Verdict Of Jury Holds Buhl Man Committed Second-Degree Murder

J. W. Taylor, Counsel for Defendant, Announces Decision to Move For Re-Trial of Copenhagen

FRED Copenbarger, 60, Melon Valley farmer, who yesterday was convicted of second degree murder in connection with the death November 5 of Charles H. Vankle, 27, Buhl, near the Copenbarger farmhouse, will apply for a new trial, his attorney, J. W. Taylor, said last evening.

The jury which found Copenbarger guilty returned its verdict following all-night deliberations.

Unshaken so far as a casual could discern, the accused man received the jury's decision, and Judge W. A. Babcock after directing that the verdict be recorded and read, announced that the jury could be pronounced next Monday, and called for jurors for the next case on the first on the civil calendar for the term.

One of the purposes of the case, their verdict to friends yesterday, said they convicted Copenhagenberger because they believed Van Winkle was shot in the back. One member was moved as saying the jury had been punished by comparatively light

The penalty fixed by Idaho law for second-degree murder is 10 years in state imprisonment. Second-degree murder is defined as "unlawful killing of a human being with malice aforethought."

The state contended Copenhagen shot Van Winkle near his farm home while the latter was running away.

The defense sought to prove Copenhagen shot when he was threatened with a rifle by Van Winkle late at night.

Testifying in his own behalf on the last day of his trial, Copenhagen averged he shot twice at a stranger named Bing first at the stranger's feet and then in the chest, but was wounded by the Copenhagen.

NORTH IDAHO MAN DIES IN INJURY CRASH CAUSED

EVERETT, Wash., Dec. 4 (AP) — U. S. Pilot, 62, Potlatch, Idaho, died last night from injuries received when he was struck five days ago by a automobile driven by a Woerner, a University of Washington assistant football coach.

Woerner, who is in Southern California with the University of Washington football team, was held after the accident but he was on his return, the coroner's office announced.

Woerner was a Purdue football star before coming West.

HOOVER'S RELATIVE PROVES INNOCENCE

Police Judge Acquits Santa Monica Man at Hearing

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Dec. 4—Lack of positive proof that he unlawfully possessed a gunny sack containing 10 pounds of liquor was an acquittal for C. Van Ness Leavitt, brother-in-law of President Hoover, in Police Judge C. A. M. Spencer's court today.

The judge ruled at the end of the jury trial that under the California Wright act it must be proven a defendant actually and unlawfully possessed liquor before a conviction can be obtained. His decision was received with applause by the jury members.

ber 9 by Earl Wolman, federal prohibition agent, as he stepped from the back door of C. R. Bailey's grocery store. Leavitt was accused of carrying the gunny sack containing 19 pounds from Bailey's store. Thomas Carr, Santa Monica policeman, entered the front door to see Dalley, once convicted of bootlegging.

Testimony by Wolman and A. J. Sheely, federal prohibition agent, showed that Wolman arrested Leavitt after he dropped the gunny sack near the door. Judge Spencer overruled this testimony. Indicating that he was not in question and did not know what the sack contained.

"They offered me a drink and took one," Leavitt testified. "Soon after Dalley stepped into the room and said 'Tommy Carr is coming.' I started for the door to get out of the place and just as I was going through the door Dalley thrust the gun sack in my hands. Automatically I took it and kept going. I dropped it on the outside of the door as then Wolman arrested me."

SOUTH IDAHO'S 4-H CLUBS GET PROFITS

Dairying and Sugar Beet
Raising Bring Greatest
Return of Year's Work

BURLEY, Dec. 4 (Special to The News)—Profits made by 127 4-H club members in the 131 clubs of the South Central Idaho club district, amounted to $4438 in 1931. The value of livestock, farm produce and materials in the projects bringing in this profit amounted to $17,334. The cost of the projects was $13,299.

Dan E. Warren, district extension club agent, states that the club boys and girls made only about half as much profit as last year. Interest in club work still continues satisfactory, he says, and most of the profits have been reinvested in club projects.

Dairying and sugar beet raising were found to bring in the highest profits the past year. Profits of 193 members engaged in dairy projects amounted to $1121.7. Nine members raising sugar beets made $1142.33. The smallest profit was made by a club of nine members raising beets, who made $435.

Seventeen clubs with a membership of 109 engaged in sowing raising made $307. Five clubs with 41 members feeding beef calves made $170. Seven clubs with 15 members handling sheep made $297. Though it was an off potato year, one club of tuber growers of seven members made a profit of $170.

Sowing and food clubs had the largest membership. Sixty-four sewing clubs with 568 members made $1022. No account was given of the profits of 275 girls in the foods clubs, but 10 girls in canning clubs made $473.

There was one corn club with seven members that made $43.19. There was also one room, improvement club, nine members, for which no profit was computed.

TWO GROUPS IN FILER ENJOY SOCIAL EVENTS

FILER, Dec. 4 (Special to The News)—Two Filer social groups convened this week.

Mrs. C. W. Case and Mrs. William Spencer were hostesses to the Past Matrons' club Tuesday afternoon at the home of the former. Mrs. W. L. Kloppenburg, president, had charge. The usual luncheon was disposed of and the remainder of the afternoon was spent socially. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be the annual election of officers at the home of Mrs. E. S. Laith.

Campfire Girls met at the Central school Tuesday, December 1. A short business meeting was held, after which a program was presented. A short play was given by a group of girls, Virginia, Dillard, Marion Kloppenburg, Vera Orm and Marion Dwight. Mickey Case gave a reading and a song was sung by Mary Ellen Davis, Julie Anthony, Barbara, Beem and Marjorie Nan Musser.

BOGS KILL LIVESTOCK ON MINIDOKA PROJECT

BURLEY, Dec. 4 (Special to The News)—Sheep-killing dogs are reported to be making depredations among sheep and hinds feeding on the best top in fields on the Minidoka project. Thursday morning a herder for Taylor brothers drove off two police dogs which had killed five sheep in a flock feeding near Burley.

Several others of the animals were badly maimed so that they had to be killed, and a portion of the flock was scattered, some of the sheep being recovered far out on the fire of Snake river.

Complaints were made during the summer months of dogs chasing and killing turkeys. It is asserted that several turkey raisers have given up the handling of these birds by reason of killer dogs being allowed to run at large.

RESIDENTS OF HANSEN ASSEMBLE FOR SOCIAL

HANSEN, Dec. 4 (Special to The News)—Women of the Hansen community enjoyed a program and a social good time sponsored by the men of the community at the church on Tuesday evening.

The program consisted of two numbers sung by the girls' glee club of the Hansen high school, under the leadership of A. E. Club, accompanied by Miss Grace Brewer at the piano; a contest of pictures; and a solo by Fay Sheeley. Refreshments of various and dainty kind were served at a late hour by the men.

ALBION WOMAN'S BODY REPOSES AT BURLEY

ALBION, Dec. 4 (Special to The News)—Mrs. Elizabeth Melcher, 72, resident of Albion since 1879, who died Tuesday at her home here after a long illness as a result of a complication of disease, was laid to rest at the Burley cemetery yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Melcher was the wife of Orin H. Melcher, whom she married here in 1899.

Hyram B. Lewis, of the Seventy-Niners' organization, officiated at the services in the Masonic hall here. He was assisted by Professor F. E. Howard of the Albion normal school.

The deceased was born September 18, 1858, at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

She was married to John Park in 1879 and to this union two children were born, Stephen D. Parks, who died two years ago; and Mrs. Ethel Baylor, Oswego, Montana, who attended the rites.

Mr. Parks preceded his wife in death in 1889, and 23 years ago she became the wife of Orin H. Melcher. Surviving Mrs. Melcher are her husband's daughter, seven grand-children, one brother and two sisters.

PROMINENT WOMAN TRIBUTES' SUBJECT

Many Join in Impressive
Last Rites For Mrs.
Frances Amanda Wolter

Members of fraternal organizations with which Mrs. Frances Amanda Wolter, wife of H. Wolter, and Twin Falls resident for 10 years past, assembled with members of the bereaved family and other friends to pay final tribute to her memory at funeral services at the Presbyterian church here Friday afternoon.

Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, American War Mothers, Primrose Rebekah lodge and the Royal Neighbors lodge attended as guests and one side of the church. Each of these organizations and the Odd Fellows lodge gave expression to written statements of appreciation and sorrow which were read during the service.

In a brief funeral sermon, Rev. H. M. Wagner pointed out that Christ did not greatly stress immortality—taking that great fact for granted—"If it were not so I would have told you." Jesus' principal concern, the minister declared, was in the present life and in relationships of love and harmony between men.

In these respects, the speaker declared, Mrs. Wolter, as demonstrated by the tributes of those who knew her best, measured up fully to the highest Christian standards.

Charles E. Howells, past noble grand of the Odd Fellows lodge and an elder of the Presbyterian church, had general charge of the service, which he opened with reading from the Bible, and later read the fraternal organizations' tributes.

Rev. Glen W. Hutton of the Christian church offered prayer.

Mrs. F. S. Bell sang "The End of a Perfect Day," and a quartet composed of Mrs. Sam Gamble, Mrs. John B. Feldman, Mrs. F. S. Bell, and Mrs. F. P. Bracken, sang as a prelude to the service, "Love Kindly Light," and at the close, "Somebody We'll Understand."

Officers of Primrose Rebekah lodge conducted the burial rites of the order at the graveside in Twin Falls cemetery.

Funeral bearers chosen from members of organizations with which Mrs. Wolter was affiliated, were T. J. Lloyd, Duncan Johnston, Lee Snyder, Glen Smith, Bert Sweet and

POTATO BUYER'S STATUS BIG FACTOR IN LAWSUIT

Whether Joe Detton was dealing on his own account, or as agent for P. F. Ahlgren and the Ahlgren Produce company, when he contracted to buy 1800 sacks of potatoes from Robert Bodenhamer and George Steinmetz for $1772.50 last March, is one of the principle questions at issue in a suit in which trial began in district court here yesterday.

In this action, Bodenhamer, owner of the Jerome county farm on which the potatoes were grown, and Steinmetz, tenant on the place, are suing Ahlgren and the Ahlgren company which furnished his produce dealers' bond, for $500.00 alleged balance in payment for the potatoes.

The case is being tried before Judge W. A. Babcock and a jury. J. H. Bothwell appears as attorney for Bodenhamer and Steinmetz, F. L. Stephan being Ahlgren's attorney.

The monthly meeting of the joint Americanization committee will be held this afternoon, December 5 at the home of Mrs. John E. Hayes, 312 Seventh avenue north at 3 o'clock.

CREDIT ASSOCIATION MAKES STATEMENT

Officials Vouch For Sound
Condition of Twin Falls
Bank and Trust Company

Declaring that they have made a thorough investigation which showed the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company to be absolutely sound and solvent, C. H. Deweller, president, and J. J. Hughes, manager of the Twin Falls Credit association, last evening issued an official assurance to all business firms that any check drawn on this bank and tendered in the regular course of trade will be honored by the institution.

The statement of the officials of the Credit association declares that there is no occasion for depositors to withdraw their funds from the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company, and appeals to the entire community to stand by the bank.

The statement in full reads: "Reports have come to our attention that some business firms have declined to accept checks drawn on the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company."

"We have investigated this thoroughly, and as officials of the Twin Falls Credit association, wish to assure all business firms that any and all checks tendered in the regular course of trade, drawn on the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company, will be honored by that institution. The bank is absolutely sound and solvent; there is no occasion for depositors to withdraw their funds; neither is there any occasion for business firms to be hesitant in accepting checks on this bank in their regular course of business."

"We, as officials of the Twin Falls Credit association, wish to use this means of appealing to the entire community to stand by the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company at this time, and particularly the business houses of Twin Falls should not hesitate to accept checks in payment for merchandise or on accounts. Twin Falls community needs the bank and the bank needs the community's confidence and support at this time."

HALT ON ROAD CAUSES FOUR CARS TO COLLIDE

Four automobiles were involved in a collision reported to have been caused by the driver of one of the cars who stopped his machine on the ice-covered highway east of Twin Falls Thursday night to clear a windshield. In one of a succession of crashes that followed, one man in this car had several fingers smashed.

The car that stopped for the windshield cleaning, according to report made to officers here by Paul Kopp, Kimberly, belonged to O. E. Puffer, Burley. In time following this car were the other cars driven respectively by E. A. Beam, Piler; Paul Kopp, and J. E. Rue, Burley. Each in turn got out of control as the driver applied the brakes.

Kopp's car was reported to be damaged worst, with a mangled radiator, crumpled fenders and bent axle.

Smart SHOPPING

"How good is it?"

That's it!

ABOUT anything and everything they buy, smart shoppers like to ask one question—"How good is it?"

Chesterfield welcomes smokers who buy their cigarettes that way.

OUR tobacco buyers are smart shoppers, too. They "shop" for the ripest, mildest, sweetest-tasting leaf that grows. And they won't take anything else.

"How good" are Chesterfields? Well, consider their blending.

Blended and cross-blended...not merely mixed together. Blended first by crops and countries...then cross-blended again and again...to produce a flavor and aroma that are Chesterfield's alone.

That's how we get that better taste...that's why Chesterfields are milder. Even the paper they're rolled in is the whitest, cleanest and purest that money can buy.

And the package...clean, bright, fresh-looking...see how easily it opens, yet how tightly it's sealed.

OPEN a package. Note the aroma...delicious foretaste of pleasure ahead.

Now—pull out a Chesterfield...round, firm, well-filled.

"Sure I shop for cigarettes — Chesterfields satisfy me"

"How good is it?" Light up...then you tell us!

Milder? Right! Taste better? You bet they do! They're pure, too—and they certainly do satisfy!

Good...they've got to be good! There's a value here. We know, because we put it in...and you'll smoke it out with every one you light.

CHRISTMAS WORK
One of the finest bits of industrial philanthropy is that of the Edgar Thomson mills of the Carnegie Steel Company in Pittsburgh, which are taking on five thousand men until the first of January, and until the company has no orders for the steel that will be produced. The purpose is to help unemployment and carry the workers and their families through the holidays. This practical Christmas present is expected to cost the company five hundred fifty thousand dollars.

The sum may be "written off" by the company, but it will doubtless be a good investment in the long run, even if charged to so vague a thing as "good will." And it is quite possible that some profitable work, not now foreseen, will be found for the steel.

It is an inspiring example to other employers, large and small. Give work for Christmas! It is better for everybody than mere charity.

FABIAN COMMUNISM
Bernard Shaw said the other day that Russian Communism was no longer Communism, but was turning into the same sort of Fabian Socialism that Shaw and other radicals were preaching in England thirty years ago. He said this not as praise, but as criticism. Shaw is more radical now than he was then. But maybe he has also up the Russian movement accurately.

Fabian, the old Russian general, was called "cunctator," or "delayer." He fought Moscow by waiting. The English Socialists accomplished many reforms, suggested originally by Socialists, by going slow, taking things easy and never emphasizing Socialism.

Stalin, Russian dictator, is also "cunctator." Even while boasting of the success of his five-year plan, he changes it into a ten-year plan. He has made concession after concession to capitalism and to human nature. Just lately he has given up the sacred five-day week with "sacred" days off, returning to six days a week with the seventh day off for everybody at once, just like the Christian and capitalist countries. He has also shortened the working day to six hours. He has kept the wheat crop, at home, and is letting the Russians eat it themselves. He is abandoning the food rationing plan and allowing the people at last to buy what they want, in whatever quantity is available.

What Russia finally works out may possibly be far from our democratic capitalism, but it will be just as far, or farther, from the red system the world has been fearing.

HUMAN CHEMISTRY
Wasn't there an American chemist or biologist or scientist of some sort a few years ago who figured out that a human being, or rather the human body, was worth about ninety-eight cents when reduced to its chemical elements?

A British scientist has made an estimate and put the figure a little higher, at one dollar. Here he is, in analysis, as given to a London audience recently in a lecture:

The average man, weighing one hundred forty pounds, is composed of enough water to fill a ten-gallon keg, enough fat for seven cakes of soap, enough carbon for nine thousand and four pounds of coal, enough phosphorus to make two thousand two hundred match heads, sufficient magnesium for one dose of salts, enough iron to make one medium-sized nail, enough lime to whitewash a chicken coop, and enough sulphur to fill one dog of fire. The value is much the same as the lecturer said, whether the body is that of an idiot or an Einstein.

A mere layman hesitates to question the scientific quality of such an estimate, even though he cherishes a secret wonder as to the size of the cakes of soap, the chicken coop and the dog. Perhaps the point to hold to is that this mass of heterogeneous ingredients, mixed up in a huge bowl by the amazing chemist, wouldn't amount to much. Yet here is the human race, composed of idiots and Einsteins and a lot of people in between. Brain and soul don't figure in a chemical analysis, and human value is more than chemical value.

LADY with a DAST

BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: Rumors of a sensational career in Paris, which Venice Mair has manufactured, win her the social success in New York which she formerly lacked. She is widely credited. But Drake Parrelly, in whom Venice is deeply interested, believes the stories and disappears of her. She tries to change Drake's attitude.

A DANGEROUS WOMAN

The table made a colorful picture with yellow tulips in a long silver bowl. They looked like reflections of the lights from a score of tapers flickering in candleholders at four corners. There was electric light in the chandelier's great, glowing room and faces were brought into sharp relief by the candlelight.

Drake sat between Jerry and Jim Severn. Drake was directly opposite her. Betty Faine sat on the other side. Venice Mair sat on the other side. Venice Mair sat on the other side. Venice Mair sat on the other side.

And so it went. Meaningless, but Venice persisted in her animosity. "I haven't heard of you," she said, "for a long time."

"I have another table," suggested Venice. "I have another table," suggested Venice. "I have another table," suggested Venice.

After a good bit of cutting in and out and a clasp of about two hours that seemed interminable to Venice she found herself, playing opposite Drake.

"I haven't had two words with you this evening," she said. "I know. You're elusive."

"Three spades," said Lola. "When Jim Severn was dumpy at his table he came over to me, hand on the back of Venice's chair. 'May I take you home when you're ready?' he bent his head to whisper."

Venice nodded. She felt annoyed. She wanted Drake to tell her about the crowd. She wanted to be little that she could do about it. As the game broke up and people left, she saw Drake standing by her chair and put a detaining hand on his arm.

"About the contest?" she asked. She had forgotten her maneuvers now and was only sincerely interested.

"It's not announced yet," she said. "I wish I had heard of it. I thought of taking some courses at Columbia."

"I expect you'll hardly find the time. But it's a great idea." This was said with no malice. He merely could not visualize her winning it between all her engagements. She could see that. She smiled eagerly.

"I could find the time, really. I'm going to." "Can we drop you home, Venice?" It was Lola in her evening wrap. Venice got reluctantly to her feet. She thought quickly.

"No, thank you. I want you. There are no jobs in being a fifth wheel." "Night, Venice. Lola turned away to find Jerry.

"Will you come to dinner with me on Thursday, Drake?" She felt herself color.

"Thursday's my youngest sister's birthday. You promised her a thing."

Frank, finally tracing herself from his arms she stepped him across the check.

"Thank for the wrestling match," she snatched.

The taxi had stopped before her apartment and she jumped out without another word. She hurried across the great hall and into the elevator. Damn, she thought, she was called popularity!

She sat down at her desk and wrote the School of Journalism at Columbia to send her a booklet about extension courses.

She looked at the clock. It reflected bitterly.

Venice registered at Columbia that week and paid in advance for two courses. Their new armistice to start in February. One was short story writing, the other English literature.

Aunt Laura wrote from Boston asking her to spend Christmas, but Venice, vaguely afraid that she might miss some sign from Drake Parrelly, refused both. She excused herself on the ground that she was busy.

She was playing about this as a matter of fact. Nolly and Ernest were curtailing their wedding trip to the home especially for Christmas dinner—in her heart she knew it was the hope of hearing from Drake that was responsible for her refusal.

What is the matter with me, she thought. How can I be so stupid? No one should want to see a man so persistently who doesn't care whether he sees one or not.

She had a sudden idea. She clear her eyes and crisp hair and she was laughing. Venice gave her little indications of newly achieved popularity. Christmas day dawned clear and golden.

From Roland Walbridge, candy from Donny Hove and assorted sprigging flowers, she received a letter from Drake Parrelly. It was a Christmas card that Venice had over-received. Offerings from young men.

Venice opened several Christmas cards. One was from Al Schuyler, delectable and formal, engraved by Cartier, a blazer and a modern triangle from Ann Durey. How did she know my address, she thought. Venice never thought of sending her one. Perhaps she realized that it was stolen.
