Chicago Employs Northwestern University Scientific Laboratory Founded By Philanthropist In Effort To Provide Modern Crime Detection Service

Scientists and Detectives
Join Forces in Movement
Against City's Criminals

Bureau Established Only 16 Months Ago
Boasts Long List of Successful Investigations Into Daring Murders in America

By WALTER T. BROWN
(Writer for The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The unwavering finger of science is pointing out new ways to follow the criminal's hidden trail.

In Chicago—Chicago with its hundreds of unsolved gangster murders, a scientific crime detection laboratory, patterned after the best in Europe, quietly is assembling experts in data, to make discovery of law infractions more probable.

The laboratory, born of a wealthy manufacturer's dissatisfaction with the way officials handle the mercenary St. Valentine's day massacre of seven gangsters, is part of Northwestern university.

The wealthy manufacturer, Bert Manso, a lean-faced, gray-haired scientist and sportsman, has paid most of the upkeep of the laboratory, which costs about $15,000 a year.

The Chicago laboratory—first in kind in North America—eventually is to become a clearing house for scientists to secure title crime detection. So far it has been too successful in solving cases and attempting to handle the detection problem that it has expanded by virtually every state.

In its brief history, established in July, 1928, the bureau has established clues in such front page thrillers as:

The St. Valentine's day massacre
Murder of Al Capone, Chicago reporter.

Solving of Mary Baker Washington's death, wife of Major Charles A. Shepard, Denver army surgeon.

Unusual accidental death of Willard Clegg, millionaire, wealthy Columbus, Ohio man.

Masek has been a mystery story reader and author-of-the-month in great detective. In fact, had his first contact with crime and its morbid magnetism when he was called to serve as coroner in investigating the gangster killing.

"It's a bugger, sure to put about $60,000 or more a year on this project," he observes.

He is a man of unusual understanding that will, I believe, result in a much like methodical approach of combating crime. He does that, it will not be you, and everybody else in the crime rate.

Masek, executive of a big business, means business.

Out of the office of Dr. Fredrick Goddard, the scientific warden of the coroner's jury, some place I had read of forensic science; that men who had the bullet had been fired from certain guns. A lawyer friend re-

Chicago's crime laboratory is finding new ways to follow the criminal's hidden trail. Calvin Goddard (seated at left), its director, is shown examining guns used in the St. Valentine's day massacre. Behind him stands a Bert Manso, founder of the laboratory. At left is bullet by which the guns were identified and (upper left) the scene of the slayings.

OLD FASHION REMEDY

By D. R. Churchill

Sometimes I get to ponderin', like people sometimes do. And I wonder what this country's comin' to.

It seems she's out o' keeler quite,

and that without a doubt.

Nobody knows exactly why or what it all about.

We boast of our intelligence,

our wealth and prestige, too,

Or we're the greatest and the

the mistakes they do.

By juggin' grandpa's clock we make this daylight-savvin' time.

And we've got the world all beaten

at perpetually crime.

And we've got too many bircos,

ink prints, shoe prints, rubber heel

marks, finger print scrappins, bits of fabric, in fact any and all human material, physical, mental, messages to scientific detectives.

Assisting Goddard are Dr. Clarence W. Mueller, toxicologist, and Dr. George L. Nichols, bacteriologist, police laboratory, and Vienna's expert on fingerprints and Vienna's

police laboratory, with its collection of 10,000,000 prints.

Lack Of Labor Prevents Completion Of Soviet's Turkestan Railroad Line

Officials of 1,700-Mile Line Through Siberia Ask For 4000 Workers To Aid In Finishing Project

By VICTOR G. C. EURABERS (Associated Press Staff Writer) MOSCOW, Nov. 22.—General traffic on the new Soviet Trans-Siberian railway, which was officially opened several months ago with much ceremony, has been delayed by lack of labor. It is now expected to complete stations, switch yards and other attributes of a regular line.

Officials of this road, which is one of the big achievements of the Soviet government, recently asked for 4000 workers to aid in completion of the line.

In general use on January 1, 1931, but if the labor shortage continues there is considerable doubt as to just when the happy ending will be reached.

The main line was built entirely by native labor and without foreign technical or financial assistance. It cost $1,000,000,000 and required four years of unrelenting work.

Situation Still

The railway situation in Russia apparently is not improving very rapidly, although there is no lack of labor. In fact, as far as possible, the number of cars is still insufficient to take care of the country's grain and other products.

General Burlakov, which told the Associated Press that the Russian lines have been experiencing a heavier traffic than ever before, said that the country in show, that American traffic figures, for instance, show that America has 20 passengers per mile while Canada 2.7 and the Soviet Union 1.27.

While the passenger traffic is uniformly, the weight of money freight is more than twice that of passengers. Goods are shipped to the cities daily in open freight cars, uncared and unrefrigerated.

The reason that for every carload of these perishables shipped only about one-fourth is fit for consumption when it arrives at destination. In winter, however, the weather always is vegetables, whereas, under American shipping conditions, there would be more than plenty.

CREMATION APPEARS

UNPOPULAR IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Nov. 22 (AP)—Despite attempts to popularize the Russian and the known favor of the soviet government, the public is not convinced that cremation is the proper way to dispose of the dead.

The reluctance to substitute the furnace for the grave is evidenced by the fact that there is only one crematorium in the entire country, and that is in Moscow.

With the majority of Russians insisting that the dead must be buried with proper ceremonies, the government has no immediate intention of closing the crematorium. Moreover, the government's anti-religious policy by the fact that the lone crematory here has to work overtime.

SWEDISH LABOR GROWS
STOCKHOLM, Nov. 22 (AP)—The national federation of labor reports its 1930 membership at 1,000,000 and its assets as totaling $1,200,000.

Nations Join In Tribute To South American Liberator

By CHARLES E. HARNER (Associated Press Staff Writer) MANTA, Ecuador, Nov. 22.—In this little seaport of the Caribbean, where five ungrateful nations had driven him to die alone, the people of Ecuador have joined in a fitting tribute to Bolivar, the liberator of South America.

Columbia, where he died; Venezuela, where he was born; Ecuador, Peru and Bolivia, will join in the program. For in this town is buried the heart of the man who declared:

"War is my element, peace my glory, death my end."

He said that after he and his nondescript army of halfsooted, ill-equipped volunteers had fought their way across the mountains against trained soldiers to wrest half a continent from the Spanish crown.

Frodes for Death
He died here December 17, 1830, of tuberculosis in the house of a Spaniard. When Bolivar's countrymen had driven him to die alone, Simon de Alvaro gave the archdeacon of Spain a bed and a clean shirt that he might die decently.

He died here, he said. His cause, as he saw it, was the independence of South America.

ENGLISH SHOW HATS OF COLOR FOR MEN

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 22 (AP)—Blue and yellow hats for men, designed for spring wear, are on exhibition here.

"The colors are 'modern' for instance, a style as brilliant as the fruit itself, with a white ribbon and brown binding; a blue and yellow 'tartan' pattern; a 'pinstripe' and 'rich red'; a "Roman gold" and 'sunshine,' a delicate canary yellow.

"We are afraid of that time," said a director of the firm. "We have sold only a few in England, but they will be included in our spring stock."

STOCK GAMES BILT BRITISH INVESTORS

High Pressure Salesmen Demand On England and Take Upwards of $5,000,000

LONDON, Nov. 22 (AP)—British American citizens are buying in the stock market, a clique of high pressure salesmen has descended upon London, demanding as far as possible, the number of cars is still insufficient to take care of the country's grain and other products.

The invaders use the same arguments as the "blunder boys," by whom the British lines have been experiencing a heavier traffic than ever before.

The invaders are staying over the flat sheets, a privately printed "bulletin" in ecclesiastical arch-

ture. From disgruntled employees of reputable houses the sharpers obtained lists of people who had been fired, and then approached them by trading uppers for the legitimate the uppers defrauded their victims, just as they went after robbery bond holders in America.

We demand "game!"

Churches Of Germany Follow Politics And Religious Trends With Modernistic Design

Ecclesiastical Bodies View

New Architectural Style With Mild Complacency

By WADE WERNER (Associated Press Staff Writer) COLOGNE, Germany, Nov. 22—Germany, modernistically minded in politics, has become modernistic in religious expression of religion through the last overthrow of the empire.

Actually the broad changes in religious belief in America since World War I have been expressed as anything of the kind in Germany but here the break with the old-time tenets has been expressed in church architecture as well as in religious utterances.

German ecclesiastical organizations view with complacency what many American churchmen would consider heretical. The German idea appears to be that neither medieval nor nineteenth century church architecture is good enough for the architect designing a church to-day. One may easily radically from all precedent without committing himself or his ecclesiastical clients of irreverence.

Differ Radically

Nothing could be more radically different from the mosaics and stained glass windows of old family churches, than, for instance, the new Evangelical church of Cologne.

In the rebuilt Mecklenburgische are, in which the Steinerne ammunitions—center, there is a modernistic church with a simple roof, a single tower, and a metal bell tower.

The invaders used the same arguments as the "blunder boys," by whom the British lines have been experiencing a heavier traffic than ever before.

The invaders are staying over the flat sheets, a privately printed "bulletin" in ecclesiastical archi-

ture. From disgruntled employees of reputable houses the sharpers obtained lists of people who had been fired, and then approached them by trading uppers for the legitimate the uppers defrauded their victims, just as they went after robbery bond holders in America.

TOWN NAMED FOR DUCE GETS COMMUNE STATUS

MUSGOLE, Sicily, Nov. 22 (AP)—Musgole, the town which has just been elevated to the dignity of a commune, or self-governing town, now has 12,500 inhabitants.

The new dignity for the place named after the Duce made another attempt to build a modern town, but the villages of Musgole did not succeed. If the government's plan succeeds, it will be a great achievement.

The government has already granted a premium to men who returned to the Italian mainland to the new town.

MEMORIAL STADIUM,
BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 22.—Behind a perfect nerveless performance by the ground attack that proved irresistible, Stanford's Cardinals annihilated their way to a 41-to-0 victory over California's Bears yesterday, the most decisive triumph ever chalked up in the 23-year gridiron rivalry between these teams.

The Cardinal fans thrilled to the new-found power of the veteran Coach Glenn Warner's 1930 team, a machine, a power that developed in the second half and steam rolled the game.

Held to a 6-to-0 lead at half-time,
Stanford turned up with a surprising burst of energy and four periods that gained five touchdowns and a safety. The Cards were not only unshakable on offense but their defenses were impregnable.

The Cardinals started in wild-wind fashion, scoring a touchdown
with the first play of the game, Miller running 50 yards from the 40 and scoring. The Cards had a safety and then three touchdowns in the first period.

In the second period Stanford crossed the California line twice.

Grizzlies Record Initial Triumph Of 1930 Season

South Idaho Boys Carry Important Roles In Game With Old Foe But Lose Fray by Narrow Margin

(By The Associated Press) MISSOULA, Mont., Nov. 22. — No longer is Montana the "cigar champion" of the Pacific coast conference.

An animated Grizzly, determined to climax Major General W. Millburn's coaching career here with a conference triumph, defeated the valiant Vandals of Idaho, 12 to 8, today. It was Montana's second victory since joining the league in 1924, and each time it has been a hard-fought battle.

Powerful punting produced a scoring chance early in the second quarter for Montana. Waldo Eggen planned a 30-yard drive, but Eggen, Mack and Dailey smashed it across. A fumble late by Emmett Davis, Beth, Idaho, quarterback, was stripped of his ball, but Eggen recovered on Idaho's 12-yard line. On the fourth down Waldo Eggen crashed to score.

The Vandals opened the second half with a rippling offensive that took the ball half the length of the field to Montana's 8-yard line.

Montana's defense, led by Arthur Norby, Rupper, end, across the goal line for Idaho's lone tally.

The "Invincibles" started fast after a slow start in the closing period. Montana's secondary defense flashed brilliantly, while its line checked sharply.

Dan Dailey, end, the Vandals, with exceptional skill behind the alumnus forward work of Spaur, Russel Hall, Pier, Idaho, and Powers, Waldo Eggen, Carpenter, Montana all backs, were trump.

"Babe" Hollingberry Employs Old Trick Plays of High School Days

By FRANK GORMAN

PULLMAN, Wash., Nov. 22. — There is one football coach in this country who is winning football games with the same old trick plays he used in high school days.

He is O. E. (Babe) Hollingberry of Washington State college.

Hollingberry is from Seattle, Washington.

And that is what "Babe" doesn't even teach any special type of football.

"I have my own style of play," said Hollingberry, "but I don't believe it's fair to never attend any college or university so I did not receive the usual early grid training.

"If I use any special type of play, it's because I have had a lot of old high school days for ideas."

"I believe in hard, fundamental football. I believe in called power football, with little deception and a few passes thrown in."

"My real ace this year is Artie Helm, center. He is a real American, a real football player. He is a different style than most other centers."

"He always right in his hole on defense instead of roving around and being a medicore, or rather, hands it out."

"He is 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 197 pounds, yet he is one of the best centers in the country."

"He is great on intercepting passes, coming out of the line sometimes 20 and 30 yards to knock down or grab the ball."

"I know when I started this year that I had the makings of a great eleven, but I had never expected to game!"

Notre Dame Vanquishes Northwestern's Powerful Team, 14-0

Crowd of 51,000 Spectators
Silts Amazed as Rockne's
Squad Suddenly Unleashes
Fury In Final Minutes

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY

DYCHE STADIUM,
Evanston, Ill., Nov. 22.

—Notre Dame, marching on to another football championship, defeated the little-known Northwestern crew, 14 to 0, as the seconds were clicking off precious time in the closing minutes of the game. The victory was Notre Dame's eighth successive triumph, staying only the Army and Southern California to defeat
the Fighting Irish. The defeat was the first of the season for Northwestern, co-champions of the Western conference.

Notre Dame, held scoreless for three quarters, and the game apparently destined to end in a scoreless tie, suddenly exploded its irresistible force and crashed over with such fury that the spectators were thrilled. While a crowd of 31,000 spectators sat dumbfounded at the amazing finish, Northwestern, forcing Notre Dame to punt twice, missed two marvelous opportunities to score.
Candy Phillips with the ball inside
Notre Dame's 10-yard line, ruffed both chances.

Bitter Contest

The game was contested bitterly and closely throughout, with Notre Dame taking advantage of the breaks that turned an otherwise deadlock into victory. Northwestern had to fall into Notre Dame's trap, with Rockne's ram-bers on the defensive practically all the way. In the last quarter, it was just the reverse, and Notre Dame, taking advantage of opportunities, dramatically turned them into touchdowns.

Having a long pass to O'Brien, who came into the game to replace Connelly, the Notre Dame fullback, he had the ball at the 10-yard line for the first touchdown. O'Brien caught the ball and stepped out of bounds on Northwestern's line. Northwestern was penalized 15 yards for holding, and after Dan Hanley, understudy for jumping Jon Gasek, lost 4 yards, Schwartz hit his own kick 40 yards, and 25 yards to cross Northwestern's goal.

Caridine kicked the extra point from placement, and the backbone of Northwestern's resistance started to crumble. Northwestern's defense ac-curred in the next two or three plays
when Schwartz threw a 20-yard pass to Conley who dropped the ball on Notre Dame's 10-yard line, with a clean field ahead of him.

With less than three minutes to play, Kautz intercepted the tail-end of a triple pass from Northwestern's 20-yard line. After Hanley and Conoley had the ball for the first time in the 13-yard line, and later lost a yard
on three more attempts, Schwartz evidently decided and made a long pass to Conley, who stepped out of bounds on Northwestern's 1-yard line.
Dan Hanley then crashed through center for the second touchdown, with Schwartz again place-kicking for the extra point.

Everlasting Vigilance 'In Following Ball. Enables Utahns to Emerge Winners

DENVER, Nov. 22.—(UPI)—Bighorn
Youngsters, 18 to 6, in a football battle waged between snows drifts.

Everlasting vigilance in following the ball enabled the Utah team to capture upon the break that occurred on the soggy field. A few minutes earlier, the Cougars had Bigham Young pinned to Smith, Regis safety man, and he was down on his 2-yard line when he was tackled. He got up and on the next play a bad pass from center was covered by Merrill, the Cougars'
wingman, in the goal zone.

Steady March

Cougar Country's eleven started its steady march to the grand period that was turned into another touchdown. They marched up to the 30-yard stripe and Dooley, safety sent a fumble to the 10-yard line, where Merrill then lateralized to Hoover, running wide to his right, and Hoover scampered down the side past the goal without being touched.

The game was a battle of kickers

WILD BEAUTY

MATEL HOWE FARNHAM

Continued from Yesterday's News.

NEWSFLASH: Ervin, since David Frost married Fanny Freberg, he has been at odds with his mother, for she hates Fanny. To save himself, David has given up his job, moves from his mother's house—and throws in his job in his—leaves home. But his mother, who made arrangements to force him to return, Bob Daniels, married unhappily to David's cousin, Linda, falls in love with him. Linda's mother, Mrs. Daniels, before naming her son, "Ervin," gave him to her son, "David." Now that his sister Linda has married and left, David is forced to return to his mother's house. Linda's mother, Mrs. Daniels, is still there, though Fanny's carelessness and David's plan to move the West are wrecked. Fanny returns from an evening with Shelia, the friend of the constable David respects.

Chapter 12
LOVE WITH RESERVATIONS

"There are things that I can't be talking about," said Fanny, reluctantly that first evening when she and David were alone. "I have the unenviable task of uncovering secret grievances unpalatable to a husband."

"I'm sorry," said David, "but I've said all I can say. I'm afraid you'll think I'm being obstinate," said David haughtily. A thousand times David had pictured this first hour alone—he, in the big chair, Fanny in the small, with a little smile, a little stern, a little aloof. And Fanny, fidgeting about—the room making excuse to do this or that, to cover her face, to turn her head, finally with a little rush, she would come and kneel beside him, laying her bright head on his knee.

"David, I'm sorry. I don't know what I've done. If I die, if you stop loving me?" But there she stood, silent, holding him—his heart breaking as he realized how as unfeeling as she had been, as if she had never been away, and seemingly entirely unaware of any need to be considerate. She was a little girl again, innocent, but desirous she should be.

"Poor darling, she would say, leaning her head for a moment against his shoulder. "Fanny's unfeeling, check it, I want to be alone," and take herself away without羞耻.

Fanny once went to Leonia, the next. "About the only time I have really laugh is when I'm alone," she said, and then she might be quiet, staring listening to a slight upstairs trilling of the Prince of Wales.

"She was very nice," said David. "Really, Amelia used to have our laugh on Davy, but their mother never would join in. She didn't much of a laugh."

He turned and went out on the sun-drenched back yard. Leonie added mournfully, "It doesn't seem like she's alone," she said. Amelia went away.

The quick tears ran from Fanny's eyes. Even before the tears left the cottage, and now—now—she was alone again—and now—now—Amelia had been not only her champion and defender, but her confidante, too.

It was on the top of Fanny's tongue to cry out—But you might in decency hold your tongue, and I at least have written you and spared me the trouble of hearing the news from your mother!"

Amelia had easily agreed to carry to the certain death.

Amelia was only here now with her tender laughter, and reader sympathies, and the gentle sense of judgment.
