SCIENCE FINDS NEW TYPE OF HYDROGEN

American Institute of Physics Announces Discovery of Heavier Kind of Gas

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—Discovery of a new kind of hydrogen, twice as heavy as the ordinary gas, was announced tonight by the American Institute of Physics.

Whether the heavy hydrogen can be produced commercially and what its uses might be is still uncertain. The heavy gas would be an airship, as it has about 16 per cent of the density of air. Ordinary hydrogen has 1 per cent.

The discovery was made by Professor Harold O'Nry, Columbia university, Dr. P. G. B. Smith, of the United States bureau of standards, and Dr. O. M. Murphy, Columbia.

For some time mathematical calculations have shown the possibility of two kinds of hydrogen. To make practical test, Dr. Bickel made liquefied hydrogen by cooling it under great pressure. At 437 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, the gas was hydrogen turned completely into a liquid.

Light Kind Evaporates

Next Dr. Bickel made allowed part of the hydrogen to evaporate. The theory was that the light kind of hydrogen, if it existed, would evaporate first. This proved to be the case. The residue in the liquid hydrogen container was twice as heavy as it should have been.

Ordinary hydrogen is composed of two charges of electricity, and no more. This heavy hydrogen, however, has three of them concentrated in the nucleus.

Hydrogen is the simplest and lightest of all the elements which comprise every known kind of matter. Hydrogen is composed of two charges of electricity, it has been almost too simple for experiment in discovering how a nucleus is put together. The new hydrogen atom with two positive electrical charges and one negative charge in its nucleus gives scientists more parts to experiment with, yet not so many as to be too complicated. They wish to unravel the mystery of how two or more charges of electricity can combine to form solid matter.

WALKER URGES CITIES TO FIGHT DEPRESSION

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP)—Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York stopped off today en route to his home town to urge upon the city and metropolitan cities the responsibility in guiding the country out of the depression.

"The big cities," he said in addressing a large luncheon meeting in the city here, "which have the responsibility of Chicago, must be expected to lead the way."

As for the Democratic party, he said the eyes of the world were upon it. But he cautioned, this was the hour for the political party that could make the greatest contribution to the welfare of humanity.

"And," he said, "intense partisan that I am, I don't care in a crisis like this, with dark clouds still in the air, who appoints the postmaster."

He said there was dissatisfaction with the way the country's affairs were administered at present.

"If the last two years are a sample of Republican property can we not say we would like to see another brand of property with more profit to the individual?" he asked.

Mayor Walker was returning from a trip to California, to lay a plea before Governor James Rolph in behalf of Tom Mooney, convicted of bombing a Preparedness day parade and sentenced to life imprisonment.

REPORT REVEALS FUTILE BRIBERY

Attorney General Mitchell Discloses Reason For Revoking Broker's Parole

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—A story of futile bribery behind the revoked parole of Harry L. Goldhurst, racketeer broker paroled by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., was disclosed today by Attorney General Mitchell.

Without public comment, Mitchell handed out a report from the federal pardon board, explaining why it granted and then rescinded clemency for the New Yorker. Goldhurst now must finish a five-year term for mail fraud in the Atlanta penitentiary. The report said that Charles H. Tuttle, former United States attorney, and his assistant, Robert E. Manly, failed to report either to Washington or to the parole board, their knowledge that Goldhurst was clearing up an "important matter" which would help him.

That both attorneys recommended parole, saying Goldhurst furnished valuable aid in clearing up an "important matter"—the matter of the bribe.

Sought Publicly

That Bishop Cannon, the Southern Methodist churchman, vainly sought a postponement of Goldhurst's trial so that he, Cannon, could be present for the case which "might involve him in publicity," the justice department's inquiry into the Goldhurst parole was asked by Senator Charles McNary, Indiana, in the case because of his long-standing dispute with Bishop Cannon. He had asked if some collusion of federal officials might not have been involved.

Goldhurst, pleading guilty, was sent to the Atlanta penitentiary. He was recommended last June 10, four days after Goldhurst became eligible.

IDAHO AND UTAH CAR SHIPMENTS DECREASE

BOISE, Dec. 10 (AP)—Idaho and Utah perishable produce shipments decreased in November below the same month a year ago but the 11-month total remained above the 11-month total of a year ago, due to heavy potato movement last spring. A report of railroads to the public utility commission disclosed today.

November this year saw 4000 carloads roll out of the two states, compared with 5871 in November a year ago and 6000 in 1929. The 11-month total for this year was 47,871 carloads, against 55,142 last year. An increase of 672.

Five Idaho shipments were: Apples 322 carloads, pears 3, broccoli celery 11, lettuce 77, onions 314, spinach 4, potatoes 209, sweet potatoes 1, butter 43, cheese 19, eggs 13, dressed poultry 18, turkeys 13, canned goods 12 and honey 4.

ROSS OFFERS NEW TUBER GRADE PLAN

Governor Proposes to Include Large 2s and Eliminate Small Number 1s

BOISE, Dec. 10 (AP)—A new potato grade which would eliminate smallest Number 1 potatoes and include a portion of large Number 2s was proposed yesterday by Governor C. Ben Ross as a means of bringing relief to the marketing difficulty facing the potato industry.

Returning from a meeting of growers and dealers held in Idaho Falls last Monday, the governor said the meaning was of great benefit to the growers "and it is the interest of the growers with which we are most concerned."

His proposed new grade would include number 1 potatoes weighing from 6 ounces to 16 ounces, eliminating the present allowance of potatoes between 6 and 3 ounces. Into this group of larger Number 1s he proposed placing 25 per cent of Number 2 potatoes of fair conformity, no cuts, few growth cracks, but none weighing less than 4 ounces. "Growth bumps" would be permitted only if they were of such a nature as not likely to be knocked off and leave an abrasion.

He said such a pack of potatoes would bring 10 to 20 cents a hundred more than at present because of the uniform large size.

Figuring it out, he explained that on the basis of 75 pounds of number 1 potatoes, and 25 pounds of number 2 potatoes, the price would be raised from an average of about 40 cents a 100 to 60 cents.

Seventy-five pounds of number 1 potatoes sell at 75 cents at the present, 50 cents a 100 price, he said. If the new price of 60 cents, he said, could be secured, the value of this 75 pounds would be increased to 45 cents. Number 2 potatoes are selling he said, at about 15 cents a 100.

He said 25 pounds of those which would go into the new grade now are valued at 4 cents. Under the new price they would be valued at 15 cents. This added to the 45-cent valuation of the 70 pounds of number 1s, he said, would bring 60 cents.

Old Extra Price Soon

"The extra price will be received immediately when the new grade is shown," he said. "The potatoes present a more uniform appearance because they are free of the little potatoes which may now go into the number 1 class. These smaller potatoes would still qualify as number 1s and be marketable at the present number 1 price."

The new class could be shipped, he said, if growers wanted. He said the trouble with the present pack was that the number 1 grade included a fine selection of blemished potatoes which are sorted out by Eastern dealers and sold to the trade at a special price, leaving the smaller potatoes and less desirable ones to be sold, nevertheless as "Idaho."

He said if growers wanted, he would be glad to take them.

the number 1A." This remainder, he said, presented a poor appearance, to the disadvantage of the Idaho growers. He held out no hope of bringing the price for this year's crop to the "15000 a carload" received for the 1930 crop, but said there was no reason why it could not be raised considerably above the present level.

CARTOONIST PROBES RUSSIANS' HISTORY TO STUDY PEOPLES

Frequent Invasions and Variety of Races Prove Outstanding Influences in Temperament of Soviets

By J. N. (DINO) DARLING
Copyright, 1931, by J. N. Darling
To understand the Russian people, you must look at them through the screen of history which has left its indelible impression on their temperament and warped their mental attitude toward existence.

Russia has been invaded 34 times! France has been invaded twice by Germany in recent generations and is scared to death of a new invasion from the east. Russia has been invaded 34 times! France has been invaded twice by Germany in recent generations and is scared to death of a new invasion from the east.

From Every Quarter
Russia has been run over so many times she has learned to look at every one with a distant eye. She has been swept by invaders from every quarter of the compass and little eddies of distinct racial strains which took root during foreign occupation remain to mark the flood of plunderers that later receded or were driven back by a new invasion from another quarter.

Tatars, Mongolians, Persians, Slavs, Norwegians, Swedes, Finns, Germans, Poles, and the French have all left their telltale marks on the facial and physical characteristics of the Russians.

"Hunting Grounds"
There are railways where they have to label their ticket windows and signs in the station waiting rooms in four languages, using almost as many different alphabets.

It has been the happy hunting ground for marauders. Add to that the generations of Czarist rule wherein the populace groveled in servitude and could look to no one for a friendly turn, and you begin to understand the future suspicion and animal-like stolidity which marks the Russian character.

"Solid Granite"
Browbeat them or threaten and they will freeze into the solid granite of the Russian. But you can melt them with the offer of a cigar and a smile and they are the most friendly beings you ever met.

They do not quarrel or fight. They simply close up like clams. You must see a half dozen heated embroglios in France in one evening. But you won't see one in Russia in a month's travel. Attack seems to have been left out of beaten, out of the Russian temperament.

The entire bag of tricks of Russian combativeness seems to be wrapped up in the one quality of silent, stubborn resistance.

Yet No Conquerors
It is this fact which makes the much advertised Russian offensive seem doubtful. But in defense they will burn their own cities, destroy their crops, slaughter their cattle and even their own people rather than to render to the invaders.

Sentimental authorities admit that no modern army could conquer Russia. It could not live on the land long enough to conquer it. It might win the solid grip of the Russian people.

Laughter Lurks
Whatever one may think of the Russian sentiment he cannot travel long in the outlying districts without gaining a great sympathy for the Russian people.

Merry laughter lurks just under the surface of their twinkling eyes, and not until you have been among them some time will you realize that the reason they do not laugh more often is the sad fact that they have not much to laugh at.

Little National Instinct
They never have had much time under the Czarist regime, between wars, the land lords and the tax collectors, to exercise the national instinct. The wonder is that it hasn't been ground out of them long ago. It is the wild gleam of the Soviets that sobers them.

A people could go through the terrible years of the recent revolution and come out with the same old spirit as they went in. It can be explained only on the ground of their animal instinct.

Bitter Suffering
They have suffered so bitterly under the Czarist regime, between wars, the land lords and the tax collectors, to exercise the national instinct. The wonder is that it hasn't been ground out of them long ago. It is the wild gleam of the Soviets that sobers them.

Generous Friendliness
As I traveled about and found on every hand this same evidence of simple, generous friendliness, I was repeatedly seized with a pang of futile exasperation that the world should go on beating its brains out against a solid wall of ignorance and misunderstandings about each other.

I heard again the monumental canards about Russia built upon the ruins of the old Czarist regime and believed in America and recalled that we were now holding out the cup of sustenance to, and praying for their good qualities, the German people, who only a few years ago had been slaughtered by the millions in open warfare.

the latter. If they saw me trying to dig a hole with my knife in the stubborn tin top of a little can of condensed milk, they were sure to dip into his commodious roll of duff and extricate an antiquated can opener, with any pride in his unusual possession, offer to do the job for me.

Generous, Cordial
If they possessed a plate it was brought forth and placed on a table to reinforce my lanky collapse. After the meal, and time after time, after there had been a general exodus of passengers from the car in which I was riding, my interpreter would surprise me by returning with good wishes for a pleasant journey left by departing travelers with whom I had barely exchanged glances of greeting.

They are amply generous and cordial and they refuse to accept anything in return for favors.

Not to Be Paid For
In fact, my native interpreter refused to allow me to offer any exchange for such courtesies. Kindnesses were kindnesses in Russia and not supposed to be paid for, my interpreter informed me with some heat. I thought, after my repeated failures to take a hint.

Ah, yes, the offer of a cigarette was a symbol of cordiality, but even that must not be done in the spirit of paying for a favor.

Indie We Were
The only time I was able to return any of the many favors offered me was after a plague of mosquitoes had suddenly swarmed into the crowded car in which we were riding.

They were so thick they obscured the lights from the little tin dandelion lantern which glowed along the corridor, after my repeated shaked heads of the Russian men with wells. Being cautious of infectious fever germs in southern Caucasia, I had produced a bottle of iodine and with a water-color brush was painting my "bliss". This was something new to my Russian traveling companions and whether they knew anything about the therapeutics of the operation or not, it tickled them to have their wells painted.

Laughter at Daylight
The operation greatly shortened a not sleepless night, and turned the morning into uproarious laughter when daylight revealed the iodine spotted car full of passengers.

The difference in the racial strains makes Russia, as variegated in physical and facial characteristics as the congress of the League of Nations might easily be suspected of making an equally variegated mixture of temperaments.

The Same Fears
But something perhaps in the common experience of their national life, the same fears, the same struggles and the same climatic and geographic conditions, has induced in them all about the same kindliness of spirit, at least in the stranger traveling in their midst. These facts hold pretty generally true throughout the great western section of Russia, from the western border of the Urala, Russia has its "hill billies" to be sure. They live in the regions segregated by mountains and geographic hazards to communication.

Less Friendly in Tiflis
In Tiflis and the extreme south-east, where Persians, Armenians, Turks, Arabs and Tartars have brought their native customs with them and retained them, they look formidable and aromatic. Maybe their hearts, too, are tender. I did not feel the urge then to investigate them too closely.

They do not look nor act like the rest of the people in Russia. It was at Tiflis that I paid 40 rubles ($20) an hour for a ride in a 1913 model automobile, but it would not be fair to cite these people as characteristically Russian.

Discomforts of Travel
If these statements seem contradictory to some of the views here expressed elsewhere on the discomforts of travel in the outlying districts of Russia, it is due to my feeble capacity in clear statements and the diversified section of population.

The discomforts of travel in Russia are bad enough, but they would be unbearable if it were not for the sweetness of character of the common Russian people.

RUSSIAN LIGHT BULBS DARKEN CHILE TRADE
SANTIAGO, Dec. 10 (AP)—Dumping of Russian goods has begun in Chile, probably the final South American country to be affected by the practice.

Thousands of electric light bulbs are being dumped in Chile, according to a report from the American and British oil companies may next be affected; as there is a proposal for a trading agreement whereby Russia will take Chilean nitrate in exchange for petroleum products.

INDIAN SWEET PRIZES IN IDAHO 4-H CONTEST
PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 10 (AP)—Only three generations from skin crop.

GRASSHOPPER POISON LEAVES QUAIL UNHURT
OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 10 (AP)—Years of sportmen that poison spread for grasshoppers might prove harmful to quail led to tests at Oklahoma Arts and Mechanics college which showed the mixture innocuous as far as the birds are concerned.

Neither extra strong poison maul nor grasshopper killed by it had any effect on the quail.

LAST NATCHEZ INDIANS SAVE TRIBAL LANGUAGE
MUSKOGEE, Okla., Dec. 10 (AP)—From the two surviving members of the once powerful Natchez Indian tribe Victor Riale, student in the University of Chicago anthropology department, is obtaining a record of the language and customs which only the two recall.

The survivors, Walt Sam and Nancy Raven, live at Driggs, near here.

As late as 1861 the Natchez tribe sent 1500 warriors to battle against the French. Following disastrous defeats those who escaped joined the Chickasaw and Creek and intermingled until only the two known full-bloods remain.

Nearly 11,000 of the 25,000 school children in Missouri attended summer school in the state during 1931.

Debutante, Now Disciple Of Gandhi, Forgets Former Leisure

LONDON GIRL TURNS FROM LUXURIES TO INDIAN HINDU LIFE

"Miss Slade Has Been Dead Six Years," Declares Humble Convert to Hinduism

WIDE CONTRAST MARKS OLD AND NEW ABODES

"He Is Too Great a Man for Me to Describe," Answers "Shrimati Mira Behn"

Once London's bright lights knew Madeline Slade. Now she follows Mahatma Gandhi, who calls her Shrimati Mira Behn. Her home is a stone cell in his model colony.

CULBERTSONS SLASH LEAD OF OPPONENTS IN GAME OF BRIDGE

ers before the third season began. Here's what the proponents of the rival system had to say: Culbertson: "The season was by far the most grueling. Everyone was on his toes and played splendidly. Mr. Jacoby opened up a barrage of psychic or camouflaged bids, but not one was effective against alert opponents."

"Once more a woman was leading the field from the standpoint of skill and composure by playing an absolutely errorless game—the dream of all great players."

"With such a partner I cannot lose."

Lens: "Culbertson was awfully slow. Here we started at 7 P. M. and finished at 1:30 A. M. with only six rubbers played. My partner played well indeed. Our opponents were marvelous cards."

There will be an extra season beginning 7 P. M. Saturday. Culbertson and another $1700 on his bridge bidding "system" at the start tonight. Mrs. Culbertson put at rabbit's foot on her purse and the expert himself remarked, he felt "a little foolish."

Culbertson delayed the third season only long enough to hang up on a bridge lamp a telephone that had been sent to his wife and to sign several checks to cover a two to one bet on the confidence end, wagers offers that came by telegraph—from thought, she wants to forget the past. She is shy, diffident and loathes the spotlight.

When The Associated Press correspondent visited the tiny stone bridge on the banks of the sacred Sabarmati river, in India, where Miss Slade lives in her small cell, the one-time English debutante answered the respondent's knock on the door.

"Is this Miss Slade?" the correspondent asked.

"Miss Slade has been dead for six years," she said. "I am the starting success of the convert to Hinduism. But if you are looking for Mira Behn, called 'Shrimati Mira Behn,' she died, 'when I am.'"

Won't Describe Gandhi The correspondent asked Mira Behn her opinion of Mahatma Gandhi. She shrank from the question as though the subject were too holy to discuss.

"He is too great a man for a humble person like me to describe," said she. "Only after he is gone will the world realize his true greatness and nobility."

This is that in this diminutive, ascetic and reformed, a mere fragment of humanity, the former English society girl, has found an ideal in the commission on inquiry should be to investigate and report on the Newark to San Francisco. Chief of the Alfred M. Gruenther, holds the stakes.

Jacoby took another $250 in addition to the $500 put up at the start of the season.

Culbertson's confidence chart now reads like this: Against Lens: $5000 to $1000 that the Culbertson system is better than the 150-rubber match will prove it. Against Jacoby: $1500 to $750 that the Culbertson win.

Against an official system roster of San Francisco: $1000 to $500. Against the same kind of roster of Newark, New Jersey: $200 to $100.

As Culbertson took his position before the green felt tonight he lauded his opponents with:

"Well, have you decided yet to change over to the Culbertson system?"

"We have not," snapped Lens. "Nor," retorted Jacoby with a grin, "do we intend to."

"The 150-rubber match will prove it," said Culbertson. "We have seen any need for such a change."

Mrs. Culbertson was a little piqued when a grand slam hand was dealt to her—it was dealt for the benefit of a photographer and was not a part of the play.

Lens leaned over to see the phenomenon and just then the photographer snapped his flash and, the expert himself remarked, he felt "a little foolish."

Lens is not a touchy player. He watched Culbertson before the play tonight as he superintended putting down an extra rug to eliminate squawks.

"Come on, Ely," he begged. "Let's get going. I don't care what squawks or how loud it squeals."

Lens is continually urging "let's get going" and is often liked by the delays at starting.

Bridge players are human, even when they are experts, and when the husky sound of a new rug shuffling on 10 floors and drifted into the Culbertson living room all four of them became too curious to keep their minds on contract. They sent immediately for a copy of the "extra" (see what might be crowding them out page one).

JAPAN AND CHINA FIND LEAGUE'S COMPROMISE PROPOSAL ACCEPTABLE

China abandons none of its rights under existing treaties and expects that the Japanese will evacuate Manchuria with the "greatest" possible speed.

Disturbed conditions in Manchuria, which he blames largely on the "Japanese" occupation, must not be made a pretext for further Japanese military activity, he said, and he specified that the first duty of the commission on inquiry should be to investigate and report on the progress of evacuation. Girls Complete Information

Archie Driand, who has been chairman at this difficult council session, described the role of the investigation commissions as providing the council with complete information regarding the Manchurian troubles.

Lord Cecil, England, placed the chief responsibility for the success of the scheme on the Chinese and Japanese themselves.

"It would be easy for either of them to destroy the work we have done," he said, "but I am sure this will not happen. If it did the agreement would bear a heavy load of responsibility."

M. Brind, at one point in his closing speech, referred to the Manchurian problem as "not an entirely exceptional character" and this opened the way for speeches by the representatives of Panama, Guatemala and Peru to the effect that the "special situation" in Manchuria is in no way to be interpreted as a precedent for the rights of ethnic state as opposed to those of a small nation.

The task of selecting the personnel of the commission of inquiry was given to a committee composed of St. Brind, the representatives of Spain and Norway and a British member in collaboration with the League's political experts.

It probably will require several days and it has been suggested that the commission is likely to go to Manchuria early next year.

CLARKSBURG JURY CONVICTS POWERS

earnest conversation conducted in whispers. But it was not the talk of a man seeking consolation. Even when the tears had rolled down the cheeks of his silver-haired lawyer, Thomas Brandt, as "one of the worst mass-killers" the world has ever known" maintained his immobile expression. He seemed puzzled by Law's display of emotion.

As his fate was revealed, Powers glanced at his counsel, but said nothing and displayed no trace of reaction.

A moment later he was being hauled out and led to the state prison. Outside a cheer ripped down the street when the news spread that Clark's strange drama was over—that the curtain had been rung down on the most bizarre performance ever presented on the stage of Moore's opera house.

Townpeople who had angrily shouted Powers' name for an hour when a mob formed outside the jail after his arrest, looked more with curiosity than anger at him as he was taken back to his cell.

More than 10,000 turkeys from 20 counties in Northwest Missouri were hauled in four days in the 1931 Ozark "turkey run."

MANAGER SPEAKS TO KIWANIS CLUB

Denver Man Recognition of Human Element in Successful Business Life

Speaking on the subject, "The Topper and the Side Show," Mr. Patience, Denver, division manager of the Rocky Mountain section of the Western Auto Supply company, shared an inspirational address to the Twin Falls Kiwanis club at its luncheon meeting at the Rogers hotel yesterday by comparison of business operations with conduct of a circus. Mr. Patience was at one time employed in Sells Brothers' show.

Mr. Patience is vice president of the Denver Kiwanis club and governor of the Colorado district of the organization. He compared the parade to advertising, the drawing card to the circus, and said that in business in general the "parade" occasionally produced the results which were given an unfortunate practice that would bring discredit. Too much camouflage is unethical, he declared in effect. Referring to the ringmaster, the speaker said that proper management is an essential element in line of action and is necessary to avert chaos.

"Above all," Mr. Patience declared, the human element must be kept in mind. The human element is a divine element. Employers must recognize the human and, therefore, the divine element in their employees; must know them; be interested in them and be willing to assist them in their problems if they expect their business to be really successful. They must realize that the element of goods and a large bank account together do not constitute a successful business. "At this time we must be willing to 'paint the clouds with sunshine,' something which I observe that the people of Twin Falls are doing. It is necessary for us to paint the clouds and for Catholic, Protestant and Jew to unite for general betterment; a spirit which I observe is possessed by the people of this city."

Mrs. Nellie Gorman gave a group of vocal numbers during the program.

Officers Round Up Gang on Icy Street

A group of 20 boys, 12 to 16 years old, were rounded up by police officers at the intersection of Sixth and Second streets east last night after one informant reported he had been forced to turn his automobile to the side walk to avoid crashing one boy who slipped and fell on the icy pavement directly in front of his car.

Officers at police headquarters lectured the boys, stressing danger to life and limb involved in "hooky-bobbing" and "ditching" boys with telephones in their homes to summon their parents to the police station.

Police officers were outspoken last night in their assertion that youth practice of sliding behind cars presents one of the most serious problems with which they have to deal in stormy weather.

BRUENING BLAMES WORLD FOR PART OF GERMAN CHAOS

"I desire you once more," he said, "to underscore my radio remarks about national chaos, especially by reference to legality. The government is determined to see that the law is maintained, constitution in case illegality should be embarked upon."

"The government has the reins absolutely in hand. I speak not only for myself but also for the reclamation of interior and defense."

Turning to the question of the emergency decree issued Tuesday evening, Dr. Bruening declared that if world depression and disorganization continue other nations will follow in Germany's footsteps.

BURKHOLTERS PREPARE FOR NEW HOME OPENING

Opening next Saturday of the Burkholder Furniture company in its new home at the corner of Shoshone street and Second avenue marks a long advance in the progress of one of Twin Falls' larger business institutions. The new building, a substantial brick structure done in the modern architectural style and covering a 50 by 120 foot building site, has been designed and built with the primary purpose of providing a suitable setting for a modern furniture store.

The owners, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Burkholder, are justly proud of the advance of their business and its new home, and through newspaper announcements, they are inviting all of their friends and every interested person to attend the opening. The event is to be a house warming, not a furniture store.

HOOVER'S SUGGESTIONS REGARDING WAR DEBTS AROUSE SENATOR BORAH

report of Prime Minister MacDonald's suggestion that the world pool its resources in a general conference. Under Secretary Cattle said Washington would have to know the views of American people before it could determine whether to participate.

The president's message followed American relations around the world. He renewed his plea for adherence to the world court, and reiterated the views of American "responsibility in maintaining the integrity of China in Manchuria."

Never here, he held out hope of an early invitation of work upon the St. Lawrence waterway project, touched upon the visit of President-Laval of France and Jordan Minister Grandi of Italy; and pronounced expectation of a fulfillment of hopes and pledges in the Latin American field.

It was the moratorium section, however, that bulked largest. Mr. Hoover repeated his original proposal of last June, including the statement that he did not approve "in any remote sense of cancellation of the debt to us."

The met applause in the house. One after another the legislators declared himself opposed to cancellation.

"As we approach the new year it is clear that a number of the government indebted to us will be unable to meet further payments to us in full pending recovery in their economic life," Hoover said. "It is useless to blind ourselves to an obvious fact. Therefore it will be necessary in some cases to make still further temporary adjustments."

The president emphasized now his stand for world armaments limitation. He characterized the Grandi removal of the "threat of a sudden revival of competition in arms before the conference at Genoa" in February over-argument as a major cause of present economic distress. He concluded, adding: "No discouragements should be permitted to turn the world from sane and reasonable limitations."

Just how many senators agree with Borah's objections to debt revision was not to be seen. He complained that Europe "has not up to this time availed herself of the moratorium to adjust her matters which it is necessary to adjust before there can be any economic recovery in Europe."

tion, operation and maintenance costs. Extensions to individual users would draw interest at one-half of 1 per cent monthly from December 1, 1931 until paid. The bill requires payment on or before December 1, 1932.

The irrigation districts' requests for a moratorium asked suspension without interest and recommended appropriation by the government of funds to equal their debts for placing the reclamation bureau's revolving fund.

Although reclamation bureau officials will not make known the aggregate of the debts, they total into the millions and involve nearly every crop.

Mead, in a letter dated September 15 which he also put before the committee, said the financial difficulty of the district "arise mainly because of the low prices of crops."

He said the conditions were "not universal," adding: "Requests for moratoriums will confront a perplexing situation in other agricultural areas. Farmers everywhere are suffering from low prices and in some places they are suffering from the result of a second year's drought. There is a feeling that reclamation projects have been unduly favored. I have heard representative congressmen from unirrigated sections say nothing more for reclamation relief unless something is done for us. The borrowers from federal land banks are asking to be given moratorium."

MOB IN WEST VIRGINIA LYNCHES TWO NEGROES

A cross arm of a telephone pole on the Midland Trail was the gallows used by the crowd after fashioning rope nooses about the Negroes' necks. The mob stopped dead a few paces as the Negroes dangled at rope's end and peeped their way to the outskirts of town in an automobile.

The constables, Joseph Myers and Jack Brown, went to a Negro dance for the Leslie November 22 to quell a riot. As the peace officers departed they were felled with a shotgun charge. Myers was killed outright and Brown died later.

Civic Loyalty Helps Green Bay Packers Win "Pro" Title

Community Spirit Aids Professional Wisconsin Eleven

Prominent Citizens of City Get Berths on Football Team Now in Possession of Envyable Record in League

(By The Associated Press)

GREEN BAY, Wis., Dec. 10.—Green Bay Packers, winners of a third consecutive National Professional league football championship, are to the city of Green Bay and its 33,000 inhabitants what the Bulldogs are to Yale, the Tigers are to Princeton and the Wildcats are to Northwestern.

The team has been taken to the community heart. Civic loyalty takes the place of college spirit. And as a result Green Bay ranks as the most professional football city in the nation. The successes of the Packers are regarded as successes of community projects.

Perhaps in other cities where professional teams have franchises it is a matter of citizens going to a bunch of football games and carry the ball around the gridiron.

City Alma Mater Not so in Green Bay. The city is the alma mater of the Packers, and the same goes to see his district attorney the next door neighbor his line and display must be to bring home another title and additional honor for the city. The roster of Packers has been a roll of prominent citizens.

For example, there's Vernon G. Lawless, plunging halfback, who is district attorney for Brown county, is a Green Bay attorney. Whitley Woodruff, veteran guard, is employed in a local automobile firm; "Bugs" Zarba, lineman, sells bonds; Bo Molenda, fullback, does stunts for the Green Bay circus; and the four horsemen of the apocalyptic are a Green Bay attorney.

Why? Because it is so? Because of community support, the Packers, originally started as representatives of the Acme packing company, a wartime concern, have survived since after the firm disappeared.

400 Blockholders The team is now owned by 400 stockholders, the most of any team in the state of Wisconsin; for that matter, is the Packers football team.

In 1921, with Lambeau, Notre Dame running back of George Clark, as captain and coach, the Packers made their debut in the National Professional league with a 7-6 victory over the Minneapolis Vikings. From then on they fought hard battles in a league that was unequalled in National football circles.

In 12 years the Bays have won 102 games, lost 31 and tied 18 for an average of .567. They have scored 2429 points to 660 for their opponents. To this must be added the occasional playoffs and 12 bowl victories and one defeat at the time the Packers won the title.

When the Packers are defeated—and they have been defeated—there is a matter of public mourning here and in the state. Persons go about their duties mumbling disbeliever that the Great Bays have been licked.

The city always has a back on the sidelines at the next game with doubled cheering to inspire the packers to another victory.

Fractured Wrist Disables Golfer

Horton Smith, Winner of Medalist Honors, Loses Chance to Play in Match

(By The Associated Press)

BAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10 (AP)—Horton Smith, golf star from the East Coast, who captured the title of the 1930 national championship, fractured a bone in his right wrist in an accident here tonight, a few hours after he had won medals and honors in the $7500 national match play open championship.

Smith was taken to a hospital for X-ray and treatment. Dr. Bert Prohman said the radius bone of the wrist had been cracked, and that it would take probably six weeks for the bone to knit. Smith will be out of play for several months.

As a result of the injury, the tournament lost one of its most colorful players. Smith set the pace for a huge list of qualifiers, scoring a 68-70-73 for the 36 holes, he was a strong favorite to capture top honors, including $1500 first prize money. Smith was to have opposed Willie Ginn, San Francisco, in the first round of match play tomorrow morning.

Uruguayans and Argentines Prove Apt Pupils and Now Excel European Invaders

(By The Associated Press)

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 10.—On Sunday the Argentine city dweller rises at 10 o'clock, drinks a few cups of mate, eats a light lunch and goes to a soccer game.

At half-time he inquires casually of the result of the match, and if the home team is losing, he goes to the stands to see the game. As he strolls home he plays the game, maligning or exalting the referee. After dinner, while fangos are plucked from the gutters and informal dances spring up in the courtyard, he talks with his comrades about his favorite team and its play. Often arguments arise, and occasionally Monday's newspapers report that such an argument has ended fatally.

In Argentina and in its sister republic of Uruguay soccer the river the soccer is the national sport. Every Sunday 350,000 people watch 350 players.

Wave of Drastic Economy Sweeps Big League Clubs

Owners Trim Player Limit and Vote to Cut Salaries to Compensate For Sharp Decline in Attendance

Voted to open 1932 playing season on April 12 and close playing season on September 21, with full 154-game schedule.

By PAUL MICKELSON (Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—A wave of drastic economy swept the ranks of major league baseball today.

Conceded by a sharp decline in attendance at their parks, the club owners of the two major circuits voted to economize by trimming the player limit from 25 to 23 and by substantially reducing general operating expenses, notably by cutting player salaries.

No definite amount was set by the action to cut players' salaries but the general opinion was that the matter would be left to the discretion of each club owner. Ten per cent was the estimated wage slash, and a share of that was accomplished by the reduction in the player limit, which will have each club owner cutting at least one player.

The resolution affecting economy in general operating expenses briefly was approved by a 10-9 vote. It was removed that by reason of prevailing conditions and the decrease in attendance at our games, it is necessary that we reduce our operating expenses, including salary of ball players of both major leagues be reduced.

Please Minors In their action to reduce salaries, the majors followed that already taken by the minor leagues. The three Class AA leagues—the American association, International and Pacific Coast leagues—were required to reduce their player limit last week at West Baden, Indiana.

The fight to trim the player limit was led successfully by the second division clubs of the American and National leagues. The general idea was that the players of the stronger clubs which they could use themselves to good advantage.

Minor league club owners were happy over the action as it will ultimately force 32 major league players out of the 16 minor league clubs into their field.

The 1932 major league season will open on April 12 and end on September 21, with another schedule of 154 games. The schedule, adopted at today's meeting, will be the shortest in the major league history. This year, the season closed September 27.

I. H. Hodgin, Twin Falls, lately appointed Idaho American Legion post in competitive schools with civilian and national guard rifle and target shooting. The organization of the proposed team, the suggestion was certainly accepted. The post commander stated that John O. Hamann, Twin Falls, was awarded a letter for football at the University of Wisconsin.

It was removed that by reason of prevailing conditions and the decrease in attendance at our games, it is necessary that we reduce our operating expenses, including salary of ball players of both major leagues be reduced.

Please Minors In their action to reduce salaries, the majors followed that already taken by the minor leagues. The three Class AA leagues—the American association, International and Pacific Coast leagues—were required to reduce their player limit last week at West Baden, Indiana.

The fight to trim the player limit was led successfully by the second division clubs of the American and National leagues. The general idea was that the players of the stronger clubs which they could use themselves to good advantage.

Minor league club owners were happy over the action as it will ultimately force 32 major league players out of the 16 minor league clubs into their field.

The 1932 major league season will open on April 12 and end on September 21, with another schedule of 154 games. The schedule, adopted at today's meeting, will be the shortest in the major league history. This year, the season closed September 27.

Tommy Gibbons Rates Dempsey Among Supreme

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 10 (AP)—An insurance man who knows his risks, harks a guess the "Old Manassa Mauler" Jack Dempsey, could take most of the heavyweight right now.

Tommy Gibbons, a 35-year-old insurance salesman, is the only man to have won 15 rounds with Dempsey from the time Jack won the championship from Jess Willard until he lost to Gene Tunney.

Tommy was surprised today when he was asked to name the best heavyweight step through his training camp.

"I expected to see him carrying some superfluous weight, with heavy, long legs," said Tommy after he had been asked to name the best heavyweight step through his training camp.

"Most of the present crop of heavyweights would not give Jack much trouble, Gibbons added, adding that he had seen him in the ring fight either Sharkey or Schmeling, and it sincerely hope he gets the chance."
