New Modern Press Room Equipment Now in Use at Office of The News

TODAY'S ISSUE of the Twin Falls News represents the initial trial run of a new newspaper press which on this thirty day has been in course of erection at the News plant.

Built to order by the Duplex Printing Press company, the machine is equipped with every feature ordinarily to be found on the latest type of metropolitan printing machinery. Its total capacity is 16 pages and it is so constructed as to permit of the addition of two additional 4-page units, bringing the total pages up to 24. These may be added at any time without interfering with the daily use of the press.

work must be provided. Specifications were agreed upon and the order for the press and stereotyping machinery placed last August. The machine reached Twin Falls December 9 and the work of installation has since gone steadily forward under the direction of a factory representative of the Company.

Better and cleaner printing will be possible at the end of a week or ten days than can be given in the earlier issues. The "breaking in" period is a factor with newspaper presses in exactly the same sense as in the case of a new automobile. But with this period safely passed The News looks cheerfully forward to years of improved newspaper service to the measure of which it is hoped will be found in the satisfaction of News subscribers and readers everywhere.

The High Speed Perfecting Press, Initial Use of Which is Represented by This Morning's News

The machine is so equipped as to permit of the use of additional colors of ink if this character of printing should be desired. A tabloid attachment ment allows the printing of tabloid papers or magazines up to 32 pages in size. The machine has a rated running speed of 36,000 papers per hour or 600 per minute.

Carried a step farther by way of illustration the press prints and folds ten papers every second while in operation.

In comparison with the press equipment in use in the News office up to this time, on a sixteen page basis the new press will accomplish less than fifteen minutes the work which now requires between three and four hours to complete.

The installation replaces for a much longer period. In equipment installed a little over four years ago subscribers, however, it because it was supposed at the time would prove adequate (that larger and faster press

SCHOOL DISTRICTS JOIN IN ACTION TO RECOVER LOSSES

Officials and Banks Would Be Defendants in Indicated Suit for Restoration of All Forgery Shortages

Rural school districts of Twin Falls county which have lost approximately $100,000 as a result of forgeries of orders for warrants during three years period, will join in suit to recover their losses. It was agreed at a meeting here yesterday afternoon of trustees representing 23 of the county's 37 rural school districts, to file a suit against the county auditor and county treasurer, and the banks which had cashed the apparent forged orders, leaving it to the courts to determine responsibility for the losses.

A committee elected by the meeting today was authorized to brain trust the trustees, and to meet with top attorneys and adjourned to meet again next Tuesday to make definite arrangements for retention of legal aid.

At the meeting, the committee in the office of the county superintendent of public instruction, has been found guilty of forgery of one of the qualified orders, and, according to auditors reports, all of the apparent forgeries seem to have been executed by the same person. Twenty-two districts shared in the loss, which auditors estimate at $100,000. County officials likely to be named in the suit are defendants in the district's action to recover their losses. The committee named by the meeting yesterday agreed on the method of procedure, which seemed to find favor with the trustees. That method contemplated joint action by the districts against banks and county officials. Attorneys who were called to the meeting were Mr. J. W. Larson, county attorney, Mr. J. G. Greaney, and Mr. R. Rayburn.

The committee named by the meeting later conferred with Mr. Greaney and Mr. Rayburn.

At the meeting, Mr. Davis, of the county auditor's office, was called to the stand to answer questions. He testified that he had no knowledge of the forgeries.

The meeting authorized Mr. Davis to prepare from the county commission an adjustment of this fund. The audit was not completed to show the division of excess appropriations as between 1926 and 1927. Subsequently, Mr. Davis said, although the total had been computed.

The meeting of rural school district trustees was called to order by Mr. Wilson, county superintendent, in the probate court rooms yesterday afternoon. Subsequently, W. E. Hiltner, Riverfront, was elected chairman, and Mrs. R. O. McCall, Willowdell, secretary.

San Francisco Chinese Enjoy Playing Stock Market

And Accept Losses Without Losing Oriental Sticism

DECLINE OF VALUES FAILS TO SMATTER RACE'S CONFIDENCE

Mongolian Speculator Collects $250,000 by Closing Out 24 Hours Before Biggest Crash in Years

Buyers Study Issues Well Before Making Purchases

Acceptance of Theory That Stocks Can Rise As Well As Fall Leads to Term "Natural Born Bears"

By W. A. WELLS
(Associated Press Feature Writer)
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11.—Chinatown's first introduction to a full-fledged stock market crash has not shaken the Oriental's sticism.

Nor has it disturbed his confidence in his ability to play any gambling game which his white brother can think up.

Playing the market in the popular sense made its bow in Chinatown last July with the institution of the first branch brokerage office managed by Chinese.

Quotations were chalked on the usual black-board in columns headed with both the English letter abbreviations and the Chinese phonetic equivalent for the name of the stock.

To a few of the more knowing ones, stock trading was not new. Many of them knew and were known along Montgomery street or played the big board street-through-New York business connections.

But to the vast majority of the Chinese, stock trading was regarded as the inevitable vicissitudes of the "game" of the market, past, present and prospective, earnings, commercial position and management.

The Oriental's ready acceptance of the theory that stocks can go down as well as up led some of them being termed "natural born bears" and many of the group specialized on the short side.

The largest Chinese operator, perhaps the largest on the Pacific coast without regard to racial distinction, is reported to have made the rounds of the offices where he had accounts of the stock market.

He collected checks totaling $250,000, closing out just 24 hours before the initial break on October 24.

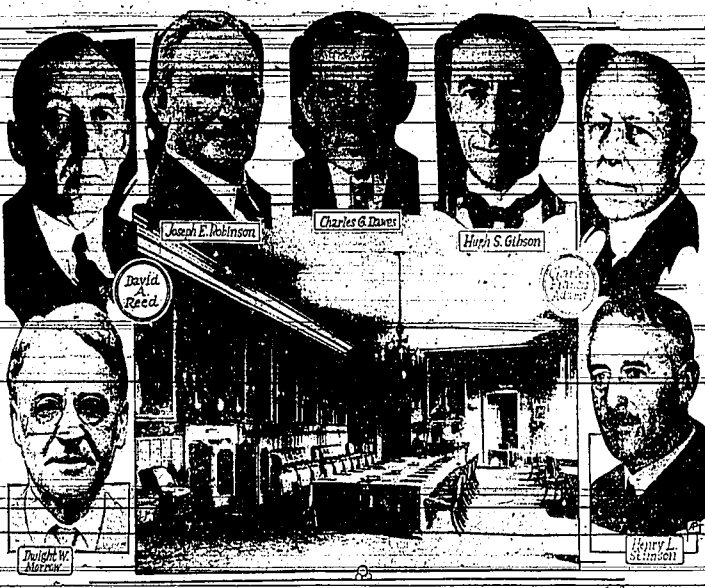

Some of his group are said to have ridden the high for profits of thousands of dollars, and they were joined by others.

Some of the group are said to have made a serious study of security values, but to many it was just a game which they could learn like and poker or dominoes.

Public participation of all ages, both sexes became general and when the series of big breaks came the majority were on the losing side, but there were no suicides or suicides.

Everybody is eligible to enter the contest. Contest closes January 15th.

UNFAVORABLE FLYING WEATHER IN ALASKA RETARDS SEARCHERS

Wind, Rain, Fog and Snow Reports Reach Fairbanks From Every Part of Far North in Path of Fliers

(By The Associated Press)
FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 11.—Unfavorable flying conditions which have been reported since New Year's day continued over Alaska today after a momentary lull yesterday at Nome.

Wind, rain, fog and snow was the story at practically every point in Alaska, regarding the search for Carl Ben Eklund and Earl Burdick.

Captain H. A. Graves did not leave here today on the boat train for Seward. He said he would stay in Alaska until he and his companions are found.

Reports from Nome and the ice-bound fast-trading vessel Nanaulak of North Cape, Eklund, said it understood that dog teams were to be used to search the icy plain.

The ship the dog teams were to use was a team which returned to the boat yesterday reported that the air was still too bad for flying.

Over a dozen about 25 miles south of the vessel on November 9, when the two disappeared.

The wind was so strong here yesterday that a motor plane was unable to fly, where it floated around and sailed over the harbor only to crash into splinters on the field.

Harold Woodward, a student flyer, who broke on the motor plane, the harbor with the craft took the air.

Practically the entire around crew of the Alaska Airways was holding down the reins of the Eklund relief plane which Clifford Brantman had taken up while taking off for Mrs. Eklund's rescue.

More than a week ago, the ship had been brought to the field for the purpose of making the stormy.

Threatened to return to the place where it was wrecked.

Wind and snow kept Pilot Alvin Nierensson on the ground at Fairbanks, Alaska, today.

Whether Little Johnny Be Permitted to Go—Little Governed or Not, Issue

By Sue McNAMARA
(AP Feature Service Writer)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Whether it is better for little Johnny to climb trees at his own sweet will or be "organized" is being determined by 50 men and women who are part of President Hoover's conference on child health and protection.

They comprise the committee on recreation and physical education. At a meeting in Washington they discussed the pros and cons of wild free play or play under direction.

Women took a prominent part in the meeting.

They kept shouting up a woman in brown, a woman in blue, and one in gray, eagerly telling what they had learned.

WOMAN GETS ALONG WITH MOUSE-RAISING SPOUSE

LONDON, Jan. 11 (P)—A mouse more or less means nothing to Mrs. Mrs. Tuck of the village of Haslemere, Surrey. She lives within 100 yards of 10,000 of them.

Mr. Tuck is a mouse farmer of European reputation. When eminent scientists want a mouse—or 1000 mice—they send to Mr. Tuck and he supplies black mice, white mice, piebald mice, blue mice, or mice of almost any other color except purple, which he has not yet succeeded in breeding.

The mice, when at home, live in comfortable glass-lined boxes stored in several large sheds.

Mr. Tuck is happy in his profession. And Tiger and Bob, the two cats, attached to the establishment, are, if possible, happier still.

Mrs. Tuck is non-committal. "My husband didn't tell me about it until after we were married," she says, "and it's too late to do anything now."

OFF-THE-HEAD HAT ATTRACTS PARISIANS

Correct Way to Wear Latest Creation Reposes Half of Woman's Hair

PARIS, Jan. 11 (P)—The correct way to wear the latest hat Paris poses is on the side of your head with the crown resting on the forehead. It is the new "off-the-head" model. The hat is a smooth material on one side only. The other side of the crown is a cascade of ribbon, felt, or draped velvet almost touching the shoulder.

At the shop where the half-cooked hats originate blouses are advised to order black hats with white interstices which set off their features. Contrast between hat and hair is essential to the mode.

The "off-the-head" hat is the ultimate development of the "off-the-face" model, it seems.

LONDON SOCIETY WOMEN SMUGGLE PARIS GOWNS

LONDON, Jan. 11 (P)—A suggestion that prominent London society women are "carrying on a nefarious trade" by smuggling Paris frocks into the country has been made.

Edward H. Byrom, a member of a court dressmaking establishment, and vice president of the London Employers' association.

The business, said Mr. Byrom, is carried on by women who bring to work as their own, pay a few shillings duty on it, and then "lend" it to several London dressmakers who pay it for their British trade.

There is a tremendous amount of this smuggling going on even among society women, and the loss of revenue runs annually into almost seven figures," he said.

FEATURE FLASHES FROM FAR-FLUNG FOREIGN FIELDS

Stalin Forces German Reds Abandon Women Veterans Of Communist Movement

Venerable Clara Zetkin and Redoubtable Ruth Fischer, Two of Most Picturesque Figures of Revolutionist Element, Disappear from Politics

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—The general house cleaning which the undisputed boss of the communist movement, Joseph Stalin, started more than a year ago has thrown into the discard two of the most picturesque figures in the German radical movement—venerable Clara Zetkin and redoubtable Ruth Fischer.

Had it not been for her advanced age and infirmity, Clara Zetkin would have shared the fate of Leon Trotsky, Christian Rakovsky, Gregory Zinoviev, and other fallen gods of the communist movement. In fact, the inner councils had actually decided upon Clara Zetkin's expulsion.

Listening around a non-party rank and file of the membership, however, the party bosses found that the bosom friend of Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht was venerated in Germany much as Nikolai Lenin is venerated in Soviet Russia. Had Clara Zetkin been physically able to continue to play a role, Stalin's "house" would not have irritated to the point of the party even in the face of this popularity with the rank and file.

By the aged revolutionist, now 73 years old, is an inviolable, no-nonsense, but calm and collected, she has delivered public speeches. She lives in a quiet, residential suburb of Berlin, where she is almost invisible.

More for force of habit than because she has any active work to do, she comes to the Reichstag once every few weeks—a rather pathetic figure as she hobbles along, supported on one side by a young woman, leaning on the other side on a heavy walking stick.

Be the communist procession marches on without her. As one party leader put it, "Her ideology is now history." She is not needed to do anything.

Ruth Fischer, too, incurred the disfavor of Stalin. Forgotten were her services in practically winning the Reichstag elections in 1932. Now, when they were waiting between allying themselves with the Independent Socialists or the communists, Fischer was a rather pathetic figure as she hobbles along, supported on one side by a young woman, leaning on the other side on a heavy walking stick.

Because she dared oppose Stalin as not revolutionary, she was promptly put under the ban. She struggled to the last, made repeated attempts to break through the ban, but was ultimately ousted from the party.

She has a job as visiting nurse, and one can see her climbing stairs and investigating impoverished homes, bringing such cheer as she can to the afflicted.

She is a woman of indelible good humor, the families on her visiting list are happy at her appearance.

Intends to Return.—Ruth Fischer intends to return to politics. In fact, she is already trying to make her peace with Stalin. She knows the fate of Ruth Fischer, that the first thing one must do to be readmitted to grace is to be absolutely "good" in the Stalin sense, so she supports the party through thick and thin, even though she is no longer a member, and she knows that Moscow knows this is doing so.

AUSTRALIAN CABINET STOPS COMPULSORY MILITARY EDUCATION

Government Offers Voluntary Military System To Replace Keystone of Defense During 20 Years

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 11.—Compulsory military training, which has been the keystone of Australian defense for nearly 20 years, has been abolished as one of the first acts of the new Labor government.

A voluntary militia system is being substituted. The government is giving special encouragement to the air force which, because of Australia's tremendous coast line, is regarded as of supreme importance.

The system was introduced by the first federal Labor government when it came into power 20 years ago. At that time, the Labor government was an efficient and economical system.

Military Shortage.—But about midway of the great war the Labor government gave place to a coalition headed by W. M. Hughes. The latter, faced with a serious shortage of men for the war, introduced compulsory military training.

Labor, never, as a party, an enthusiastic supporter of Australian participation in the war, was at once alarmed with indignation and hostility. A referendum on the subject was held, and Labor winning a bitter campaign. Again more than a year later when there was another serious shortage of troops at the front, Hughes held another referendum on the subject. Once more Labor won, and compulsory military training was abolished.

Voluntary Enlistment.—From that time Labor has had an undeviating anti-military policy. Some years ago, when the position in the Near East gave cause for apprehension, a strong movement was launched against Australia's joining in any action overseas. Nevertheless the military depots were besieged by thousands offering to enlist. It was clear that although Labor officially was opposed to any participation in a war overseas, a great body of men were undoubtedly voting Labor should enlist if the call came.

The election victory of last October gave the party its first opportunity since the war to give effect to its convictions. Men who were actually on active duty in the armed forces were stopped by urgent telegrams, in various parts of the commonwealth, large parties of youths always arrive under the enforced discipline of the compulsory system, held hilarious celebrations of its abandonment.

Upper class Tibetan women in full society regalia. At the left is a boy lama who has suddenly realized he had not dodged the camera which Tibetans used to believe imprisoned the souls of its subjects.

The upper-class women of Tibet, particularly under the influence of the camera, have been photographed. They have seen many pictures of women from other lands, and they have concluded that it is time for themselves to "get into the act."

Dr. Chuan said that signs of westernizing influence have begun to manifest themselves among Tibetan women. They do not mind the camera as much as they used to. They are now well educated.

But still the camera is not all the harder work of the country. They are carpenters, masons, shopkeepers, and so on.

The Idaho Department Store's High Class MAIN FLOOR SHOE STORE

Mr. Bellamy is more than pleased with the success of his big department last year. He thought his business in 1928 was most remarkable but the volume of 1929 has set a new record and the expansion is truly notable. We hear many claims since the advent of foreign corporations of "selling for less", etc. In the first place we wonder how they know and in the second place we know that every business place in Twin Falls is open to the public and we say to you "Compare" and we will gladly abide by the result. But! Note on this page the nationally known brands of shoes for men, women and children and you will appreciate what we are giving you at all times in quality, in style service, and expert fitting, and when we back it all up with the last, final and conclusive slogan, "If it isn't right, bring it back", it seems to us that there is nothing lacking. And now regular prices are swept aside by the tide of red tags which present to you the savings brought to every body by our Semi-Annual Clearance Sale, January 10th to January 25th inclusive.
