POTATOES FOR DIGGING:
 Idaho is an all more or less potato state. It is particularly surprising to learn that a number of Idaho farmers have posted signs at their gates inviting anybody to take potatoes for the digging.

It is, at first glance, though, a little difficult to learn that these unemployed persons and those most likely to need assistance are not numerous among those accepting the invitation, but that the invitation seems to be most popular among persons in comparatively comfortable circumstances.

Under normal conditions, farmers would not think of going to give away a crop that would not pay to harvest. That is an effect of relief-mindedness.

And under normal conditions, too, persons who are regularly employed or in comfortable circumstances, would hardly go out into the fields to dig potatoes in order to save the price that would not pay for the digging.

Some persons who need the potatoes and cannot afford to buy them even at a give-away price, cannot accept the farmers' invitation because they do not have means of transportation. They are going to have to be helped, anyway.

But it does appear that existing conditions are easier—perhaps for persons who are not most concerned about helping themselves, than for anybody else.

CONTRADICTION IN TOKIO:
 It is said to be possible Japan of today is repeating the mistakes of yesterday. The Japanese are now in a position to make the same mistakes.

Washington, Geneva and Tokyo have suggested strongly that Japan have one thing and do another.

There is inconsistency, but probably not hypocrisy.

It seems true, as a Berlin newspaper has declared, that Tokio announced it did not want war, and then it went to war. It announced it had forbidden the dispatch of troops to Manchuria, and then troops went to Manchuria.

Evidently there are two authorities in Japan, one for peace, and one for war. The government gives assurances to the world, and the army disregards them. Japanese statesmen would live up to treaty obligations and co-operate with the international forces of righteousness, but the old samurai spirit dies hard.

The Japanese army perhaps should be persuaded to sign the Kellogg treaty and join the League of Nations.

CHAINS TO BREAK:
 Chain letters may be a little less frequent than they used to be, but they are still too much in evidence.

An article in the British Contemporary Review tells the chain letter with the story of the savage witch doctor employs.

These letters are utterly attempts to bewitch recipients; the medium of this magic is fear, and the bogy is misfortune.

It might be as harmless a thing as throwing salt over the left shoulder on certain occasions, were it not for the fact that some individuals really are frightened, with shocking results.

More publicity in this matter is needed, and more strong-minded persons who not only break the chain but let their act be widely known.

ALPHABETICAL READING:
 The other day a patron of a big public library revealed the fact that he had evolved a reading plan all his own. He began a while back reading biography alphabetically. That is, he started with A and read a biography about some one whose name began with that letter. Then he took A and so on, when his method was made public he had already worked his way about half way through the alphabet.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (Special to The News)—The stock market was sharply lower today, with the Dow Jones industrial average closing at 117.12, down 1.12 points from 118.24. The market was hit by a pessimistic report from the steel industry, a dividend cut by the American Steel and Wire Co., and a drop in earnings figures for several other companies.

United States Steel was actively sold today, with prices falling 1.12 points to 117.12. The company's earnings for the third quarter were reported to be 10 cents per share, down from 11 cents in the second quarter. The American Steel and Wire Co. also reported a drop in earnings, with the company's third quarter earnings falling to 8 cents per share from 9 cents in the second quarter.

The daily federal reserve gold statement showed that the reserve had increased to $1,173,000,000, up from $1,172,000,000 the previous day. The increase was due to a sale of government bonds by the federal reserve bank of New York.

When Pioneers Packed Into the Territory

In the papers of the period such statements as this appeared: "D. Falk and Bro. received a large stock of goods on Sunday last. Their store is pretty well filled up with every variety." It was a matter of editorial comment when these shipments arrived after having been on the trail for many long weeks.

Speed! Speed! Speed!

Fast express. Fast truck. Airmail. The time from New York to Twin Falls measured in hours instead of weeks and months. A miracle just 63 years ago. Commerce place today. If we could take you into the receiving rooms in our various stores—if you could see the busy workers unpacking case after case of new merchandise—if you could observe the low prices at which the clerks are marking this merchandise—then you would realize in an instant the tremendous scope and importance of this joyous birthday occasion in every Falk store.

This is the second of a series of editorials commemorating the founding of the Falk in the Indian Territory in 1868.
