PRESIDENT INSPECTS BURNED INTERIOR OF WHITE HOUSE OFFICE

Chief Magistrate Ventures Out From Living Quarters to Determine Extent of Damage and Lay Plans

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Dec. 25—President Hoover left his living quarters in the White House and his Christmas decorations today to inspect the charred and soot-stained interior of the executive offices, where yesterday he had cleared his desk preparatory to enjoying a restful holiday.

So far as Christmas eve was concerned, it was a quiet but restful. As the President and Mrs. Hoover sat at dinner with their son and with the children of the White House secretaries party guests, an alarm of fire reached the table.

Mr. Hoover and the men diners excused themselves and watched the blazing destruction of the recently occupied offices. The fire broke out in the structure should be rebuilt immediately.

He conferred with Colonel W. C. Grant, III, superintendent of public buildings grounds here, who was requested to have contractors notified that bids would be asked early tomorrow.

In the meantime some 20 carpenters came lumber under the sagging roof to prevent it from falling in.

Tosses Medicine Ball The Christmas party started as does every morning for the president—a frolicsome game of tossing the medicine ball. His partners were Secretary Wilbur, Chairman Leage of the farm commission, Commissioner Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, and Mark Sullivan, a friend.

Their play over the group joined in every morning for the president—a frolicsome game of tossing the medicine ball.

DEPARTMENT HEADS DISPARAGE BORAH'S PROHIBITION VIEWS

Three Caustic Statements on Enforcement Heighten Spreading Controversy on Liquor Law Violation

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Dec. 25—Three caustic statements on prohibition enforcement tonight heightened the spreading controversy over the 'dry' laws. Two prohibition department heads, the stand taken by Senator Borah, Idaho, and him, replying that a 'hectic effort' was ardently required.

For the department of justice, Attorney General Mitchell said that, when congress sees fit to strengthen the dry enforcement machinery, those who administer the law 'will be able to accomplish more.'

For the treasury department, Prohibition Commissioner Dorn said Borah's recent denunciation of the entire 'volstead personnel' was unfounded and bound to have a disheartening effect upon its morale of the service.

The Idaho senator yesterday expressed the conviction that the alcohol traffic would never be suppressed 'with the present personnel from top to bottom.' Tonight he said Mitchell's statement that 'an effort is being made to improve the personnel' evidently meant that 'his conditions were such as to call for an effort and an heroic effort.'

The attorney general said there had been an improvement in the last six months. (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

HOSTELRY FOR HOMELESS MEN CLOSES IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 25 (AP)—Hotel de Gink, a hostelry for homeless men, which had become known throughout the greater part of the country, closed its doors today after serving a Christmas dinner to more than 1000 outcasts.

The institution has been sponsored by Mayor Frank X. Schwab, who will relinquish his office January 1. Its work will be taken over by various city and social agencies.

Complaint was made from some sources that the de Gink attracted thousands of undesirables to Buffalo, where the hostelry provided free board and lodgings. The real reason for the closing, however, was said to be lack of funds with which to carry on the work.

MORTHEMERS REPORT HEARING LOST PLANE

SEARCHERS FOR CARL EITELSON AND COMPANION UNCOVER CLUE TO FATE OF FLIERS

SEATTLE, Dec. 25 (AP)—A clue has been uncovered in the search for Carl Ben Etelson and Earl Borland, Arctic fliers, who have been missing more than six weeks. Alfred J. Lomen, director of rescue operations in Nome, informed a Seattle newspaper today.

He said Pilot Joe Crosson radioed a message from the trading ship Nantux near North Cape, Siberia, that traders and natives near there had heard Etelson's plane circling overhead for a long while as though seeking a place to land.

While not stated in the message, it is assumed that the plane was heard near the ship on November 9, the day it was last seen flying from the Alaskan mainland to the leeward bank to take passengers and furs off the marooned vessel.

Lomen also said Crosson has had natives build a temporary hangar out of snow blocks near North Cape to shelter his plane and keep it out of cold white warming the motor.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—The same official greetings as would be accorded to the active head of a nation tonight awaited the arrival in Washington tomorrow of President-elect Pascual Ortiz Rubio of Mexico.

Earlier plans had been for President Hoover to receive the visiting dignitary. The secretary and Mrs. Stimson, however, but these arrangements were changed because of the fire last night which made the place unusable.

It was not from Lady Astor, but from the cabinet staff, each and every member of which yesterday received a personal gift from the ambassador.

The appreciative staff sent scrolls to find what General Davis wanted in his own stocking. With great delicateness the ambassador said that he did not want anything but a scroll of drink, and he added emphatically that he certainly did not want flowers.

After thinking for a while, he said that if anyone could find him some of his favorite American smoking tobacco he would be pleased. The ambassador was followed by a big jar of London tobacco, and the old under-stump pipe worked overtime tonight.

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Dec. 25—President Hoover's Christmas dinner for his cabinet members, which set the White House ablaze with lights tonight, brought to close Washington's official celebration of the yuletide holiday.

Unofficial Washington, not only dined but danced as well far into the night. A dozen or more affairs in honor of diplomats and visiting dignitaries, West Point cadets and college undergraduates, briefly let free from school took on brilliance in keeping with the capital's Christmas spirit.

The children of Secretaries Turley and Davis enjoyed the repast, as did the son of Secretary Wilbur, who is here from Stanford university for the holidays. Young Wilbur and his brother, son of the president, were together.

The president and his immediate family enjoyed an old-fashioned Christmas dinner, with wild turkey—his favorite fowl—as the dish. The bird was brought down in Virginia last week by Lawrence Richy, one of the president's secretaries.

PRESIDENT INSPECTS BURNED INTERIOR OF WHITE HOUSE OFFICE

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 — President Hoover left his living quarters in the White House and their Christmas decorations today to inspect the charred and soot-stained interior of the executive offices, where yesterday he had cleared his desk preparatory to enjoying a restful holiday.

So far as Christmas eve was concerned, it was anything but restful. As the President and Mrs. Hoover sat at dinner with their son and with the children of the White House secretaries party guests, an alarm of fire reached the table.

Mr. Hoover and the men divers excused themselves and rushed to the scene of destruction of the recently occupied offices. Today the president decided the structure should be rebuilt immediately.

Work conferred with Colonel U. S. Grant, III, superintendent of public buildings and grounds here, who was requested to have contractors notified that bids would be asked early tomorrow. In the meantime some 20 carpenters placed timber under the sagging roof to prevent it from falling in.

Hoover's morning started as does every morning for the president—in a frolicsome game of tossing the medicine ball. His partners were Secretary Wilson, chairman League of the farm board; Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, the White House physician; and Mark Sullivan, an associate secretary.

They play over the group joined others passing through the fire-lashed building nearby, heading cautiously to the west. His partners were Secretary Wilson, chairman League of the farm board; Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, the White House physician; and Mark Sullivan, an associate secretary.

Tomorrow the office work of the White House will be carried on in the living quarters. Mr. Hoover will occupy the historic Lincoln study. George Atkinson, one of his secretaries who assisted in rescuing the documents in the president's desk last night, will use an ancient cabinet table of President John Adams as a desk in the hall outside. Walter Newton and Lawrence Ritchey, two other secretaries, will have Fair skies and continued rising temperatures were forecast for tomorrow by the local weather bureau after another dip in the thermometers tonight. Growers were warned of frost tonight in the north and central sections with a heavy frost in the immediate vicinity of Jacksonville.

Three Children Perish in Blaze in Kentucky

PARI, Ky., Dec. 25 (AP)—Three negro children, the oldest four years old, were burned to death here today as they slept in a rooming house when a fire broke out on a trip to a grocery store.

The dead are: Robert Harris, month-old infant; Margaret Harris, two years old; and Willie May Harris, the latter a girl.

The home, a small frame structure, is located in Buckeye, negro settlement. Neighbors discovered the flames about 8 o'clock and succeeded in rescuing two other children, but were unable to reach the other three.

DESTRUCTIVE STORM SWEEPS NORTHWEST

Wind Reaches Velocity of 50 Miles Per Hour and Interrupts Communication

SEATTLE, Dec. 25 (AP)—The Pacific Northwest, particularly western Washington, was recovering tonight from the most destructive storm of the winter. The wind reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour, disrupting telephone, telegraph and electric light and power service.

Frank D. Boehling, Purdue university graduate, who recently came to the city, was killed by a falling tree near Toke, north of Seattle, where he got out of his car to investigate a power line on the highway. His companion was uninjured.

While telephone and telegraph wires had been repaired to a great extent, wires north of Vancouver, British Columbia, are still out tonight.

The wind raged havoc with long rafts in Puget Sound harbors. Tugs were kept busy in Seattle waters capturing drifting houseboats and returning them to their moorings. Ships in Lakes Union and Washington and in Elliott bay at Seattle dragged their anchors to some extent but none were ashore.

The wind rose steadily in volume after midnight, reaching its greatest force for some time, hurried to earth gradually fell off and the sun broke through the clouds before noon. It was clear and calm here tonight.

PLANE CRASH CLAIMS THREE FLIERS' LIVES

Ship Fails to Straighten Out After Maneuver and Plunges in Southern City

DUNN, N. C., Dec. 25 (AP)—Three men were killed today as an airplane in which they were riding fell to earth after a loop-the-loop and crashed within the Dunn city limits.

The dead are: ALTON STEWART, pilot, Coatsworth, Okla.; WORTH STEWART, student flier, Angier; HUGH BLAYLOCK, passenger, also of Angier.

The plane, which had been flying over Dunn for some time, hurried to earth and plied up in a mass of wreckage near a negro schoolhouse.

Stephen was said to have been at the controls at the time of the crash. St. Clair, owner of the plane, was an experienced pilot. He had been making his headquarters in Raleigh recently, where he flew from Raleigh.

He leaves a widow and children. Stephenson and Blaylock were unmarried.

DEPARTMENT HEADS DISPARAGE BORAH'S PROHIBITION VIEWS

Three Caustic Statements on Enforcement Heighten Spreading Controversy on Liquor Law Violation

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—Three caustic statements on prohibition enforcement tonight heightened the spreading controversy over the situation, with two government departments rebuking the stand taken by Senator Borah, Mitchell, and Jim, holding that "caustic effort" was evidently required.

For the department of justice, Attorney General Mitchell said that "where enforcement machinery, those who administer the law" will be able to accomplish more.

For the treasury department, Prohibition Commissioner Dunn said Borah's recent denunciation of the entire Volstead personnel was "unfortunate and bound to have a disintegrating effect upon its morale of the service."

The Idaho senator yesterday expressed the conviction that the alcohol traffic would never be suppressed "with the present personnel from top to bottom." Tonight he said Mitchell's statement that "an effort is being made to improve the personnel" evidently meant that "his conditions were such as to call for an effort and an hectic effort."

The attorney general said there had been an improvement, in the list six (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

ABSTAINY FBI HOMELESS MEN CLOSES IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 25 (AP)—Hotel de Oluk, a hostelry for homeless men, which had become known throughout the greater part of the country, closed its doors today after serving a Christmas dinner to more than 1000 outcasts.

The institution has been sponsored by Mayor Frank X. Schnob, who will relinquish his office January 1. Its work will be taken over by various city and social agencies.

Complaint was made from some sources that the "de Oluk attracted thousands of undesirables to Buffalo, where the hostelry provided free board and lodging. The real reason for the closing, however, was said to be lack of funds with which to carry on the work.

St. Paul Woman Finds Gold Nugget in Goose

ST. PAUL, Dec. 25 (AP)—A goose that has given evidence of being descended from the famous fowl that laid the golden egg, was served for Christmas dinner today at the home of Mr. Con Warren.

The "evidence" was in the form of a gold nugget found in the bird's stomach while Mrs. Warren was preparing it for the oven. The nugget is about one-quarter of an inch in diameter. The goose was purchased at a local market.

NORTHERNERS REPORT HEARING LOST PLANE

Searchers For Carl Eielson and Companion Uncover Clue to Fate of Fliers

SEATTLE, Dec. 25 (AP)—A clue has been uncovered in the search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, Arctic fliers, who have been missing more than six weeks, Alfred J. Lomen, director of rescue operations in Nome, informed a Seattle newspaper today.

He said Pilot Joe Crosson radioed a message from the trading ship Nanuk near North Cape, Alaska, that Eielson and Borland had heard Eielson's plane circling overhead for a long while as though seeking a place to land.

While not stated in the message, it is assumed that the plane was heard near the ship on November 8, the day it was last seen flying from the Alaskan mainland to the rebound Nanuk to Alaska.

Lomen also said Crosson has had natives build a temporary hangar out of snow blocks near North Cape to shelter his plane and keep it out of cold while warming the motor.

The storm blew east from the southwest, banishing the blue skies and summery weather of southern England. Rain fell in torrents and hail rattled on the streets of London this morning while wild weather ruled the south coast districts where Christmas visitors to resorts towns watched great sea poring on the beaches and harbor walls at Poolestone and other ports.

Many ships sought sheltered water from Plymouth in Scotland, where a 20-mile gale swept toward the Orkneys. The mails were held up at Kirkwall and the North Orkneys were without Christmas letters, all sea service being suspended.

For the first time in 30 years no travelers were in with fliers at Aberdeen market today. The harbor has been impassable. The Aberdeen district has (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

In summary the authorities list the robbery of eight shops; nine department store deliveries; seven pedestrian attacks on drivers and a private home as well as the cracking of one safe.

PRESIDENT'S DINNER FOR CABINET CLOSES CAPITAL FUNCTIONS

Unofficial Washington Dines and Dances Christmas Day Away at Many Brilliant Holiday Social Affairs

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 — President Hoover's Christmas dinner for his cabinet members, which side with the White House, will close Washington's official celebration of the yuletide holiday.

Unofficial Washington, not only dined but danced as well for the night. A dozen or more affairs in honor of diplomats and visiting ministers, West Point cadets and college under-graduates, briefly brightened the city.

The president's official dinner was served between the brilliant chandeliers of the big state dining room of the executive mansion.

Gathered about the festively decorated table were the members of his cabinet who were in the city and their families. The cabinet members, including Hoover and Davis enjoyed the repast, as did the son of Secretary Wilson, who is here from Stanford university for his holidays.

Young Wilson and Allan Hoover, son of the president, were together. The president and his immediate family enjoyed an old-fashioned Christmas dinner at noon also, with child turkey—his favorite food—as the main course.

MONEY LESS PLENTIFUL IN GERMAN REPUBLIC — BERLIN, Dec. 25 (AP)—Germany today celebrated Christmas with less money than in previous years.

The economic distress of recent months of which the increased unemployment speaks eloquently, made necessary restriction of gifts, particularly in the luxury class, but this seemed to prevent no one from acquiring a Christmas tree.

In the hazy mountains, many towns had a community tree about which school-children sang carols. Public squares in Berlin, Cologne, Frankfurt, Magdeburg, Dresden, Stuttgart and Elbing were similarly decorated.

In the great central lobby of the Reichstag, a scene of many bitter hours, two huge trees flanked the entrance of the building of the former empire, Wilhelm I.

TENNIS QUEEN AND SPOUSE SAIL SEAS

Helen Wills Moody and Husband Somewhere On Ocean Off Southern California

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Dec. 25 (AP)—Helen Wills Moody and her young husband, Frederick Moody, Jr., San Francisco bond salesman, were somewhere off the southern California coast this Christmas day or the start of their honeymoon ocean cruise aboard the yacht Galata.

At 10 A. M. today they slipped an anchor for the pier of the California Yacht club, pointed the nose of their trim craft seaward, and started beyond the Los Angeles harbor breakwater. They were bound for a voyage of three weeks with Santa Catalina island, or miles off shore, as their first objective.

Aboard the small vessel were the skipper, B. Edgewood, a deck hand, Fred Cook, Moody, who is not a tenderfoot at sea, helped sail the yacht from port and he appeared as a full-fledged seaman in white dress uniform. Blue shirt and yachting cap. He has had two years experience in the merchant marine.

His bride, famed as the woman tennis champion of the world, was in a sea-pink costume of blue and white. But whether she would hold sail and the ship would strike anywhere, she did not say. An official of the yacht club said he understood the couple would strike anywhere in the Mexican waters in the vicinity of Ensenada, famous Mexican resort.

Their craft towed a rowboat, indicating that fishing was the object. The landing would enter into their sea pleasures. The couple spent last night in Hollywood at six home of friends following their arrival at Los Angeles late yesterday from Santa Barbara. They were married Monday in the bride's home city at Berkeley, California.

their offices in bedrooms adjoining. Will Move All Offices

Within three or four days the entire executive offices will be moved to the state, war and navy building, which is just across the street from the building destroyed. The room the president will use there for the rest of the winter will be the one occupied by the secretaries of the navy until the removal of the navy department another building during the World War in 1917. It has been at the disposal of General John J. Pershing for an office.

The cabinet has been called to meet as usual on Friday. Instead of gathering around the big table in the cabinet room, the room and the table having been badly weakened, the department heads will confer with their chief in the Lincoln study. All other business likewise will be conducted from there.

A check-up today revealed that all the presidential files except those in the basement had been carried to safety, and they were only slightly damaged by water. Newton, however, lost an accumulation of papers gathered during the 10 years he has been a member of the house of representatives.

Akerson informed newspapermen at a conference held today on the scene in front of the burned building that experts had told the president all the evidence pointed to a short circuit in the wiring as the cause of the blaze. He said it was likely that poor wiring had been done when the work of remodeling was in progress three months ago.

A guard of soldiers placed around the White House grounds last night was withdrawn today and Executive avenue, which runs alongside the burned building, was a promenade for interested Washingtonians who missed the excitement of the actual burning. The street was covered with ice caused by the freezing of the tons of water which poured down onto it.

Akerson's office, which is next to the president's at the rear of the building, also was an ugly sight. Gunning showed in the ceiling, a gash had been torn through the floor. The desk was so water-soaked that it came apart when workmen tried to remove it. A big pile of black shoes, full of water, was on the mantle above the fire place.

The cabinet room was less damaged than the president's office, but there, too, the roof had been wiped away. The cabinet table was soaked, but the new cabinet chairs had been carried out. They are in the basement of the state, war and navy building.

The lobby in the passageway between the lobby and the president's office was a scene of confusion. Nothing and a score or more of joints of pipe from the heating plant had been crushed.

All the furniture in the building was taken out and, with the exception of the president's desk, taken to the state, war and navy building. The personal files of the president, which had been placed in the florist's room of the White House, were assembled and moved to a room in the basement of the state building.

monthly, and added: "I am sure there is some basis, under the president's leadership, for a noticeable change in public attitude toward law observance."

The Weather

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW - Generally fair; slightly colder Thursday.

Minimum temperature in the vicinity of Twin Falls was 24 degrees during the 24-hour period preceding 9 P. M. yesterday, according to the report of the government weather observer here. Maximum temperature for the same period was 43 degrees.

The sun rises today at 7:38 A. M. and sets at 5:00 P. M.; tomorrow at 7:39 A. M. and 5:10 P. M.

By Borah yesterday, in which he took the position that the "dry" law spoke for itself in connection with demands by Southern "dry" senators for a report of some sort of prohibition by the Hoover law enforcement commission. The fishman contended then that "to find the kind of officials who will enforce it was all that was needed to make the Volstead act effective."

Defends Honor of Servants

Mitchell said the honors of the southern Britain was 24 degrees during the 24-hour period preceding 9 P. M. yesterday, according to the report of the government weather observer here. Maximum temperature for the same period was 43 degrees.

"When congress is ready to consider and adopt legislation to carry out the prohibition law, it is necessary to have more adequate law enforcement machinery, those whose duty it is to enforce the law, and that there has never been greater zeal in the enforcement than now. For months, he continued, the department has been working on measures designed to improve personnel, efficiency, and to improve the enforcement of the law. He said that there has been improvement in the last six months. There has also, under the president's leadership, been a noticeable change in public attitude toward law observance."

"All agencies in the executive service having any part in enforcing prohibition, have been too conscious of determined and unceasing pressure from the president for enforcement, to leave any room for indifference. Such tendencies as exist in prohibition enforcement are not due to lack of will to enforce the law either at the top or the bottom."

Disparaging Statement

Commissioner Doran said the condemnation by Senator Borah of the entire prohibition enforcement movement was "unfortunate and bound to have a disheartening effect upon the morale of the service."

"It is not to say that administration is not susceptible to improvement, but to say that prohibition cannot be enforced with the present personnel comes perilously near to saying that it cannot be enforced at all," he continued. "It can affirm that on the whole we are not likely to find a more loyal and conscientious group of men than are now serving under me."

Doran pointed out that the prohibition personnel is now appointed under the civil service law and said that Borah's statement would have a demoralizing effect in enforcement and set forth his Doran's annual report to congress. "First there must be the will to enforce," Doran said. "No one, I think, will deny that under the present administration there has existed wholesale demoralization of the law. This has been evidenced by the clean-cut declarations of the chief executive who in recommending his resignation had an inspiring effect on the morale of public servants but have met with a very genuine response on the part of private citizens."

Doran related efforts being made to revise the prohibition laws, the proposal to concentrate the border patrol under one command, and to amend liquor into the country and the study made to improve relations between states and federal with respect to enforcing the law. As a result, he continued, a plan of prohibition enforcement personnel will be submitted to congress which will be referred to the president for his approval. He said the treasury was prepared to cooperate in a plan of enforcement by patrolling the territory between these points by a unified border patrol.

See Progress "In conclusion, I affirm that real progress is being made in the enforcement of the prohibition law," Doran said. "That the personnel in the federal prohibition service is steadily improving in morale and efficiency, that my observation leads me to believe that under the present administration the president has been a much more helpful attitude on the part of the public, and finally in so far as the enforcement of the law is concerned, a program is ready for submission to the congress."

Sentor Borah remarked on Mitchell's assertion that efforts being made to improve prohibition enforcement personnel with the assertion that the country is not ready for such a call for an effort and an heroic effort. He wished the attorney general luck in his efforts and said if a proposal is made, which would help to strengthen the personnel, he did not know of it.

"The attorney general's statement is encouraging. He states that an effort is being made to improve the personnel. Evidently he is concerned with the call for an effort and an heroic effort. How much progress has been made, I do not know."

"If there is any proposal before congress which will help this particular feature of the situation, that also would be needed, but I know of no proposal which will not result in a setback to this particular matter."

Little Guests of First Lady of Land See Historic Blaze from Windows of White House During Christmas Party

By HESS FURMAN (Associated Press Staff Writer) WASHINGTON, Dec. 25—Through the peace and thoughtfulness of Mrs. Hoover, who has seen historic events and values them, eight frightened children will always be able to say "I watched a White House window during Christmas party of Christmas eve, 1929."

They were the guests at the Christmas party which tonight has been so cruelly interrupted by the capital's most insistent fire alarm. With its resultant clanging of trucks and shrieking of sirens, they were the small sons and daughters of the president's secretaries and his physician—George J. Prentice and Charles Aronson, Suzanne Boone, Marshall, Walter and Grace Newton, and French Souter, Jr.

The fire was dramatic and to them it will ever be a colorful memory of dancing flames and clouds of smoke that enveloped a White House window. They will remember that Mrs. Hoover herself told them of the fire in such a quiet way that they were not a bit afraid, and that a nice man played with them on the floor in front of the fireplace until it was time to go upstairs. He was Charles Field, a radio entertainer known as "Cherrieo."

"Cherrieo," who broadcast his happy philosophy at the breakfast hour, put himself on night duty to help Mrs. Hoover, aided with the marine band in bringing the children's party to its happy finale, supervised the room in motion, and kept the children's attention until Mrs. Hoover had opportunity to consult with the mother. "It was a very pretty party."

The state dining room with its great chandelier was a shimmer with silver, shining through the red and green of the Christmas decorations which completely covered the Christmas tree. Opposite the tree sat a happy president, talking alternately to Suzanne Boone, aged nine, on his right, and Charles Aronson, aged seven, on his left. He was given the fire message. His face instantly altered expression. All the men of the party, except "Cherrieo" withdrew.

Band Plays On Mrs. Hoover, mistress of many emergencies, including the Boxer rebellion in China, carried the party on to its close in a manner gracious and serene. The band played on and on, at her request, as the children transferred from the dining room to the East room. Then Mrs. Hoover disappeared.

What she returned it was to call the children around her. She explained to them that when their daddies left, they had to go because their offices were on fire. She asked the children if they would like to go up to the second story and see the smoke.

Would they? Eight pairs of scampering feet were the answer.

And soon eight child faces were pressed close to the panes of a cathedral-like window at the end of the great upper hall.

The "old" and "new" and "look at that" varied with the strength of the voices. That was the final of the White House Christmas eve party for the young guests. A short while later they were courting sleep to hasten the advent of Christmas day—and attendant joys.

Yuletide Spirit Gives Way To Practice In Western Camps

Cadets Go Through Final Grind Before Tilt With Stanford

Army Gridders Awake to Find Huge Christmas Tree in Hall With Gifts From Friends and Home Folks

(By The Associated Press) PALO ALTO, Dec. 25.—The Yuletide spirit hovered over West Point headquarters here this forenoon but gave way in the afternoon to grim gridiron business as Coach "Bill" Jones sent the cadet gridders through their final scrimmage before Saturday's game against Stanford university.

The girls were to find "A" Christmas tree in Hooper hall. Group of about two weeks from their friends and families. Coach Jones was presented with a wrist watch by his equis. Major Frank Wandle, the team's trainer, played Santa Claus.

After a slight cooling, the cadets donned their motor suits for the first test of their defensive strength against Stanford. McWilliams, youngling backfield ace, whiffed twice for touchdowns on some of Pop Warner's lateral pass attacks, but otherwise the victory stopped the clock dead.

Punters Practice—John Murrell, Chris. Coffe and Dick Hutchinson spent a busy session kicking the ball around. Murrell, who will handle the punting assignment next Saturday, has coached his Notre Dame form. Coffe and Hutchinson practiced drop kicking and place kicking for the extra point after touchdowns.

A grand reunion was staged today between Jack Cannon, Notre Dame guard here with the all-star Eastern eleven, and Harry Hillman, the Army guard. The two men, according to their own report, tangled in every play of the Army-Notre Dame game last month, and both came out of it badly used up, but they fell on each other's necks as they met today.

LAZY DAY FOR TROJANS LOS ANGELES, Dec. 25.—Chris Murrell brought a lazy day to a hard-working week at the University of Southern California football players and turkey and yuletide cheer replaced class rooms here today. The team is in Pasadena on the New Year's day game in Pasadena with Pittsburgh.

"Tomorrow the Trojans will tick back to Denver field to smother the prospects in the attack" which "which" they hope to wrest victory from the powerful Power Pitt.

Pit's invasion of the West will find a welcome proclaiming their favorites over the storm-tossed Trojans, whose earlier bad record has made the season win in strong contrast to the Easterners. This weighting of odds against the southern California team is a huge full sign, however, for their mentor, Coach Howard Jones.

Jones feels that his team will enter the Bowl with more confidence than it physically can. He believes that the heralded strength of Pitt has offset any advantage which the Trojans can expect. This might have inflicted on the struggle.

A few remaining days before the season will bring the Trojans a schedule of final polishing on defense against the deceptive Pitt plays and practice on their own tricky field manuevers.

Borotra Plays Host To Tilden in Paris PARIS, Dec. 25.—Jean Borotra was compelled to play half of his tennis rival, Bill Tilden, this evening for a Christmas dinner at one of the best exclusive restaurants in Paris as the result of a friendly wager between Tilden and the bounding Basque conference.

Tilden, paired with Charles Kingsley, Great Britain, with whom he will play in the covered courts Christmas tournament, beating tomorrow defeated Borotra and Luis Torralba, Chile, 7-5, 11-8, in a practice match. Borotra had anticipated an entirely different result and had backed his opinion to the extent of the bid dinner in town.

Like the wager, the match proved to be a personal duel between Tilden and Borotra in which Bill had a slight edge.

ENGINEERS DESCRIBE NEW VACUUM HEATING METHOD PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 25.—A vacuum bottle method of insulating to heat houses is described in a report to the American society of mechanical engineers by A. R. Bleverson and F. H. Rice of the General Electric company.

Electric heaters are installed in a large house which is filled with water and insulated to prevent loss of heat. The tank is designed to keep water at 200 to 300 degrees temperature for many hours if undisturbed.

Heat for the house is obtained either by turning this storage water into ordinary water heating radiators or by hot air systems by heating the air over metal fins of the tank.

When this use of the heat in the tank lowers its temperature too much, the electric heater automatically turns on. Tanks are designed to contain enough hot water for many hours, so that the electricity will run only during slack hours when electricity rates are low.

ATHLETES AND SCIOCLAS

College athletes, a gratifying flock, do pretty well in the matter of health and longevity, but not so much in the matter of success. The non-athletic students who go in for study rather than football and track work do better.

Students of ten colleges have been studied, embracing the graduating classes from eighteen hundred ninety to nineteen hundred five. The result of the inquiry, says the statistician of a big life insurance company, shows that the fellow with a Phi Beta Kappa key on his watch chain has lived an average longer life than the fellow with a varsity letter on his chest.

The athletes may grant that the scholars live longer, but will probably ask whether they have a better time. That is a question on which there will never be any agreement. The athletes seldom understand the joys of the scholarly life and the scholars seldom understand the joys of the athletic life.

RIVAL CITIES AND WATERWAYS

Both sides of the controversy profess satisfaction with the decision of Charles E. Hughes, special master for the United States Supreme Court, in the Chicago waterway case. Chicago newspapers say their city vindicated in suing Lake Michigan water to flush its sewage inland toward the Mississippi, and rejoices that it is not going to be forced to pollute the lake with it.

In the adjacent Great Lakes states there is jubilation over the prospect of the volume of diverted water being reduced from eight thousand five hundred cubic feet a second to five hundred and two hundred feet, thus helping to maintain lake levels and benefiting navigation. There also seems to be a cordial satisfaction in making Chicago pay for sewage disposal works, such as other Great Lakes cities have had to build, and in depriving Chicago of excess water which her neighbors charge, has been used for the development of power at their expense.

When both sides are content with what they get, it is usually a sound decision. It is expected that the Supreme Court will approve Mr. Hughes' findings.

There has been much ill will engendered in this controversy. Also much misrepresentation. Chicago's conduct has probably been less reprehensible than some of her hot-headed neighbors have maintained. On the other hand, the neighbors, as a rule, have never seriously objected to a project of Chicago's usually associated with her navigational system—the building of a navigable waterway from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi. The other Great Lakes states, which want a St. Lawrence waterway, are ready to concede the Mississippi waterway, provided an excessive amount of water is not diverted from the Great Lakes for that purpose.

UNEASY SEA FLOUJ

Ever since the submarine earthquake of November eighteenth, captains of ocean vessels have been reporting changes in the floor of the Atlantic. A few weeks ago a captain reported that his soundings indicated that the Coast shelf formerly extending out from the North American shore had vanished. The other day Captain Helge Eilertson of the Swedish-American line declared that all the North Atlantic should be re-charted. Soundings taken by him when approaching Cape Race and from thence on to Halifax showed changes in the ocean's depth varying as much as forty to fifty fathoms over an area of two hundred miles in length. He said he had had all falls in existing North Atlantic charts.

The Canadian Department of Marine is following all these reports closely. It is thought that the submarine earthquake has caused a general subsidence in the bottom of the Canadian coast. It is believed that the Canadian coast line will be shifted in some places.

Scientist Finds Soil Contamination Source of Dread Leprosy Organisms

By HOWARD W. HARRIS. Science Editor. (Associated Press Feature Service) BERKELEY, Dec. 23.—A plausible explanation why leprosy once raged widely over the world and has since nearly disappeared from civilized areas is contained in discoveries of Dr. E. L. Walker of the University of California medical faculty. His experiments indicate that leprosy organisms are widespread in the soil, and he says: "Man probably becomes infected through soil contamination of wounds. Segregation and isolation of leprosy should be less important for the control of leprosy than is the protection of the feet and body from soil infected with the organisms and the antibiotic treatment of contracted wounds." The well-shod man of today seems to be better protected than those generations before him, and he is probably unable to nearly errand. Dr. Walker holds that leprosy is not primarily a contagious disease by transmissibility from man to man.

Accept these gifts with our compliments

Do you think of your newspaper merely as a means of finding out what the famous people in the world are doing, saying, thinking? As an impersonal record of events which do not concern you at all? We have something more than that to offer you. For instance:

Please accept today with our compliments these things, which you'll find in our pages: New and better ways of performing old household tasks... means of saving steps, time, effort... labor-saving devices... short-cuts to efficiency... money-saving. "Why," you say, "you're probably talking about the advertisements!" Just so—we are:

Think of the advertisements—and read them—as news. News of the world of goods and things... news of scientific achievement accomplished for your benefit... news that concerns you far more directly than an account of boundary disputes in Baluchistan can ever concern you.

Read the advertisements regularly, and use them as millions of other people are doing—to save you time, effort, money, trouble, when it comes to buying the things that make life a little easier... a little brighter. Reading the advertisements will keep you in step with the rapidly advancing standard of living in America today.

Every day there's something new in the advertisements as well as on the front page. Be informed on all sides!

TENNESSEE MURDER Baffles Officers

Police Find Prominent Physician and Young Nephew Slain

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 25.—The motive for the slaying of Dr. Barclay J. Jones, 61-year-old physician; his wife, Mrs. Lucy Lane Jones, 32, and her nephew, Colonel Lane, 33, mystified officers of the local investigating department after the discovery of the three bodies this morning.

All had been beaten to death. A coroner's jury this afternoon returned a verdict of murder by some unknown person with robbery as a motive.

Sheff H. Walker Anderson and his son, Deputy Sheriff Anderson, however, expressed belief that the slaying had followed an attack on Mrs. Jones and announced that they were seeking a young negro named Sam, who had been employed at the household for the last week.

Sam, the sheriff said, made his home in the basement, where Mrs. Jones' striped body was found with that of her young nephew nearby. He also said the door of her bedroom had been broken open and her bed was in a state of extreme disorder.

The body of Dr. Jones, who was one of the most prominent physicians in Knoxville, was found on the floor of a parage. A blood-stained axe and a pair of hedge clippers, also blood-stained, were found nearby.

The bodies were discovered by Bert Lane, well-known business man and a brother of Mrs. Jones, who was bearing Christmas gifts to the household. He first called on the telephone, but no one answered. On arriving at the home, which is about three miles from the center of the city, he found the house locked and forced entry. Examining he found the bodies of Mrs. Jones and the boy in the basement and then went to the parage, where he found the body of Dr. Jones.

Officials expressed belief that the three were killed around 9 or 10 o'clock last night.

"LOVE SHY" by Barbara Webb

"Yes," "This is Mildred Warren: I want you to come to the studio for lunch with me and then we'll get at the picture right after tea. Will you come?"

"I'd love to," Janet answered, her impatience all gone. They agreed on 7 o'clock, and Janet found that time fairly flew until 12:30 arrived.

"Step right in, Miss Janet, Miss Mildred's quarters in the studio and also says you should go in there."

"Hello there, Jenny Wren," Mildred called waving a welcoming hand. "Sit on anything you want to and give me half a minute more at this beastly tree that will look like a signpost no matter how often I do it over."

Mildred's preparations for lunch consisted in taking off her smock, washing her hands and stretching herself out in one corner of a huge disarrayed living room.

"We're going to lunch here, Lucy," she said, "bring that little nest of tables over."

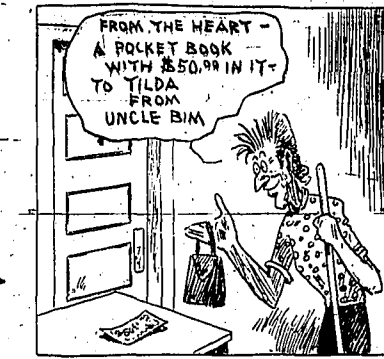

"And Janet there in the living room they did, Janet invariably, as they sat down for a few minutes she painted small tables while they half lay and half sat on the divan part.

"I'll have two elegant and forty winks while you're dressing and then we'll get to work."

"I don't hardly know what to do with Lucy's offers of help," "Really," she said the lady shyly. "I think I can put it on better myself."

"Mildred said, speaking through a mouthful of plus which she had been told to use in getting the dress fit properly. "Miss Mildred mighty lady girl, she thinks everybody's lazy like she is!"
