SOCIAL GROUPS IN BURLEY ASSEMBLE

Church, Lodge and Club Socials Combine With Parties to Make Busy Week

BURLEY, Nov. 2 (Special to The News)—As October draws to a close, the week-end is crowded with social events. Halloween provided a most enjoyable party for many people during the past week.

Numerous church, lodge and club socials as well as ghost parties were staged.

The Junior Odd Fellows lodge put on a clever stunt Monday at its hall on the evening of October 29. There was a large attendance to enjoy the games, stunts and refreshments.

Mrs. E. T. Price's Sunday school class of the First Ward enjoyed a party Friday evening.

Several school class parties were held after school Friday evening. Later the children dressed as ghosts and paraded the streets and ringing door bells. Owing to the ideal weather there were more goblins about than ever before witnessed here before, but no damage was done, nor property destroyed.

The Miles Lorraine Smedley, Jane Davenport and Lela Price have two lovely parties, one Thursday evening and one Saturday evening. These were given at the Smedley home on Burton avenue. About 50 friends were entertained in a delightful manner. Games, dancing and ghost stunts were enjoyed and a lovely lunch was served at each party.

Mrs. Bernice Drake entertained a number of her primary class of the Third ward at a well arranged Halloween party at the Drake home Friday afternoon. There were about 20 children present. There were stunts and games and a lovely lunch was served at the close of the afternoon refreshments.

Another Halloween party was given Friday evening, when Mrs. Quicke entertained about 20 children and their parents. Games and stunts were enjoyed and a lovely lunch was served at the close of the afternoon refreshments.

Mrs. F. R. Gibson entertained a Halloween party Saturday evening for her daughter. The rooms were decorated with lanterns, pumpkins and fall flowers, orange and black being used throughout. The evening was spent playing games of various kinds and telling stories. At the close of the evening refreshments in keeping with the event were served by Mrs. Gibson. Those present were: Mrs. Judd, Jack and Keith Hitchens, Clarence Judd, Joyce Aquilino, Thora Brown, Miss Gibson, Mrs. Higdon, Joyce Brumby and Thelma Terry.

A splendid social program was enjoyed at the Third ward Ladies Day Santa Claus Sunday evening. This was in charge of the parents of the school class and various members took part with talks, music and singing. There was a large attendance.

One of the most largely attended social events of the fall season was enjoyed Friday afternoon at the Ladies Day Santa Claus. The Burley Stake Relief society, in charge of Mrs. E. M. Wright, entertained the members of all the wards. There were 175 women in attendance from all parts of the county. Mrs. C. A. Jones, Rupert, president of the Malheur Stake Relief society, gave a short talk. The Springfield society staged a clever pantomime with about 20 women taking part. A reading was given by Mrs. Jones of the Third ward. The Star ward presented Mrs. Sampson, who gave a reading, "Mama's Fashion Review" was put on by the View ward. Mrs. Betty Pace of the View ward presented a piano number. Unity ward gave a dialogue, in which Mrs. Alfred Crane and Mrs. E. M. Wright took part. Burley Second ward presented a women's chorus; community singing was enjoyed; and Medaema M. E. Taylor and E. Bennett offered prayers. A social hour was enjoyed and elder and doughnuts were served by the committee in charge.

Evergreen Chapter of Eastern Star met at the Masonic hall Monday evening, November 2, for a regular business meeting. There was a fair attendance. The next meeting will be in the nature of a social meeting.

The Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church held an interesting meeting Sunday evening in the church with a good attendance. Miss Betty Arns is leader of this group. They will assist in putting on a special Armistice day program at the church service next Sunday morning.

The University Guild members, at their regular bi-monthly meeting, took up the life and works of Nathaniel Hawthorne. This meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Leda Lewis on Burton avenue. Miss Maud Ritter gave the "biography" of Hawthorne. Life and works of Hawthorne were reviewed by the speaker.

BURLEY RESIDENTS SEE OLD-FASHIONED RUNAWAY OF HORSES

BURLEY, Nov. 2 (Special to The News)—People on the streets between the Farmer's Equity building and the railroad depot last week witnessed an old-fashioned runaway of horses.

A wagon was being loaded with coal at the Equity yards when the horses became frightened. They ran to their heads like an old-time team scared by an automobile, scattering coal and driver as they went. An old railroad crossing they turned and tried to cross. But a departing passenger train was in the way. They collided with the train side-swinging it and piling in a heap.

Train hands untangled the horses, still trying to put the wagon pulled the wagon tongue out of the soft earth and delivered the mass of wreckage and debris. No particular damage was done, except a series of Halloween scratches along the sides of the railroad coaches.

BURLEY'S LEGION PLANS ARMISTICE OBSERVANCE

BURLEY, Nov. 2 (Special to The News)—Armistice day, November 11, will be observed in Burley by appropriate exercises under direction of the American Legion. World war veterans are to be the main attraction of the schools to deliver short addresses in the morning. Immediately after the noon hour there will be a parade, starting from the high school, passing through the principal streets and disbanding at the entrance to the playgrounds, where the annual Burley-Tupelo football game will be held.

Music for the procession will be supplied by the high school band and by the Legion drum and bugle corps. The newly organized local National guard unit of the Idaho engineering regiment will march in this parade, its first appearance with rifles and equipment outside its barracks. Veterans of the various wars will also take part in the parade, as well as some of the local organizations.

Between halves of the football game it is proposed that the National guard unit put on an exhibition drill, assisted by the drum and bugle corps. In the evening there will be a social hour at the Legion hall, at all wars, to be followed by the Legion and Auxiliary dance, open to all. At the banquet, C. D. Johnson, state commander of the Legion, is slated to make an address.

Miss Meta Harms Becomes Bride of Carl Conner At Charming Home Rites

BURLEY, Nov. 2 (Special to The News)—A wedding of interest to residents of Burley and Claver was that of Miss Meta Harms, daughter of John F. Harms, Burley, to Carl Conner, Burley, at the home of the bride's father at 6 P. M. Sunday.

The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. W. F. Dammert, pastor of the Claver Lutheran church, in the presence of the immediate families of the young couple and a group of invited friends. Flowers were plentiful but a scheme of pink, yellow and green, made a charming background for the large wedding in front of which the young couple with their attendant stood.

Fourteen-year-old green chiffon in the long mode and carrying a shower bouquet of pink and white carnations and sweet peas, was attended by Miss Frances Webber, Burley, in canopy yellow, satin and Miss Edie Pyle, Burley, in pale pink satin. The groom was attended by John Harms, brother of the bride, and Eric Adolph, American Falls.

A wedding dinner followed the ceremony at which places were marked for 40 guests. The young couple will live under direction at the school and found to be economical and satisfactory.

BURLEY SCHOOLS START SERVING NOON LUNCHES

BURLEY, Nov. 2 (Special to The News)—Serving of lunches in the four Burley schools will be resumed tomorrow when hot soup, sandwiches and milk will be available in dining rooms provided for the pupils. As was the custom last winter, no charge will be made for the lunches which will be sold at a figure which will cover cost of furnishing the lunch.

This winter, a new departure is to be instituted, according to Miss Freda Rice, high school home economics instructor, as vegetables and other produce will be purchased from those having children in school in exchange for lunch tickets.

It is arranged so that the hot lunch furnished can be used either in full as a complete lunch for pupils, or to supplement box lunches carried to schools. An effort is to be made to see that children are given well balanced meals, clean and wholesome, and up of ingredients which are appetizing and suitable for children. This lunch service is being carried on after being fully tried out last year under direction of the schools and found to be economical and satisfactory.

DRIVE WELL ALONG

With the mid-season of the 1931 football drive in southern Idaho well under way, the trend of campaigns in the four divisions is becoming clearer. In certain teams, the mid-season drive is being carried on with the same vigor and spirit as in the first half of the season. The teams which are showing the most improvement are those which have been in the losing column in the first half of the season. ## Coast's Diamond Leaders Quarrel

League Conference Closes For Day With Harry A. Williams Still in Chair

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 7 (AP)—Deadlocked in the election of a president for a heated debate, directors of the Pacific coast league adjourned temporarily today with Harry A. Williams, league head for the last eight years, still in the chair.

From the conference room, however, it was reliably reported that the directors had taken one step important to all concerned, namely, to reduce the salary of the chief executive from $10,000 to $7500 annually and set the term at one year. Reduction of salary was believed to have been with it the stipulation that all necessary expenses of the office would be paid by the league.

Sixteen ballots saw the voting stand as follows: Williams, 4; Wade (Red) Kuller, former president-manager of the San Francisco Giants, 3; J. C. Quinn, former president of the Oakland club, 1. Balloting will be resumed tomorrow.

The directors indicated they favored adopting a salary scale, as in effect in the major leagues. It was decided to play the first seven weeks of the season on a salary scale. This will be a work on Herbert H. Farin, official schedule-maker of the circuit, was instructed to draw up a tentative schedule from that time on, splitting the weeks into four and three game series.

Some difficulty was expected, however, due to the long jump between California cities and Portland and Seattle.

RAILWAY WORKERS PONDER ON WAGES

Under the resolution adopted by the labor group, the conference was to consider any proposal affecting railway operation which railway management desire to advance. The resolution, including present and future relief of unemployment and stabilization of employment, was to be considered by the association.

It also pledged the organization to "carry on cooperative action" in any of such and every organization of employees affiliated with this association to protect and to promote the interests of the workers, meeting the needs of the present situation.

Football Booters Regain Lost Glory

Sudden Epidemic of Field Goals Marks Week End On University Gridirons

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—The fine art of booting the pigskin through uprights, previously but submerged for the first month of the 1931 season, has been revived by a sudden epidemic of field goals.

Occident last Saturday of college football conflict resulted in at least three important victories being gained by field goals in addition to which they played a big part in Dartmouth's 33-23 tie with Yale.

In the closing minutes of play, Yale kicked a 35-yard field goal, Dartmouth back, retreated to his 10-yard line and place-kicked the point. Earlier in the game he had kicked another placement from Yale's 23-yard line.

Second honors for the day as far as scoring was concerned went to Lafayette State, one of the half-backs in New Hampshire State's backfield, who scored a 30-yard field goal in a 14-0 victory over Tulsa.

Although the field goal itself came back as a scoring weapon, the old game almost as a whole has been forgotten—almost all of the important goals were place-kicked.

LADY with a PAST

BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: Venice had determined to be brazen and openly pursue a man who interests her, after years of absence and unconfidence. She has grown used to her lack of popularity, and knows that she cannot be liked and admired. Her loneliness is offset by her immaturity and lack of allure. One man, Frank Farrelly, has seemed to like her. At the Manning's dinner, Venice meets Ronald Walwright, a most attractive young man who looks like a faun. Her friend Lola tells her that Walwright is the darling of New York, and that he likes women to be gay. Venice breaks away from a sober man with some obvious excuses, and goes over to the place where Walwright is standing alone.

Chapter 10

COMPETITION WITH CERISE

"Here I am again," Venice said, "you're looking for Bacchus, aren't you, Mr. Walwright?" "Bright girl. Where's that dratted Butler?" Out of the corner of her eye Venice saw young Specialties with a glass of creme de menthe in one hand looking vaguely about her. A fact of life, though the French liquid and made of it mottled emerald.

"There," Venice pointed to approaching figures topped by a long expressionless face like so much dough.

Roland Walwright lifted two tiny glasses from the tray. Venice suddenly realized that one was for Cerise. He hid away some-where the lifted it from his surprised fingers.

"To Bacchus," she smiled and drained it quickly.

"To Bacchus," he echoed and sipped. His eyes over the little glass met hers with faint glances.

Her laughing at her thought, and the color swept up her face. The old embarrassment, that ever-present diffidence and self-consciousness, engulfed her. She looked away. Specialties was sitting in one of the chairs by the fireplace alone. He was watching her with a curious expression. She glanced back to Walwright.

He was following them. "He says," she said, "another glass from off the tray and disappear with it through the foyer."

Quick, quick, she thought; what can I do that would be funny and impermanent and say? What would Lola or Cerise Nale or Alice Schuyler do? He hurried after him. She overlooked him at the doorway of a small library. She put a hand on his arm.

"If you're so fond of Bacchus," he laughed, "you can have another liqueur with me before you have still another with some one else."

Her face was flushed with her own daring and her eyes were shining. She looked provocative and bright. Roland Walwright slowly put the two little glasses down on a nearby console-table. There was something baffling about his expression. Venice suddenly felt nervous and shy. Why didn't he say something? He suddenly reached for her and, getting her in his arms, kissed her deliberately on the mouth.

Venice's liqueur glass dropped to the floor with a crunching sound. She got her hands up against his chest and pushed him furiously away.

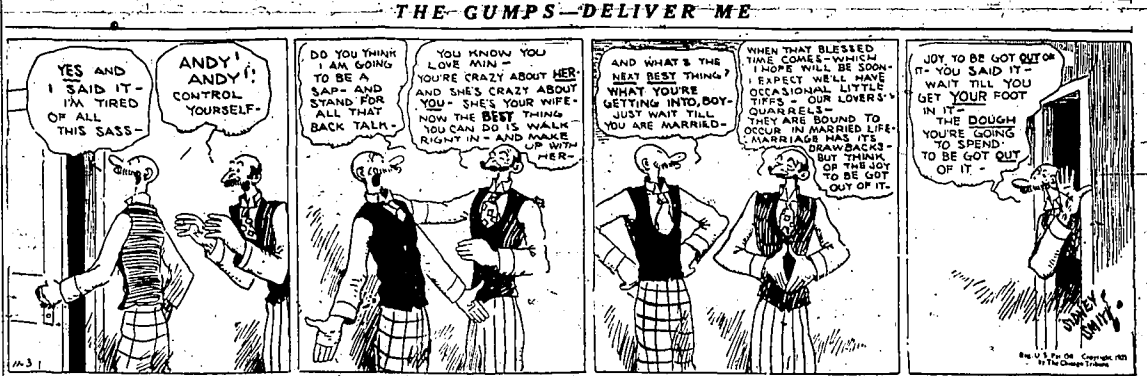

"Why did you do that?" she cried. Her cheeks were flaming. She put her palms against them as though to ease their burning.

"What did you want?" he asked, his eyes twinkling easily, no incense in his tone. "You seemed to be persisting about something."

"Thank you," she snapped. Venice blithely turned away. She was standing in the doorway of the living-room, furiously hurt. He had insulted her. It was the first time she
