STIMSON MOVES TO PROTECT AMERICAN LIVES IN NICARAGUA

State Department Authorizes
Landing of Forces to Protect Citizens From At-tack by Rebel Invaders

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 14.—A king's son came to New York today but no cannon boomed and no top hats glistered.

Just a humble tourist here to America, was the young Prince Charles of Belgium, described as "the most popular member of the royal family of Europe."

He was a tall, fair young man of 27, who said he had no definite itinerary and would "stay as long as I like it."

Arriving incognito as plain Charlie de Reyer, he crossed the Atlantic in third class tourist accommodations and seemed unprincipled that he couldn't come to America in first class.

Accommodating, sleepily, the prince made his first bus about him; that was not until one of the passengers looked at a group picture of the Belgian royal family and the boy recited: "Oh,

"Commander W. W. Wadell of the Ashurst, reached the state department—the Americans were there.

The order authorizing landing of forces was sent after Colonel William C. DuBois, attorney of the Standard Fruit and Vegetable company, had telephoned an appeal to the state department for immediate assistance.

DuBois told officials of the Latin-American division messages received from the American legation indicating the situation was acute and saying there was panic among Americans in face of the insurgents' activities.

Plan Early Withdrawal

President Stimson, secretary of state for Latin-American affairs, told the forces would remain ashore only long enough to assure safety of American lives and then American troops would withdraw as the guards did.

Arrangements were made to evacuate all Americans to the Ashurst.

The Ashurst, owned by the Calico oil company, raced Cetralia now in Puerto Cabezas harbor, on which many dredges had taken refuge.

Up to the time the authority to land forces was given, the Ashurst had only been twice captured, once by the forces of the standard company, and then American troops had withdrawn.

There had been a detachment of Nicaraguan guards, 45 officers and men, at the port, but they had withdrawn to their winter station Saturday. All except one office and a man, had been captured, however, on patrols into the interior.

The situation of the patriots was regarded as precarious. Some were known to be surrounded by superior insurgent bands, well armed.

A force of guerrillas marching to the coast of the Pacific, descending the Coco River, from the west, was still 24 hours distant.

Meanwhile, other insurgents had moved into the interior, along the Coco river and also to a trail which is the outlet of the mining area west of the port.

Coldog Díaz, as informed by local representatives of his company at Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, 25 miles west, landed there this morning, but soon returned to the Ashurst when recalled by local authorities.

JEROME BUSINESS MAN SPEAKS FOR GEM STATE

(By The Associated Press)
JEROME, April 14.—Four shifts will express Idaho's特色 relating to continuation of wheat marketing, laying the foundation for the new year.

John J. Brown, president of the company, announced today the company's experiment with the plan will continue for the new year.

Production was increased, he said, and the market was expanded, over-head decreased.

Since inauguration of the plan the company has worked more firmly and its money-lender activities have been stepped up.

The national convention of the National Wheat Marketing Board, April 18, will be held in Jerome.

The delegates announced today at headquarters of the state chamber, Sen. Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce, and President W. K. King, Postmaster L. T. Ferguson, secretary of the Idaho Chamber of Commerce, addressed the principal government.

Afterward the delegates will attend the convention in Washington of the International Chamber of Commerce.

The delegation will join in an appeal for Eastern railroads to offer lower rates on passenger travel.

He said that under the eight-hour shift system will equal advantage for each shift, and also eliminated the stop for meals. The efficiency is greater than working on an eight-hour day.

Equal Advantages

Each shift has equal advantages, he said, for extra allowances for each shift, and also eliminated the stop for meals. The efficiency is greater than working on an eight-hour day.

DEMPSEY ANSWERS LURE OF STREAMS

Former World's Champion Prepares to Go Fishing And Forget Marital Woes

RENO, Nev., April 14 (AP)— Jack Dempsey prepared today to join the army of anglers who will descend on the streams here tomorrow for the opening of the fishing season, and to leave behind him for the present diversion his wife and son.

His declaration of defiance, better tempered by an offer of peace if the Taylor wife would return home, was the latest chapter in his film career—the former heavyweight champion talked with newspapermen while seated in his bedroom in a comfortable red den he has built there.

"I'm just here for a nice, quiet little divorce," the former champion said. "I have no money now. I want to get this over with as quickly and as quietly as possible."

Quotations concerning reports that Dempsey had been offered a substantial sum of money to leave his wife and son were not connected with this story now.

You might as well say that I'm married forever and put a stop to that," he said.

Dempsey and his manager, Leon M. Taylor, are occupying the Lakeview Hotel room on California Avenue. Both men have been retained by an attorney yet.

Sachs said "Jack wants to get the day of the land here before he does anything else."

Confronted with the statement made by Miss Taylor tonight in Los Angeles, in which she said she had the impression that her husband was staying there, the former champion said: "Whatever Estelle wishes to do is her affair. I have nothing to say about it."

The statement was given out by Sachs.

MARX URGES

LOS ANGELES, April 14 (Special to The News)— Senator George D. Marx urged the Senate Select Committee on Small Business to make a study of the work of the state bar associations.

He said the bar associations are too powerful, too expensive, and too retained an attorney yet.

Sachs said "Jack wants to get the day of the land here before he does anything else."

BREVITIES

GLENDALE, Calif., April 14 (Special to The News)— Mrs. John C. Taylor, 36, who married the woman he had been seeing for two years, was divorced from Jack Dempsey in the Los Angeles Superior court yesterday.

She said she is a hooker, however, as she claimed the feminine prerogative—permission to change her name.

Confronted with the statement made by Miss Taylor tonight in Los Angeles, in which she said she had the impression that her husband was staying there, the former champion said:

"Whatever Estelle wishes to do is her affair. I have nothing to say about it."

The Associated Press is financially sound and solvent. It has never stopped crediting to it, or bestowing upon it, the highest journalistic reputation of special distinction.

—The federal legislature is largely a local issue. It is raised largely by patriotic demands for the benefit of the district or state, if the voter and "facing" senator at home will turn economic to their claims.

FOR PUBLIC RELIEF

The State Commissioner of Public Welfare has so maneuvered his appropriation as to obtain funds to pay for printing of forms for making application for old-age pensions. Thus the Commissioner does his best to inflate the old-age pension which the last Legislature passed without providing for operating expenses.

—Providing the funds for application, though, is the task of the difficultly ahead of the old-age pension act, payment of which is to be made in the Congress. But the Congress already have budgeted their expenditures for the year without providing for old-age pensions; also there seems to be considerable doubt about the right of Congress to budget money for payment of the old-age pension, so that question may yet have to be settled by action in the Courts continuing perhaps over a period of many months.

At the same time the Commission is to be congratulated upon this evidence of pragmatism to find his assistance and support in furtherance of a measure that seems to be for the public welfare.

TOPSY-TURVY

It is expected that insect pests will multiply this year because an unusually mild winter has probably destroyed less of them than usual. According to a Chicago grain market report, this expectation has been having a "breeding effect on grain prices."

As the headline expresses it, "Gulls Help to Boost Grain."

It's a queer world. "Our almost expect to hear, any day, of national" prays for more cottonwax, corn borer, boll weevils, head worms and drought.

And when we get to that point, the pest step-may be natural, reflecting every time a big factory burns down.

STABILIZING BUSINESS

It is recognized that the big problem of business today is to stabilize production. That would stabilize employment, which in turn would stabilize consuming power. All three hang together. And "Business" in itself can do that. The business itself must be stabilized. Business must be made one great, slowly ascending spiral.

A pretty dream? Perhaps. But once in this country, at least, seems to have done it. Colonel William Cooper Proctor tells it about it in the April issue of "Nation's Business."

The Proctor and Gamble Company makes soap, which used to be a seasonal occupation. After the last big depression Colgate Proctor determined to do something to avoid alternate feast and famine in its line. So first a careful study made, figured out a plan and went ahead. It cost three million dollars to make the change.

The employees were all guaranteed forty-eight weeks work a year, instead of the two-thirds of that which they had averaged. Consumption was carefully estimated, and production was staggered through the year. Adequate warehouses were provided to store the surplus.

That was a pretty good year, too, and the plan worked out very well.

But the thousand thousand who have averaged forty-eight weeks a year, and the company's earnings have been two hundred and fifty per cent. Everybody knows how business was the last half of nineteen hundred thirty. Well, what was the last half year?

The biggest factor in this success seems to be the spirit of the workers. Everybody is doing his best.

"We should have thought of it long before," says Colgate Proctor. "We certainly must have been stupid."

PUBLIC EXTRAVAGANCE

With a bit of difficulty up for the present fiscal year, the President is said to be trying to forestall an increase in taxes in the next session of Congress. He says there will be no general "increase" in the budget unless it is forced by Congress. Then he adds this general warning:

"If Congress fails to refrain from new and excessive demands on the federal treasury, the people themselves must co-operate by refraining from the usual demands made in behalf of groups and sections of the population. Everybody jumps onto Congress in extravagance, when nearly everybody is driving them to it. The pressure on lawmakers from the people back home is always great. Congress doesn't sit up night trying to think of ways to spend money. Voters, civic and business groups and lobbyists are always urging them to spend more, and threatening them if they don't."

The retiring chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Mr. John W. McCormack, of Boston, said:

"The budget of the House is largely a general warning to the public to restrain from extravagance."
