NEGOTIATIONS MOVE FORWARD AGAIN AT NAVAL CONFERENCE

Heavy Veil of Secrecy Obscures Informal Conversations Between Generals Reed and Japanese Envoy

FRANK H. KING (Associated Press Staff Writer) GONDON, March 3.—Still characterized by that inscrutability popularly associated with the Orient, negotiations toward settlement of the American-Japanese naval problems moved forward again today.

No phase of the London conference has been more heavily veiled in secrecy than the informal conversations which have been proceeding since last week between General Reed and Ambassador Matsuda.

Whether Colonel Henry L. Blum and other American delegates more openly this delicate problem is one that confederates admit only the American and Japanese delegates can decide. The whole responsibility is theirs.

A significant meeting occurred today when the American and Japanese delegates, General Reed and Ambassador Robinson conferred with A. W. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, at the house of commons.

Following conference procedure, it is necessary for the American and Japanese delegations to keep their conversations confidential. The French and Italian likewise are informed, and the care with which the American and Japanese delegates have kept their conversations confidential is a matter of course.

It was announced today that the American and Japanese delegations, General Reed and Ambassador Robinson conferred with A. W. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, at the house of commons.

Initial Quarter of Term in White House Sees No Cessation in Magistrate's Vim for Activity and Hard Work

WASHINGTON, March 3.—A diagnosis of American life in varied phases—industrial, social and economic—has characterized Herbert Hoover's first year in the president's chair. The anniversary of his inauguration, tomorrow, will find the engineer-executive in the midst of a broad program of governmental investigation into vital forces affecting men, women and children.

It is this fact-finding spirit that has dominated Mr. Hoover's first year in the White House. With the engineer's propensity for analysis before action, he has named an unprecedented number of investigatory commissions.

Fifteen groups, directed by specialists, have been appointed to delve into problems that touch the farmer, the business man, the housewife and the nation's youth. No other president ever placed such faith in extra-constitutional diversification.

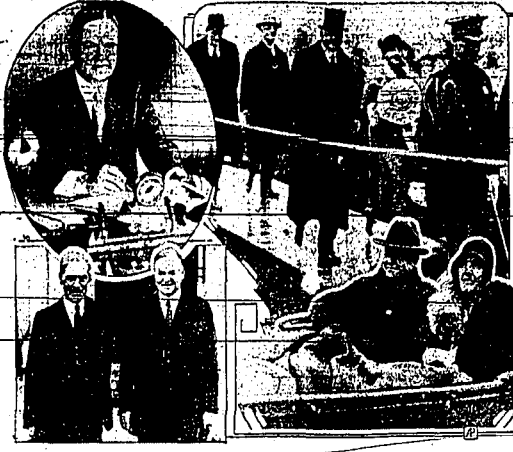

Negotiations leading to the London naval conference, according to a farm relief bill and persistent scrutiny of the nation's prohibition dilemma perhaps are outstanding events of President Hoover's first 12 months in office.

The law enforcement commission, whose activity probably aroused as much public interest as any, was set up to investigate the activities of organized crime.

The farm loan, backed by $500,000 in government funds, is charged with rehabilitation of American agriculture by act of congress is directly possessed of executive duties.

Other Hoover commissions, reflecting the President's interest in commanding experts to consider new and neglected problems, deal with matters that are expected to be major developments of the next several years.

The committee on social trends for instance, contemplates an exhaustive survey of social problems. Three years will be spent on 25 major social questions. The culture survey and committee on illiteracy are expected to expedite state and national legislation and reform for years to come.

lava crevices which border the Snake river into which all eventually drain through subterranean channels.

Losses Periodical The older settlers, holding water rights prior to the formation of the dam, are contending for upward of a half century but some of the settlers on the Carey tract project have suffered periodically from the overflow of water due to seepage into the crevices in the beds of lava across which they have to bring the water to their lands.

Repeated suits and appeals to the legislature have failed to quiet the minds of the older settlers. Last summer the situation was brought to the attention of congress when two flames of lava were reported to have been seen in the canyon.

BURLEY MAN TELLS OF POTATO SUPPLY

Growers Who Stored Crops Need Not Fear Effect of Florida and Texas Harvest

BURLEY, March 3 (Special to The News)—The growers of Idaho potatoes who are now storing their winter crop in storage, need have no fear that the early crop of Florida and Texas will bear the market, asserts Lincoln Wilder, Burley potato dealer.

Florida production throughout the country is below normal, he says, and the estimate made by Joe Marston, Burley potato dealer, is that the present supply of spuds will be exhausted by the middle of June even if shipments were absorbed at as low a volume as 700 cars per day.

The new crop of potatoes does not mean much, Wilder asserts, compared with the enormous consumption, and it has very little effect on the price of our Idaho crop.

ONE THIMBLEFUL - A DAY'S FEED FOR ONE CHICK!

THINK OF IT! One tiny thimbleful... all the feed a chick can put in its little crop in one day. On this tiny bit it must live... grow... build bones... build muscles... start feathers. Think of the job feed has to do!

They must depend on feed for so many things! They get them all in Purina Chick Starters (mash) or Purina All-Mash Starters. Over 12 different ingredients in every thimbleful. Cod-liver oil... dried buttermilk... alfalfa flour... granulated meat... these and eight other things are in it.

These 12 ingredients... think how carefully they must be mixed to make every thimbleful. Purina Starters and All-Mash Starters are mixed over and over again... 900 times fast to be thorough! You will find the same care taken with Baby Chick Chow (mash)... to be fed with Starters and All-Mash chow are six weeks old... and with Purina Growers (mash) and Purina Intermediate Hgn Chow (scratch)... to be fed from the first of the pullets are laying at 16 weeks.

How little feed a chick eats... just one thimbleful a day... yet how important it is... how much depends on it... the chick's very life... its growth... what the pullet will do for you next fall and winter when eggs are sure to be worth good money. You can afford to feed only the best... Purina Poultry Chows.

Wagner Demands Hearing Senator Wagner opened the debate with a demand for hearing on his bills to provide more accurate information on employment and to set up a long range employment planning program. In developing suggestions that delay in enactment of the tariff was responsible for unemployment.

Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, jumped into the debate to demand that the administration critics what they proposed to have done. He asserted full responsibility was upon the administration. Wagner contended this would do more than anything else before congress to help employment. He added that the bill would contribute more to national employment than any other measure.

NINE IN PERIL IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Two Women and Man Receive Cuts in Collision Of Two Machines in Wreck

Six young people of Twin Falls and three of Burley figured in an automobile collision at the intersection of Third avenue and Third street east early Sunday, and one of them, Mrs. Esther Channister, 24, Fifth avenue, was seriously injured.

Miss Lucia Greco, and Enoch Rich, both of Burley, riding with a woman whose name was not learned in a car that was reported to have been owned by a man named Taylor, both received cuts on the forehead, and were taken to a physician's office for treatment.

The machine was badly damaged, the machine, driven by Norris Kimball, Kimberly, in which Mrs. Channister was riding, being so thoroughly demolished that it is said to be not worth repairing.

Kimball was riding with the hospital in another automobile and a final event Thursday evening to which invitations are being sent to all service clubs in Twin Falls.

Guests present at the meeting last night were Mrs. L. Breckenridge, Miss Leatrice Breckenridge and Miss Laurene Hobson. Mrs. Breckenridge gave an entertaining account of her visit to the Hawaiian islands.

Miss Breckenridge gave several local selections in the Hawaiian language. The program for the evening was in charge of Miss Fraser.

STUDENT SPELLERS ENTER COMPETITION

66 ARRESTS IN MONTH CITY POLICE REPORT

Sixteen schools in Twin Falls county have already reported to the police superintendent the names of 22 girls and boys, their parents in a county-wide spelling bee to be held in the high school auditorium here next Saturday at 7 P. M.

The winner in the contest here next Saturday will represent the county in competition with representatives of seven other counties in a district spelling contest to be held in Shoshone on March 20. Eliminations will continue in daily and regional competitions and finally in a national contest, with several thousand dollars in prizes to be distributed among the winners.

In the county contest, each school participating will enter the winner and runner-up in the school contest. Winner and runner-up will contest in event terms. The spelling in the county is to be oral.

Here is a list of entrants thus far reported: the name of the winner being given first and of the runner-up second in each instance:

THE STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE OF MARY YOUNG

By MILTON M. PROPPER

"Because if he were I wouldn't have been there as long as I was. Mrs. Collins gave me black eyes when I got home so late. Bond, you know, is one of those half-well-well men, always gets into a row with his wife. We'd have all heard him soon enough if he had been there. I can tell you that much."

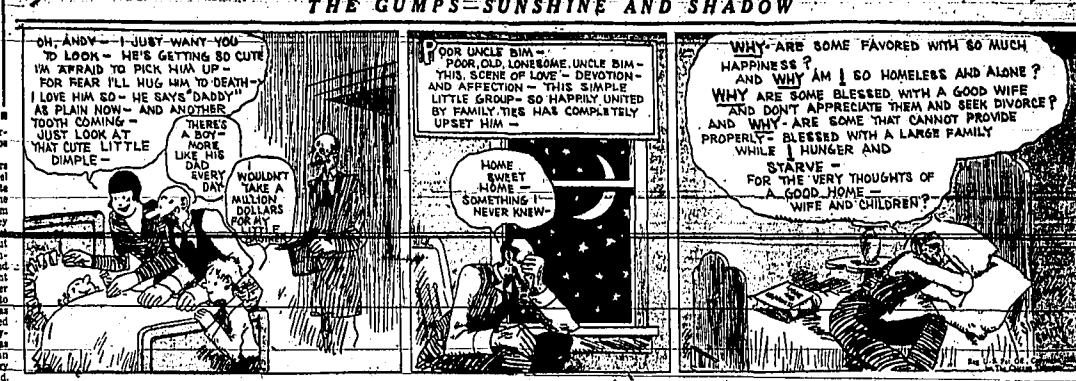

"Don't you think it possible he never been there?" asked the man. "I wish you could think you were right. I suppose, however, there'll be no need of going any farther."

Walls Collins completed the list, a faint hush was waited across the greenwald. "I'll have to be going," remarked the man. "I fancy I'm being paged."

"The farmer Mrs. Arthur Hampstead had a golden bluing bird, was already far advanced upon its night of pilgrimage when Tommy Rankin detected the inclosed grounds of the Bond estate."

"The detective entered the grounds through the iron front gates that were lost to sight in the dense plant growth of the estate. Sighting himself mingled with steady pace and force until the effect was one of a spruce, snaking over the ground."

"The man he sought, the grave of the drive crunched noisy under his feet as he went on, and he reached the fence which divided the house from the sight of the street. It burst into view a tree of the garden of white blossoms. The auto roud turned at the portico on the side, going toward the garage in the distance."
