Twin Falls Pomona Organization Asks Leave to Kill Rodents in Canals

PILER, April 11 (Special to The News)—Following a discussion of various subjects, the Twin Falls county Pomona Grange aligned by 20 persons at its meeting in the Grange hall here today, passed a resolution asking the state game department to see that the regulation requiring a person hunting muskrats along canals have a license for such purpose. It was pointed out that these animals on several occasions have done serious damage to the crops of the canals.

Clifford Thomas, president of Pomona Grange, presided. The Grange made a report on conditions in their organizations, showing satisfactory situation. Following this there was a luncheon served by the Pomona Grange.

After the noon hour, Dr. A. Stubbins, of the local medical association, presented a paper on "The Pomona County Pomona Grange and the Pomona County Pomona Grange."

Higgins, an American agriculturalist, said that France and Germany, especially France, had solved financial problems by industry and thrift. Russia, he stated, showed signs of becoming a democratic country. The program that was deemed most at the beginning two years ago, was the program of the Pomona Grange, which was a democratic organization of wheel raters here, he touched briefly on conditions which he believed would suffer from depression, on conditions in the West Indian islands and on our problems.

There was a general discussion on "Hans, the assistant being that the action of the late special session appeared to be steps in the right direction, but that discussion of taxation should continue.

Mrs. A. E. Kunkel, Amsterdam, arranged the program.

Balson Points Out Opportunities For Profit in Change of Methods Of Food Industry Merchandising

Progress in Processing, Packaging and Refrigeration Supplies Investors With Chances to Gain Benefits

BY ROGER W. BALSON
TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, April 11.—Changes of vast importance are under way in the food industry. Business men and investors who keep alert to these changes will discover some excellent opportunities for service and profit. Food is, of course, the first essential of life, and this accounts for the strong position of the food industry in terms of business development.

The fact that food companies' earnings as a group declined only 6 per cent in 1930, whereas industrial earnings as a whole declined 51 to 54 per cent shows how stable the food business is. However, the industry will be featured not only by stability, but by revolutionary changes and method expansion in several important directions.

It is true that great strides already have been made in processing, packaging and refrigeration of food. We have traveled a long way since the time when the grocer scooped out flour, sugar, coffee, etc., into paper bags, instead of handing the customer neat packages of standard quality and quality as in now does.

Today, however, we are on the threshold of new developments which will eclipse by far the improvements of the past. These will be along six lines:

(1) Perishables will be packaged in moisture-proof and air-proof wrapping which will permit wider marketing and longer life.

(2) Certain foods will be improved with vitamins and medicinal properties.

(3) Under the new McNary-Mapes law, general quality of canned foods will be improved because inferior quality may be labeled as such by the government.

(4) Frozen food will have a tremendous influence on food markets of the future.

(5) Meat packers will be allowed to wholesale other products than meat and may be allowed to enter the retail field.

(6) Independent retailers of meats will have an advantage over chain stores under new quick freezing methods for retail distribution.

Quick Freezing
Frozen foods will bring about some marked changes in retailing methods. This process is already being applied to meats, vegetables, fruit, poultry and other foods, with good results. It requires special machinery which carry the "warfare" foods through extreme cold, freezing them so quickly that the ice particles in the cells of the food do not rupture the cell walls or allow moisture to escape to the surface and be lost. Furthermore, the process prevents any entrance of decay bacteria after the foods are thawed out.

Advances in "frozen" foods, properly refrigerated have been made, and the world-and have arrived in this state condition.

This new method will bring about the following changes: First, the skilled butcher will not be needed in the meat market of the future. A clerk can pack out frozen meats, vegetables and fruit in standard packages just as he does breakfast cereals and other articles. Second, the small independent grocer may be able to sell standard frozen foods at a profit to chain-store prices.

This will be the first advantage the small grocer has had since the chain store's rise. The chain store will shut out buying their meats directly from the packers in bulk just as they buy their flour, etc. They will pack them and put them through the quick freezing process, and as far as possible will endeavor to retail them under their own trade name.

Already certain of the large food chain grocers are installing quick-freezing machines in their warehouses. This small independent, however, will buy the packaged food directly from the packing houses under their nationally advertised brands.

Thus the saving in handling costs, their national advertising, and the complete satisfaction with the chain store in selling frozen products.

Other Advantages
Another advantage: Because quickly frozen foods can be kept so much longer in good condition they will have a tendency to iron out the seasonal peaks in marketing of the perishable goods.

Another advantage: An expansion of the food house will be possible because the distance from market will no longer be a factor. Moreover, the household of the future in any part of the country may have a choice of year may order frozen soups, oysters, green peas, berries, fish, cream, butter, meats and poultry with the knowledge that she is securing the highest grade in excellent condition.

Food Changes For Health
By virtue of new scientific methods food will be given vitamins and other medicinal properties which will increase their nutritive and healthful value. This is already being done by a company under a special patenting process, is impregnating its bread with vitamin D and is using irradiation processes to import health-producing properties to its products.

Another advantage: A new method of developing other ways of making foods more healthful, and beneficial, without impeding the flavor in any way.

The new McNary-Mapes law will go into effect in May which will require the department of agriculture to set up new standards for food. Many inferior foods barely meeting the requirements of the pure food law have come on the market in recent years. These can now be labeled for what they are and cease to compete under disguised names with quality products. New methods of refrigeration in transportation and in retail stores will assure the public of food of the healthful condition, in addition to eliminating most of the waste of spoilage.

Of the Three Tendencies of the Future
Of the three tendencies of the future, the first is the most quickly coming. It is much more quickly coming than houses or clothes. Rapid change is an essential for stability and expansion of profits in these days of violent competition. Securities of sound food companies have always been good investments, but the new developments which I have outlined above are bringing special opportunities for the future.

They will apply particularly to the dairy products companies, the baking companies and large food stores. New inventions, new laws, new methods of distribution, all point to elimination of waste and better profits both in production and distribution of foods. Those companies which have successfully weathered the storms of the depression period and which are the first to adopt the new inventions and methods will be in the strongest competitive position for the future.

Business by the Balsonchart now figures 20 per cent below normal compared with 10 per cent below normal at this time a year ago. (Copyright, 1931, Publisher's Financial Bureau.)

SCIENTIFIC METHODS AND POULTRY RAISERS
LINDSBORO, Kas., April 11.—(Continued from page 1.) In an effort to bolster their incomes, McPherson county farmers have successfully followed a scientific program.

Twenty-five co-operators in the county last year raised 68 per cent of their chicks to maturity by concentrating on disease-lethal chicks, quarantining chickens in a building solution of one pound of lime to 50 gallons of water, clean ground soil used by chicks for at least two years, and clean feed.

Ben Christensen of Canton moved his brooder houses onto a cattle lot and raised 92 per cent of his chicks.

Detroit Air Exhibit Features Midget and Monster Planes

BUILDERS DISPLAY NATION'S NEWEST AERIAL CREATIONS

95-Craft, Mostly for Private and Sport Flyers,
Enter Into Major
Exposition

PRODUCTS REPRESENT ENGINEERING ADVANCE

Speed, Increases and Greater Strength Gets Attention in New Designs

(By The Associated Press)
DETROIT, April 11—America's newest creations for sky travel, ranging from sleek, streamlined monster transports, will make their debut at the national aircraft show April 13-19 in Detroit.

Ninety-five craft, the majority catering to the private and sport flyer, will be displayed—some making extensive use of new designs while others will display radical developments.

The event will be the industry's sole major exposition of the year. It will be staged in Detroit city hall—many—more—than—40,000—square feet have been provided for plane and more than 100 extensive exhibits, and in a limited space.

Sponsored by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and the Detroit board of commerce, the show will enter in a widespread sales program after a period of display when most manufacturers concentrated on engineering research.

Greater strength
The fruits of their work in promoting speed, increasing strength and at the same time lighter structures—and refining commercial craft for more efficient performance in every respect, will be shown together for the first time.

An appeal to pleasure fliers will be made with a line of light aircraft, including particularly two-passenger "open" cockpit craft in the class of light sport automobiles.

Among the newest and smallest planes will be the latest Curtiss-Wright Junior with a 25-horsepower engine, new Aeromarine, the four-engine American Eagle, and the Buell Bull Pup.

Heavier craft, with new developments, will include the three-engine low-wing Bunting monoplane of Hughes-Breder, four auto gyros, the two-plane Mercury, and a score of others for sport or private use.

Paired Heavy Types
Paired and heavier types, some of which will be a fourth larger than present models, will include the new Lockheed triplane, similar to the one owned by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, the Westinghouse all-metal, low-wing, monoplanes with open cockpit for the pilot, and Bunting and Polder transports, and many amphibians.

The accessory display will include more than 100 exhibits of instruments, including a Hamilton chronograph, aerial photography exhibition, and almost any radio equipment.

Visiting the show as chairman of the board is Edward S. Evans, Ray Cooper's manager. President Cooper has been invited to address a pre-view of the exposition.

Father and Son Split In Politics But Each Leads Opposing Ticket

OMAHA, April 11—The Metcalfe family, successful in politics, refuses the Biblical parable which warns of the fate awaiting the house divided against itself.

Richard L. Metcalfe, a staunch Democrat, is mayor of Omaha, Theodore, his son and an equally staunch Republican, is lieutenant-governor of Nebraska.

Differences in political faith do not make for coolness between father and son. No war of fratricide is known here, a situation that between the Omaha mayor and his son.

Incidentally, Richard Metcalfe received the largest vote of any candidate running for the city commission at the last election while Ted, a novice in politics, headed the Republican ticket in Nebraska last November. Mayor Metcalfe was governor of the Panama canal zone under President Wilson.

Brother infielders Boos Prospects For Detroit Tigers

Harris Looks to Two Walker Boys To Perfect Club

Graduates of Three-Eye Circuit Prove Speed Burners on Bases and Exceptionally Valuable Ball Hawks

(By The Associated Press) SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 11.—Two young brothers from Mississippi, who rose from baseball obscurity to the major leagues in one season—may furnish the impetus that Manager Harry Harris hopes will lift the Detroit Tigers from the second to the first division.

The Walker boys, Harvey and Gerald, from Louisville, Ky. and Three Eye league, are being groomed for outfield berths with the Tigers.

If they can keep up the pace set in the American league, Harry Harris is confident his work will be over.

The young fellows are speed-burners on the bases and exceptional ball hawks. Both starred at the University of Mississippi, where they were known as "Three Eye" and "Two Walker" respectively.

During spring training camp here he wanted to go back to the old-fashioned base-stealing method, but Manager Harris vetoed the suggestion emphatically.

Harris said: "You have perfect speed. You can steal bases with it. It is sensational and will bring you a lot of comment."

Gerald Base Stealer Although Harry is the more colorful base runner, brother Gerald is the better base stealer. Until he broke his leg last season, Gerald led the Three Eye circuit in stolen bases with 60 attempts.

"Hobby" who is 25, threw right-handed and bats from the left side. Gerald, 22, is right-handed, also an athlete. The sides of the brothers link for an average of 355 last season while Gerald was walking out the ball close to a 300 clip in his career.

Harry "palms out" right field and Gerald has alternated in field with Roy Johnson, regular last year.

These Walker brothers, graduates of the Three Eye league, are two of Bucky Harris' hopes for the Detroit outfit. In the minors both batted well over .300, and both are speed demons on the bases.

Slight Kansas Pole-Vault Star Begins Training for Olympics

(By The Associated Press) CHICAGO, April 11.—Clyde Coffman, diminutive, 19-year-old sophomore pole-vault king at the University of Kansas, intends to enter a field crowded with giants for the right to represent the United States in the 1928 Olympic competition.

After gaining fame last year as a high school athlete in 1928, Coffman is now a member of the national intercollegiate pole-vault team, and is one of the best in the country.

At the Illinois trials he made his debut as an all-around athlete, finishing second only to Barney Dreyer of Pennsylvania in the 220-yard dash.

Coffman's point total for the seven events was 572, better than any other in the country.

Coach Francis Hamilton plans to groom the 165-pound pole, Kansas, much for the Olympic trials and to use him in competition this season only in his forte, pole vaulting, and in the 220 dash.

Coffman's best mark in the vault is 12 feet.

Heydler Expects Usual Amount of Diamond Interest

"All We Ask For is Fair Weather to Insure Fine Opening of Baseball Season," Says President

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, April 11.—All we ask for is fair weather to insure a fine opening of the baseball season, interest in the national game, it seems to me, is 75 to 80 per cent every springtime, and despite the business slump, this spring will prove no exception.

Interest in the games in Southern California was unusually keen this year, and the attendance at exhibition games set on the coast broke all records.

All I don't recall a spring when so many inquiries have come to us about scheduling baseball, tickets and playing rules.

In our Southern camp, there were few injuries and almost no rain. The players were in excellent condition, and the fans were in excellent condition, with only one or two players absent because of injury.

Rupert Athletes Win Burley Meet

Winners Garner 57 1/2 Points; Hosts, 34; and Oakley 30 1/2 in Triangular Event.

(By The Associated Press) BURLEY, April 11 (Special to The News)—Rupert high school athletes won first place with 57 1/2 points in the triangular track and field meet in which Burley and Oakley athletes took part.

The track, newly constructed, was a little soft, but promises to be one of the best in the state.

A strong head wind made for slow time and cut down distances, except in the 200-yard dash, which was run with the wind. There was a small crowd of fans in attendance.

Burley took second place with 34 points and Oakley was not far behind with 30 1/2 points.
