

Supreme Court Upholds Constitutionality Of Eighteenth Amendment

YOUNGEST MEMBER OF TRIBUNAL READS EMPHATIC DECISION

Ruling Places Entire Question Upon Shoulders of Congress and Ends Significance of Recent Report

(By The Associated Press) — WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—With vigor and emphasis the supreme court today upheld the constitutionality of the Eighteenth amendment.

In a clearly worded and unanimous opinion it sustained the validity of the amendment, against the contention of Justice William O. Clark, the youngest judge on the court, who ruled it had been improperly ratified.

The decision announced by the court's youngest member in its entirety was as follows: Justice Clark transferred the perennial battle over the liquor laws to the field of revision or review.

It was the entire question upon the shoulders of congress and lent an added significance to much-discussed and much-disputed legal provisions.

The court's decision was based upon a contention that the amendment to be valid should have been ratified by all portions of the country rather than by state legislatures.

Counsel supporting the fifth article of the constitution differentiated between the amendment differentiated between the amendment and those affecting the liberties of the people.

Amendments of the latter category it was held, could be ratified by contrast to state conventions.

Early in his opinion Justice Clark argued that the article supporting the amendment requiring the consent of three-fourths of the states to hold a constitutional convention was something different from what it plainly was.

"Article United States cannot," he added, "that Article 5 is clear in its statement, contains no ambiguity, and calls for no resort to rules of construction or interpretation to determine what it is."

Clearly Phrased

The opinion was clearly phrased and the court ruled that the article in four sentences before its meaning was apparent. The opinion also held that every word in the semi-circular opening sentence of the amendment was intended to mean what it said.

"The order of the court today is rendered," Justice Clark said.

Chief Justice Hughes, however, did not participate in the case. He withdrew because he had taken a minor part in the national prohibition bill while a member of the Senate.

Back of the argument that the prohibition amendment should have been ratified by conventions was the claim that the amendment gave the people the right to do whatever they wanted to themselves—the tenth amendment giving power over their personal liberty.

It was contended, in consequence, that the amendment did not give the government the authority to give the government more power over personal liberty.

Justice Roberts said that argument had no merit.

"The fifth article does not purport to delegate any governmental power to the United States, yet to itself it gives the power to do whatever it wants to do," he said. On the contrary, that article is a grant of authority by the people to congress, and not to the United States.

He said that the original draft of the constitution, in the original draft of the constitution, is the people in conventions assembled.

They deliberately made the great changes in the original draft of the constitution, notably the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Six-

ITALY AND FRANCE APPEAR IN LINE TO JOIN NAVY TREATY

Transformation of London Naval Three-Power Pact into Five-Nation Accord Seems Distinctly Probable

(By The Associated Press) — LONDON, Feb. 24.—Transformation of the naval three-power pact into a five-nation accord seemed distinctly probable tonight.

Word to the British Foreign Office from Admiral V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, left for Rome to present a code of naval accord reached in Paris was hatted with "finality" in a cablegram to Britain's official views.

What was known of the Paris accord was sold to harmonies with Italian policy and a few points of the code were disclosed.

France has asserted that part initiated the negotiations and as far as he can ascertain in touch with him, he has been told that the sacrifice of Italian naval rights or the relinquishment of Italy's stand for parity in naval armament was not a factor in the negotiations.

France's paper yesterday of 17,000 tons over Italy, it was observed, relatively unimportant to little Italy, but to France, which has a fleet of 100,000 tons, it is important since it is the attainment of a free-power parity is not taken into account.

It is not clear whether the party of naval disarmament, which is not in evidence, is to be included in the new accord.

Florida's First Winter Program Bows to Shower

Initial Heavyweight Steeplechase in Southeast Stumbles Over Last Hurdle and Takes Count

MIAAMI, Fla., Feb. 24 (AP) — The first of Florida's winter heavyweight steeplechases stumbled over the last hurdle and took count.

The steeplechase, featuring a 10-round bout between Harry Stover and Eddie McCall, was scheduled for tonight at the Madison Square Garden, where it was washed out by a heavy downpour Saturday night.

Promoter "Pete" Stirling announced the postponement after the weather report said the rain could be expected to continue most of the night.

It was a busy day for the Stirling stable, which also had a bout at the V. V. who put in a visit at the box office in a downtown hotel to keep in contact for the exhibition. He also had a brief interview with his forthcoming title rival, Max Schmeling.

Boxing

McCall, Idaho, Feb. 24 (AP) — The new interest in the outcome of the boxing bouts that are to be staged here Wednesday evening will depend on the results of the McCall dog Derby Saturday afternoon.

Two fights are drawn near "Wall" Geelan and Jimmy Ducey, two of the participants in the McCall dog Derby.

Tommy Smith will meet Jack Hurley, in a main bout of the evening.

Hurley is a boxer and on the strength of his record he'll probably go through the ring.

The second bout is a boxer and on the strength of his record he'll probably go through the ring.

The effect of this trick is best obtained when the swings are very rapid.

THE CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

STORY: Jimmie Green, a former Captain, Bishop, and Marquis, Mayor in a lower-level career. Surprised at the hitherto uninvolved members of his group, he took them along with him to the home of "girls" and Amelie Quilling, whose mother, Police Superintendent Dr. Netherland and Marquis. The officer's theory is that the physician sought to marry the woman through marriage and the theft of a will disinheritinig Marquis and her son, Evelyn. "I don't know if it was Marquis or Evelyn," he said, "but they surely loved" of Marquis' engagement to Evelyn. "When I saw him last night, he was leaving from the house, but my son and I followed him across the grounds near the front gate. When we reached the spot where the fatal night was Captain, Bishop's. At that spot, Captain, Bishop, who had been greatly surprised, was found to have possession of a confession to the murder of Miss Quilling, by his side.

Chapter 23

CLEARING MYSTERY: "There is no mystery about Green's life today," said Captain, Bishop. "He is living a quiet life. His eyes opened for a moment and there was a profuse perspiration on his forehead, but nothing else. There was nothing, but what more could be added to that note which seemed the final word in the Quilling mystery." "I am not going to say anything," he replied, "but I am not the man he is. We shall see."

Dr. Netherland had Richmond on the phone and was able to get him sent to the Quilling Hospital under another of his benefactors, where police doctors could be charged.

Tell Green became a patient of Dr. Netherland, who has driven before-Governor-Roosevelt-police-car, he slipped upstairs and took the conference room. "We shall have to wait and see," he explained.

Jimmie saw him go, but lingered a moment before returning to the garden. "I am not going to say anything," he said. "I am not the man he is. We shall see."

Jimmie, crying bitterly over the news she had heard, Green had come in for support and comfort, and he had given her his coat.

Jimmie spoke again, "I am not the man he is. We shall see."

"What about yourself and Jimmie?" asked the Major, smiling.

"I am not going to say anything," he replied.

"I am not going to say anything," he said. "I am not the man he is. We shall see."

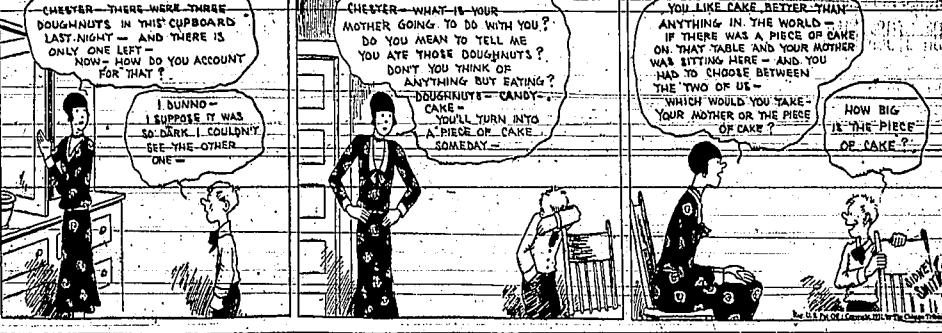

It was natural that public interest in the strange case now should be concentrated on Jimmie's conduct and attempted suicide. The picture of Tell Green with doctors right and left, his face pale and his eyes red, did not seem to his life was forfeited if the doctors succeeded appealed to the dramatic sense of the nation.

It was natural that the police, who used to be the most popular men in the police station, should be the most popular men in the hospital, because by easier reporters refused to give up their stories, some-times tried to speak-but nothing coherent resulted.
