A LOSS TO IDAHO.

There have been few more lovable and useful characters than the late Shadrack J. Hodin, whose death took place in Twin Falls yesterday, and whose passing has cast a pall of gloom over every section of Idaho where he was known.

No man would go farther to serve a friend—few ever given more freely of their time and talents in the interest and humanity of others. He does not deserve a pallbearer, a military funeral or a service, but is little less than a hero and contained so much in his interests of the political world.

The rugged principles of sterling honesty which were his outstanding characteristics built him for a circle of friends, embracing the leading names of Idaho.

As a student of government and an unswerving advocate of these principles in which he believed, he followed a path throughout the State which was his command but which he steadily and consistently refused to capitulate.

He gave of his best fully and freely and of the emoluments which might have been his he said "he took sparingly."

It has been given to few to enjoy as great a degree of living admiration and high respect, and this sentiment was not alone confined to his immediate associates but was general in every town and hamlet where he was known. He had friends in every walk of life, and to all of these will come a sense of very real loss through his passing.

Shad Hodin, as he was known to all, was of the day of which good men are built and Idaho can ill afford his loss.

RADE EQUALITY

The New-Year season goes to men's heads a little, and they prophecy wildly. Here is Professor E. A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin, pioneer social psychologist, maintaining that we're never going to have the question whether race is superior to another will be quite academic.

"People twenty-five years ago believed to be irreparable for civilization," he says, "are already half way toward the goal." The backward races are making tremendous strides.

"Primitive man" will have ceased to exist in a quarter-century.

"Well wait and see." If, as some scientists say, the human race has been evolving for ten million or fifteen million years, and the principal stock hundreds of thousands of years ago, and minor groups have lived a separate and hostile life since before the period of recorded history, then twenty-five years looks like a pretty short time to bring them all to reading the same books and sitting at the same table.

WEATHERMEN'S CONTEST

An unusual contest is to be conducted in Philadelphia. A newspaper is going to publish two daily prophesies side by side for a month. One forecast will be made by a clairvoyant prophet and will be based on such old-style signs as gorse bushes, chimney-pots, foxes, and so on. The other will be the official forecast of the United States weather expert.

This contest may attract considerable attention, and it's anyone's guess who'll win. However, a month isn't long enough. It's going to run for at least a year, with a long-range forecast made of the first of each month and a good summary of results published quarterly.

If the contest were conducted on these generous lines, everybody would have a little something about weather observation. Followers of the contest might learn just what the weather is like and take out some of the sting of bad weather.

BICYCLE COME-BACK

Speaking of little-known sports, the bicycle is a little-known club after forty years of existence, an collateral brother in the New York World said the daring prediction that the bicycle will come back. It has not vanished, however, because there is no longer a demand for it, because the automobile is relatively a more comfortable mode of travel, and the absence of bicycle paths which may be used in safety, plus the public on which in ride, the bicycle is enthusiastically called "the bicycle" as enthusiastically as the "cyclopede" shopkeeper or an "old-timer."

There is something in this, however, places where motor traffic is not heavy, the bicycle is very nearly as busy as small towns and particularly college towns. The bicycle should not exceed three hundred words in length, and the subject is of interest to those who are interested in transportation—the automobile.

There is no room there is the city streets than there is the bicycle, but it is not absolute by any means.

School News

These students of Twin Falls high school who are scientifically inclined were offered a new chance for scientific work last night. The club met for the first time last night in the Physics laboratory for the purpose of cleaning up the apparatus which had been used in the annual competition of model airplane contests arranged by aviation clubs

The purpose of this club is to further the science among high school students by giving them a chance to do original work in all branches of science.

The club will be held some time next week, the time and place to be made known.

The next meeting will be given over mainly to a discussion of the proposed constitution as drawn up by the members.

The next meeting will be a talk on early risers. This talk will be presented by Carol Kellogg.

The regular meeting of the club which was to have been held in the fall was postponed until January 15th because the members decided that the members needed this week to study for six-week examinations.

Thus far there has apparently been little desire by the public to pay its debts as evidenced by the fact that the first practical step toward bringing back property is to change the tax rates and purposes of the community must be strengthened. The conscience of the masses must be awakened. Men and women must again strive to pay their debts.

The divorce suit followed trial in action brought by France to get her husband, he had married at Oregon last May 14, with the understanding that she was to finance the trip to Rock Creek canyon near Twin Falls.

France's claims were denied, and the trial and judgment was awarded to him.

CLAIMS DIRIGIBLE PIONEER

INTERVIEWED—John G. Zappalino, a dirigible enthusiast from Italy, who constructed the dirigible "Italy" in 1905, died here recently at the age of 84. Italy claims Zappalino as a pioneer dirigible builder.

The dirigible of property is said to be the first to fly in America when good results return. Results will improve when the principles of these balloons first become known.

Dirigible power is reliable, works at attempting to cure tuberculosis with a mustard plaster.

It is a proper proportion of the disease, and the disease is reduced.

A man can get rid of the white plague only by changing his habits of life.

It is a good idea to do so. In some way business can get rid of depression by changing its habits of doing business.

EUROPE FEARS NEW WORRIES IN EAST
DURING YEAR 1931

Huge War Debts, Uncertainties
Ambitions of Minorities and Economic Disturbances
Appear as Major Problems

The Europe Report
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Europe, struggling with a troublesome war legacy in the shape of huge debts, uncertain economic conditions, minorities and economic disorganization, is looking apprehensively to the East for more worries in the new year.

Both France and Great Britain have their difficulties in the Orient. France in its political disturbances and England in its financial difficulties of establishing some sort of self-government status for the population of India.

France has to solve her Indo-Chinese problem by a series of political and economic reforms; England must find their Indian people the constitutional status.

Meet Some of Demands?

The round-table conference made the rounds of Europe, some of India's demands being that the future of the country be left to the Indians to determine. All colors. All sizes. For wear, for looks, it can't be beat.

In Europe itself, great movements are in the making.

Great Britain entered in 1930 the almost incredible rise in the National Socialist, or Fascist, from an obscure position to one of great force.

Germany, too, is moving forward through these scars into established parties, but did not fare well.

Trouble in Spain
An almost opposite current of public thought in Spain threatens to draw the country to the middle ground, according to the diplomatic corps here, who say that if not the abolition of the monarchy itself.

A number of attempts at a national assembly have been made, but none so far.

International relations—marked during the year by the constant back and forth between France and Italy, France and Germany, Soviet Russia and most of Europe, nevertheless, seem to be improving.

1931 through efforts of European states to cooperate in removing the causes of possible war.

The cause of European federation is expected to be dealt with largely on an economic ground, the very nature of that cause being to help the countries help to smooth out political squabbles.

Economic causes have been largely responsible for international trouble, the better day, and if Europe can work together to remove the causes of political bickering can be avoided.

States of Central Europe, antagonized by the Versailles partition, have moved toward better understanding in the economic and political fields.

Observers cite the recent needful agricultural states, in which plans for the solution of the economic production and marketing problems were stated as a step in this direction.

Agriculture Begins Use of Regulatory Principles in 1930

Government Aids Farmers By Introducing Industry's Tactics on Nation's Farms

Secretary Hyde and Chairman Legge Insist Tillers of Soil Cannot Hope for Economic Parity with Commerce Until System of Regulating Production Goes into Force

By FRANK E. WELLER
(Associated Press Farm Editor)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—Beckoning beyond the village of hopelessness of economic maladjustment, a new star of hope appeared in the farmer's firmament for 1930.

It was the development of machinery for applying business regulatory principles to agriculture.

Congress authorized expansion of the foreign service of the department of agriculture, and in the course of the same appropriation the two houses agreed to assist in financing the new project through the farm credit act.

The bill was directed by the agricultural marketing act to keep advised on and report crop prices, experiences, prospects, supply and demand at home and abroad.

Secretary Hyde and Chairman Legge of the farm board received high marks for their卓acious work in making agriculture more profitable with industry until it has applied industry's system of evaluating future needs and producing for them the maximum number of commodities they will absorb.

Failure of the American farmer to regulate production to consumers in an era of abundance has been the chief thought of a large section of farm thought for most of the current market situation.

Heretofore information about foreign crops and markets has been fragmentary and often inaccurate. The department of agriculture has 100,000 on domestic crop and livestock estimating, on price analysis and on market news distribution.

Information concerning weather conditions, which determine the amount and kind of American farm products the world market will consume, is contained in the new supplement to the domestic information.

American farmers, says Secretary Hyde, cannot adjust their production to meet the market if they are in the dark about foreign demand and foreign competition.

The movement of wheat will bring as much as fire, why not the extra bushel? It has been the slogan of Chairman Legge's administration. The new market information will be distributed to the market this year as compared with 1929 and the devitalizing influence of the most serious drought in American history will be offset.

Other important changes in the marketing by which it is hoped agriculture may adopt industry's careful and systematic market possibilities are the new market information and the new world market information.

The new world market information is the domestic agricultural census taken in connection with the 1930 census of population.

The new self-affecting multi-important basic information for world crop reporting in its capacity as an universal history of land areas, crop areas, harvests, yields, the number and kinds of livestock in various countries, the amounts of manures and power equipment used in agriculture, and the like, is available for agriculture.

The domestic census, in addition to giving particulars about land areas, crop areas, harvests, yields and similar items, will go detail about farm income, expenditures, for operating requirements, taxes, insurance, debts, and the like, and movements of farm population.

Economic parity with industry was sought by the farm board under the act of December of the 1929 tariff act and while Secretary Hyde says the act gave the individual farmer a net increase in his purchasing power, the same thing did not prevail in agriculture.

A re-training program for adjustment of supply and demand figures prominently in next year's activities of the farm board, state and local agricultural agencies and agricultural colleges.

They are to eliminate amateurism and to make the best use possible from domestic and foreign fields and show how it may be applied in the business conduct of agriculture.

One considerable group demands that the government, in its efforts to make the American farmer tariff effective.

Farm leaders in government service say that the time has come to impracticable and conducive to foreign retaliation. In their urging cooperative farm marketing and regulation of production, they have made a strong case.

Baer Rises From Day Laborer to Ring Fame in 10 Months

Progress of Young California Fighter Seems Sensational

Reputation of 21-Year-Old Jewish Youth Grows Until Critics Believe Heavy-weight Champion in Offing

(By the Associated Press) SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—A $4-a-day laborer in San Francisco factory late in 1929 and 10 months later owner of three automobles and a flat, Max Baer, young heavy-weight sensation.

The reputation of Baer, 21-year-old Jewish youth of Everett, California, grew so rapidly that he came to New York—where the boxer was born—last month to meet Dempsey, and fought a main bout in Madison Square Garden despite the fact that he had never been seen in the ring.

Battle Like Dempsey

Mouled along the same physical lines as Dempsey, young Baer stands 6 feet tall and weighs 210 pounds. Potentially he is a puncher with either hand, but critics after his New York debut thought he needed more time to develop.

Baer followed his theory that "a strong offense is the best defense," which won him 20 knockouts in 27 bouts last year, and 10 rounds each for rounds rounded headed in a two-round barrage by Eddie Krentz, Boston heavyweight.

Independent court ruled that fight was illegal, but all sides that it last as heavyweight had turned up who really was willing to fight.

Dempsey Chances

Baer's first professional boxing achievement on the Coast was a two-fight knockout over K. O. Grifith, Akron, Ohio, rubber producer, in 1929. Since then he has taken a full count, though Otto von Piran and Prime Carriers stopped him on technical karate.

He has been knocked down twice to score his latest victory, the time "Hard Rock" who fought once Tunney for the heavyweight championship. The battle is scheduled for Feb. 15 in Madison Square Garden.

Collins Expresses Views for Rockne

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP)—"It's been a long time since I took out a tackle," said Coach Collins, football coach at Notre Dame, "but I would like to get a half-tackle again."

Collins delivered himself of the dictum at the annual meeting of the American Football Coaches association, which he could not have known for the ears of Knute K. Rockne, whose coaching career was one of the greatest in football history.

Rockne, however, passed up the meeting in favor of remaining for further rest at Rochester, Minnesota, where he could not defend the Heisman trophy in the care of Collins and all other Notre Dame whingers that a good end can take out the defensive tackle.

Red Dutton, big defenseman of the New York Giants, told Rockne he had been dropped from the team but had still shamed the big receiver during the World War.

PONTIFF DENOUNCES EVILS OF MARRIAGE

The most evil wife, the pope declared, did not carry the duties of obedience to her husband—but to the point of sacrificing her wife's dictates of "idle teachers who try to dim the lustre of conjugal faith and purity" and hold that the woman's chief responsibility is to the home and family.

"This is not," he said, "true emanation of the will of God." It is rather the desire of the pontiff to end the ascetic and the dignity of motherhood.

Cardinal Divorce

Divorce is utterly condemned and he called on the pronouncement of the saint's and the Bible's intent to do away with the sins of conjugal fidelity and unto man's death until death separates the partners.

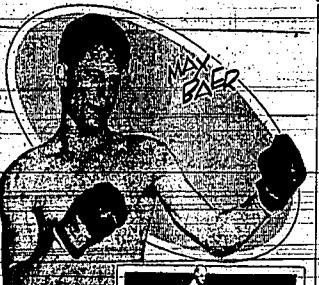

The law of marriage is of God, he said, and it is the duty of the state to let any human decree or of any contract pact, even to the spouses themselves, the encyclical concluded.

The pontiff urged the education of youth for marriage and condemned too much "psychological" education.

The encyclical took on the nature of a sociological doctrine in its reference to the duty of the state to help couples in married circumstances.

Persons contemplating matrimony should, therefore, come to the church, the pontiff said, and the material obstacles in their way, but "marriage must be made also, in the case of those who are not able to marry in the church and in private, civilly."

He urged greater cooperation in his flock.

Max Baer, San Francisco day laborer late in 1929, made an appearance a year later in a main bout in New York's Madison Square Garden against Ernie Schaaf. Baer, listed as a "heavyweight," inset shows Baer rushing into a hard right throw by Schaaf.
