W ASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (By The Associated Press)

—Installment men buying on the same basis as automobile and radio purchases with down payments as low as 20 per cent was pictured tonight by President Hoover as the ideal for a home-owning nation.

Addressing 3000 persons at the opening session of his conference on home building and home ownership, gathered after a year of preparation, the president said that a search be made for a financial plan that would "dignify the name credit" and be free from "terms and conditions" that would be extended by a pawn broker.

Delegates from every state in the union, seated in the Constitution hall, applauded his suggestion. Earlier they rose and extended an ovation at his entry. They hugged him over mention of songs written about the home, to which he added that "they never sing songs about the pile of rent receipts."

"There is a wide distinction between homes and mere houses," Hoover said. "Those immortal ballads 'Home, Sweet Home,' 'My Old Kentucky Home,' 'Swanee River,' 'Oryema Home in the West,' were not composed by a pawn broker."

INDIANS IN ARIZONA KEEP ANCIENT RITES

Redmen Whirl Through Earle, Age-Old Dances as Sun's Last Rays Fade in Purple

SAN XAVIER, IRL. DEC. 2 (AP)—The primitive Papago people, left behind, have kept on the ancient rites of the sun dance. The Indians in Arizona keep their ancient rites of the sun dance. The Indians in Arizona keep their ancient rites of the sun dance.

For three days and nights the dusky dancers, gathered from the sands of Indian Ocean—some of the oldest and some of the newest—have kept on the ancient rites of the sun dance. The Indians in Arizona keep their ancient rites of the sun dance.

They came from 155 villages where more than 5000 Indians, remnants of the once powerful Papago and Maricopa tribes, gathered in 1922 when Father Basilio Kino, padre-explorer, first visited the Indians in Arizona. He established the Mission of San Xavier, for the instruction of the Papagos and Maricopas.

Chief Leonardo Rios and his braves were called to the dance-ritual by the throbbing notes of the bullroarer and the beating of the drum. The dance was a means of communication by the desert folk—that boomed on the ground.

As the sun slipped over the western horizon candles were lighted in the gay decorated mission, the great dance of the sun. The dancers, veiled in the dim light of the sun, were seen in the dim light of the sun. The dancers, veiled in the dim light of the sun, were seen in the dim light of the sun.

The third of tom-tom, the candle-lit circle of rock-ribbed ground and the trembling chain of women, the dancers stepped forth. Faster and faster they went in the primitive waltz and the swaying bodies kept pace, hurrying madly through the ranks. The dancers, veiled in the dim light of the sun, were seen in the dim light of the sun.

At the end of the dance, the dancers were seen in the dim light of the sun. The dancers, veiled in the dim light of the sun, were seen in the dim light of the sun.

Government Authorities Predict Dictatorial Powers For National Commissioner

BERLIN, Dec. 2 (AP)—Government authorities predicted today that the new food rules will be dictatorial powers over food costs will shortly be appointed.

President Paul von Hindenburg, it was announced, will issue a decree wiping out present wage agreements and substituting for them a new scale of wages. The new scale of wages will be based on the cost of living and will be subject to change at any time.

The price commissioner will have the duty of seeing to it that the new scale of wages is not exceeded. In case of dispute he would make awards which the minister of economics would declare binding.

A similar system now operates in labor controversies and the government has understood to feel that some such method of procedure is indispensable if food prices are to be regulated. There must be some government control over the food supply, it was said, between the consumer on one hand and the producer and retailer on the other.

No definite date has been set for the appointment of the price commissioner. It is expected that he will come from the ministry of economics.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY CONFOUNTS STRIFE

Three House Members Plan to Demand Steering Committee and Others Object

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—Signs of strife appeared in Democratic house ranks today as three influential members planned to demand creation of a steering committee to direct the legislative policy.

The sponsors are Representatives Byrnes, Tennessee; Chapin, Georgia; and A. W. Shaw, Chicago, who will propose at the Democratic caucus Saturday the forming of a committee of 11 members to direct the party's legislative program.

The remaining nine would be representative of the party's elements in the Democratic caucus Saturday.

Representative Garner, Texas, Democratic speaker-elect, is known to be opposed to accepting the plan. The plan will be the biggest before the caucus. The party's house members are virtually unanimous in support for speaker.

"In addition, Representative Rainey, Illinois, is the lone candidate for the party's leadership. Representative Rainey, Illinois, is the lone candidate for the party's leadership. Representative Rainey, Illinois, is the lone candidate for the party's leadership.

The Tammany candidate said that "compared to the importance of reaching the goal, which is the election of a Democratic president in 1932, I do not believe it is of the least importance who will be the officers of my party in the Seventy-second congress."

Wm. O'Connor out of all Southern candidates having withdrawn to permit the North to share a part in the party's control, Rainey's selection as leader seems certain.

The increase in their membership to 219 by the election yesterday of Percy H. Stewart from the formerly Republican Fifth New York district was hailed by the Democrats as another repudiation of the Hoover administration.

Guiding Your Child

Planning for Christmas

For children more than half the fun of Christmas lies in preparing for it.

They love to plan gifts for others, to help mother make the plan, and to see the Christmas tree in the family.

The child for whom the day is merely one of gorging himself with rich food and of ripping open packages addressed to him misses the best part of Christmas.

Such pleasures alone are hollow and the joy lasts only until one has already been made happy by the thought of the pleasure he has helped to give others.

Left to his own devices, the child is likely to let Christmas creep up on him and find him empty handed.

Then he is sorry, but it is too late to do anything.

So plan with him a few weeks ahead the various surprises for the different members of the family. Do not plan for him, however. Let him plan for himself.

Let him choose the gifts he will give, and let him choose the gifts he will receive.

If he wants to make his gifts, by all means encourage him. They will be more happy giving them if he has spent hours over them than if he has bought them.

Do not, however, let him undertake to make gifts so difficult and complicated that he will become discouraged, lose interest and fail to finish them.

Rainy, snowy days in December are fine times for working on Christmas tree trimmings, gliding nuts, stringing popcorn and cranberries, making paper flowers and gift tags.

Christmas Spirit

Here, almost before we realize it, the Christmas season is with us again.

Loads of evergreens are being hauled in. Tinsel and red and green and snowy cotton floss prominently in decorations in Twin Falls.

From the street lamps will come their seasonal gleams, and there will be reminders on every hand of the near approach of Yuletide.

Already Santa Claus has paid a visit to our town, and little folk are expecting letters to the reindeer and to Christmas, their dearest wishes, with implicit confidence in their fulfillment.

Often the wish is expressed that the spirit of Christmas might be spread over more than just the few days of December's glow.

There is no reason, except those that we make ourselves, why Christmas cannot extend over the whole year.

Why wouldn't it be a good idea to make an honest effort to make the Christmas spirit go further?

And why not let's begin right now?

Land Policy

The Chicago News, following the proceedings of the National Conference on Land Utilization held in the city, pleads for a permanent and consistent land policy.

Recent policies have been inconsistent—for example, the Federal and State governments, especially the former, have "favored" expanding agricultural areas in some districts, while curtailing farm production in others.

It is hard to get away from the policy adopted a quarter of a century ago, of opening new farming areas wherever possible, especially by irrigation of arid districts and drainage of wet districts.

In the development of the West, much of the former business, for reclaiming arid and swamp lands and the good lands mostly taken up by the population increasing so rapidly, the government did not follow the great increase in the use and the necessity of farm machinery, the improvement of cultivation, methods and the checking of population through a prohibitive immigration policy.

It is still good business, no doubt, to utilize arid agriculture wherever there is demand. But there is a growing realization that it is also good business to let the "marginal lands" of poor quality, depleted fertility or inconvenient location pass wherever possible in long-time crops of which timber is the best example. Only thus can agriculture become businesslike.

England Wakes Up

It has been said, doubtless with truth, that British industry, which once led the world, has fallen behind the procession. While America and Germany have modernized their machinery and methods, England has clung to its obsolete system.

Startling figures have been given to show the contrast in efficiency between England and America and that in such industries as steel and textiles. Many have wondered whether Britain was industrially "done for."

Now an American engineer, returning from an inspection tour in England, reports an awakening. "One encouraging sign is the appearance of younger men in blast furnace operation, who are more receptive to changes and modern methods of doing things."

England as a factor in world industry, trade and finance is not dead yet, he declares. Here is a statement that may wake up a little.

The British people have come through ten years of depression with less lowering of morale than Americans have experienced in one or two years. While England has some tremendous problems to solve, the recent election is a sample of what the British people can do when they are face to face with a crisis.

BUREAU REPORTS ON SUPPLIES OF LABOR

Beet Industry Employs Many Idahoans, But National Plight Changes Little

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (Special to The News)—Very little change in the national employment situation and only a minor, temporary, increase in the work in the state of Idaho were reported in the October summary of the department of labor compiled by A. D. Lewis, assistant director general of the United States employment service at Washington.

Idaho's slight increase resulted from the beet industry, the report indicated, and other activities were generally curtailed.

The national, the Idaho, and the Idaho district, reports follow:

NATIONAL.—Very little change occurred in the industrial-employment situation during the month of October; however, the improvement noted in coal mining continued, and large numbers of coal miners who had been idle for some months past were absorbed. No operating mines remained below normal in many of the iron and steel mills of the country, the outlook in this industry was much brighter during the closing days of the month than it has been for some time past, with every indication pointing to a material increase in production and employment in the immediate future.

Some increase in activity was noted in several of the larger radio factories and the food processing plants augmented by a few instances. Part-time operations prevailed in most of the plants manufacturing automobiles and automobiles accessories; however, preparations were well under way for the introduction of new models and new models which will mean a considerable increase in employment among these workers. With curtailment of the prevailing in a large number of the industrial establishments of the country, considerable unemployment was evident throughout October, which embraced practically all trades.

Increase in building occurred which resulted in employment for many additional building trades men, but large numbers of building craftsmen were apparent in the larger cities during October. Highway construction continued at a tremendously large volume for this time of the year and provided employment for thousands of men in practically every state.

Additional funds have been recently made available for the expansion of road construction in a number of states which will mean continued employment for many highway workers as long as weather conditions will permit. State and federal construction projects such as dams, hydro-electric development, work, and tunnels; municipal improvements; and public-utility extensions employed large numbers of men throughout the country. The harvesting of the various fall crops engaged the services of thousands of workers, but some decrease in the demand for this class of help occurred the latter part of the month.

IDAHO.—The beet-sugar factories of Idaho reported 1500 men employed, while 2500 laborers were engaged in the beet fields. Lumber mills continued operations on a curtailed basis. An increase in railroad freight-train forces was noted, but several large maintenance shops were closed. Metal mines operated on a five-day-week basis. Highway construction at a cost of $7,472,000 gave employment to about 225 men. Work was started on several public buildings and increased activity in a seasonal nature was noted in repairs and remodeling. A surplus of skilled and unskilled labor was reported.

BOISE.—Metal-mining activities remained on a curtailed basis throughout October affecting many workers. The lumber mills continued to operate on a curtailed basis with reduced forces engaged in the logging camps. Operations were started in a new box factory at Fayette with a small force of men engaged.

The picking and packing of the apple crop provided employment for large numbers of laborers. The closing of the site and excavation for a veterans' hospital provided work for 25 men. Building activity included a barracks to cost $11,000 and considerable remodeling and repairs of residences. There was a surplus of labor in all branches of industry.

CALDWELL.—Building in this section included the erection of a post office and residence. The poultry and egg plants and the creameries operated on full-time schedules, while the produce warehouses reported part time. A surplus of labor prevailed throughout the month.

NAMPA.—Approximately 25 railroad section men were released in October, while 80 men were charged at the fruit express plant. The demand for farm help ceased at the close of the month and over 100 farm hands were seeking other work. The packing sheds operated part time only with small forces of sorters and packers engaged. A few residences were reported under way. The volume of unemployment increased.

TWIN FALLS.—The harvesting of the late farm crops was completed at the end of the month, releasing a large number of agricultural laborers from employment. The beet-sugar factories continued full-time operations with 250 men engaged. The produce warehouses and packing plants operated part time with curtailed forces employed. Building was confined to the erection of a few small residences. The seasonal increase in freight shipments. Other railroad shops worked on a five-day-week schedule. Building under way included a large asylum building at Blackfoot and a few residences. The cheese factory, the packing plants and various other reported normal operations. There was a large surplus of skilled and unskilled labor apparent. The city plan for unemployment relief provided work for 22 men and six women.

IDAHO FALLS.—The seed pea warehouses reported approximately 200 men and 1000 women employed during October. The harvesting and marketing of the pea crop proceeded with 2500 men engaged. The beet-sugar factories provided work for 800 men. There was no public building reported and very little residential work was under way. A surplus of labor was reported. A general surplus of labor obtained.

COEUR D'ALENE.—The lumber mills continued operations on part-time schedules with about 450 men employed. The seasonal increase in freight shipments was reported. A general surplus of labor obtained.

WALLACE.—The metal mines worked on curtailed schedules, however, no material decrease in forces was reported. A mine reduction plan reduced operations and kept all employees at work part time. A small surplus of transient labor was apparent. No building of any note was reported under way.

LEWISTON.—Lumber mills continued restricted operations with about 800 men employed. All other manufacturing plants and warehouses worked full time. A surplus of labor was reported. The demand for either skilled or unskilled labor was not great.

SCIENCE.—Forrest Fairchild, Joseph Christensen, Oscar Erickson, Ernest Carver, Bernice Dunham, Mrs. Warner and Norma Patterson, Joseph-Father Schenk, Sophomores—Hershel Helms and Carl Delafels.

Day of General Selling Interrupted by Fitful Rally Sends Values Down

Foreign exchange: Firm; sterling rallies. Cotton: Steady; light trade. Sugar: Barely steady; increased spot offerings. Wheat: Lower; trade selling. CHICAGO: Wheat: Easy; favorable weather. Corn: Weak; larger receipts; bearish government weather report. Cattle: Irregular. Hogs: Steady to higher.

By JOHN L. COOLEY (Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—In a day of general selling which was interrupted by a fitful rally, the principal financial markets worked lower. The stock market was met at its opening by the announcement that the Washburn railroad received a development which caused many investors to expect a sharp decline in selling. This in turn was quickly followed by news from Canada that the Dominion bonds and medium in the rail controversy had recommended a general reduction of 10 per cent in the price of the bonds. The market then reacted to the news and placed early gains and the struggle for ascendancy between the two sides on through the day.
