RAVING AND VIOLENT WIND CLAIM TOLL ON BRITISH ISLES

Storm With Force of Tropical Hurricane Breaks Over England and Scotland During Evening Hour

(By The Associated Press) LONDON, Aug. 29.—Turbulent gales, violent winds and lightning broke with the force of a tropical hurricane over northern England and Scotland.

Before the storm's fury Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, returning by airplane from London, was blown from his vacation, was forced to turn back and land at Caterick airport, Yorkshire.

Widespread damage was caused in the north. The island of Orkney was almost isolated from communication with the rest of the British Isles.

The storm set in early in the day while unprecipitated but raged over most of England.

At noon Edinburgh was so dark that lights and shop lights were turned on. The heavens of the city and the crashing thunder of lightning were heard from such storms are almost unknown.

Brief Respite After a brief respite early in the afternoon, the wind, lightning and rain renewed their furious sweep across the country.

A Glasgow post office official said the storm was the most severe he had ever experienced by the department.

"The wires are down in practically every district of the east coast and North Scotland," he said, "we are attempting to carry out repairs as quickly as possible but are confronted by a tremendous task."

An official at the Leuchars aerodrome, near St. Andrews, toward which the storm was blowing, said it was the worst storm "within living memory."

For several hours official London was in communication with the aerodrome. The long distance lines to Edinburgh held, local lines were being repaired and it was impossible to reach either Caterick aerodrome or Loughborough.

After word of the safety of the head of the government had been received in London, the MacDonald cabinet at Loughborough received a telegram from him at Caterick. The telegram said he had met with a severe storm near the Scottish coast and had been obliged to abandon his flight. He will arrive in Loughborough tomorrow morning.

CHARLES G. DAVES FOLLOWS TRAIL OF MAN THROUGH SPAIN

NIZABLA, Spain, Aug. 29.—Under a brooding sun General Charles G. Daves, American ambassador to Britain and amateur archeologist, today in his shirt sleeves followed the trail of an ancient man through the ancient caves of Nizabla and its surroundings.

Puffing steadily at his underslung pipe and steaming with perspiration, the ambassador fringed with white, examined one of the richest fields of archeological research in Spain. He scolded as he went over the ruins of the Romans came to Spain, and crawled into caves that had been inhabited for untold years before the Phoenician sailors came to the coast.

Clambering through underground passages and fighting his way through the maze of caves, Mr. Daves went out even the younger members of his party but he was happy to have the trail of an ancient man which he had traveled far to find—the traces left by every known age of human existence.

SOLDIERS OF CIVIL WAR HONOR GRANT

Tears Well in Tired Old Eyes as Union Veterans Pay Tribute to Ex-Leader

CINCINNATI, Aug. 29.—Union veterans of the Civil war, all following U. S. Grant as they did 65 years ago, marched today to the Lincoln monument in Cincinnati to honor the late general.

The close of the sixty-fourth annual commencement of the Grand Army of the Republic came at Point Pleasant, Ohio, 27 miles up the Ohio river from Cincinnati, where speakers and listeners alike were as hoarse as birds, laid their homage to its dead hero, then broken ranks and dispersed to their homes.

Officers of the day and honor guests of the veterans was Lieutenant Colonel G. Grant III, grandson of the general, who received the "unity of the nation as shown by the presence of both Union and Confederate veterans fought side by side in the Spanish-American war and World War I."

Governor Myers V. Cooper, Ohio, was another speaker. He said he had written by his grand father in which he counseled "hard work as the best way to success."

CRITIC FLAYS RATE REDUCTION DECISION Northwesterner Charges Interstate Commerce Commission With "Wrong"

PORTLAND, Aug. 29.—Charging the Interstate Commerce Commission had "inflicted a wrong" on the Northwest, today the Interstate Commerce Commission was flayed by a spokesman from the Northwest.

BOARD APPROVES LIST OF JUDGES IN CONTEST BOISE, Aug. 29.—The state board of canvassers today approved the list of judges in the 31 districts and approved the returns to the primary.

The board found there was a contest of every judge in some districts several. The list was trimmed down to the leading candidate for each party.

TERRIFIED CHINESE FLEE FROM CITIES AS BRIGANDS NEAR

Provincial Garrison Plans Flight Before 20,000 Communists Marching Toward Changsha and Wuchang

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29.—Thousands of terrified Chinese fled from Changsha and Wuchang today as "Red" armies approached.

The advance body of 10,000 "reds" only 10 miles from the city walls, threatened to attack momentarily. Further wholesale looting and murder completed the Communist sacking and burning of Changsha last month, was feared.

The few Americans who returned after the July holocaust were prepared to take refuge aboard the United States gunboat Palos. They had little confidence in the ability of the provincial troops to resist an attack, and scotched at the strutting of a wire fence across Changsha. The fence was to carry a deadly current, a modern device supplementing the ancient walls of the city. The wiring program was without its leader.

Accusing Governor Ho-chang-tsun of incompetence or worse when the "reds" recently depopulated the city, the troops expelled him a few days ago. They demanded back pay. It was said some had joined the Communists.

IDAHO WINTER WHEAT PLANTING DECREASES Both reports showing the status of the 1930-1931 building program launched three years ago and were prepared to make to the president project they believed should be carried in next year's appropriations.

The acreage promised is 515,000, which compares with 542,000 in 1929. This figure is subject to considerable change, he said, due to the fact that winter wheat in Idaho is grown on non-irrigated lands where irrigation is dependent upon soil moisture.

Fog Descends on Polar Regions, Adding to Difficulty of Finding Vessel Carrying Andree's Body

TROMSOE, Norway, Aug. 29.—Great banks of white fog descended today on the polar regions, adding to the difficulties of searching for the ill-fated Arctic expedition, which departs its small size, is at the moment probably the world's most famous and most sought after.

Whether the Bratvaag is pursuing her dangerous but still somewhat remote business of catching seals in the region of Fridtjof Nansen Land, or whether she is racing back to Tromsoe with her wander tale and the bodies of the explorers is not known.

While several vessels are searching for the Bratvaag, the Norwegian naval vessel Michael Sorensen has been broadcasted in an effort to cause the little boat to proceed to a given position in the Arctic. Then the navy ship intends to land Tromsoe from Iceland and pick up the Bratvaag and Swedish physicist, who will try to preserve the bodies aboard if the vessel is not equipped to deal with them.

HOOPER DISCUSSES BUILDING PROGRAM Chief Executive at Rapidan River Camp Plans to Confer on Federal Projects

ORANGE, Va., Aug. 29.—President Hoover this week-end will confer at his Rapidan river lodge near Washington with government officials concerning a possible speeding up of the federal 10-year public construction program.

Miss Arndt said that "during the hard times employers have prospered and, perhaps often at a sacrifice, tried to give work to married and single men known to be the mainstay in family budgets."

VACCINE USED FOR BATTLING SPOTTED FEVER WINS AWARD

Dr. R. R. Spencer Prevents 6000 Persons From Contracting Disease in Year and Efforts Bring Reward

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—By developing a vaccine which, he terms "tick-juice," Dr. R. R. Spencer of the United States public health service, this year saved 6000 persons from the deadly Rocky Mountain spotted fever—and won the gold medal of the American Medical Association.

His medal signifies the saving, not of one life but of scores already, and hundreds in years to come, in one locally public health records show deaths of 85 per cent of the fever victims during the disease in 1929.

Dr. R. R. Spencer values that medal more, he admitted today, because of the fact that it was bestowed on a locally public health records show deaths of 85 per cent of the fever victims during the disease in 1929.

"I suppose the reason I got the medal is that my vaccine in the field made of insect-grounds tick juice," Dr. Spencer said, "was the only one that I figured that with ticks I could inoculate against it. I tested it on a dozen pigs and it was the only one that I worked in on myself, and it worked."

"In 1921 I was the first and only one to make it. In 1923, 31 brave souls volunteered. In 1924, with out any urging, the number was 100. And it is now 6000. It is the only vaccine we could make in our public health service laboratory."

Spencer explained that his really valuable discovery was the habituating of ticks and virus concerning the disease. When winter winds sweep the West, the ticks migrate to Montana, Wyoming, and Idaho. He explained, the ticks on sheep and wild animals become quiescent. The virus which the ticks also habituate, he said.

Only through a duplication of this habituating and a vaccine vaccine is developed, he discovered. "After allowing the ticks to feed on infected animals we put them into the hands of the officials."

"When taken out, they have no effect. Just a tick here and there is not a problem. It is only when you get a thousand guinea pigs, it is a problem."

Wings Of Love

By Vera Brown

Jane had thought of asking Mr. Dennis to write to her at the General Delivery window of the Spokane. Her father's name was living with Gladys Davis, but she was afraid he would misunderstand. She would not like to ask him to write to her again and again in the days to come. For the following week Jack believed he had found the answer to the unexplained correspondence.

Forest Landings

While Jane struggled in a brilliant August sky in her graceful little biplane, learning to turn "figure eight," make spirals and rise three-point landings for the Department of Commerce test, Paula developed a sudden and unexplained interest in the airplane.

Every morning she donned a white cover and went into the hangars to watch Ming rebuilding great wings which pulled from the air at incredible speed. She watched other mechanics rigging struts, adjusting the wing struts and she boasted she was going to learn to fly from the ground up.

At first it was a nine-day wonder at the airport.

"I don't care just what her game is," Red Lynch speculated again and again the first week of Paula's antics. "She's going along with everybody else, but I promptly forgot all about it. The sight of Paula about the hangars became a usual sight."

Jane was working and studying night and day. She flew regularly with the instructor, receiving for Mr. Gage. Then at night she studied the Department of Commerce regulations. She was to take both her written and her air test in a week.

"I don't know if I flunked either one," she told Jack.

"So would I," he retorted. "You'd better not come back here if you don't young lady."

Grooming for the Test

Jack coaching her on the air commerce regulations.

"Know all about air traffic rules," he warned her. "And read that pamphlet through from cover to cover. You never know what they'll ask if you pass a line written test. It will help you air test, and the other way around. Don't take any chance on their 'washing you up' the night almost half the folks last time!"

So Jane studied. She learned about ownership of planes, about inspection, about reporting accidents. She learned the ten reasons for why a pilot's license may be revoked. She knew that regulations for renewing private pilot's licenses and which pilots may teach students to fly.

"Jack, if a pilot flies in Jersey and works in Connecticut can he fly an airplane in Idaho?" she asked.

"You can answer either 'yes' or 'no' to that one, provided you give reasons by way of answer to your contention. He can't fly this ship into another State if he uses it for hire. He can't fly for hire in transportation and he works in, say, woolen mills at Hartford, then he can't!"

Jane sighed. She was terrified by the examinations.

"Don't let me! I don't know how to fly," she explained carefully, but just as sure as I know I'm flying for those Department of Commerce inspectors, who know all the terrible landings!"

"I'm not afraid of spirals, but sometimes I get a little dizzy looking backward and don't even know if I'm moving."

"You'd better remember that when you're on the outside of each loop you ought to be headed into the wind. The best keep your head up. And pick a road to use for a 'pivot'! This Jane would take the ship up into the bright August sky again for more rehearsing."

It was within the bounds of possibility, certainly, and Jane felt sure she was not over-ambitious. The fact written abroad. There was another class which frightened her. When she made application to take the license she applied to the papers in detail.

It was later she found out a pilot's license may be revoked for: "Making false statement in application for a license," Jane had lied about her name, her birthplace, her parents, everything about her life.

"It would mean open disgrace!" More than once she was on the verge of talking to Jack, but she could not. It can't be losing him! I can't risk it!" and she recalled again his old plea that she might never disappoint him. She wrote to Mr. Dennis, but she felt more and more entangled and helpless in the web of her brave deceit.

It was the day of the written examination on Tuesday. Jane arrived at the Federal building at 8 o'clock. There was a big line. Jane wore a good white slat dress, and as she walked into the civil service room, the embossed paper on the wall read: "The examination is open to all. Never had Jane looked more beautiful. The woman who faced a spiritual appearance. There were circles under her dark blue eyes, evidently someone had been crying. She entered male. Jane took the set of questions the inspector gave her and set to work at the nearest table. She sat steadily for an hour without lifting her golden head. She got ink on her nose. The man behind her sneezed. She was totally oblivious of her surroundings.

"How are you coming?" he asked with a kindly smile. "I've just finished," she said as she handed him her paper.

"The inspector talked with Jane for a few minutes and then she hurried out to the street, where Jack, who was waiting for her, helped her in.

"It was terrible!" she cried. "I don't know if I flunked it. What shall I do?" and suddenly Jane was sobbing on Jack's shoulders with complete abandon.

"Patted."

"Here, here, none of that!" he cried. "I'm taking you right home and you get to bed tonight. No more here. There aren't good for pilots Thursday's the big day now and you've got to have plenty of rest tonight."

It was the next day that Jack found Jane had passed her examination. It was in two hours of study that she was so glad she almost cried again, and Jack ordered her off home and he packed her papers.

"Don't get out to the field early either!" he said. "You'll get nervous with the crowd. Plenty steady tonight."

"But I want to 'shoot' a couple of landings just to see how the wind will blow. I know it's blowing hard I understand and when there isn't any, I'm apt to come in over where too high for pilots."

"Never mind that!" the lieutenant told her. "Just fly as you always fly, and nobody will mind."

But Jane, when she went to bed that night, set Miss Davis' alarm clock for 8. She was determined to be at the airport by 8 and do a landing or two before even Jack appeared.

DIVORCE DECREE ENDS 10 YEARS OF DISCORD

Following attorney's argument in a divorce suit in which residence was reserved last week, Judge W. A. Babcock in district court here yesterday granted a decree of divorce to Paul C. Vichewsky of Twin Falls from Martha Vichewsky, Denver, terminating a career of domestic violence extending over a period of 10 years.

Twice Mrs. Vichewsky has come from Denver to testify in district court here on the first occasion some months ago and again last week, in opposition to Vichewsky's claims for custody.

He obtained a separate maintenance in a Colorado court in October, 1919, about a year after the divorce suit was filed in Idaho.

OPPOSITION BALKS JUDGMENT CLAIM

District Court Denies Attempt by W. C. Pond to Collect From Bond Fund

United States Fidelity and Guaranty company, surety for Carl L. DeLong, bankrupt Twin Falls produce dealer, and other claimants for a share in the distribution of the $25,000 penal sum of his produce dealer's bond, balked an attempt made by W. C. Pond, bond collector, to collect from the bond fund here yesterday to satisfy an $1870 judgment claim out of money in the hands of the court.

Following argument on Pond's contention, Judge W. A. Babcock denied motion in this regard.

His judgment claim dates from last May when a jury in district court here returned a verdict in his favor and against DeLong and the surety company.

Other claimants were C. D. Callender, Jerome, and the surety company, who entered the suit brought by the surety company and E. C. Murr and company, Salt Lake City, and Clarence Winger, suing in a Utah court for judgment against the DeLong bond.

Total of the three claims is considerably in excess of the penal sum of the bond, which the surety company contends, represents the full amount of its liability.

In argument in district court here yesterday, J. H. Barnes, Twin Falls, appeared as attorney for Pond, and F. L. Stephan and H. P. Perry, attorneys for the surety company and other claimants.

INVESTIGATION LEADS TO REMOVAL OF SIGNS

Not only one, but many sign boards set up on parking space in front of business establishments on Main avenue and Shoshone streets were discovered by N. B. Briggs, police officer, when he set out yesterday to investigate one complaint of violation of city ordinance provisions in this regard.

In each instance the officer called attention to the ordinance terms, and a general removal of sign boards from the parking space followed.

Celebrating his golden wedding anniversary, W. A. Pitzer, 76, Shoshone, Iowa, defeated four of his sons at golf.

In the last 10 years 42,574 patents have been granted, more than in all of the 102 years following Washington's inauguration in 1789.

One out of every 421 persons in Minnesota has an automobile, according to the 1920 census.

Stores Here Close For Labor Holiday

Labor day, falling this year on Monday, September 2, is one of several holidays on which Twin Falls business houses, by agreement entered into several years ago, will close their doors for the day, it was announced at Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce office yesterday.

Many Twin Falls folks are planning to take advantage of the double holiday for outing excursions, it was indicated.

What cook books stress in broiling steak is also stressed in roasting HILLS BROS COFFEE

Cook the steak a little at a time on each side. That's the way to broil it evenly. Hills Bros. roast their coffee a few pounds at a time by their patented, continuous process, Controlled Roasting. Every berry is roasted evenly and a flavor is developed such as no other coffee has.
