Time After Time Cardinals Unleash Offensive Good For Many Yards Only To Meet Stonewall Defense

By BOY F. HENDRICKSON (Associated Press Sports Writer)
MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 11.—Stanford's attack, directed by Coach Fritz Crisler, fought with a desperation of underdogs, arose to unexpected heights to halt the brilliant offensive of Minnesota's giant backs, to record a scoreless tie in the first meeting of the two teams here today.

Six times the power of Cliff H. Moore, Minnesota's star back, scored for the Western eleven, but each time the Gopher line baited the visitors in a standard to completely unexpected loss for the squad of Coach Fritz Crisler.

Once, in the game's most spirited point, Stanford got to the Gopher 15-yard line but could go no further despite the flash and power of Phil Moffatt, Harry Roberts and Henry Tillman, ace of the Cardinal attack.

The final desperate effort to score was made by the California two minutes before the game ended. However, again the Gopher line, with special aid from Moffatt, but despite excellent protection from Gopher interference, Minnesota carefully executed the kick west of the 50-yard line, and the last three of the California to score here today.

Three times the power of Cliff H. Moore, Minnesota's star back, scored for the Western eleven, but each time the Gopher line baited the visitors in a standard to completely unexpected loss for the squad of Coach Fritz Crisler.

With stages set for the afternoon's climax, Moffatt took the ball again and with a mighty burst of speed, buried through the air in an effort to side over the pack of Gophers forward. But at least three pairs of Gopher hands reached up, grasping the line firmly and he was thrown back behind the point from which he started.

This outbreak of Gopher defiance brought over the 4,000 spectators into a frenzy of cheering. To Gopher supporters the tie amounted to a moral victory as they had been re-credited before the game to defeat because of Minnesota's great defensive showing against Vanderbilt a week ago when the Southerners invaded this stadium to win 23-0.

Wyoming Loses to Carnegie Trounces Montana Bobcats Georgia Tech, 31-0

Third-Period Aerial Attack by Invading Machine Results in Score of 20-13

LARAMIE, Wyo., Oct. 11 (AP)—Outplayed in the first half, Montana State's Bobcats clawed their way to a 20-13 victory over the University of Wyoming here today, with a third-period aerial attack.

The Cowboys gave a homecoming cheer to their supporters as the half ended with Wyoming leading 6-0. The trend of affairs changed with suddenness as the Bobcats came out of their lethargy and scored three touchdowns. Two of the scores were from punts, and the third on an interception.

Wyoming's outstanding weakness, defense against a passing attack, was the chief factor in the Cowboy loss. In all other departments of the encounter, including drive, Wyoming was superior.

Defeat, Bobcat slanders, Worthington, stellar end, and Sailer, who substituted for DePrate, were the principal ones in the Bobcat attack.

Worthington was on the receiving end of the Montana State overhead attack, with Sailer and DePrate doing the teasing. Sailer and DePrate also contributed valuable kicking.

Big touchdowns for the Cowboys with a brilliant exhibition of open field running. Humphries, Barnes and Ross also stood out.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 11 (AP)—Army played with a courageous but ineffective football game from Swarthmore today, winning up a few of the regular first team for half.

SCOTCH-AND-IRISH GET ATTENTION OF STYLISTS IN PARIS

Scotland's Plaids, Used In Sports Garments, and Ireland's Greens Gain Favor With Dressmakers

By MARIANA BEAUFORT
 (Associated Press Fashion Editor)
PARIS, Oct. 11—There is a lot of Scotch and Irish in the autumn wardrobe, for designers are developing for private orders. The Irish takes the form of green tweeds, plaids and materials. The Scotch, in plaid, which sets the note for sports and for novelty accessories for day wear. The dress house which launched Scotch tartan for sports wear, carried it right into a run of orders which neatly stamped the workrooms for a time. All the abolitionists, going to Scotland for the opening of the game season, making a rush for the Boudou, McKechnon, MacLeod and Mac Gorge tartans and long before orders were filled, the supply of material was used up. The rogue of green is apparently to continue straight through the winter and to be a morning, noon and night preference. Dress shades run to the blue-greens and turquoise and water greens. A plaid producing green checks and stripes. Purifiers dye minkskin and lamb to tan shades and a few dress for evening is obtainable if you want it.

WOMEN TAKE TRIPS FOR EXPLORATIONS

Ranks of Female Explorers and Mountain Climbers Continue to Increase

By ELDE McARTHUR
 (Associated Press Staff Writer)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—While women have not yet attempted polar expeditions some of them are discovering new fields or are making new journeys in such northern countries as:

The yearly report of the society of woman explorers shows that women, clad in garb ranging from heavy boots and furs to thinnest alpine, are penetrating farther and farther into the hitherto unexplored regions. Elizabeth Holtz, Latvian, alone and for native expedition, traveled for 60 days by rail and alpine, while going from Siberia to China. Annal B. Peck, famous mountain climber, has recently viewed the former fields of exploration from a new angle. She ascended 18,000 feet in an airplane while flying across the Andes and reported it as a "glorious trip."

The South Sea, long has carried adventurous women. Caroline Lyster, while painting portraits of natives of East Java, penetrated a region to which no white man had ever been. Gladys E. Hollister, while with the Bermuda oceanographic expedition, descended 400 feet in a steel diving apparatus into the depths and brought to the surface the water. At the depths she found the water a cold blueish purple, with certain shapes looking either white or black.

Tiny Girl Leaps With Parachute Three and One-Half Miles in Air

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 11—She's just a tiny girl barely heavy enough to open a parachute, but she did it and jumped over a plane three and a half miles above the earth. That's Jane (Doll) Smith, who is believed to have set a new women's parachute jump record with a leap of more than 18,000 feet. She stepped out of the plane which it soared about 11,000 feet and after drifting for 15 minutes she alighted in a cornfield nearly six miles from the city. The altimeter of the ship recorded 18,500 feet before she leaped. The record "babe" is believed to have broken was set by Bill Brown at El Monte, California, who made a jump of 10,400 feet. An official of the National Aerobics Association was an official observer at the St. Joseph girl's leap and after a careful calculation of the barograph carried by her, announced she had dropped nearly 19,000 feet. The barograph has been sent to Washington for official calibration. Officials also collected, making her jump with no more than 70 pounds. She was in the air for 30 minutes. She says she is planning to go on a shopping excursion. "Doll" has been making parachute leaps since 1927. During that time she had made more than 80 jumps. "I don't get shaky at all," "Doll" said. "Doll" is of slight build and weighs scarcely 110 pounds. She also explains that her jump was not quite as high as the one she made last week when she jumped out of a biplane for a parachute jump. She was born in Yankton, S. D., and now lives near St. Joseph. Her father, one of the pilots who plans to leap soon on a 60,000-

Right Colors Make Living Room Cheerful

By ELSIE DREW KENNEDY
 (Special Features Editor, Written for the Twin Falls News)
 The living room, as the room about which most of the life of the household revolves, should be the most gracious and cheerful and at the same time the most dignified room in the house. The combination of qualities might be difficult to achieve if it were not for color. But the effect of color on the subconscious mind is immeasurable as any stage designer can tell you. Consider the beginning of a play—the play which die casts are behind—the stage is lit up in a warm green light, mysterious and awe-inspiring. But when the hero and heroine are freed from a plot and unlike a third act they are surrounded by a joyous light which suggests only joy and security. Color possibilities. Before decorating any room, therefore, it is well to run over the list of colors and their possibilities. Green, as we have said, in some shades is mysterious and should not be used for lights, but, like blue, it is cool, refined and very restful and makes a splendid background color. The range from red to orange is warm and vibrating and is most effective in small spots, while yellow and yellow-green are cheerful, warm and refreshing.

The living room illustrated is distinguished for its excellent architecture, its well designed furniture, its nicely balanced arrangement, but more than that for its clear use of color. Its walls and woodwork are painted the same color, a soft blue-green that soothing. The drop-pile rug which covers the entire floor is a dark green; a small black and white checkered table cloth supports a jade-colored set tray and an amethyst lamp with a light-colored shade. A red velvet chair is placed near the fireplace and a large, comfortable chair upholstered in a peacock satin and to the right of that, contentedly with its own chair, is a peacock satin. Empire inspiration. Its base is walnut and its top is plum-colored marble. The painted green to match the walls. An apricot satin pillow is tossed casually against the curved back of the settee and the coffee table and the drop-pile rug.

$500,000 Coronet Serves Many Purposes

PARIS, Oct. 11—A practical duchess, Louisa of Westminster, wife of one of England's wealthiest peers, possesses a coronet of diamonds and platinum valued at more than $500,000 that can be taken apart and worn as separate necklace, brooch and pair of earrings. It was designed and made for her in the Rue de la Paix and it quotes the last word in ensemble jewelry. Three large diamonds, two almond shaped, form the central stones of the diadem. The almond shaped pair can be attached as pendants to the brooch, which is formed by the peak of the headdress. All three large stones were, in the possession of the Duke of Westminster at the time of his marriage about 18 months ago to Kitty Prouse, who is the daughter of the treasurer of the King of England, Sir Frederick Grey Prouse. The outer rim of the diadem takes off to form a necklace of more than fifty stones alternating round and tapered jewels. The earrings, which can be detached from the central motif of the coronet, contain each a tapered diamond and two round stones.

England's Duchess of Westminster had her $500,000 coronet made to divide into every jewelry. She is shown with the coronet and a necklace which may be made from it.

 Gemstone Jewelry—Ladies' jewelry, hand rings, brooches, and pendants.
 Jewelry for Decadence—With grapes in such superabundance as to be used for a decorative scheme of the house and the decorated her long reflective table.
 A charming centerpiece I once saw was a bouquet of matted pink roses flowing from a bank of matted grapes. Another was a veritable mound of purple grapes surrounded by a mass of feathery white stemless chrysanthemums.
 Stemless bloom, by the way, can be combined very interestingly with fruit in lovely flowering bouquets in all shades of color and green. One may also use a pile of moist sand in any shape desired.
 Floating Bouquet—Stemless rose, pansies, gardenias, gerberas, can be utilized in making lovely floating bouquets in the attractive clear receptacles made for that purpose. Or you can manufacture one for yourself. Take your crystal glass, pipe within it your stem conserve dish and on that a shatter glass. Fill the dishes with water and set the flowers afloat.
 One final hint about grapes. Occasionally serve them as a certain little Greek-taste treat. Remove the grapes from the bunches, wash and dry, and keep them on a tray covered with grape leaves, with some tiny bunches of powdered sugar and others of preserved ginger interspersed. Some of the very large grapes are sliced in half, the seeds carefully removed, and replaced with a pecan.

MRS. HURLEY CHOICES SUIT OF BLUE CHIFFON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—Mrs. Patrick Hurley, wife of the secretary of war, is wearing an ensemble suit of blue chiffon. With it she wears a close-fitting felt hat of the same shade of blue. Its only ornament is a jaunty little blue feather which goes down over one ear.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—Flowered laticia is used for an evening gown by Mrs. Arthur J. May. The dress is light fitting with vertical blue chiffon. With it she wears a long neck and long skirt with a velvet hem line.

Royal Decree Urging Sale of Goods to Columbus at Low Price Attracts Dawes

General On Visit to Museum in Spain Hears Custodian's Opinion Concerning Duration of King and Queen

By CLARENCE DUBOIS (Associated Press Correspondent) SEVILLE, Spain, Oct. 11—Nothing was said in Spain, not even regarding the opinion of President Dawes which he journeyed to this country especially to inspect, pleased General Dawes more than that he set out in order to protect Columbus from profilers.

As former director of supply services in the World War, General Dawes was interested in hearing that if the discoverer of America was overcharged by supply contractors it was not the fault of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella.

They issued orders that everybody should sell supplies to Columbus at the same price as the discoverer of America. One of the instructors in the huge Archives of the king has been taken from his post by General Dawes.

The ancient script on this parchment was read into modern Spanish and translated into English for the general. He wanted to know whether the Spaniards really did sell supplies to Columbus at the same price as the discoverer of America.

"Who knows?" replied the canny clerk who had the parchment translated into English for the general. He wanted to know whether the Spaniards really did sell supplies to Columbus at the same price as the discoverer of America.

"Who knows?" he asked. "I have spent many days reading the records of long ago. The original records, however, do not say anything about the price that the sovereign ordered."

Interest In Chess Continues In German Village For More Than Three Centuries

Even Boys and Girls Carry Chessboards to School For Pastime Proven Popular in Many Generations

By WADE WERNER (Associated Press Staff Writer) STROBECK, Germany, Oct. 11—Poles who are wondering how long the miniature golf craze will last in America may be interested to hear that the villagers of Strobeck, who went wild over chess more than three hundred years ago, still have faithful followers of the game.

Perhaps there are American towns now where the children all carry pocket chess to school, but juvenile chess tournaments have been going on in Strobeck for generations, and one tree within a few days of each other.

For in Strobeck chess is part of the public curriculum. The youngsters absorb chess fundamentals along with the three R's, and school tournament events are held regularly.

Philipinos Come to America Because of Unemployment and Independence Trouble

Labor Bureau Director Finds Solution to Problem of Job—Scarcity—Coincides With Politicians' Efforts

(By The Associated Press) MANILA, Oct. 11—Hermengildo Cruz, director of the bureau of labor, seeking a solution of a rather critical unemployment problem in the Philippines, finds himself in the same camp as those Filipinos who think that the cause of independence can be advanced by flooding the United States with Filipino labor.

Feeling that it would help to relieve unemployment in the islands, he urges able bodied workers to migrate to Hawaii and the United States, where there is permanent employment, and greater protection to laborer.

Political Strategy The politicians who urge Filipinos to go to America hope that the flooding of the United States would become so objectionable that independence would be granted to overcome the situation.

Cruz says that a bilateral agreement in the islands, accompanied by low prices for hemp and sugar, has become thousands out of work indefinitely. To prove that Filipinos in the United States and Hawaii are prosperous the United States and Hawaii are that from 1923 to 1929 emigration sent back home $43,000,000. In 1929 alone $5,000,000 came from the United States and $5,624,000 from Hawaii.

BIRTH CONTROL IDEA INVADES STORK CLAN

WARSAW, Oct. 11 (AP)—The stork is disappearing from Europe. Nets under observation in Poland have revealed a continuous decrease of eggs and fledglings for several years. Out of 50 nests examined in 1928, 43 contained no eggs at all. This year 33 nests out of 115 were empty.

Practical conservationists assert that ideas of birth control have penetrated to the stork clan.

MEXICO BEGINS DRIVE FOR HOME PRODUCTS MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11 (AP)—Business men who believe that because of its unfavorable international trade balance the country is faced by calamity have organized a "made in Mexico" campaign to induce the public to favor home-manufactured articles.

The committee in charge of the campaign will urge Mexicans to use only Mexican made perfumes, powders and cloth, and will call upon the men to give preference to Mexican tobacco and articles of apparel.

An intense nationwide drive of this kind is necessary to save the country from ruin, the committee holds.
