produces as compared with the practice scrimmages. Brown's work at center looks promising. He goes up after loose in good shape, likes to tussle and has a good eye for the basket when a chance offers. He is not as heavy as some centers, but has no hesitation in going after the ball, and can move right under men who are in the way.

It shows scoring power against a team that is not of the set-up variety, and promises that this season's team is likely to set the same pace as those of former years.

Filer took both ends of a double-header from Kimberly on the Kimberly floor. In the first game the Filer team won, 21 to 19, after a right lively battle. Both teams are of the fighting variety, but Filer had the better scoring power throughout, those nobly after the Kimberly girls crew somewhat weary. Filer seems to have a squad that has been well prepared in the fundamentals of the game and may give opponents trouble as the season goes along. The boys' game showed a score just one point higher on each side, Filer winning, 21 to 18.

As compared with the Filer team of last year, which was untested in the quality of its play, this year's squad looks like one that will carry a rather steady style of contest to every opponent.

Practitioners Not Safe
The boys' teams are not far enough out in the open to make predictions safe. A constraining way must often be used in many schools the same players, in part, make up the teams in both sports, and for a boy of high school to play a season's football, and then to go into basketball without an adequate rest, is too much of a burden to be justifiable. The girls' situation is different. They have no football training to take time and energy; they are different coaches in many schools, and the girls can, and often do, use the full season for the training in the fundamentals of their style of basketball. As that when the playing season opens they can go ahead with the development of team work. There are two distinct steps: first, the training in the individual skill, not accomplished in a day, and requiring careful coaching over a considerable period; second, the making of the team. The girls' coach, who is at this stage of the season, has much time on finding or training players to the requirements of the game from the individual standpoint, as a real handicap as compared with those who did not let the time slip by unimproved.

Turkey Shooters Get Equal Chance

Twin Falls Rod and Gun Club Arranges Events for Final Shoot of Season

In-competition for big, plump turkeys—if, preferred, juicy cured hams—a large number of shooters will participate in Twin Falls Rod and Gun club's shoot on the club grounds today. It will be the organization's last shoot of the season. Several new features have been incorporated in arrangements for the event.

It is the purpose of the club to put all participants on an even basis, so that all will have an equal chance to win a prize.

A schedule of handicaps is to be applied, and a novel shooting event has been arranged, promising interesting competition.

Shooting will begin at 10 A. M. and continue throughout the day, and lunch will be served on the grounds.

Coast Golfers Lead On Pasadena Course

Johnny Golden and Mehlorhn Stroke Way to Top of List in $4000 Tournament

By PAUL B. ZIMMERMAN (Associated Press Sports Writer)
PASADENA, Dec. 21—Two golf exponents from the Atlantic seaboard, Johnny Golden and Bill Hehlhorn, today struck their way to the lead of a field of more than 100 players in the Pasadena $4000 "open" tournament, putting 26 holes of qualifying play behind them with cards of 140.

Within a strike of this pair trooped a quintet of link performers tied for second place. Among them was George von Elm, Detroit amateur, who yesterday headed the list with this fellow townsman, Walter Hagen.

Along with von Elm came Craig Wood, defending titleholder from Bloomfield, New Jersey; Horton Smith; Johnnie Miskouri; Joe Kirkwood; the trick shot artist from Philadelphia and Devereux Shuler, Columbus, Ohio, all with scores of 141.

Golden, who hails from Paterson, New Jersey, shot 67 on today's 18, one under the course record held by Wood, and four under par figures. This was by a stroke the best card of the proceedings.

"Bill Hehlhorn, New York professional, and Kirkwood had six-eighths for the next best count.

On the basis of scores of 151 or better, 44 qualified to compete for the money in tomorrow's concluding 36 holes.

New Furnace, Filled With Argon, Produces Better Quality of Steel

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE Science Editor (Associated Press Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 21—A new kind of steel making furnace has been developed at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

It is different in that it has a melting chamber filled with pure argon the same non-inflammable, "invisible" gas that is used in neon electric light bulbs.

In lights, argon reduces evaporation of the filament, but in the Carnegie furnace it furthers a quest for pure manganese steel—something never yet produced commercially but sought for its potentially great usefulness in materials requiring toughness, resistance to wear and unusual magnetic properties.

The research is conducted by Dr. Francis M. Walters, Jr., director of the bureau of metallurgical research.

The argon furnace is the last step in a series of purifications necessary to produce the sought for new steel. Previously, gases in the iron and manganese must be removed. Few persons would even suspect iron of containing gas, but it does, in form of a small amount of oxygen that exercises a decided effect on the properties of the iron.

with other elements.

It justifies this name in the furnace by acting as a sort of monitor, keeping out of the forming steel itself, and preventing anything else from going wrong.

One of the handicaps to making manganese steel by other methods which argon overcomes is to prevent any manganese from evaporation.

WENDELL, Dec. 21 (Special to The News)—The basketball season opened here last night for the Wendell high school teams when Eden high school boys and Wendell girls invaded the local court.

Both teams were hard fought and had the Eden girls played as fast in the opening half as they did in the last half, the Wendell team would have lost both halves. Wendell girls took an early lead when Anderson, local right forward, loomed the ball through successfully from most every corner of the court.

Trojans Work Hard Under Coach Jones

Strenuous Dummy Struggle Featuring Play On Line Occupies Attention

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21 (AP)—Coach Howard Jones sent his University of Southern California gridsters through day placing special emphasis on the play of the line, which he said would have to click on New Year's day if the Pittsburgh Panthers are to be turned back at the Pasadena Rose bowl.

Jones placed Captain Nathan Barrer at left running guard position in mid-season by a sophomore, John Baker. Baker apparently has regained his early season form.

Jones indicated he was far from pleased with the functioning of the Trojan line in the Carnegie Tech game which saw the Tartans outstrip the Trojans in the first half, before they wilted and took the short end of the 45-10-13 score. Pittsburgh, the Eastern representative in the annual intercollegiate classic, has a line touted highly along the Atlantic coast.

Junior Lightweight Class Goes To Rocks In Empire State

Outcome of Battle Between Bass and Morgan Spells End

State Commission Likely to Abolish Division as One Definite Means of Punishing Participants
Rumor Has Seattle Fighter Listening to Offer of $25,000 to Throw Battle to Philadelphia Boxer

By EDWARD J. NEIL, Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Dec. 21—The junior lightweight class seems about to die a sudden and natural death in New York state, land of its birth. The death blow, experts believe, was struck last night in Madison Square Garden where Benny Bass, Philadelphia veteran, knocked out the defending champion, Tod Morgan, in two rounds of a title race. Shortly after the raising of Bass' hand as the new 130-pound titleholder, Chairman James A. Farley, state athletic commissioner, announced that neither boxer would be paid until a thorough investigation into every phase of the match had been made. Today, although no official statement could be obtained, it was generally understood that the commission will abolish the class at its meeting Tuesday as the one definite means of punishing the participants for any irregularities that may have prevailed at the ring last night.

By the bar to more direct action. Chairman Farley ordered the sending of the fighters' checks to the commission after it was discovered that the members in the lobby of the garden were offering as high as $10,000 that they would knock out the defending champion.

It was circulated before the fight that Morgan had been guaranteed $35,000 by Phil Glasman, manager of Bass, in return for the title championship. This caused Farley to insist that the members be crowded to be on the way during the action. Glasman said today that stories of the excessive guarantee were completely untrue and in an effort to stir up interest in the match. Entire receipts totalled only $28,000.

FRANK HARRIS
Frank Harris, vice president of the garden, expressed doubts that the 120-pound division several times in questionable spots since its inauguration here seven years ago, be abolished immediately. He said also that in the event the commission took action against Morgan and Bass, they too, along with any other boxes of the managers involved, Glasman and Frank Churchill, would also be "abolished" as far as the garden is concerned.

Old, Coin Indicates Nast's Donkey Had Predecessor for Bourbon Party

WALTHAM, Mass., Dec. 21 (AP)—Thomas Nast, long credited with establishing the donkey as the popular symbol of the Democratic party, may have surrendered or shared his honor.

An old coin or token unearthed here indicates that an animal strongly resembling the Nast donkey apparently was in use as a party symbol before the cartoonist was born.

All this explains why John Branch's gardening has been frequently punctuated by the turning up of coins, reminiscent of a fading past. A seven-cent coin greeted his eye this summer and, upon being cleaned, was revealed as apparently a party token used during the presidency of Martin Van Buren—earliest the date 1837.

The center of one side of the coin is occupied by a figure strongly resembling the Democratic donkey, except that it is shown in full gallop.

Many users of Pep '88' have remarked that this winter gasoline is the best they have ever used. One remark, typical of many which have been made to Pep dealers indicates the popularity with which this product has been received. Here is the average impression of Pep '88' users:

"I have tried every kind of gasoline and I believe that Pep '88' is the best I have ever used."

"I filled my tank the other morning and discovered that my car started easier. I didn't have to use the 'choke' as much and I'm getting remarkable power!"

And, of course, there is a reason for this popularity. Pep '88' gives you instant starting because its lower boiling point enables it to vaporize more readily in your motor. You do not have to use the "choke" as much with Pep '88' as with ordinary gasoline.

A cleaner motor is yours when you use Pep '88'—winter's hottest gasoline. It comes to you fresh from the refinery. There is no chance for evaporation to rob it of its quick-starting efficiency. Remember, too, that Pep deposits only 1-13th as much carbon residue as ordinary gasoline. It is therefore the driest and cleanest gasoline on this market.

Sold at the same price as regular Pep gasoline, this Pep '88' will effect winter time economies in the operation of your car.

Temblors In Hawaii Warn Expert Of Probable Lava Flow

Volcanologist Watches Three Island Craters Rumbling Ancient Threats

World Famous Vents of Kilauea, Mauna Loa and Hilauca May Again Spout Molten Misses Within Short Time, Says Scientist

The photograph shows the crater and fire pit of Kilauea, one of the Hawaiian volcanoes from which a lava flow is predicted soon. The map shows the principal volcanoes on the island of Hawaii, and that island's relation to the city of Honolulu.

HILO, Island of Hawaii, Dec. 21 (AP)—A lava flow is predicted as likely in this island by Dr. Thomas A. Jaeger, Dr. Jaeger, who is volcanologist at the Kilauea volcano observatory, says it may come within a month or two. "A lava flow," he explains, "means that one of several things may happen. Molten lava may at any moment spout out warning start coming through one or all the known volcanic vents. Or it may not be so quiet. Its appearance at the surface at any point may be preceded by an earthquake or an explosion."

The island has three world-famous craters, Kilauea, Mauna Loa and Hualai.

The last named has been extinct since 1801 and its crater is 8000 feet above sea level. Nevertheless, Hualai is included in the possible vents which may cause a subterranean demonstration that has been under way since September. Hundreds of earthquakes have shaken the island, and seismographic have centered them chiefly beneath this extinct volcano near the North Kona district. One particularly big shock was felt simultaneously at Hualai, at Kilauea and at Hilauca, more than 100 miles apart, and because of this Dr. Jaeger advanced the theory that it may have come from the strong movement of an enormous lens of molten lava, lying perhaps at great depth underneath the entire island of Hawaii. The more distinct, separate shocks recorded particularly at Hualai are probably, Dr. Jaeger thinks, the result of a column of lava moving upward in earth faults. The fact that since October the number and force of quakes has decreased has, he believes, led Dr. Jaeger's opinion on the present position of the lava within the mountains. It may soon be impelled by forces pressing upward against the vault beneath the interior of the is-

BURLEY GROUP HEARS POTATO MEN'S AGENT

Will H. Gibson, Organizer for Idaho Bureau, Tells of Aims of Association

BURLEY, Dec. 21 (Special to The News)—Members of the Burley Chamber of Commerce at a special meeting here Friday, Dec. 20, with Will H. Gibson, organizer for the Idaho Potato Bureau, explain the aims and purpose of his association.

The bureau, said Gibson, is an auxiliary of the National Potato Institute. Its local field of operations extends throughout the potato-growing sections of the state from St. Anthony to Weiser, its activities being in the hands of 29 directors including both growers and dealers of the different districts, under the active direction of an executive committee of nine men.

Neither the national institute nor the Idaho bureau, the speaker stated, aimed to take any action in the actual marketing problems confronting the distribution of this important Idaho product. The main purposes of the Idaho bureau, he said, were to advertise its merits, to maintain its high standard, and to protect infringement through misbranding and misrepresentation.

Gibson said that 22 years ago the first car of Idaho potatoes was billed out of this state, and since then its superior merits has placed Idaho at the head of all states in general distribution of potatoes, the product going in carload lots to 46 states. A single year's distribution has reached the enormous total of 29,000 carloads.

Asks Co-operation
Gibson asked for the co-operation of business men as well as the growers and land.

The damage from the quake has been limited. Stone walls which had no cement, water tanks and roads locally built in precipitous places have tumbled. The ranch house of Senator Robert Hind, in the center of the active region, was badly shaken, and the oldest church on the island of Kailua suffered a cracked corner. Hawaii is the only island of the Hawaiian group that experiences volcanic activity. It is considered by geologists as the only one still in the making. Kaula is perhaps the oldest island, next comes Oahu, and Molokai—Honolulu is situated, and then Molokai, Maui and Lanai.

Men of Action Dominate in Search for Mrs. Crouse

Facts of Case Meagre at Beginning of Investigation

Business Executives, High in Affairs of Day, Take Part

By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS
UTICA, Dec. 21 (AP)—Some- where there is wandering or con- ceded or lost a quiet, richly dressed, elderly woman who for about four weeks has escaped what probably is the most thor- oughly organized system of search ever applied to the trail of a missing person.

Mrs. Beecher M. Crouse, Utica, N. Y., has been mysteriously missing since the night of November 14. Meager, indeed, were the facts from which the investigators took their start. All that was known of the immediate case was that this 58-year-old woman—rich, influential, socially prominent—charitable and the happiest home- walker out of her house on Utica's main street into the darkness of night and vanished as completely as if she had jumped off the edge of the world.

The family confined the inquiry to private and club channels for the first 24 hours. Then the search took on its secondary and unique phase. Beecher M. Crouse, the husband, is a typical man of large affairs. His friends are of the same type; experienced ex- ecutives, men of quick and practical ac- tion. They met informally, volunteered for indefinite service and mapped their program.

Mansion Cleared for Action

The Crouse mansion was cleared for ac- tion. A sign on the once exclusive door bid the public to "walk in without knocking. Anyone was welcome who had a possible clue to a practical find."

Nine telephones installed; a fil- ing system was arranged; a 24-hour ser- vice was established. Before the system had three days it had traced to the source dozens of clues in as little as four hours after the first information.

The Crouse family has influential friends everywhere. One of the early volunteers was Patrick E. Crowley, pres- ident of the New York Central railroad, who set out railroad detectives and their chief, J. D. Boosa, on the trail. The 30,000 employes of the system were made available for the search.

The New York City bureau of missing persons volunteered, and every police chief in the nation was notified.

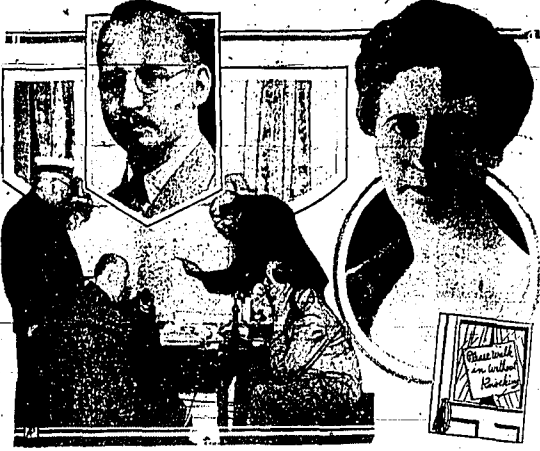

Appeals went on the air. Through Owen D. Young station WGY broke into a chain broadcast with a description of the missing woman.

National organizations were enlisted—Klwanis, Rotary and Lions clubs, Me- sonic lodges, the Travelers' Aid and the Young Women's Christian association.

More than 10,000 letters and circulars went out in New York state alone, carry- ing the offer of $5000 reward for information.

Experts On Trail

Next experts were put upon the dim trail of the mind. There had been a period when Mrs. Crouse, although at all times sane, was in an overstrained nervous and mental state. What bear- ing might this have upon her disap- pearance?

Dr. R. H. Hulehings, head of the state hospital at Utica, and Professor Donald A. Laird of Colgate university, a noted writer on psychology, with Mrs. Crouse's daughter found in the house more than 400 documents in Mrs. Crouse's writing and many letters covering years.

One fact established was that she has long practiced secret charities out of her private income, and had a wide ac- quaintance among the "submerged" classes.

Another was her interest in various religious, tending for a time toward Roman Catholicism. Appeals were made to the high Catholic authorities and every diocese in the country and in Cin- cinnati got an official communication. "Later a night letter was sent to the police chiefs in the four states where there was the greatest likelihood of her being found, requesting them to get word to all clergymen, sextons and church- warden in their respective districts.

Country Combed

Locally the country has been combed with a thoroughness probably never equaled except in a war area. Steps were staked out into small divisions and these were covered by the state and local police, the Boy Scouts, the local cavalry troop of the national guard, a special organization of Adirondack guides and the Automobile Club of Utica, which sent out radiating squads of cars making personal inquiries.

All wells and pools have been drained, hunters have been specially requested to be on the lookout, and every rural delivery box within 40 miles of the city has been circled.

Escape by railroad has been prac- tically eliminated, as all station officials and trainmen have been interviewed and every cash fare out of Utica in the 24 hours after the disappearance has been traced.

Further, all telegrams and telephone calls from the Crouse place for several days previous have been run down with- out clue.

It would seem that, for people in the country can not be ignorant of the fact that a woman 58 years old, retired in manner, of less than medium height, looking to weigh about 125 pounds, and wearing a tan overcoat, beaver-trimmed, is being sought throughout the nation.

HEMPLINES EVEN AT LEVELS OF ANKLES

Dressmakers of Paris Utter Last Word in Style for Women's Clothing

By DIANA MERIVIN
Fashion Editor,
(Associated Press Feature Service)

PARIS, Dec. 21—Ankle long skirts were uttered by dressmakers who make witty, even hemlines are the very last styles as well as clothes.

The dizzy hemlines of the past months are straightening up a little, and wags ones expect them to be definitely on the way out by the time next spring's styles are shown in January.

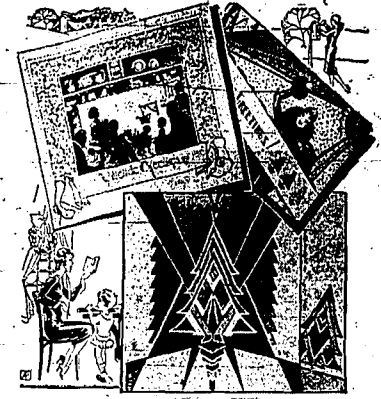

Hemlines, which lift in the front and drop to the floor behind are already stamped "last season" by Parisian opin- ion. The higher the skirt lifts in front the more out of date it looks, and, con- trarily, the longer the skirt is in front the newer it appears.

One or two novelty-seeking designers have reversed last season's order and created evening gowns which touch the toes in front and lift half-way to the knees in back. These models are not taken seriously, however, and the general trend is not affected by them.

Afternoon ensembles are radically longer and also tend to even hemlines at ankle length. Paris makes a dis- tinction these days between "5 to 8" ensembles and clothes for wear from 1 to 5. The rule is simple:

"The later the hour the longer the skirt."

Mrs. Coolidge took an active interest in the Salvation Army. During the last several years of her stay in the White House she helped distribute toys at the Salvation Army Christmas festivals. The Girl Scouts are Mrs. Hoover's particular pride. It was through her that they obtained the pleasant "Little House," a model headquarters in Wash- ington.

Flippant Moderns of United States Escape Ban But Many English Writers Studied in New World Schools and Colleges Under Disapprobation

PRISONS OVERFLOWING
Our total prison population, the National Society for Penal Information shows, has increased one-half in the last ten years, and is growing now faster than ever.

Two facts particularly impress anyone who studies the situation. First, this great increase of penal population seems to come largely from offenses against the prohibition and narcotic drugs laws, which provide forty-seven per cent of all the federal prisoners. Second, the resulting over-crowdedness is a part of the cause of the bloody outbreaks in American prisons this year.

NATIONAL CHRISTMAS GIFT
Congress plays Santa Claus. The income tax reduction bill is the nation's biggest Christmas gift.

The gift doesn't cost Congress anything and it's easy for Santa Claus with other people's money. Don't look for the cost mark on a Christmas gift. Congress behaved handsomely, and the Senate's acceptance of a wise suggestion without undue oratory and postponement deserves all praise. It is an earnest of further beneficence in the coming year.

The amount of the reaction is not very important. To the nation as a whole, one hundred million dollars out of ninety billion dollars income is little. Likewise to most of the individual taxpayers. The sum out from their normal tax would neither make nor break them. Senatorial critics were right—it was a "psychological" reduction. It was meant to make people feel good, and it served the purpose. Anyone hawking up half a dollar in the street, or giving the price reduced unexpectedly, the pound of coffee, the rich richer for it. It is desirable to make the nation feel a little richer after that stock market collapse. And if the remedy is surgical, so was the cause.

TEMPERANCE EDUCATION
Said Passyford Johnson in a lecture delivered in St. Antonio, Texas:
"Prohibition has reached a serious crisis. Unless people are educated to the value of temperance, prohibition will fail. There are probably thirty million young men and women in America who are at prohibition. The great majority of these are ignorant of the value of temperance. The metropolitan press is well informed of the United States, but is not doing its duty."

Without accepting all this as proved or even subject to proof, it must be admitted that education is essential in the promotion of temperance. The arguments for and against prohibition in this country are often muddled. The arguers see themselves not to know whether they are discussing temperance or the prohibition law. There are points on each side of the question, who practice it in their own lives and who teach it to their children. More of such education on temperance itself and on education in general, would do this country good.

A TRUSTFUL WIFE
Another chapter in the criminal war of wits fiction. A man living quietly with his wife in a select residential section in a small Michigan city, regarded as a wealthy merchant from Chicago, attracts attention by shooting a traffic policeman. Officers raiding his home find a fortified treasury house containing more than five hundred dollars in cash and bonds. There is said to be conclusive evidence that the tenant is a robber and a murderer. Aid here is the most valuable part of the story. The wife, questioned by the police, says that her husband had a hobby. "He told her nothing, and she never suspected he was engaged in illegitimate business," she said. "I don't know where he got the money. He told her nothing, and she never suspected he was engaged in illegitimate business," she said. "I don't know where he got the money."

In my duties as Congress Card, I have taken up the matter of Christmas Cards. NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The words which New York has given to the American language would make a sizeable compendium in any lexicon. And as I watched through the darkness fast descending I saw coming towards me a heavy laden man with a pack of goods, many oxen, flocks of sheep, and herds of goats, and much people. I could see along the road which came out of the East. For in the distance three travelers coming towards me. Mounted on three camels, each carried in his arms some precious burden. And as they passed I saw that the first was an old man, and that he is all good; now it is revealed to us that there is only one son and that he is all good, and that his name shall be called Wonderful.

THE LIFE LAID DOWN
By The Rev. Samuel T. Senter, D. D. (Pastor First Methodist Church.)
The sacrifice of Christ was the willing choice of love. Before men sought Him, before they were conscious of their needs, before they gave any expression to their heart-hunger, there was made the sacrifice of love in their behalf. "The gift of God is eternal life."

THE NEW MODEL
By D. R. CHURCHILL.
In this age of new inventions, I often wonder why Somebody hasn't long ere this tried to make his trousers reversible. And face him right about; Then he could see before he's told His shirt was creeping out.

LET'S PRETEND
SANTA'S REIN-DEER
When he's out his looking, I placed a little note. "Dear Santa Claus, please call me. I'm sure to be asleep. I sleep so hard you can't find me. But next day I saw footprints. Of rein-deer in the snow."

THE LATCHSTRING—
Peace within and joy beyond all doubt! Welcome always, for the Latch-string's out.
BY ROSEMARY
"Everyone can't have a big family during Christmas day or be invited to one," said Nathalie who pulled the Latch-string and walked in the other. "Even if I can't work my girl and my one apartment and a ring apartment, I intend to have a little Christmas feast all the same for a few of my friends."

EDUCATION... From Everybody's Angle

LABOR LEADER LOOKS AT SCHOOL SYSTEM
This is the second of a series of articles in which Mr. Green presents his views on the present, through the National Education Association, their personal views on education, and suggests a program of reform.
By WILLIAM GREEN (President, American Federation of Labor)
The organized labor movement had a very considerable part in establishing a public school system in the United States. It is the duty of the labor movement to see that the school system is maintained and improved.

WILLIAM GREEN, President, American Federation of Labor.

There is no handicap so fatal as ignorance and no chance so difficult to overcome as that created by restrictions on access to information and education. The public school system has failed many backward and backward educational opportunities for only favored groups, and has helped to provide that intellectual opportunity essential to practical democracy.

Progress comes from the application of knowledge to specific problems. The remarkable social progress of the past few decades parallels additions to information and rapid expansion of educational opportunities and intellectual life and technical industrial and social progress.

The public school system has a responsibility in the helping boys and girls to live in the fullest and richest sense. This includes the spiritual as well as intellectual and physical growth. It should be able to reach boys and girls now to live, the school must provide vital, penetrating contacts with life and work. The school must know the conditions and forces in life. It must know how to equip students with the necessary personal resources to grapple with the problems of life and to develop through solving these problems.

THE GUMPS—TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE

"LOVE SHY" by Barbara Webb

Janet nodded her head, happy all at once... "I don't mind if you're a little shy."

"I thought so," Janet cried. "I knew it the moment I saw you come in with Jimmy... I'll have you paint your eyes exactly the type I've been looking for."

"I could come Saturday afternoon," Janet offered. "or Sundays if you're not too busy then."

She followed the apartment from the living room to the bedroom... "I hate, framed pictures," Mildred said, going over to one of the larger canvases.

"Mildred's words were very direct, none of it was medicine... Janet was startled. "I-I guess I was tired and sleeping."

"Flee from Chinese Bandits" - A cartoon illustration of a man being chased by several figures.

Janet—who knows, you may all belong to the 'I-knew-her-when-club some day.'

"I belong now," Janet said, a little breathlessly, her eyes shining. "I never have seen so many lovely things at one time in my life before."

"Do you think father will like her?" Jimmy asked. "I know he will—she's had."

"I don't," Jimmy told her. "Not food like this anyway." Janet looked dreamily into her mirror while the brother and sister smoked cigarettes.

"Mildred laughed. 'Then say here a few minutes. If you don't mind, and toast your toes by the fire while I light it up with Jimmy about that landscape painting of mine.'"

"Janet hardly noticed them so. She was soothed and fascinated by her surroundings, warmed by the fire, secure in the welcome she had received."

"The Rev. Everett S. Burkitt, Glendale, California, and his wife, Margaret Burkitt, missionaries in southern China, are believed to have been in the Twin Falls, Idaho, and have been held in custody by the Chinese."

STATE PARK AREAS SHOW BIG INCREASE

Thousands of Acres of Land Enhanced by Beauties of Nature Enlarge Domains

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Thousands of acres of winning streams, cool waterfalls and green woods have been added by 15 states to their state domains in the last year and a half.

Reports gathered by the national conference on state parks show that Oregon added 19 new acres, more than any other state. Some are old, being nothing more than a widening of the right of way to give a public spot or a line view.

One, however, remains free acres in the form of a 1000-foot-wide strip of timber along both sides of the Old Oregon trail across the Blue mountains. Oregon is the only state in which highways are used for acquiring parks. The most general park undertaking is the restoration of the pioneer village of Shasta Mill state park. The houses are to remain inhabited and the crops of more than 2000 acres are to be carried on there normally.

California Adds Three Parks. California has added three new parks and enlarged two others. All have been added to state domains, which have increased from 10,000 to 100,000 acres and more to be 200 feet tall.

Texas new parks is a square ranch in the southwestern part of the state. It is to be fenced and stocked with big game. Arkansas, which has had only two parks, acquired another. Illinois has purchased three new park areas with a total of 439 acres.

Missouri, Michigan, Iowa, Indiana, Missouri and New Jersey have added to or enlarged their park systems.

A MESSAGE FOR CHRISTMAS

By the Reverend Ernest R. Allman, rector
CHURCH OF THE ASCENSION

CHRISTMAS is here! Wonderful, mystic, alluring Christmas. Who is not happy? Who does not look out on life with more light in his eyes, and more love in his heart? And the secret of it all lies in a far off event the Good News of which is still retold to the world in song and story gathering up the message of the manger at Bethlehem, and the song of the angels proclaiming the will of God.

Occasionally men are born in this world who are more than individuals. They are types which represent all other men of their class, as Washington represents the type of the man we call the patriot, another, the man of unscrupulous ambition, and still another the traitor. The infant Jesus is the new and better type of humanity which will take up the world's work where the saints of God have laid it down and rout the brutal Philistines from the field, smiting them hip and thigh.

The more one thinks about it the more he sees that it is the weakest things as well as the strongest that create Christ-likeness in us, and that if we are to extend the meaning of Christmas in this world of human life and need we must have within us the love of children, and the unselfish compassion of the Christ of history whose life and words proclaim "Peace on earth among men of Good Will."

Church of the Ascension

10:20—CHRISTMAS EVE. This will be a candle light service and chief service of Christmas beginning at 10:20

IDAHO'S HIGHWAY PROGRAM FOR 1930 CALLS FOR EXPENDITURE OF $2,830,000 FOR NEW CONSTRUCTION, IMPROVEMENTS AND REPAIRS

PUBLIC WORKS CHIEF OFFERS ESTIMATE ON NEED FOR NEXT YEAR

Commissioner Joe D. Wood bases figures on present Federal Aid Schedule for Work on Roads Gem State Department Head Points to Necessity of Raising Additional Local Funds to Carry out Plans

(By The Associated Press) BOISE, Dec. 18 — The 1930 highway program for Idaho calls for spending $2,830,000 on new construction, improvements and reconstruction, J. D. Wood, commissioner of public works, said today in reviewing highway work of the last year and estimating next year's activities.

These figures were based on the present federal aid schedule and did not consider the possibility of congress adding $50,000,000 to the federal aid appropriation. "If the present session of congress acts favorably on the proposed increase of $50,000,000 federal aid to be made Commissioner Wood said, it will be possible to increase the program for new construction and betterments to at least $3,000,000 and to increase the amount tentatively allotted for reconstruction to include work desirable from a maintenance standpoint."

Under the present federal aid schedule, next year's program contemplates spending $1,700,000 for new construction, $750,000 for betterments, consisting mainly of aided surface construction, and $380,000 for reconstruction and betterments on road work of gravel roads.

Need Local Funds
In connection with the possible increase in federal aid appropriation, Commissioner Wood pointed out that additional local funds will be required to match this money. The state's highway resources are limited to the gasoline tax and a share of the automobile license income.

Though the gasoline tax receipts are increasing steadily, Commissioner Wood related that the amount of gasoline used other than on the highways was taking an increasingly large bite out of the receipts. Gasoline tax receipts increased 78 per cent between 1928 and 1929, the review stated. During the past year, the receipts increased an additional 30 per cent while the total tax receipts increased about seven per cent. This year it was estimated that the returns would total $23,500,000, with $10,000,000 receipts from $21,500,000, estimated, to $1,000,000.

Total revenue for the year based upon estimates is $23,500,000, including $550,000 federal aid; $1,900,000 net gasoline tax; $175,000 motor vehicle licenses (state's share); $800,000 local cooperation funds supplied by counties and highway districts.

Part of Plans Incomplete

Part of the 1929 program was not completed. The new schedule of expenditure of work on the remaining program, estimated to cost approximately $600,000, has been unavoidably delayed on account of tight money conditions. In some cases due to the financial arrangements having been concluded too late in the season that plans could not be prepared and right of way obtained in time for 1929 construction.

Besides the program for construction and betterments, a total of $275,000 has been expended on reconstruction and special maintenance, mainly on the most heavily traveled routes, and approximately $1,000,000 for regular maintenance of the 3550 miles of highways maintained by the state.

A summary of the more important highway improvements completed during the season and under construction or in progress at the close of the year was given. The list included $1,020,000 in uncompleted 1928 projects, called for spending $1,974,000 of which $469,000 was supplied by federal appropriations for local highways.

The list includes:

- NORTH AND SOUTH HIGHWAY — Grading and surfacing 20.7 miles $225,000; oiled surface construction of 13.9 miles $52,500; bridge repairs, $2070; special slide removal $2500; clearing and grubbing 7.8 miles $2000.
- OLD OREGON TRAIL — New construction, grading and surfacing 25.2 miles $155,000; oiled surface construction 19.3 miles $50,500; light oil treatment 63 miles $25,000; shoulder construction and drainage, $20,000.
- YELLOWSTONE PARK HIGHWAY — Oiled surface construction 53 miles $49,200; resurfacing 18.5 miles $27,800; drainage and miscellaneous structures, $600.
- COEUR D'ALENE-YELLOWSTONE TRAIL — Light oil treatment 17 miles $7000; reconstruction and widening 87,500.
- PALOUSE HIGHWAY — Clearing and grubbing 4.2 miles $2000.
- PAIDWAY HIGHWAY — Grading and surfacing 11.75 miles $23,000; oiled surface 1.5 miles $40,000.

Keith Triumphs in "Light Fingers" at Orpheum Now

A notable rogue is Ian Keith in "Light Fingers", the Columbia all-talking picture coming to the Orpheum theatre today, in which he plays the title role.

He is handsome and worldly—irresistible to the fair sex. He is so well mannered that he is welcomed into the home of the most fastidious. But in spite of these admirable qualities, he is a notorious vice thief, the leader of a street and infamous band of gentlemen crooks, who wear immaculate, well-tailored clothes, speak fluently and look as though they were of the social elite.

Light Fingers carries out his work so smoothly that no one ever suspects him to be other than a perfect gentleman. He has a keen sense of humor and is highly intelligent. He will win his way into the heart of the most cold and unfeeling just as he will into the hearts of Dorothy Madison, played by Dorothy Weaver. Others in the cast include Carroll Nye and Ralph Theodore.

Idaho Theatre Patrons To See Ziegfeld Film

The most pretentious parade of picture-entertainment ever produced for the production of picture patrons will be seen and heard at the Idaho theatre three days starting this afternoon when Florenz Ziegfeld's "Glorifying the American Girl" comes there.

With most of its spectacle photographed by the famous Technicolor process, this film is one of the biggest eye and ear entertainments to be projected on the screen since talking pictures became one of the staples of life. Ziegfeld himself personally supervised the production. Mary Eaton, star of many a Ziegfeld stage show on Broadway, is leading lady. The story shows how she, as a tank town nobody, gains success on the New York stage after many trials and tribulations. There is romance, comedy and excitement in this moving tale of the great

ALEXANDRIANS KEEP OLD COLONIAL CHARM

City, Highly Interested in Henry Ford's Proposal, Presents Front of Past

By L. A. BROPHY (Associated Press Feature Service Writer) ALEXANDRIA, Va., Dec. 21—Old Alexandria, now highly interested in Henry Ford's proposal to transport one of his automobiles to the city, is presenting a front of the past.

Step off Federal highway 1, which bisects the city at its widest street, and you are among antiquaries; tolerantly tolerant of the passage of a century or more.

There is, as an instance, an apothecary establishment. Certainly any clerk in the glittering interiors of the modern drug store would consider the shop a doll's house.

Unchanged in Appearance It is unchanged in appearance, inside and outside, from the days of its establishment when George Washington and his committee traveled in from the countryside to satisfy their apothecary needs.

The same family has operated the business for nearly a century. The shelves are filled with jars, placed on the shelves in the beginning, remain and are in use today.

Brick knackers gleam on the solid doors of dignified residences, old by a century or more; foot scrapers catch the reflected rays of the sun.

Alexandria is best known, perhaps, for its churches, completed in 1772, where Washington worshipped, making the journey from Mount Vernon, some 50 miles distant. General Lee was confirmed in the church in 1852 by Bishop Meade.

To enumerate the other standing, and substantial historic structures available and ready to peer into the pages of American history. There is the home of Robert E. Lee, where the famous general spent his boyhood, and from which he was free school, remained in use today.

Market Crash May Divert Investments to Mining in Idaho

STOCK VALUE DROP TENDS TO ENHANCE STATE ENTERPRISES

Inspector Believes Prosperity in Store for Realm

1929 Surpluses Ceyler On Big Mart Exchanges

Securities Will Exhilarate Interest in Minerals of Area

(By The Associated Press) Boise, Dec. 21.—Predicting that the crash in the stock market would divert a considerable amount of investment into mining enterprises and spell a good year for Idaho was made today by Stewart Campbell, state mine inspector.

It was a different picture to that painted for 1929, Campbell said, explaining that "the year 1929 witnessed the starting of the smallest number of new enterprises and the smallest amount of development work by previously organized companies of any year since 1921 and 1922."

"This condition was caused by the fact that it was exceedingly difficult to market securities in enterprises based on the development of mines, as the investing public throughout the United States was devoting its attention to stocks listed on the large exchanges. Not only was this condition reflected in mining, but in all other industries throughout the Western states. The October-November crash in the stock market appears to have terminated the gambling craze and as the investing public has learned that this type of investment is more hazardous than investing in legitimate mining enterprises, it is again turning its attention to the latter."

Prosperous Horizon This change had become noticeable by the middle of December, and as there appears to be no reason why the changed attitude should not continue throughout the coming year, it is safe to assume that the mining industry in Idaho should be more prosperous in 1930 than in 1929, particularly as new construction and new enterprises.

The last year witnessed a prosperous condition in the industry in Idaho, Campbell said. The large producing mines maintained capacity production throughout the year until the closing weeks when production was curtailed by a few operators on account of the low metal prices, caused by the reaction of the stock markets.

"However, the curtailed production was not sufficient to be reflected in the total for the year, which will equal if not exceed that of 1928, although the value of the 1929 production as compared with that of 1928 was less, since the prices of Idaho's principal metals, lead, zinc and silver, were much lower for this year. There will probably be an increase in production and value of copper, while the production of gold will be about the same as that of 1928."

New Resources New ore resources were developed by most of the larger mines, Campbell said, while some enlarged and improved their plants. Smaller mines installed mills and auxiliary work.

continued low prices of lead, zinc and silver and their consequent effect upon production and profits, Campbell said, the loss would likely be small.

"It may safely be predicted that the mining industry in 1930 will be in a prosperous and healthy condition, with a substantial increase in the number of small producing mines."

DASHFUL ALDEN'S KIN FIGHTS FRUIT PESTS

Descendant of Old Family Speaks For Georgia to Hordes of Manufacturers

CORNELIA, Ga., Dec. 21.—When the Coy Frisella spoke her oft-quoted lines to John Alden, little did either dream that one of these days a descendant of the Aldens would be speaking for the state of Georgia to a horde of insect manufacturers.

Charles J. Alden, chairman direct descent from the original John, is entomologist at the State Plant Laboratory here in the heart of the Georgia apple country, breeding bugs to fight other bugs.

He has a steerable brood of the genus trichogramma minutum. It one sets what he means, arch-enemy of any kind of pest that stalks the orchards of Georgia.

The "tricho" is classified as an insect parasite, living by its wits and its capacity for the eggs of other insects. He finds their eggs, lays his own inside them and when the young larva hatches, he proceeds to consume whatever is on the inside of a bug's egg.

Mr. Alden said experiments have disclosed that the "tricho" works to such a degree of efficiency that when he has done his tree-to-tree canvass of an orchard 95 per cent of the pest eggs there will be parasitized.

Apple, peach and pecan growers have taken on new hope since Mr. Alden imported the tiny samurai from California. The cool weevil and the Mediterranean fruit fly are immune to the attacks of the "tricho."

Unusual Shell-Shock Case Draws Attention

LONDON, Dec. 21.—An unusual case of "shell-shock" dating from World War I has come to the attention of medical authorities here.

The victim is a London omnibus conductor who complains he has not seen warm for 14 years; that is, not since the day the cruiser on which he was serving in 1915 was torpedoed in far northern waters.

"I still dream of gasping for breath as the icy seas swept over us," he relates, "and I've never stopped shivering since."

Specialists who have investigated the case say it is quite possible that the nervous and physical shock described should make a man cold for life.
