GOOD LOSSER

In the death of Sir Thomas Lipton a picturesque and colorful figure has been removed from the world of sports. Sir Thomas died at his home in London, England, at the age of 71. He was a sportsman to the last. His whole life constituted a reason by which the world may profit.

In business his success was outstanding. He was a sportsman to the last. His whole life constituted a reason by which the world may profit. In business his success was outstanding. He was a sportsman to the last. His whole life constituted a reason by which the world may profit.

The world is the better for his having lived, and mankind can continue to benefit so long as his example is followed. He was a sportsman to the last. His whole life constituted a reason by which the world may profit.

BRING COURT HERE
 Out of one hundred and twenty-five federal actions brought before the United States District Court at its present term in Boise, sixty-three, or approximately one-half the total number, came from Twin Falls and Twin Falls County.

This state of affairs is not new. It has been practically every term of the Federal Court in Boise for more than ten years past. It does not, by any means, denote that crime is more prevalent in Twin Falls than in other counties that are criminal centers in the Federal Court at Boise. There are several explanations.

One is the fact that Twin Falls is located at the intersection of two important highways where people, goods and bad, congregate. Another is that Federal officers for a long time have plainly manifested their preference for Twin Falls. There are several explanations.

SCINTILLATING PLANTS ON SCREEN, STAGE AND STUDIO

OFFICERS SHINE IN "HOMICIDE SQUAD"

Film Coming to Idaho Show-house Depicts Police in New Light for Filmdom

At last the policeman "gets a break." Practically every gangster picture brought to the screen in the past two years has depicted the police as body of more or less "bums" who deride, rather than as men of intelligence and keen insight. As a matter of fact, these qualities are an absolute requirement in gaining appointment to a metropolitan police force, and in progressing upward through promotion.

"Homicide Squad," the Universal underground drama, which comes to the Idaho theaters this afternoon, has two of its important characters in a police captain and a sergeant, and they are presented as worthy foes of the criminal. The story is told by Henry La Cossit, a newspaperman with a world experience in police work.

Leo Carrillo, as a gangster leader, heads the cast of "Homicide Squad." Other important roles are played by Mary Allen, Russell Gleason and J. Carroll Nash. This Henry La Cossit story of fast action and absorbing drama was directed by George Melford.

ROXY FILM FEATURES SPECTACULAR BATTLE

Primitive, smashing combat between two strong men is the spectacular thrill of "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room," starring William Farnum, the all-talking picture which opens at the Roxy today. This modern sensational version of an old stage favorite brings together again William Farnum and Tom Glavin, the most famous fight team in all photoplay history. Their battle in the original picture was witnessed by hundreds of thousands. It stood alone for years as an epic of its kind. Those two men who know how to fight meet again in the thundering climax of "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room." For weeks they trained as strenuously as two prize fighters preparing for a championship match.

When they met on the set, under the studio lights, they were in the best possible physical condition.

From the first blow, their fight was a desperate struggle for supremacy. The studio set, and everything about it, was forgotten as they were into each other, battling—terrifically, as though the characters they were portraying had actually sprung into life with all their intense passions of hatred and revenge.

Exhausted, battered and bloody, William Farnum and Tom Glavin emerged from their spectacular battle, their voice to producer Willis Kent fulfilled—they had won their previous record breaking fight in the old "Spokane."

It will be a long time, if ever, that their tremendous battle in "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" will be equalled—it will never be forgotten!

BLUE-EYED BLONDE GETS ATTENTION AT STUDIOS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3 (Special to The News)—When Virginia Lee Corbin, the "Blue-Eyed Blonde," made her film debut in "24 Hours," at Hollywood studios, she got more attention than any actress in the history of the film.

Clive Brook left Jay Francis in the middle of a scene to get Miss Corbin. The director, who had been told that she was a "blue-eyed blonde," was so impressed by her that he decided to make her the heroine of his next picture.

Miss Corbin is only six and a half months old, but she proved a real trouper and played her small but vitally important part to the entire satisfaction of the director. She cried but once, and that, fortunately, was part of her role.

MULE MAKES COMICS OUT OF MUSICIANS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3 (Special to The News)—Twenty years ago, the Four Nightingales were presenting classical music in Marshall, Texas, when a mule ran away outside the theatre. The audience left badly to see the excitement.

When they returned, the musicians were so provoked they began burlesquing and wise-cracking and singing. The mule, they changed their routine and became the Four Marx Brothers, comedians now starring in "Monkey Business."

Girls who have been staying away from the beach to avoid freckles will be interested to know that Myrna Loy has a lot of them and is considered one of the most beautiful women on the screen.

Young German Girl Attains Goal As Star On New York City Stage

(By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, Oct. 3.—As a youngster, Mady Christians told her papa Rudolf's promise, that of the German theatre in New York, that she would some time return to that city to play in the theatre.

This fall Mady, now quite grown up, is to play in New York. She has been signed for the lead in "The Land of Smiles," thus fulfilling her childish prediction.

Born in Vienna, Mady was taken to America while her hair was still too short to braid, and for fear that she would be killed by the police after part in the production of that day she lived in the atmosphere of the theatre.

Quite naturally the child followed in the footsteps of her father and played juvenile parts in films and stage productions prior to the war, when she came to Berlin.

Even during the trying times of the war Mady kept her eye on the stars in the film here. Then, with the invasion of the new cinema technique, Mady's ambition became almost a national favorite.

During the climb to stardom Mady, the alchemist—in the theatre, starting her career here with "UFA" and ending it with "UFA"—made a connection which she effected in 1926 following the success with which her father had been received by the German moving picture film.

Since that time she has played in scores of pictures here.

More recently Mady has been playing opposite Michele Bonnin in "Touche a Vion" and "It was in this place Schubert caught" and decided she would like to come to America to play in the theatre.

Mady Christians will remain in the States for several months, pending upon the success with which the two shows are received. Then she plans to return to Germany to resume her stage and film career.

Real Premier Showings Of Films Take Place In Smaller Theatres

(Special to The News)
HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.—Hollywood's real "premier" showings are held in elaborate theatres with thousands of curious fans lined up outside to "see the stars." Far from the bright lights, usually in little-out-of-the-way places, are the motion pictures shown in smaller theatres.

No picture is ever released to the theatres of the nation before it has been tested at these "audience previews," according to B. P. Schulberg, a managing director. "With these previews we test the audience's reaction to the picture, noting where they seem to like it, and if they do, where they laugh at serious scenes, and what dramatic sequences do not succeed."

Audiences Critique
Cards are given out. On these, the theatregoers are asked to voice their opinion and complaints.

These critics are chosen because they are the average audience. So expert have Hollywood preview audiences become, that the critics attempt to be professional.

The more costly productions are shown in the city, some of the selected places during the past year having been Glendale, San Diego, Burbank, and San Diego. One concern previewed at San Francisco.

Theater Showing Best
Besides getting the benefit of the preview cards, the picture-makers are better able to judge the picture with an audience. A production always plays better in a theatre than in a studio projection room. After the preview, studio officials send in their reports, rating the box office value of a picture and expressing their opinions as to how the picture can be bettered. Other cards derived from the first showings are the checking of the number of bugs-in-a-comedy and the judging of a star's popularity by the applause he received in the first scene.

Immediately after the preview, while the picture is still fresh in their minds, the producer, director and writers discuss the production. All accounts are thrashed out concerning the remedying of possible faults in the picture.

THE BROADWAY STAGE

By MARK HARRON
(Associated Press Feature Writer)
NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—George Melford, the director who has never lost money on a show.

GEORGE MELFORD

From the time he lost his money on a show, he has been a manager. His touch has turned a show into a business into gold.

One reason may be that he will never bring a show to Broadway until he is absolutely certain it is a hit. He kept "Main Street" working out for weeks, and when it came to town there was no doubt as to its success.

And the same is true of his new "Scandals." There were rumors from its first quarters that the show was a bit deficient, but these proved untrue. It may be reported that the new "Scandals" is grand, zippy entertainment that never laps for an instant.

LUKAS POINTS OUT FIVE MOST ROMANTIC CITIES

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3 (Special to The News)—New York, San Francisco, New Orleans, Chicago and Los Angeles are the most romantic cities in America, it was declared today by the Hollywood actor who is making his first starring vehicle, "The Beloved Bachelor." Here are his reasons for this opinion.

New York is a cosmopolitan. Anytime might happen there.

San Francisco is a man's town; rugged and vigorous.

New Orleans is a soft, gentle city with a French history and a famous Mardi Gras.

Chicago is a strong, powerful commercial city.

Los Angeles is the center of the old Spanish Southwest.

"HUSBAND'S HOLIDAY" USES ALL-STAR CAST

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3 (Special to The News)—Producers have assembled an important cast for its new romantic adventure, "Husband's Holiday," which Robert Milton will direct as his first since Ann Harding's "Devotion."

Heading the stellar list are Clive Brook, Vivienne Osborne, Harry Benham, Charles Rogers, Dorothy Terry, Loni Blair, Juliette Compton, Elizabeth Patterson, Charles Winninger, Adolphe Menjou, Marilyn Kousser, and Dickie Moore.

The film is from Ernst Koschal's play and has been adapted by Pascaj and Viola Brothers Story.

Much or More Red Tape Than In America Accompanies Process In Old World

Ruling Class Rides In Few Automobiles In Operation

With Screeching Sirens, Officials Tear Through the Streets With Disregard for Pedestrians Amazing to Persons From More Civilized Nations Throughout World

"White" Russian farms have not yet been brought under the collectivization process, which is destined later to engulf them, and alter not only the landscape, the dwellings and the size of the fields, but the whole manner of living.

"The Reds"

The sight of well-filled fields, harvest scenes and little homes snugly together for warmth and company always induces in me a sense of comfort and promise of well being, but in spite of this disarming view of the landscape I could not dislodge myself of the notion that surely when Moscow was reached, Moscow, the capital of the Union of Soviet Republics; Moscow, the home of the Central Committee of the Communist party; Moscow, the meeting place of the dread International, there I would meet the Reds—real, actual, flaming Reds, sear-born, scarred, a ride charging ahead, at last coming into the ground trembling with the tread of the marching feet of the great Red army, bent on world conquest; the Kremlin, the Red Square, vibrant with the stark voiced crusader calling down maledictions on the heads of all Capitalists!

Arriving in Moscow, we took a taxi (American made) from the railroad station to the Savoy hotel. The streets were alive with crowds of perfectly harmless looking pedestrians, they filled the sidewalks and spread out into the cobble-stoned paved streets. Most of them carried handbags or bags and some carried a book or two. I have seen much to condemn, much that turned me sick with dread; but the blight which had smitten Russia should spread to other parts of the world, and I have seen some things—yes, many undertakings—astonishing in their magnitude of conception and unquestionably worthy of praise in their aims. This new Russian government in operation appears a queer mixture of chaos, idealism, a hard, almost cruel, severity. The people themselves are simple and kindly but living in a messiness and poverty of spirit and worldly goods. The ambitious claims of the ambitious claims which are made to the outside world. That is the way it looks to a pilgrim from America, bent on separating the reality from the fiction of this new experiment in government and political management of a large portion of the human family.

Philately Meager

Going from opulent America or one from Germany, new sick from depression, the conditions which surround the people in Russia are so pitifully meager that it is with amazement, one discovers in them a feeling of gratitude that they are so much better off than before the Revolution. One is perpetually meek with the exclamation, "Oh, but you don't know how hard it used to be in Russia."

If the present conditions in which they are living can kindle the faintest spark of hope within them, then the centuries under the Tsarist regime must have been terrible. That oppression is something America knows nothing about, within her borders, and God forbid that she ever shall.

Evolution

In this tremendous struggle to lift themselves out of the mud, the fires of revolution have rapidly consumed. Evolution, with all its scientific knowledge, has been placed, slowly but surely, step by step, the organization of the government has been taken away from the Communistic doctrine with which the experiment was begun. One gets the impression that the creation of the principles of Communism was not entirely voluntary but forced when

"other nations were asking for forgiveness and cancellation of debts." Then why was it that Russia, anxious to buy American machinery and willing to accept short term credits, was not a welcome customer?"

"What did we think of Stalin's test speech?"

"What would America think of it? Would it help, or hurt, Russia's credit?"

Here were intelligent, reasonable men taking the absurd Soviet government seriously, planning with great hope for the future of the Russian people, and yet that this thing was not after all a huge joke. The thought came to me repeatedly, as had been reported so often in America, that they were let out on parole for a day or so, but would find out the truth sooner or later, or stay in Russia until we did.

No Restrictions

Thus began my excursion into Russia. Since that first day I have traveled, alone with my own interpreter, wherever I chose to go, south to the Black Sea, across the southern areas to the Caspian Sea, across the Steppes, to the Volga, and north, within sight of the Ural, north to the Baltic.

I have seen much to condemn, much that turned me sick with dread; but the blight which had smitten Russia should spread to other parts of the world, and I have seen some things—yes, many undertakings—astonishing in their magnitude of conception and unquestionably worthy of praise in their aims. This new Russian government in operation appears a queer mixture of chaos, idealism, a hard, almost cruel, severity. The people themselves are simple and kindly but living in a messiness and poverty of spirit and worldly goods. The ambitious claims of the ambitious claims which are made to the outside world. That is the way it looks to a pilgrim from America, bent on separating the reality from the fiction of this new experiment in government and political management of a large portion of the human family.

Going Some Place

They were in pairs, in groups and in singles, all intent on going some place. Except for the fact that no one was well dressed, it might have been a holiday crowd in a rich mid-western city in America. It was one-fifth of the population of Moscow, taking its "fifth day" off. Not one glanced up as we passed. Traffic policemen at the corners, with very familiar faces, held back the "proletariat" for the "privileged classes" to ride by; no glance of resentment, no shout of derision! Under Red Russia we drove, its wide plaza disturbed only by a few hurrying figures of men with brief cases looking very much like bureaucrats in our part of the buildings; the central committee, the famous G. P. U. and the Home of the International. Except for the single uniformed sentries guarding the entrance, there were no outward signs of life. We were depicted on the sidewalk in front of the hotel without a thrill—no assassinations, no bombs, no Red army, not even a dirty look.

We lunched at the Grand hotel with government officials, as mild and courteous as any gentlemen I have ever known. A lady's hand, as simple and kindly as one might hope to meet. If we hadn't known they were representatives of this new Bolshevik terror, we might easily have been mistaken for delegates from the International Rotary club.

Why did America hate Russia and Russia's credit? It was not until the day late with a penny of her payments of interest or principal since the new government had been organized. They had heard that

"other nations were asking for forgiveness and cancellation of debts." Then why was it that Russia, anxious to buy American machinery and willing to accept short term credits, was not a welcome customer?"

"What did we think of Stalin's test speech?"

"What would America think of it? Would it help, or hurt, Russia's credit?"

the paper dreams of the social theories proved to be impractical in operation.

Humble of human nature, the inherent desire for personal advancement, the willingness of the stupid and unintelligent and the purely mechanical devices necessary for the maintenance of a complex social organization have conspired together to break down the original conceptions of a Communist state, as laid down by Karl Marx and re-cast by Lenin. You may call this new government in Russia a brand of Socialism, dictatorship of the proletariat, State Capitalism or the Biggest Business Trust in the world, and you will have in each case some element of support to your contention, but the lack of freedom of the imagination can you call it Communism. And, whether we like it or not, the people of Russia are getting from it the first taste of freedom they have ever enjoyed, out of the complex administration of the Soviet government.

Under present plans, Ding will write a column for The Twin Falls Daily News and in addition will write several articles on entirely different phases of the Russian situation, for The Twin Falls Daily News.

Taken in its world aspect, the threat to the world is one of competition with inexperienced management and inefficient but cheap labor. At the best it means a new era in the world family table and pulling up a chair for a rich new neighbor who has just moved in.

Downing Street Proves Woeful Abode in MacDonald's Life

DUTIES OF OFFICE LEAVE MARKS ON ENGLAND'S CHIEF

Scene of Rise to Greatest Power, Breaks With Party and Labors of Financial Crisis Remoulds Visage

By EDWARD STALEY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
LONDON, Oct. 3.—Glimpse, unadorned and austere, a square-faced, brown-brick mansion in Downing street has been heart-break house for Ramsay MacDonald.

Here it was that he came to his greatest power, and here it was that the men he had loved and labored with broke with him and left him a leader without a party.

Here, too, he faced the financial crisis that led Britain to suspend the gold standard—his labor over that problem brought him to the verge of a breakdown.

Direct Grim and Gray
Over the black and white one track "Number 10." At the side are three push buttons set in a polished brass plate. The milk man and the messenger come to the same door.

Prim and motionless hang the white curtains at evening. The door opens and a port crier comes with a new list of names and trips down the street with a portfolio.

It is quiet in the study cell that is Downing street and a man in a gray suit sits alone. Only the faintest light comes from the street. They could walk before the prime minister's house if they wished, but nobody does.

Twice MacDonald has lived in this house. But now his own home is in Hampstead—his name ready for regular use.

May Visit New York
He told Mayor Walter he might see him soon again in New York. "I am not coming back," he said. "I am going to stay here."

Ramsay MacDonald, as shown at the left, was vigorous and smiling when he entered Number 10 Downing street in June, 1928. Less than two and a half years have wrought the change shown by the new photograph at the right.

Joseph Paul-Boncour, Golden-Voiced Orator, Bids For Favor Of French

By HUDSON HAWLEY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
PARIS, France, Oct. 3.—Joseph Paul-Boncour, the white-haired, stocky, golden-voiced socialist orator, just sent to the senate from this midland region, bids fair to be one of the outstanding figures in the 1932 electoral race in France.

Some observers see him as being doomed to succeed in finding a place as Brabant as France's apostle of peace.

Already well-known in these international spheres which revolve about Geneva, at the League of Nations, Paul-Boncour at 58 is being put forward by his friends as one destined to play in the next few months an increasingly important role on the political stage of his own country.

Wears Socialist Tag
He wears a Socialist label but belongs to the "right" or moderate wing of that party. And should the Socialists meet success in the 1932 legislative elections, and should they decide to allow their leaders to all in a coalition government, Paul-Boncour would almost certainly be slated for an important portfolio, like that of war, even foreign affairs.

And there are political observers who predict that, if certain circumstances arise, Paul-Boncour, like Viviani, Millerand and Briand before him, might desert the Socialists and take office as a regular Liberal politician.

Would Arm League
Recently Paul-Boncour came into the public eye by his proposal that France, with other nations, should place all her armed forces at the disposal of the League of Nations, to be used in the preservation of peace. He gave out this suggestion through The Associated Press, and his views had wide representation in America and Europe.

It was a restatement and bringing up to date of the French thesis, reported in 1919 at the peace conference, that the league should have its "international police" force.

To this, Paul-Boncour is probably France's most electrifying public speaker. He can take a sleepy chamber of deputies at 2 o'clock in the morning, and in less than 20 minutes have his listeners comatose, cheering, crying, thumping their desks and shouting for more.

Wilderness Dispute Flares Up In South American Inland Republics

Clash Between Bolivian and Paraguayan Border Patrols Claims Attention

By T. G. GARRETT
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 3.—The battle of the wilderness over the Gran Chaco, the Manchuria of South America, has flared up again, setting the continents inland republics.

A local clash between Bolivian and Paraguayan border patrols in the disputed sector of the Gran Chaco region has again brought to the surface a dispute which was last year the subject of international mediation.

The dispute, called Gran Chaco, is a "hot" land of 100,000 square miles, a former wilderness so vast that parts of it lie in Argentina, Bolivia and Paraguay. The dispute over it dates back to early Spanish colonial days.

The Bolivian claim, once made far back in 1903, the Paraguayans say the region is theirs by colonization.

Bolivia says Paraguay's northwestern boundary is the Paraguay river and that the Chaco triangle between the Paraguay and Pilcomayo rivers belongs to Bolivia.

The difference between these maximum claims is nearly 100,000 square miles, an area about equal in a combination of New York and Pennsylvania.

The physical frontier is an irregular line of culture and nature, each country along a front mostly within territory shown on maps as Paraguayan.

Plans World Flight
It would cost Italian 30 cents a year to do this because Italy receives $12,000,000 more from Germany than she pays to the United States and Great Britain.

BARTER ATTRACTS GERMANY AS WAY TO REVIVE TRADE

Statisticians and Economists Seek Additional Methods of Thawing Out Frozen Commodity Prices

(By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, Oct. 3.—With barter and "long term credits" playing an important part in international commerce, German statisticians are seeking about for additional methods of thawing out commodity prices now temporarily frozen.

Among the latest suggestions advanced in the realm of purchases on long term credits is coffee.

During the last year, the German nation consumed $75,000,000 worth of coffee last year, some of the statisticians are urging the government to purchase coffee just as they bought wheat from the American farm bond.

That of course would depend on whether the Brazilian government is willing to grant similar credits.

Run of Wheat Hosing
In connection with the purchase of wheat from America, it was rumored that similar credits were to be bought in other wheat producing countries of the Western Hemisphere, but these rumors were denied by the ministry of agriculture.

Shrinkage to 200,000 tons from the 600,000 tons said originally to have been the basis of preliminary negotiations between Germany and the farm board gave rise to the rumor that the 600,000 tons, roughly 20,000,000 bushels, would be split up among the United States, Canada and Argentina.

Unless there is a cessation of rains which have damaged cereal crops extensively in some sections of Germany, more wheat will be needed in this country.

no flowers and no music. That will be thrilling— "No, I'm not coming engaged. The right man hasn't come along yet."

"CURB TRADERS" BUY FILM PLOTS AT CAFE

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—Cinema scenario writers' lives were made rozier by the inauguration here of a "scenario cafe," in a popular Berlin. The idea is to bring German moving picture producers and scenario writers together.

Because of office red tape few scenario writers, outside the magic circle, were able to get audiences with the producers.

Under the new plan producers send readers to the cafe to cut out the "amateurish" examples and submit the better plots to the front office.

Thus writers sell ideas, producers' antenae are less crowded and the cafe gets additional customers.

DIVORCED WIFE OF KING CAROL SEEKS SOLACE IN TRAVEL

Helen, Separated From Son, Awaits Birthday Anniversary of Young Michael to Attend Celebration

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Oct. 3.—Helen, a woman wandering over Europe since October 25 is the lot of Helen, divorced wife of King Carol of Rumania and mother of Rumania's boy heir, Michael.

On October 25 by arrangement with King Carol, Helen may return to Bucharest to attend the birthday celebration of Michael, she doesn't know herself what will come after that.

Dependent at the long trail of misfortune and domestic unhappiness which has been her lot, she traveled recently to Greece, reluctant to spend a few days with her brother, former King George of Greece, who was shot there.

Travel Third Class
But there was little relief from curious eyes and the harrowing thought of a mother parted from her child, she made the trip to Sicily, third class, and was said to have made the trip by the help of a laborer whose mother was taking the infant to America.

The return to London was by first class, but under an assumed name. Helen's former King George of Greece says that, surprisingly, her departure was to be kept secret and that for her being recognized the rule might have succeeded.

From London, Miss Catargi, her lady-in-waiting, said she intended going to Munich, and afterwards to Italy to visit with her mother, former Queen Sophie of Greece, but there is no certainty about her movements.

Often Change Plans

Helen changed her plans three times in as many days when she was in London. She does not know what she wants to do—except to be back at Michael's side, and that his father has denied her.

She does not discuss her matrimonial troubles even with her closest friends. "It is an inviolable rule and it never is broken," Miss Catargi says.

TRICK FEATURES ADAPT

HAT TO MANY DRESSES
NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—Adaptable features are a new way of making one hat wearable with half a dozen dresses. Some of the new black tulle hats are equipped with five or six different colored feather novelties which can be attached by snap fastenings at the wearer's pleasure.

NAILER-UP TYPE BUILT

ACCENT MAY PROCKS
LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Nailers built are a smart accent for the new wool frocks. The built, about four inches wide, are made of eucalyptus wood with dull metal nail heads and finished with a dull metal clasp.

MUFFS ON SCARVES ADD

NEW TOUCH FOR FALL
PARIS, Oct. 3 (AP)—Scarves muffs are a new wrinkle for fall. Wool scarves to match skirt frocks are tipped with double bands of fur at the ends which serve the wearer as a muff.

EARRINGS END EXILE

WITH NEW ELEGANCE
PARIS, Oct. 3 (AP)—Earrings, banished from the style picture for the last two years, have returned to vogue in a mode of elegance. Long pendant diamond or paste earrings are worn with the new evening frocks. Carved coral, jade and ambers add a finishing touch to formal afternoon frocks and bright color earrings are worn with sport costumes.

MUFF AND HANDBAG

STYLISHLY COMBINED
NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—A purse concealed in a muff is fashion's pet-offer. Dressmakers have met women's objections to carrying both muff and handbag by designing pouches in the top of the muff which will hold the purse. The pouches are large enough to hold money, makeup and cigarettes.

"ALFALFA BILL" MOVES

TO GIVE WOMEN VOTES
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 3 (AP)—This state's much-in-the-news governor, William H. Alfalfa Bill Murray, who has spent much of his life studying government, has voted approval of full right of suffrage for women in Oklahoma.

Women now are barred from holding major state offices. The law at the time we have women suffrage to some extent we should give the full way and give them everything the men have," the governor said.

SLUMP CRIMPS CO-EDS' PARTIES FOR "RUSHES"

BRIDGEWATER, N.J., Oct. 3 (AP)—The depression put a crimp into the society "rush week" at Oklahoma Arts and Mechanics. Because of the cost of "rushes," co-eds decided to concentrate on "performance" rather than the kind which a "rush" offers. It is said to be a success.

"Oldest Social Ceremony" Goes Modern

Dining room furniture should be related and balanced

By ROPE HAMMOND
(Interior Purchasing Editor, The Woman's Home Companion, Written for The News)

Existing is perhaps the oldest of all social ceremonies. Appetite and enjoyment of food depend greatly upon service and surroundings, and an entire house may take its tone from the effectiveness of its dining room. The essentials of the room are pretty obvious—table, chairs, buffet, china cabinet, and so on. But they are obvious that they are likely to be stilted, cold and unresponsive, and it is often a huge problem to bring them together in any way that will create an atmosphere of good cheer. In the old days a fairly low chandelier helped to pull the room together, but modern lighting has largely discarded the old-fashioned chandelier. Factors which are most important in the decorative scheme of the dining room are its size, shape, wall treatment, lighting, and position in the house. When the dining room opens directly off the living room the two must bear a close relationship in wall-and-floor treatment and in types of furniture. They need not be identical, but they must be harmonious. One cannot be ignominious and the other dignified. Even the colors must echo and the patterns harmonize.

If the dining room is small, its furnishings must be slender rather than bulky. Mirrors can be used cleverly to give an illusion of space. In larger dining rooms, massive furniture is effective, and plain or paneled walls can be used to advantage. The dining room with few windows must acquire cheerfulness from bright draperies, floor coverings, upholstery, wall paper and other details. Tall cabinets and flowered draperies carry the eye upward. Bright serving tables usually require a fairly prominent wall decoration behind them to keep them from being depressing, but they can be quite charming if they are the base for a grouping which includes a vase of tall flowers, a gleaming samovar or percolator, and a fine engraving or simple painting in bright colors.

Shoes Follow Hat Styles Half Way

So the style world has gone second Empire? To follow the Empress Eugenie's lead, shoes are being made to resemble hats. The Empress Eugenie's shoes were like hats, with high heels and long, pointed toes. The new shoes are being made to resemble hats, with high heels and long, pointed toes.

Spirit Of "Elegant Eighties" Returns

By BARBARA BEAUFORT
(Associated Press Fashion Writer)

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Velvet, satin, and cloth of gold, silky furs and shimmering jewels are the stuffs of which the social butterfly's evening room is spun. The day when Madame slipped a simple crepe frock over her head for the evening's dance is done in. All gowns are full gowns again and the woman who dances at night this winter will find herself deep in a mode of romance and ruse, power and pearls.

The old-fashioned fancies of 1880 and 1890 have laid a heavier mark on evening fashions than on any other part of the winter mode. Frocks with wide swirling skirts, form fitting over with tight skirts and sweeping trains, bustle backs and hoop skirts are all presented in a picture as varied as a kaleidoscope.

Decorative too, reflect an old-fashioned note for they are higher in front than they have been in several seasons, while fans, handkerchiefs and gloves all bespeak the spirit of the "elegant eighties." Velvet is a favorite fabric for the evening mode. Black, garnet, sapphire and blue velvet are designed with elaborate decolletés and full, supple skirts, many of which are banded at the neckline or hem in rich furs. Lace is another popular material for the hours after 6 o'clock. There are form fitting trailing frocks of allover lace with crimson velvet roses resting on the shoulder and golden-yellow, lime-green and black lace with skirts having crinoline hoops. Taffeta and tulle also promise to be evening favorites.

DRESSY COAT SCORES

Smart for the cooler days is this dressy coat of henna-colored material worn by Anne. Pear, pearls and a set off with red fur collar and sleeve trimmings. A dory hat completes the red tone in color. Her slippers are of brown and black.

Two silhouettes are seen in Paris evening gowns—one with a light skirt releasing its fullness below the knees, the other with a full supple skirt. Telson designs the black velvet frock at right worn by Claire Luce, actress. It is a form fitting gown trimmed with ermine. Worth makes the white crepe gown (left) in the more ample mode, accenting it with a decorative band of sable with a cluster of roses at the base.

Woman Champions High Level of Mine Wages As Move To Combat Depression

(By The Associated Press)

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 3.—One who believes in maintaining wage scales to combat the business depression is Josephine Roche of Denver, president of the Rocky Mountain Fuel company.

Miss Roche, who inherited the mining company after the death of her father, has been in the industry for three years and took a stand against wage cutting. When other producers of the state announced a 25 percent wage cut, she refused to follow them.

She promised her miners she would maintain union wage scales because she believes that is the way to bring about better times. Miss Roche graduated from Vassar College and Columbia University, and for several years worked as an investigator for probational and educational organizations in New York.

Surveyed Living Costs
In 1918 she conducted a survey of living costs in New York and Baltimore for the National Consumers' League. In Denver, before assuming control of her fuel company, she was chief probation officer of the juvenile and family court. The miners of her company are all members of the United Mine Workers of America, and the firm operates a system of employer-employee government to handle all labor questions.

NEW FALL COLORS RECALL CLOTHES OF SCHOOL-DAYS
LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Butter Brown collars are a new note on fall frocks. Body wool and silk crepe models are finished with pearl, red, white, or beige collars, which sit closely about the shoulders in a manner reminiscent of school-days' clothes.

BOARD OF INQUIRY ASKS TRANSFER FOR TRAFFIC OFFICERS

Commissioner of Law Enforcement Gives Out Conclusions in Investigation of Deaths of Twin Falls Men

Willie Willis
By ROBERT QUILLAN

O. E. Sales and H. D. Kingsbury, state traffic officers who were purchasing a car that crashed through a bridge railing carrying N. E. Jones and William Keasler, both of Twin Falls, from south to north on the bridge over the low line canal southwest of Piller, the night of September 9, were "endeavored" to perform duty "efficiently," but "it would be for the best interests of all concerned if Officers Sales and Kingsbury were removed from further service as traffic officers in this community."

These are conclusions reached by a committee named by a group of Twin Falls citizens to investigate in conjunction with Emmet Pifer, state commissioner of law enforcement, an investigation of the fatal accident and the actions and conduct of the traffic officers in the connection with the tragic occurrence.

The findings and conclusions reached at the conclusion of a two-day hearing held at the residence of Governor O. Ben Ross, and were made public here yesterday by Commissioner Pifer immediately before his departure, returning to Boise.

New Man Comes Here

The commissioner announced appointment of Pontiac Cooper to be traffic officer in Twin Falls. Following H. D. Kingsbury's disposition to be made of Kingsbury and Sales as members of the state traffic force, had been determined, the commissioner said.

Cooper served for nearly eight years as a member of the Pocatello police force and since last March when he was appointed state traffic officer he has been assigned to duty in the Idaho Falls district.

Kingsbury had been state traffic officer in the Twin Falls district since March, and Sales was transferred from McCall to the Twin Falls district at the same time. Both officers at Twin Falls county fair at Piller.

Members of the committee named to take part in the investigation by the group of citizens who had petitioned for removal of Sales and Kingsbury were J. W. Taylor, former county attorney; T. J. Lloyd, merchant and former state representative; and P. J. Dell, newspaper and employer of Keasler. Persons summoned to testify at the investigation were questioned by Captain J. W. Porter, deputy county sheriff, and also by the members of the committee and the commissioner.

Committee Report

Here is the complete text of the committee's report and recommendations:

"The undersigned committee, appointed to investigate the matter above referred to, herewith submit their report as follows:

"The committee conducted its investigation on the first and second days of October 1931, being assisted in their investigation by Captain J. W. Porter of the Pocatello police, and by the office of Twin Falls County, Idaho, who conducted the personal examination of all the witnesses, had the statements made in the course of the investigation being supplemented by such further questions as the individual members of the committee desired to ask. The testimony submitted was reported in shorthand, transcribed, read, corrected, signed and sworn to by the witnesses, and written copies of all the evidence adduced are herewith submitted as part of this report.

"The committee find the facts to be as follows:

"The deceased, Nathan Jones and William Keasler, had been in attendance at the Twin Falls County Fair at Piller, Idaho, on the day and evening of September 9. During the evening of said day, their car was observed being driven in violation of the traffic law. Officers Sales and Kingsbury, having observed the infraction of the law, started out in their car to overtake and apprehend the offenders, Jones and Keasler, who, together with one Laun White, were traveling in an Oakland Light-cylinder Sedan, driven by Keasler, apparently sought to avoid apprehension by speeding into the country west and south of the village of Piller. With the officers pursuing, they drove to a point approximately two miles west and one mile south of the village of Piller. At this point they came to a bridge situated on an angle turn in the road towards the right. The car in which Jones, Keasler and White were traveling was unable to make the curve, and crashed through the bridge guard rails and into the low line canal of the Twin Falls Canal company. The car plunged off the bridge, turned over, and landed bottom up in the middle of the canal, with its front pointing down stream, the car being carried with the canal and about fifteen feet up stream from the bridge. There it remained with the front of the car on the bottom of the stream and the back apparently floating, and the upper part of the back partially protruding from the

ENDURANCE EVENT PROMOTERS QUIT TWIN FALLS FIELD

Walkathon Pulls Up Stakes and Leaves County After Twice Failing to Secure American Legion Sponsors

Promoters of an endurance contest known as "walkathon" who lately staged performances at Meridian and Pocatello, yesterday abandoned the project in this community. The project was a walkathon, a similar exhibition here, pulled up stakes of a big tent that was pitched last Monday at Twin Falls and left the town last evening by O. W. Williams, county attorney, and E. P. Traylor, sheriff.

Encountering opposition on the part of Twin Falls city and county officials, promoters of the exhibition endeavored to enlist Twin Falls American Legion post as sponsor, and, failing in this, they moved out of town to the Buell American Legion post, which also turned it down.

County authorities demanded payment of a $10 annual license on the grounds that the proposed exhibition would constitute an "amusement resort." Under terms of state law, applicants for license for county fairs, carnivals, circuses and similar incorporated cities are required to wait 20 days after posting the license, before they can be held. The promoters of the exhibition, however, stated that they had secured the license from the Idaho State Fair association, and that they had secured the license from the Idaho State Fair association, and that they had secured the license from the Idaho State Fair association.

Law Makes Exception

The law makes an exception in the case of amusement resorts sponsored by churches or certain other non-profit organizations. The promoters of the exhibition were negotiating with the American Legion post, after picking their tent at the Buell American Legion post, and the promoters were negotiating with the American Legion post, after picking their tent at the Buell American Legion post, and the promoters were negotiating with the American Legion post, after picking their tent at the Buell American Legion post.

SOCIALISTS APPOINT FREEDHEIM SECRETARY

If H. Fredheim, well-known Socialist leader in this city, has been appointed by the National Socialist committee as acting state secretary of the Socialist party of Idaho, taking the place of C. H. Cammack, Boise, who is in Salt Lake City taking treatment for his health, Mr. Fredheim said that this action by the committee would result in winning large numbers of new Socialists into the party on an active educational campaign, he said.

The committee, after a careful consideration of all the evidence, are of the opinion that the Officers Sales and Kingsbury used their best efforts according to their judgment to rescue the imprisoned men. These officers were confronted with a sudden emergency. The night was dark, cold and windy; the water of the canal was deep and cold; the current swift and the task before them was one that required prompt action, with very little time for deliberation. The consideration that the officers were not men who had had a great deal of experience in confronting situations of this kind. The committee are satisfied that these officers, while they did not employ the means best calculated to meet the situation, were, nevertheless, endeavoring to perform their duty faithfully.

"The committee are of the opinion, in view of all the facts and circumstances brought out by the evidence, that it would be for the best interests of all concerned if Officers Sales and Kingsbury were removed from further service as traffic officers in this community."

Respectfully submitted,
J. W. TAYLOR, Chairman,
T. J. LLOYD,
P. J. DELL, Committee.

BEAN ASSOCIATION NEGOTIATES LOAN

Directors Plan to Make Payment to Stockholders in Near Future

Stanley A. Larkin, manager of the Stanley Idaho Bean Growers' association, announced Friday, that the association had been negotiating with the Federal Intermediate credit bank, with a view of perfecting details Monday for a loan negotiated by the Federal Intermediate credit bank in behalf of the association, proceeds of which will be here within 10 days, Mr. Larkin said before leaving for Spokane.

Regarding his resignation and the appointment of Mr. Larkin as manager, announced Friday, Mr. Larkin stated that while the membership of the Southern Idaho Bean Growers' association had been doubting during the four years he had served as manager, and had attained a total of more than 800, confidence in him had been developing for several years, which made a change seem advisable in order to secure the cooperation and confidence needed to make for continued success, hence he resigned.

Mr. Larkin paid high tribute to his successor, declaring that his work with the new manager during the last year, and the success of Mr. Larkin in building up the Tri-Beech Bean corporation, had convinced him of the honesty and ability of Mr. Larkin, and that he had no objection to the continued success of the association.

plantation melodies take on new and more interesting character. The singers get that harmonious blend of voices that always make a male quartette so popular. The folk songs are favored. Every member of the quartette is an accomplished soloist and several readings, usually taken from Paul Laurence Dunbar's dialect works are included on the program. This variety in the quartet work, with happy combination. No male solo about this time, worth-while concert, a master effort by four real artists.
