HOOVER COMMITTEE SETS FORTH PLANS FOR PUBLIC DOMAIN

Transfer of Land to States With Reservation by Government of Sub-Surface Rights Appears Probable

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (AP)—The transfer of public lands to the states with the reservation by the government of sub-surface rights in known mineral areas will be the main plan of the Hoover committee when it meets upon January 15 at President Hoover's public land committee.

The tentative plan devised upon by the committee presents a compromise between the positions of the government and the states.

Interior Secretary Urges State Control to Avoid Duplication of Authority

JOBLESS GIRLS PICKET EMPLOYERS OF WIVES

PERTH, Australia, Nov. 27 (AP)—Unemployed girls here have begun a vigorous campaign against employment of married women.

With the slogan, "the married woman's place is in the home," unemployed girls systematically marched through their slums.

Those who refuse to discharge their married women employees must engage qualified girls with a place of residence outside their slums.

WILBUR GIVES PLAN FOR WATER POWER

Interior Secretary Urges State Control to Avoid Duplication of Authority

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (AP)—Control of water power developments primarily by the states was urged today by Secretary Wilbur to the Senate Committee on Irrigation and Water Power, with the result that the federal power commission may supplement each other or elements of conflict might impede developmental programs.

In his role of chairman of the power commission, the interior secretary said state and federal agencies should work together so that they may supplement each other or elements of conflict might impede developmental programs.

He advocated such coordination as would insure the most effective use of the power commission's resources in handling cases which cited complaints from the states that the government was encroaching upon their rights with regard to dams in jurisdictional question.

"The government has the principal obligation in safeguarding the interests of navigation and federal projects may be affected by power projects, but this respects control is largely a matter of state interest," Wilbur explained. Activities of the commission have been concerned mainly with Western states, with few of the 48 projects located east of the Mississippi River, while the eastern states have approximately half of the total.

In 27 states there are no plans operating under the act.

He spoke before the committee on completion of the survey of all potential power sites in the country.

Control of natural resources by the government during the depression period to prevent undue upward pressure on prices, but nevertheless, of disengaging from oil and gas leases.

Sale of power developed upon reclamation projects to repair costs of the reclamation, and division of later income into 10 per cent for the government, 20 per cent to the states; and 70 per cent to the reclamation fund.

Flood control by the government will proceed, under a policy similar to that pursued in the Mississippi valley.

Plans to Irrigate

Provision will be made for a state fund to repair irrigation districts through loans on the basis of guaranteed lands.

He said great power possibilities rest in the Columbia river basin, where some of the power developed there has been used to develop irrigation projects.

These are the Rock Island dam, on the Columbia, the Ariel dam on the Snake river, and the Flaming Gorge dam on the Colorado.

Applications for power projects out of harmony with development plans for the Boulder Canyon dam will be referred by the commission to the state power commission, which will include not only those in physical conflict with Boulder Canyon but proposed developments that are derived from the same market area.

Recognition of state sovereignty in dealing with economic development problems is recognized in the assistance of the government where more than one state is involved.

Many of the major suggestions of the committee were accepted and circled by Nevada, in which nearly one-third of the remaining irrigated areas of public domain are located.

The transfer of the land would not do away with the general office and duties of the general land office, as completion of surveys and other details require several years, and other land offices in the land office would be unchanged.

IDAHO TAX EXPERT FAVORS LUXURY OR INCOME TAX PLANS

the lowest tax upon mines levied by any state.

The Minnesota law, taxing principally iron ore, set out definitely, he said, that the state had no other property. A valuation of the state body is determined by assessment and a higher rate levied than on any property in the state.

The Idaho tax expert pointed out that the state claim is not based on the fact of 48 states which have taxes are permitted on a valuation totaling three times the annual net proceeds.

The Idaho tax commissioner, he said, urged that "the mining industry should focus native special tax favors nor special penalties."

He said at present, he explained, the state does not tax the surface improvements and upon the net proceeds of all mines.

to that extent the day of returning prosperity and normal industrial activity has come. The depression has inflicted upon those industries where employers and workers are continually endeavoring to maintain existing standards of production.

DETAILS OF SEARCH COME FROM NORTH

Hunt for Pilot of Airplane Found in Frozen Wilds of Northland Continues

VANCOUVER, British Columbia, Nov. 27 (AP)—Dramatic details of the discovery of Captain E. J. Burke's missing airplane in the wilds of northern British Columbia were received here yesterday from his wife, Miss Ethel Watson and Mrs. Walch, guide, who had started from Telegraph Creek on a new search for Burke.

The message from Telegraph creek told the two aviators hoped off with the intention of flying to a nearby town which they would attempt to find. The British party which apparently abandoned his airplane at the headwaters of within four days. They intend staying en route to learn if natives have any news of the lost flier.

Watson said he and Walch did not expect to return to White Horse

Watson and Walch, members of the Indian tribe who confirmed previous reports that Burke was heading up the river when last seen,

Watson said. Indians who had been out hunting reported Burke was flying low.

They who refuse to discharge their married women employees must engage qualified girls with a place of residence outside their slums.

Watson said he and Walch did not expect to return to White Horse near Burke's plane. We found a small lake 15 miles away and returned to White Horse to refill our gasoline tanks. We plan to land on the last stretch of the river.

"Two other airplanes which were to be used in the search were wrecked yesterday at Telegraph Creek,"

Watson said. They were not able to take off again.

"We left White Horse Friday morning for the first post to pick up Burke's plane which his two companions disappeared October 1st and Pilot Robin Renahan and two passengers were lost October 28 while searching for the first party."

SPLIT SESSION

Though parliamentary government pretty generally is admitted on the defensive, it doesn't seem possible that the method of launching by legislative bodies is so thoroughly discredited that it can't be restored and made better.

The strength of argument for direct legislation—proposal, initiative, referendum, recall and so on—is to be found in inefficiency of law making bodies.

Advocates of direct legislation, for the most part, seem inclined to overlook altogether, and possibly forgo, the importance of getting legislative "agencies" on their side. For a fact, unless one can get these "agencies" it is quite difficult to put very much into effect, over such cumbersome, expensive and generally unprofitable schemes as are the proposals for direct legislation.

Manifestly it is to the advantage of all of us before launching out on such specious schemes, to put forth a sincere effort to improve the agencies that we now have.

Even a cursory survey of legislatures' operations indicates a good deal of their trouble is due to hurried action in the last few hours of the session upon a mass of undigested proposals.

It is unreasonable to expect that any deliberative group can act effectively and wisely upon each one of all hundred propositions introduced in a single six-day session of a state legislature.

The remedy, for that difficulty, might very well be found in practice for a split session of the legislature—a thirty-day session, say, for introduction and consideration of measures, followed by a session of thirty days to be followed by reconvening of the legislature for the purpose of digesting the measures introduced during the first period.

This method would furnish opportunity for lawmakers to study and familiarize themselves with the propositions under consideration, and to consult with their constituents, so that, in reality, it might make operative all of the advantages with none of the manifold disadvantages of schemes for direct legislation.

At any rate the suggestion seems well worthy of some serious attention.

The coming session of Idaho's Legislature might do far worse than to make the suggestion effective.

CHEAP MONEY

The millions that the United States raised to pay its war expenses and help finance the Allies cost, on an average, a little over four per cent.

Latterly our Treasury has been getting short-term loans around three per cent. The government is now planning to retire three hundred fifty million dollars of three and one-half per cent certificates and replace them with certificates bearing only two and three-eighths per cent.

Thus Uncle Sam practices thrift in the money market, and to some extent saves payment for the war. There is plenty of money seeking employment at low wages.

THE WELL OF OOD*

Scientific men are supposed not to be religious. Wherefore religious believers are often hostile to science. But scientific men are not necessarily agnostic or atheistic.

Dr. W. R. Whitfield, director of research for the General Electric Company, sees no conflict between science and religion.

There is a spiritual growth out of the material."

He said now one cannot neglect science and ignore God.

"By the will of God, I mean that no man can give a more precise answer."

Asked what he meant by that, he replied, "What do you mean by light? A beam of light comes from a star, traveling hundreds of years, and finally reaches your eye here, and you see the star. How does it do that? We have our punctiliar theory of light, our wave theory, and now our quantum theory, but they are all just educated guesses. About as good an explanation as any is to say that light travels by the will of God."

"The boat scientists have to recognize that they are just kindergarteners following playing with mystic theories, and now our quantum theory, but they are all just educated guesses. About as good an explanation as any is to say that light travels by the will of God."

There may not be in such an attitude love and worship in the old sense, but there is at least reverence and humility.

SEA THIEFES

In a single day recently five hundred and eighty-eight persons were saved and five lost their lives in three disasters at sea. November is not a month of many storms, but there are famous concentrations of three attacks of shipwreck and drowning.

Three vessels answered one SOS call, the Mauritania, the America and the freighter. The Mauritania covered two hundred sixteen miles in her dash to the stricken ship, and, because of her great speed, got there first.

She found the Orkla in a wild waste of rolling waves, wallowing through tides that kept the decks awash, and at times carried over with a tremendous list which shifted the cabin in her hold. Only the heavy sea battered her, and she lurched so her propellers were striking out of the water and could do little good.

The three rescuers stood by until the Orkla's people were safely aboard the Mauritania, then steamed away about their business.

There is still plenty of material for good and stories of danger and color and heroism. The world which has been safe at all times as the heavy sea battered her, and she lurched so her propellers were striking out of the water and could do little good."

TWIN FALLS MEN AID DECLO GROUP

District Tribunal at Burley
Considers Injunction Suit
On Routing of Highway

BURLEY, Nov. 27 (Special to The News)—District court will convene here December 10 to hear the case of Doran H. Sutphen, to consider the injunction suit filed by citizens of Declo against the change of route of the state highway between Twin Falls and the Snake River gauge at the mouth of the river just west of Declo.

The case will be tried on its merits, with attorneys John W. McCallum, of Twin Falls, and Charles E. Johnson, and the assistant attorney general, Fred J. Babcock, and C. W. Thompson, representing the state of Idaho and the Twin Falls highway district.

Judge Sutphen at first ruled against the plaintiffs, when the decision was suspended until the action was sustained on September 17, alleging that no legal cause for action had been shown.

After a trial on November 12, when the case was referred to trial on a new date, resulting in bringing the case to court for trial.

Seek Injunction.

The lawsuit was brought by a number of citizens of Declo when it was shown that the new routing of the state highway brought the road north of the railroad line and through Declo, thereby giving the town some distance south of the highway. It is alleged in the complaint, that the district has been burdened with additional taxes, because more than five thousand dollars were used to build the present state highway, now known as United States highway 30.

The Idaho highway commission, the Burley highway district has failed to comply with law in laying out the proposed new highway, that is, the state highway, through the Twin Falls area.

It is also alleged that the community through which it passes, and that the construction of a new highway would increase the expense. It is also alleged that the present highway renders greater service to the community than the proposed new highway.

It is also asserted that the proposed highway would pass through swampy lands, and would be expensive to maintain, and that its construction would result in the abandonment of the Old Oregon Trail through Declo and damage irreparable injury and damage to all parties concerned.

BOARD NAMES NEW BURLEY COMMITTEE

Trustees Select Purchasing
Body and Fine School Debt
to Be Within Legal Limit

BURLEY, Nov. 27 (Special to The News)—The school board of the McCulloughs, chairman of the Burley independent school district's board, that expenditures for supplies and equipment for the year will be passed on by a special purchasing committee in the future... This committee consists of Chairman McCullough, Dr. John C. Love and R. J. Shupe.

This is a new policy of the board, McCullough says, which it is believed will help to reduce administrative expenses and result in considerable savings.

The chairman calls attention to a recent letter from the state auditor, W. D. Giltz, wherein the opinion is set forth that "independent school districts" may incur outstanding debts of up to $50,000, or 10 per cent of the aggregate 10 per cent of district taxable property for the preceding year. The assessed valuation of districts' taxable property in 1929 was $500,000, and bonded debt of the district is still within or under $50,000 of the legal limit of indebtedness.

NEW I-HEAD TYPE OF PLANE MOTOR SCORES

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27 (UPI)—A new single-cylinder aircraft motor has been accomplished here in the successful development of a radial I-head engine, embedding radial fins in the cylinder.

The new engine is the invention of a middle-aged oil tool manufacturer, J. Warren MacCallum, who invented the device back to experiment with his own needs.

Believing that one of the principal weaknesses of the conventional open-valve aircraft engines lay in the need for constant lubrication, MacCallum built a power plant of I-head design. Among the advantages claimed for the engine are the elimination of all valves, the reduction of the necessity of oily internal lubrication, and less fuel consumption. The diameter of the 160 horsepower motor is 38 inches, and the overall width of the engine is 16 inches, diameter of opposed valve radial motors, thereby helping up plane head resistance in flight.

"UP THE RIVER" PLAYS NOW AT IDAHO THEATRE.

The value of laughter as a tonic is demonstrated in the new Idaho theatre beginning Saturday, "Up the River," an uproarious comedy version of prison life, will break out the tremendous tragedy and drama behind the bars this New Year. First comedy introduces the famous in one of the best comedy plays written, and genuinely humorous pictures over made.

A new comedy team is introduced, two tough, good-looking fellows, who are the stars of "Big City," and "Dumb as a Post," the world's champion jail-breaker, an engaging solo, so popular in every prison he visits that an audience of 10,000 people can't get enough of it.

Played and everybody is happy, looking forward to the big baseball game between the Idaho players and the "Dumbsters Dime" is dumb—so dumb that he boasts that his intelligence test reads "100 per cent normal." The company is a mixture of comedy and drama.

MONOPLANE TYPE GAINS FAVOR AMONG AVIATORS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (UPI)—Monoplane type is being favored as the predominant type of airplane.

Of the 800 manufactured for commercial use in the first nine months of 1930, department of commerce figures show 750 were monoplanes and 80 biplanes.

The leadership of the monoplane type is almost equal to the trend for years, according to the Oakland port commissioners, with 1929 706 tons of gasoline shipped in monoplanes.

Other figures were: Two monoplanes arriving; 738; transport plane departures, 738; passengers arriving, 100; and passengers departing, 81.

The figures are based on the government estimate and exclusive of military, experimental, and export planes which reflect the nine-month period.

Single-place open cockpit and four-place cabin types predominated among the monoplanes while most biplanes produced were in the two and three-seater class of open cockpit craft.

THE REASON FOR IT

People often wonder how it is that Diamond Hardware Co. can sell household items when other houses are dull. There is nothing mysterious about it.

FIRST—We advertise what we have for sale.

SECOND—We have for sale what we advertise.

THIRD—The people come and see that it is so.

FOURTH—The people buy our goods because they are pleased with them and the guarantees we give.

FIFTH—The people tell their friends about it.

SIXTH—The people come again and bring their friends. If there anything strange about it?

BURLEY BODY SELLSOREGON TRAIL COINS

Chamber of Commerce Sponsors Memorial Half-Dollar Sale for Monument

BURLEY, Nov. 27 (Special to The News)—Oregon Trail monument half-dollar will be distributed by the Burley Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber has produced 200 of these coins which are being sold at 25 cents each. The money will be used for the erection of a prominent marker at some trail point.

Several points have been suggested, among others the junction of United States highway 30 with State highway 20 near Burley. Another point is the location near the crossing of the newly designated highway route near Ratz River. The last suggestion was that the California cut-off turned off to continue by way of the City of Rocks to the gold fields of California.

In addition to the half-dollars, Yale university men are arranging to erect a monument at the Ratz river crossing. Near here Yale-podium Two Yale graduates, starting here in the cattle business, Lew Sweetser and H. B. Burroughs, established and run the Yale Club here. They are also members of the Yale Man, Fred T. Dubois, then delegate in congress from Idaho, who secured recognition from the Yale corporation.

For year or two the number of offerings of letters and other mail was carried from Yale to American by cow pony because of lack of facilities. This was well publicized by the government, which has been kept up ever since.

EDUCATION ASSOCIATION ASSEMBLES AT BURLEY

BURLEY, Nov. 27 (Special to The News)—Meeting in annual session in Rupert high school auditorium Tuesday evening, the Education Association devoted the meeting to preparatory work for the state education association in session in Burley. The body elected J. B. Fidder, member of the Paul high school faculty, as delegate to represent Minidoka county; W. E. Hinszler, Superintendent H. M. Carter of the Rupert school, told of the approaching state teachers meeting. The association adopted a resolution to include a double selection by the girls' club of Rupert high school under direction of Miss Cecelia Brune, and a humorous reading at Pat King.

In the business session at which Superintendent A. E. Hinszler, president of the Minidoka county education association for the following year, was installed, the new state superintendent, D. B. Wilton, superintendent of Heyburn school, was elected to the office. Mrs. Rupert, vice president, and Miss Hilda Nutting, superintendent of Minidoka county schools, secretary treasurer.

MINIDOKA COUNTY NEARS RED CROSS DRIVE GOAL

BURLEY, Nov. 27 (Special to The News)—With approximately 200 names now enrolled in the Red Cross membership for the Rupert section, the campaign is well under way in the county yet to turn in their quota. The county, Minidoka county, easily will meet the quota of 300 set by the National Red Cross. It was announced first of all that Dr. J. L. Flanigan, Rupert, who is in charge of the membership drive for the chapter.

Immediately following Thanksgiving, giving the sale of Christmas seals for the Anti-Tuberculosis association, which here, according to Mrs. K. N. Keeler, chairman, was in charge of the sale of the stamps throughout the county.

SNAKE RIVER FREEZES OVER IN BURLEY AREA

BURLEY, Nov. 27 (Special to The News)—Snake river was partially frozen over Wednesday morning, for the first time this season. Considerable floating "wash" ice from the upstream had come down the river, across the Heyburn bridge, giving the appearance of winter. Wednesday morning was the coldest so far this fall.

The temperature at Burley registered 2 degrees below zero, while the reclamation thermometer, in the eastern portion of town, registered 2 degrees above.

ALASKAN CROP REPAYS MOST OF INVESTMENT

SEWARD, Alaska, Nov. 27 (AP)—No farm relief seems necessary in the fertile field of Matanuska valley. Landowner A. A. Schaebeck bought his 100-acre farm in 1926, and placed full equipment, including a thresher, on it. His total investment was $1,000.

This season he has cut 200 tons of wheat, oil, wheat and hay which sold for $40 a ton—almost clearing his investment in one year.

Andy Wilburn, 43, has returned to Mount Joy, Ohio, after being "koi" 22 years.

A survey showed 73 percent of the students at Luther college, Decorah, Iowa, were of Norwegian descent.

Idaho's New Attorney General Holds Distinction As Bachelor

BOISE, Nov. 27 (CP)—When he takes office as attorney general January 1, Fred Daibock will be the youngest officer in the state government.

Described by his present legal "boss," Attorney General W. D. Gill, as "a boy of 40, but probably 20," Daibock has been with his installation in the office, being nearly two years its assistant attorney general.

For the first time he has handled several important cases for the state. Known only to his most intimate friends is the fact that he was at one time a captain in the Idaho National Guard.

Known around the state as a young lawyer, Daibock was almost entirely unknown outside the state. He was a crack player in the lake out-of-doors. Once, on a boat, he came home to promptly advise his mother that he had given up his gun and put in charge of one of the vessels then craft of considerable size.

Chicago Gangland Finds "Dead Men Do Tell Tales" When University Crime Laboratory Identifies Guns Employed In Massacre On St. Valentine's Day

Marks On Bullets Caused By Barrel's Rifling Supply Means Of Identification

Scientific Detection Bureau Traces Shells to Weapon Found in Outskirts of Windy City and Officers Hold

Fred Burke

By WALTER T. BROWN
(Written for The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Dead men do tell tales! Chicago gangland learned that after the Northwestern crime detection laboratory read the story of the St. Valentine's day massacre in a double handful of empty machine gun shells, two shotgun shells and leaden pellets fired from them.

Execution of seven members of the "Bugs" Moran north side "mob" inspired the establishment of the scientific detection bureau, and the investigation of the septic tank homicide was the first that faced the crime laboratory.

A brief sketch of the murder scene:

Seven men sat in the rear of a garage in North Clark street—a busy section of Chicago. All but one, a mechanic, were expertly dressed. Their bodies bulged with the weight of dollars. The men talked for Moran to divide a truck load of liquor. A traffic delay saved Moran from extermination.

The day was February 14, 1929.

Through the window came two men in dark clothes. One, the "informant" thinking it a perfumery police raid, submitted to dismemberment. Two machine guns and a rifleman appeared.

The Morans had been "put on the spot." The guns swept the men lined up, arms akimbo, faces to the wall. All were killed.

Fatal accident?

The gunners and make-believe informants exchanged a few words. Then a bullet from a semi-automatic pistol of O'Brien Goddard, head of the crime laboratory, felled a man whom John Sieve, then a police captain, identified as the "most dangerous gunman" large to prison or electric chair.

The machine gun, a silent killer, was the most effective lighting an instant Chicago citizen. From the police files it is reckoned of the 200 or so gangsters who have been gunned down, with a reputation as a trigger man.

Goddard said in his case at the time he was called in by the manufacturer, whom Herman N. Gunderson, coroner, had chosen to head his jury.

He traced the bullet to the Clark street garage to Burke guns found in a garage on the outskirts of St. Paul, Minnesota. And he did all this way.

On every bullet sent through a gun there remain rifling marks. These are different from each other and from barrel marks.

"No characters are thus marked," said Gunderson. "The barrels of arms I have never found two that left identical indentations," said Goddard. "The double rifle marks, however, are identical, as are two shotgun shells, two bullets, at the same time, and to readily catch the difference."

Goddard concluded that the 70 cartridges had been fired from two sub-machine guns and that two shells had been fired from an automatic. And he was well satisfied.

He was well satisfied because of a growing conviction that Goddard found on the bullet taken from the victim and scattered on the floor.

And he was well satisfied because he had a small "a" on the jacket, a common factory mark of a particular company. He could not deny that the present markings used only before July, 1927, and June, 1928.

In February, Gunderson and O'Brien Goddard tested several new machine guns and shotguns. None made marks like those left by the accused.

But in December, confidence es-

TELEVISION EXPERTS PLAN FOR MEETING

Group Arranges to Consider Broadcast Channels For Synchronized Programs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 (AP)—A meeting of television experts of the air will be discussed by television experts and engineers of the federal radio commission at a conference here Dec. 1.

Proposed synchronization of channels, the coordination of visual and sound transmission will be considered. Committee of engineers, historians and members of the Order of the Radio Engineers will conduct sessions.

Meetings will be held at the Hotel Roosevelt, New York, and the Sheraton Hotel, Washington. Participants will include 100 television stations, 150 manufacturers, 50 radio stations, 150 engineers and 100 television experts.

Paul L. Schatz, chairman of the committee, will preside.

Other topics will be discussed include the use of the radio spectrum for television, the development of television in the field of education, and the use of television in the field of health.

Visual studios, they contend, will be able to compete for the sacrifice of sound channels or the interference which might develop.

Henry H. Kline, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, will preside over the conference.

Mr. Ames' address will be given to develop methods of reducing interference on television channels.

The conference will consider the feasibility of using the very high frequencies above 30,000 kilocycles for synchronized sound and movie synchronization.

To handle difficulties, they contend, a system of national standards will be needed for the quality of quality crossover which might develop.

Henry H. Kline, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, will preside over the conference.

Mr. Ames' address will be given to develop methods of reducing interference which might develop.

The conference will consider the feasibility of using the very high frequencies above 30,000 kilocycles for synchronized sound.

This region in the ether is known as the "no man's land" of radio where there is no interference with other service is remote.

OWNERS OF R-101 REMAIN IN DOUBT

Air Ministry and Builders of Craft, Debate Ownership Since R-101 Disaster officially taken over by the air ministry.

"I don't care whose airship it is," said the somewhat emphatic response of the British government; "It-101 does not belong to us."

Reference to official notes says the airship proved nothing. It-101 was built by the Air Ministry, but R-101 did not do that dignifiedly. It was merely "That Airship R-101."

The position seems to be that the Air Ministry has not yet officially accepted the ship for its ministry, and undertook to put it through certain trials, including home flights, and a trip to Australia.

These trials have been made, and the manufacturers imagine the ship to belong to the air ministry.

The air ministry, however, has not officially accepted R-101 yet.

Meanwhile, however, the British Royal Air Force has been flying the R-101 since the disaster.

Mr. Charles, secretary of the Airship Guarantee company, held a different view. "It is definitely not ours," he said. "We have not yet got it through its tests for the air ministry. It is the property of the government."

The airship R-101, the air ministry rejoined, has not yet been

by MABEL HOWE FARNHAM

STRUGGLE: David Farnham's life is furious when he marries Fanny Freiberg, a widow of the proud French-bred class. David finds a new job and takes Fanny to a home of their own, but she is not happy and her mother-in-law demands that her son return to his uncle's farm, the ancestral home. There Fanny is made continuously unhappy by her husband's in-laws. Then she meets a distant relative married to an Italian prince, comes to visit them and takes Fanny to Washington to spend a month with her.

Chapter 16

FANNY WINS WASHINGTON

Fanny took to the life of a jester, but she got over the thrill of having her bath drawn and scented, her breakfast brought to her bed-side.

Mrs. Chamberlain told me last night that I was as cheerful as a May-morn maid! She ought to be now, for she has many friends.

Fanny was wearing thick yellow cream on her eyelid. "I suppose darling Juliette, that it's a bit gross to enjoy such a treat at the edge of the world. It will mean nothing to you," she said.

"One party is supposed to have a good time at a party. And it's always a party to have a breakfast.

Other days were spent in an orgy of shopping. David, recently married and free from work, had made $1000 on the "jewelry circuit." Fanny suggested that she take charge of this—that she was a better bargainer than Fanny; but she never had time to go shopping, so she bought and bought until Fanny pointed out that she was gone.

David could not understand how she can afford clothes from his point of view.

"She has to buy clothes to keep her room warm," he said.

(Copyright, 1930, by Mabel Howe Farnham.)

"Then I almost forgot!" the man said. "What women, young women, could be simple and natural and sweet. You are so incredibly sweet, that I'll take only a few more steps."

"The truth is, I'm no longer a virgin," he said. "I've had sex."

"I'm still a virgin," Fanny laughed and went on running.

"I would not like to have her see my clothes," he said.

"She could not tell what she was wearing."

"She didn't know what women's clothes cost."

"David didn't know what

On the third evening of her stay, she had dinner with David, and with others in the house.

The afternoon was glorious, and Fanny liked to be out in the sun.

She had time to sit and rest.

At 5 o'clock, Juliette had dinner.

At 6, Fanny went down the stairs to join Juliette. She had dinner with the rest of the family.

"It's Thanksgiving," she said.

"I'm not going to be here."

"She's a proud girl with the starry eyes."

She always had known that she was not quite the same as the girls in the mirror.

Only David could see her now!

But, oh, guilty second thought!

Fanny had been a good girl.

She had been a good girl.

THANKSGIVING DAY OBSERVANCES DRAW MANY WORSHIPPERS

Sermons of Pastors Stress Supreme Value of God's Spiritual Blessing In Contrast With Temporal

Religious services held in several Twin Falls churches yesterday were largely attended by people who came to offer homage to God on Thanksgiving Day.

Union service was held at the First Christian Church at 11 A. M. Mass in Thanksgiving was celebrated at St. Edward's Catholic church at 9 A. M. Community service was at 10 A. M. Service at Emmanuel Lutheran church was held at 11 A. M. At 11 A. M. the Christian Service church held its service in the United Brethren and in the Almenon Brethren churches were held at 11 A. M.

A large congregation attended the Union service at the First Christian church presided over by the pastor, Rev. E. Temple. The sermon of the day was delivered by Rev. James Miller, master of the First Presbyterian church.

The service was offered by Rev. Ernest R. Allman, pastor of Ascension Episcopal church. The scripture lesson was read by Rev. Dr. C. E. Allen, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church; prayer was offered by Rev. E. Temple, pastor of the First Baptist church. Rev. Allman pronounced the benediction.

Musical numbers were furnished by the organists of the three churches.

Music was furnished by a quartet composed of C. E. Allen, Kenneth Henderson, A. D. Belamy and L. L. Patrick.

Taking for his text II-Corinthians, 8-15, Rev. Miller said in part:

"This text reminds of the old song 'As I have loved you so must love your brother'.

Paul's heart was ever in the highlands. This is a day for the high heart of gratitude.

"Nature's flower garden of the soul, in which grove and blossoms in flowers make the root of the heart grateful to the root of the soul. It ends with the dazzling rays of all the joys of the soul, gratitude is proof of a mind that loves the other things and awaiting salvation for ever."

"The Bible is a book of the high heart. Again and again in the Old Testament we find God commanding us to rejoice. It abounds with examples of men and women expressing thanks to God, the one hundred times in the Psalms.

In substance and in part, Rev. Allman said, "We are here gathered to thank God for the gifts of material possessions, science, health, for the alleviations of poverty, for the example of the New Testament, the most joyful book ever written, in spite of the fact that the New Testament is a book of poverty."

"The state of their gratitude was abiding, not being determined by the changing value of material possessions. Many people have been made to realize it. Abounding with the fires of gratitude in our hearts, such our material possessions; science, health, for the alleviations of poverty, for the progress in education and democracy, and the agenda for the rest of the world, without exception. However Paul would lead us above and beyond all these to the chief cause for gratitude, from the depths of the heart, from the common to the supreme. And we what made the first Thanksgiving Day possible, the 100 Pilgrims in the cold and darkness, many were sick and all were in distress; yet they found an abiding faith for gratitude. We too may be thankful for the great gifts of Christ and Christianity. Our civilization would be 'dumb' without the love of Christ that has brought the light of the Cross. Even the dark tragedy of war has been turned out, its blessings; our nation is the child of the Revolutionary war; our Union, peace propagandists and surgeons have advanced by generations through the experience of the Civil War."

"We should be thankful for this new expression of the unsearchable riches of Christ and the spirit; and for the love of Christ which makes under Thanksgiving services possible; no longer are religious services claiming to have more than a spiritual character, and are appropriating their means of the inexhaustible treasures of the infinite grace of God."

"Special High Mass." Taking for his text the opening words of the mass, "I am the bread of life, I am the light of the world, I am the way, the truth and the life," Rev. S. Keyser, P. A., pastor of St. Michael's Catholic church in his sermon at the special Thanksgiving mass yesterday, dwelt upon the superiority of spiritual to temporal things.

Although we have, because of precision, widespread suffering and in the Mississippi valley severe crop failure, we have in America many things to be thankful for, he said, in substance, and should remember that God always extends spiritual opportunities of

It is a meet and right to celebrate this day in accordance with presidential proclamation by return of the day. This year has been a year marked by economic depression, drought and calamity. A year when there is unemployment and hunger in places; still great sums are spent for horses, dogs, cats, birds, etc. However Paul would lead us above and beyond all these to the chief cause for gratitude, from the depths of the heart, from the common to the supreme. And we what made the first Thanksgiving Day possible, the 100 Pilgrims in the cold and darkness, many were sick and all were in distress; yet they found an abiding faith for gratitude.
