A Note of Optimism

A New Year Line of Thought Suggested by the Lesson of History Offered As a Fitting Sentiment Upon the Opening of 1932

(Editor's Note) Comes sunset, then twilight, darkness and the dawn. And after dawn comes the sunrise. In business cycles are described as prosperity and recession; depression and recovery. They are as inevitable as the movement of the earth itself.

In looking about for a practical, common sense New Year sentiment, the following brief article by a well-known author suggested itself. Those who do not agree with it are invited to study this history.

By Clarence Badgley Kelland THE financial history of the United States from 1800 to the present has been a story of the 14 major depressions through which this country has passed. Each of these depressions was preceded and followed by a period of development and progress.

What I would like to say, and with perfect confidence in the truth of what I am going to say, is just this: that the normal will be again. What has happened before will happen again. Unless history and human experience lie there is a rhythmic law of finance which follows its inevitable course.

What I would like to say, and with perfect confidence in the truth of what I am going to say, is just this: that the normal will be again. What has happened before will happen again.

CHEAP, FAST TRAVEL LOOMS BY CONTROL OF AIR RESISTANCE

Engineers Vision Cars and Trains Shaped Similar to Beetles For Velocity
UNIQUE DESIGNS APPEAR IMMEDIATELY PRACTICAL

Builders Hope to Eliminate 40 to 60 Per Cent of Once Wasted Power

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor)
NEW YORK, Dec. 31

Merely putting wax on the model of a streamlined railroad locomotive and polishing it reduces air resistance 40 per cent.

This brief statement, made to the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, is a part of a report by Howard W. Blakeslee, a member of the society, on the subject of air resistance.

The report is based on a series of experiments conducted in a wind tunnel at the University of Michigan. It shows that a locomotive with a streamlined front can cut through the air with less resistance than one with a conventional, boxy front.

Blakeslee says that the new streamlined models of automobiles, street cars and trains that closely resemble many of nature's birds and fishes, by doing so, are actually copying the way in which they move through the air and water.

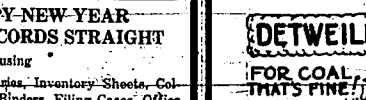

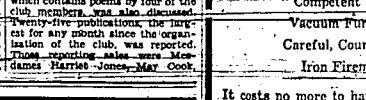

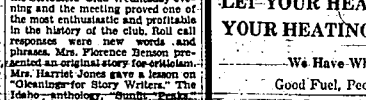

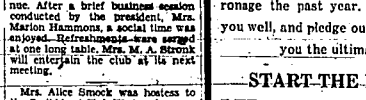

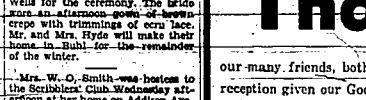

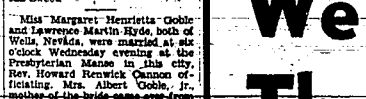

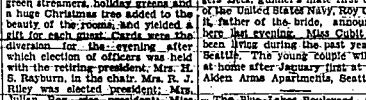

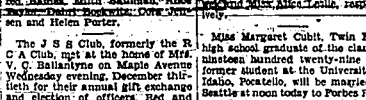

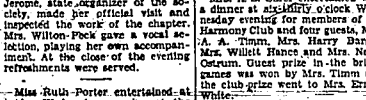

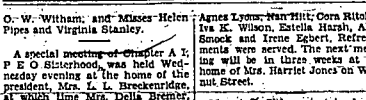

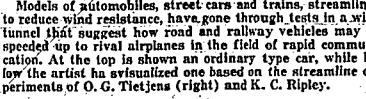

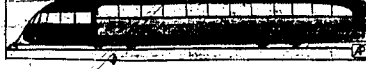

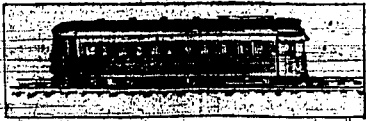

At present, he said, wastes from 40 to 60 per cent of the power of electric cars and the equivalent of present unscientific shapes traveling at present top speeds.

Blakeslee says that the new streamlined models of automobiles, street cars and trains that closely resemble many of nature's birds and fishes, by doing so, are actually copying the way in which they move through the air and water.

GUARD PUTS IRONS ON CONVICTED MEN

Jerome Deputy Sheriff Describes Departure of Rogles and Coppinger

A traveling guard from the state penitentiary placed John H. Bigley, Kumbler, carpenter, and Ernest Wain, baggage officer, and Hugh Coppinger, Williston, Alabama, in irons before sending them on their way to the state prison at Boise to begin serving terms of 10-to-20 years and from 3-to-20 years respectively for robbery of the Hazelton State bank November 9.

Both men were very nervous when the maniacs were attached to their wrists and ankles. E. C. Gleason, Jerome county deputy sheriff, said here that it was the roughest he had ever seen.

Coppinger pleaded guilty to a bank burglary charge after changing from the stand that Bigley had planned the robbery and induced Coppinger and his friend Ben Lawson to take part in it. Bigley was found guilty of the same crime. He was sentenced to 15 days jail during which Twin Falls county officers testified Bigley had planned and carried out the robbery plan in the past he played subsequently in the hold-up.

Bigley and Lawson had appealed to the state supreme court, attacking the validity of the law under which they were convicted. The appeal was denied and the sentences were pronounced and sentenced.

THE NEW YEAR
The New Year will be a repetition of old experiences, a re-enforcement of old laws, a reaffirmation of another common saying which is that human relationships are much the same today as they were when the first philosopher wrote the first chapter to work on the stone tablets wherupon were written the observations and records of the first of time when man began to discover the planet and the unswerving laws that govern it.

BECAUSE we are not unmindful of the part that this community has played in this institution's success, we wish to publicly express our high appreciation for the wonderful spirit of cooperation demonstrated by our friends and customers during the past year. We are frank in acknowledging the debt of gratitude we need pay the people of Twin Falls City, County and, more largely, South Central Idaho. Without the stoutness of this community, which gathers much of its strength from the soil, our success would be small.

And we are fully aware of the increased obligation which is ours—and we solemnly pledge ourselves to a continuance of covering the wide field of service our large clientele requires. Further, we pledge ourselves to do all in our power to keep pace with the progress we know cannot help but come to people such as ours. We live by the soil... and we know the future cannot fail us.

Deflation Era Provides Clearer Picture of Economic Ills and Leaders Determinedly Seek Cure

World Lives Through Dismal Year of Political Upheavals and Business Strife, But Willingness to Meet Situation Squarely Leads to Realization of Misfortunes

By JOHN L. COOLEY (Associated Press Financial Writer)
N world on crutches limps toward completion of the post-war adjustments interrupted by the too rapid convalescence of 1931 and this dismal 1932 with a clearer understanding of its malady and with a determination to find a cure. Sweeping changes in international economy have left in their wake political upheavals, economic distress and other unpleasant consequences of deflation.

But there has also been a realization of the situation squarely and a realization that the misfortunes of one country cannot be ignored by others. The nation experienced a year of political and economic strife, but the year brought an industrial contraction to levels that would have seemed preposterous two years ago.

More than a score of countries have been affected, and the year has been one of the most disastrous in the history of the world. The financial picture of central Europe revived, vividly those treacherous losses, reparations and war debts.

16-Year-Old Son of Mussolini Edits Newspaper, "The Boys Pen," Rapidly Gaining Favor Among Youth of Italy

The Duce, Who Won Fame As Editor, Lends Helping Hand With Publication

(Associated Press Staff Writer)
ROME, Dec. 29.—Vittorio Mussolini, 16-year-old son of the premier, is busy again this school year with his amateur newspaper, "The Boys Pen."

Founded in 1928, the publication has reached considerable circulation among boys of high school age. Its contributors are mostly all Italy who send in their copy each week. Vittorio and five other boys read copy that they make-up the paper with almost no other help.

As times the duce himself, who gained his early influence as editor of the "Popolo d'Italia" in Milan, lends a helping hand. Vittorio admitted that he did willingly spend hours showing him how to set up a newspaper.

When asked for the weekly's editorial policy, young Mussolini said: "Our principal aim is to educate Italian youth toward a greater love for Fascism and Italy. Our publication costs us several hours of difficult work each day, leaving but enough time to keep pace with our school work, but I can assure you that the entire staff is proud of what small help it can contribute to Fascist Italy."

Vittorio has divided the work with his small staff. He, being expert on sports and a good tennis player and excellent swimmer, writes most of the sporting page.

Occasionally he contributes short stories, inevitably based on war, Fascism and Italy.

The weekly, which is a three-sheet paper costing one cent, reproduces all the duce's fiery speeches to Italian youth, deals with radio, photography, movies, sports and all things to make it "WE DO NOT CHANGE."

VITTORIO MUSSOLINI

profit out of 'The Boys Pen' yet Vittorio said, "Our principal money sources are based on subscriptions and advertising. The work, however, is very interesting and attracts us very much."

"I've just finished publishing some articles on television that have brought me congratulations from boys throughout the country. We brought a short letter of congratulations much more than a full sheet of advertisement."

"It may not be practical," he added with a smile, "but you see, we work more for glory than for money."

Young as he is, Vittorio seriously considers journalism as a possible life career.

VETERANS PREPARE TO RE-OPEN CLAIMS

American Legion Service Officers Meet Here With Head of Administration

Service officers of American Legion posts of the Fifth district will meet in all-day session here some time about the middle of January with H. C. Hudson, Boise, Idaho manager of the Veterans Administration and W. C. Hall, Boise, Idaho American Legion department service officer, to consider ways and means of taking advantage of the Veterans administration's re-opening of World War veterans' claims that have hitherto been disallowed.

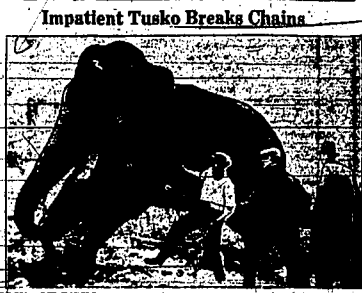

Arrangements for this meeting, which is to be the first of a series of similar conferences to be held throughout the state, were worked out at a meeting of the Idaho American Legion department executive committee in Boise this week. Terry Prater, Twin Falls, Fifth District American Legion commander, who attended the Boise meeting, said here last evening.

"Re-opening of veterans' claims is a matter of importance to some 500 Idaho men whose claims have been disallowed or reduced. The Boise meeting was held. In addition, the way is opened for consideration of veterans' claims that have not been presented heretofore."

The veterans' administration's new policy in this regard was said to have been adopted following conference with the American Legion's national executive committee, and it was made applicable to all World War veterans.

THE YEAR OF 1932

Millions of people will wonder how radically their financial affairs changed during 1931. There are many who have recalled their procedure of the recent past with many regrets. Especially has this been true in the matter of contracting a business. Those who have lived within their means, and avoided debt have experienced the least distress during 1931.

START NOW PAY CASH ALL OF 1932

They say times are really better now than they ever were, excepting the period from the beginning of the European war and up to 1930. It has been hard to accustom ourselves to a less good, boomer times will seem good to us, compared to most of the past. Resolve that you will pay cash and save during all of 1932. ## ENGINEER FEARS HIGHWAY CLOSING

Heavy Snow in Hailey Section May Stop Auto Travel of District Manager Says

Although United States highway number 93 to Ketchum was still open last night, those desiring to visit the Hailey section should take the train, was the opinion expressed by A. D. Stanley, district engineer of the state highway department, last evening on his return to his residence here from the district headquarters at Rhoades. Snow at Shoshone was three inches deep last evening, he said, 40 inches deep at Hailey and 57 inches deep at Ketchum.

The Old Oregon Trail is open from Salk Lake City to Boise and beyond, he said, but there has been some trouble reported in Oregon. United States Highway 93 has been kept open to the south as far as the Nevada line, he said, and has so far not only been kept open as far as Ketchum but also as far as Carey on the Oregon Trail. The highway is closed from Blackfoot to Arco; if it were kept open having been defeated by drift. However, two bridges are in operation on this highway and it is hoped to have it open today as well.

Regarding conditions along the highway south of the Nevada line, a telegram received last evening by Mr. E. Olson, district manager of the Idaho Automobile association here from Walter Bruce, Elko, district engineer for Northern Nevada, said a large caterpillar pipe had started for the Idaho line which it was hoped it would reach today.

Locally road conditions have continued good. A heavy fall of snow late in the night, J. D. Silvana, engineer for the Twin Falls highway district for Northern Nevada, said the snow drift before this morning active work clearing the roads of the district would start at once.

WORK BEGINS FOR YEAR'S ELECTIONS

Twin Falls County Auditor's Office Starts Listing of Registered Local Electors

Political campaigns and elections are expected to play an important part throughout most of the year in Idaho, for which Twin Falls county auditor's office began preparations yesterday, with employment of Miss Stella Moore, Twin Falls, to copy lists of the voters at the last general election in each of the county's precincts.

Five lists are to be made for each precinct, and these lists will constitute the master lists for the coming elections. Voters who voted at the last general election and who have not since moved to another precinct, are not required to register again for the coming elections, under the new election law.

On January 11, according to Idaho's 1932 election calendar, county commissioners are to appoint registrars.

On February 8, notice is to be published, showing two precincts and defining their boundaries, and naming polling places and registrars, and delivery is to be made of election supplies for primary elections, May 24, and the general election, November 8.

On March 7 registration is to begin during the period beginning March 25 and continuing to April 23, candidates for nominations are to file their nominations.

THE GUMPS—THE NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION

SUNSET PASS by Zane Grey

Rock hastened to thrust the malicious thought from his mind. "At least of me," he calculated hurriedly. "Why, then, did they think I should? Lightly, I imagine they had a brand 'yep' here in the world."

"Then more it should be here."

"How?"

"Go away tomorrow."

"And never see you again?" he queried, blankly.

"It would be best," she returned, and looked away. "But I don't say you'd never see me again. Perhaps you might meet me in the Fourth. Mrs. Debb is to give a dance. I could go to you there."

At that Rock laughed rather wildly. "At any woman's house? Not much."

"Then at the dance. It won't be as if you'll go there."

"Don't bring me to run off from Sunset Pass," he said, pondering. "I'm not going to leave you. I'll go with me. I'll like to. But I'm not in a hurry and don't expect to be. I'll see you get an invitation, Mr. Rock."

"Don't tempt me. I'd almost give you to take you to a dance."

"I'll not tempt you," she said, and then came back to him.

"But that would be a lie," she returned, looking at him.

"I might lie, too, I don't mean to you, but for you."

"Please, Mr. Rock, go away to-morrow. I'm not in a hurry. I'll never be able to thank you enough. It's the only chance you have to be out of my sight."

"You're a queer, wonderful girl, he replied, puzzled and a little thoughtful.
