CONVALESCES AT MAROA
MAROA, Dec. 1 (Special to The News)—Vivian Park is convalescing following a minor operation performed at the county general hospital in Twin Falls last week.

FAMOUS COUGH PRESCRIPTION

Almost instant relief from coughs is now guaranteed in the use of the physician's famous prescription called Thoxine. It works on an entirely different principle; having a double action, it relieves the throat irritation and goes direct to the internal cause not reached by cough syrups and other medicines.

Taken before retiring, Thosine absolutely prevents night coughing and insures a good night's sleep. It gives the same speedy relief for sore throat too. Contains no chloroform or harmful drugs. Children like it. Remember — relief within 15 minutes from coughs or sore throat, or your money back. 35c. 60c. $1.00 bot-ties. Sold by: Thoreson's Drug Stores, Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding, Idaho, and all other good drug stores.—Adv.

Babson Declares Drastic Cutting Of Expenses Paves Way For Bigger Profits As Ills Of Business Fade

Statistician Declares Many Stocks Now Selling Below Value of Net Quick Assets, and Believes, Despite Constantly Recurring Setbacks, Industry and Trade Stand in Better Condition For Recovery Than Ever

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARS, MASS., Dec. 1—The bright side of current economic statements is the drastic reduction in operating expenses. This is more important to the business outlook than the gloomy picture of lowered sales. It means that as business starts up, even a little profit will show a proportionately larger gain.

There is no medicine for business confidence will be a turn in the tide of profits. Then is when employers will take on more work and will buy more materials, install new machinery, and generally expand their business.

Hence, instead of being discouraged by the drastically lowered gross income in recently reported earnings, we should be encouraged by the proportionately large decreases in operating expenses. Business has been doing a thorough house cleaning, and is in a good position to profit from any moderate increase in sales or price.

While earnings reports for the third quarter were very disappointing, with net incomes for industrial concerns averaging around 14 per cent below last year, they are better in comparison than in the second quarter when the decline was 57 per cent, and better than in the first quarter when the decline was 78 per cent.

The utilities have held up remarkably well, showing a drop in net of only 7 per cent in the third quarter against an average decline of 44 per cent for all industrial companies. Rails are still hard hit with a drop of 48 per cent. The rails have been helped by inability to reduce wages in the face of a 50 per cent decrease in revenues. The recent rail increase should help the industry, but real recovery of income depends largely on how soon the inevitable wage reduction is accomplished.

Highly Liquid Two-thirds of corporate managements have bent every effort toward getting their business into the strongest financial position possible. The liquid capital of most of the big companies is larger now than it was last year in spite of the radical reduction in earnings. Cash balances are being conserved and increased through drastic readjustments and economies. Cash balances at the end of the year are behind many stocks are larger than ever, whereas their market prices are averaging 20 per cent below last year, and 35 per cent below the peak of 1929.

Out of a list of 200 representative companies, 17 are selling below the actual cost of their net quick assets. Some of the more conservative issues are selling at half to one-third of their equities in such assets. Inventories have been kept at rock-bottom levels and cash and cash equivalents represents a much larger proportion of current assets than it did last year or the year before.

Obviously most good stocks have been pressed down to these very low prices by fear rather than by financial reality. When stocks sell at prices which entirely ignore equity in the fixed properties, and in some cases sell below the actual quick assets, we may know that they are reflecting "fear psychology" rather than basic facts.

While it will not be safe to forecast that the bottom of the "U-shaped bear market" has yet been completely worked out, I would be willing to state that we have seen the worst and are now coming out of the woods. We may have further severe reactions between now and the presidential election.

The strong financial condition of most industrial and utility companies, however, is one good reason why shrewd investors are picking up sound securities at these bargain levels.

Two-aded Bond Market—The bond market next year is likely to be a two-aded affair. The continued trend toward credit expansion will tend to depress the government securities, which are selling on a basis of interest return rather than on earnings. However, many of the new, medium-grade bonds are being advanced. Such bonds have been selling down because of fear about earnings. With improving business conditions this fear will gradually disappear.

Credit measures to check deflation and gradually free frozen assets, will tend to the benefit of the market while keeping down the price of the gilt-edged issues. Later on, of course, if credit inflation goes on, the whole bond market would suffer, but those issues that have suffered because of business fears, and sound business sentiments becomes more optimistic.

Moreover, as the banks are relieved from the fear of public hoarding and currency "runs," they will come into the bond market with a large volume of funds now being held liquid. Hence, despite the outlook for firmer money rates and credit inflation, the law of supply and demand will again operate to strengthen prices of medium-grade bonds.

However, it will be a long time before confidence is restored in European securities. The American people are pretty well fed up on Europe, and certainly are not in the mood to send more money abroad. Europe's troubles are by no means over. Further political and economic readjustments must take place before foreign bonds will become attractive investments. The American investor is going to concentrate on home industries.

Faith in Fundamentals—The successful investor during the next five years will be the one who has faith in fundamentals. The law of action and reaction, measured by business statistics, shows that this area of depression is already fifty per cent completed. Business has been reduced to a level below the level of 1920; prices are at the lowest level in twenty years; measures have been taken to reduce the cost of production; and the economy and conserved cash resources. There will be waves of disappointment and pessimism affecting stock and bond prices.

However, the investor who is working on the law of action and reaction will find that the market is a purchasing opportunity, and not a signal for frightened selling.

Business by the Babsonchart now registers 20 per cent below normal or 10 per cent below a year ago. (Copyright, 1931, Publishers: Financial Bureau.)

STATE APPROACHES CLOSE OF CHAPTER IN MURDER TRIAL

Two Days' Proceedings Bring No Evidence, Copenbarger Killed Van Winkle, Other Than Accused Man's Story

It was uncertain last evening whether the prosecution had completed presentation of its case against Fred Copenbarger, 40, on trial on a first-degree murder charge in connection with the death of Charles H. Van Winkle, 27, who was shot and killed on the Copenbarger farm northwest of Buhl last November 5.

"I am not quite sure whether we are ready to rest the case," Prosecuting Attorney O. W. Williams said at 5:30 o'clock. District Judge W. A. Babcock immediately thereafter announced a recess to 9 o'clock this morning.

Copenbarger's attorney, J. W. Taylor, Twin Falls, has secured court orders for subpoenas for seven witnesses in addition to the subpoenas which the law provides for the defense witnesses, and also had indicated that Copenbarger may take the stand to testify in his own behalf.

Opinion was expressed among attorneys of the court that if the prosecution had rested its case last evening, defense counsel would have moved for a directed verdict of acquittal for Copenbarger.

No Hint of Motive Much remained at the close of the second day of the trial to be done to support the first-degree murder charge, and all but nine of the 22 witnesses known to the prosecution at the time of filing the information had already been called to the witness stand.

No evidence, other than the testimony of officers who related the story Copenbarger told them, had been introduced to show that Copenbarger shot Van Winkle, and there was no evidence tending to indicate a motive for premeditated murder.

The prosecution in opening the case, said it would prove Copenbarger killed Van Winkle in the afternoon rather than late at night as Copenbarger had said.

One witness, Mary Wakley, 35, a neighbor testified yesterday that she saw and heard Copenbarger and Van Winkle in conversation on the Copenbarger farm some time after 5 o'clock the afternoon of November 5. Van Winkle, she said, asked Copenbarger's permission to cross a field to get a pheasant he had shot, and Copenbarger replied, "Go ahead; it's not my field."

Copenbarger had told officers, they said, that he did not know Van Winkle until that he shot him when he leveled a gun at him.

day they saw blood stains on a ditchbank off the course along which Copenbarger said the wounded man had fallen.

Attorney Fitzmaurice Expert Captain Everett M. Sorely, Twin Falls attorney, qualified as a firearms expert to describe the effect of a shot from a 45 calibre revolver. He had experimented with that weapon, he said, since 1898, and with shotguns since 1911. While explaining the effect of the shot on other substances, including paper, cloth, pine board and bent iron, he declined to tell the effect on the human body.

He declined also to say what caliber bullet perforated a section of rib placed in evidence as having been taken from Van Winkle's body. This gruesome exhibit in a glass bottle was introduced in evidence, along with a 45 calibre revolver that Copenbarger turned over to officers after the shooting, a 22 calibre rifle that was found near the dead man's body, and the blood stained silk underwear and overalls that Van Winkle wore.

There was a discrepancy in the testimony regarding the wound. Dr. F. A. Dwight, Flax, Coroner, asserting it was larger in the front of the body while Dr. F. W. McManus, Buhl, who assisted in the autopsy, said the larger opening was in the rear. The same discrepancy was noted in testimony of Deputy Sheriff A. C. Parker and W. F. Dotson, who were summoned by Buhl police officers to the scene of the shooting and arrived there about 10:30 P. M.

Chemist Tella Findings Homer Saxon, Twin Falls chemist, testified yesterday that bits of bone were found on the front, but not on the back of the clothing Van Winkle wore, indicating that the bullet entered the back.

Shirley E. Fretter, Deputy Sheriff W. F. Dotson and Coroner F. A. Dwight were witnesses who testified to seeing blood stains on the ditchbank, some distance further from the Copenbarger house than where the body was found, 90 feet, from Copenbarger's door.

Under the rule invoked at the beginning of the trial, witnesses are excluded from the courtroom ex-

MOTORIST APPEALS TO SUPREME COURT

Salesman Convicted in Connection With Youth's Death Continues Fight

Attorneys for O. E. Monteith, Montpelier, Idaho, salesman, convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of James Corbett Tabor, 17-year-old Missoula boy, appealed October 9 to serve 2 to 10 years in the state penitentiary, yesterday filed notice of appeal to the supreme court.

The appeal from the district court's judgment was predicated on a verdict of guilty of manslaughter "on account of reckless driving." The quoted phrase was penciled on the verdict by the jury. Appeal was taken also from the district court's order denying a new trial.

Tabor was struck and killed while walking along the highway east of here last May, by an automobile driven by Monteith.

Monteith's attorneys are Peterson and Clark, Pocatello, and Hodgins and Hodgins, Twin Falls.

cept when called to testify. Chairs provided for accommodation of spectators proved inadequate for the crowd of more than 200 persons assembled in the courtroom yesterday, and many stood for hours.

The corridor outside was filled with witnesses and their friends. The crowd continued to be one of the most orderly ever assembled at a murder trial here, and only when spectators started to leave before the jury had filed from the room, was the bailiff required to call for order.

State's Reserve List State's witnesses endorsed on the information who had not yet been called last evening to testify were Guy L. Klinger, probate judge; R. E. Zeigler, Twin Falls police chief; Burleigh Hyde, Luther Brown, Bill Gordon, Clyde Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Messenger, Leslie G. Nelson.

The Messengers were subpoenaed witnesses for the defense on application of Copenbarger's attorney who said the prosecution had not named subpoenas for them last Saturday, and that they were about to leave the country.

IDAHO DEPT. STORE
"If It Isn't Right, Bring It Back"

WHY do more and more smokers say:

"I've changed to Chesterfield"

BECAUSE...

THEY'RE MILD. It's the tobacco! The best tobacco—the smoothest and mildest that money can buy—go into Chesterfield. Ripened and sweetened in the sunshine... cured by the farmer... then aged for two years in wooden hogsheads. No wonder you say, "They're so much milder!"

THEY TASTE BETTER. These mild smooth tobaccos are put together exactly right. That's Chesterfield's secret—but millions of smokers agree that the job couldn't be improved! Rich aroma of Turkish and mellow sweetness of Domestic, blended and cross-blended to Chesterfield's own BETTER TASTE.

THEY'RE PURE. Cleanliness and purity, always! Everything that goes into Chesterfield is tested by expert chemists... tested thoroughly. The purest cigarette paper made, burning without taste or odor. Sanitary manufacture... no hands touch your Chesterfield. They're as pure as the water you drink!

THEY SATISFY. You break open a clean, tight-sealed package. You light up a well-filled cigarette. Yes, sir... you're going to like this cigarette—you know that with your very first puff. And right there's where many a smoker changes to Chesterfield. They Satisfy!
