GRANGERS OF IDAHO SEEK TAX REFORMS

Officials Broadcast Call For Conference to Map Out Revision of System

BOISE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Call for a state-wide conference to map out a revision of the Idaho taxation system was broadcast today by the Idaho State Grange.

The meeting will be held in Boise tonight at 8 o'clock, and will be attended by representatives of all industries and taxpaying agencies in the state.

For several years the people of Idaho have been the need of a revision of the tax laws, the delegates of the executive committee said, and in view of our present economic situation, and believing that no more emergency time can ever prevent itself for concerted action of all interests concerned to get together and work out definite program of tax revision, the Idaho State Grange is inviting all taxpaying interests to a meeting in Boise for that purpose.

DINO GRANDI DEPARTS SOON FOR WASHINGTON

ROME, Nov. 6 (AP)—Portified by Premier Mussolini, former Minister Dino Grandi, left for the United States tomorrow to attend the President Hoover, a "neutral" viewpoint on what all the world's economic and political machine.

He had a long talk with Benito and therefore saw as the premier's personal representative, empowered to speak in the latter's name. Grandi's statements are said to feel that Italy is in a more detached position than any other European nation and alone among them is able to move easily in any direction that the premier desires.

The Italian government has maintained silence on the subject since the premier's departure, and the Italian press has been instructed to refrain from commenting on the subject.

WHEAT RESUMES CLIMB TOWARD $1 MARK WITH STOCK PRICES GAINING

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Hoover's official pronouncement that he has snipped $350,000,000 from the request of government departments for next year's spending money.

Reporting today upon the far-flung effort to shrink federal expenditures to a point where federal receipts, the president asserted "every item has been cut" in every government department.

"And the pruning is not yet done," adds Chief After-Commenting On Far-Flung Effort to Aid Taxpayers.

Reading from a formal statement, while the pencils of newspapermen whirled about his desk, the president made no direct mention of the tax situation. His words left still pending the question of whether or not the government will propose a tax increase.

Simultaneous, however, with his announcement of federal efforts at budget reduction, Mr. Hoover struck anew at what he termed "propaganda" and pressure upon the congress for added appropriations.

"Again I wish to refer," he said, "to the many sectional interests through-
