Filming Of New Nebulae Marks Space "Frontier" Extension

ASTRONOMERS SEE BODIES TRILLIONS OF MILES DISTANT

Mount Wilson Observatory Camera Catches Light of Two New Star Groupings

FINDING PUSHES BACK OUTPOSTS OF UNIVERSE

Newly Discovered Heavenly Matter Appears to Be Speeding Away From Earth

By F. B. COLTON (Associated Press Science Writer)

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 6—The freezing frontiers of outer space have just been pushed back a little further by two astronomer-pioneers who have "seen" a greater distance into the void than anyone before.

Sweeping the heavens with the 100-inch telescope at Mount Wilson observatory of the California Institute of Technology, Dr. Edwin P. Hubble and Dr. Milton Humason have photographed two new outposts of the star groups whose light takes 130,000,000 years to reach the earth.

Frontiers Shored Back

These new sky outposts are about 130,000,000 "parsecs" beyond the farthest star groups that marked the old frontiers of space 100,000,000 light years distant. Parsecs are the standard astronomical unit to measure distances between the stars. One parsec is equal to about 32,600,000,000,000 miles.

However, 130,000,000 parsecs do not represent a very great distance in interstellar void. The total distance from these two newly discovered star groups to the earth is 430,000,000 parsecs, and the distance apparently is increasing every second by 10,000 miles.

Pushing from Earth

These two star groups, or nebulae, seem to be rushing away from the earth at a speed of 13,000 miles a second. Other nebulae nearer the earth, also apparently are rushing away, but somewhat more slowly.

Theoretically an astronomer sees distant nebulae rushing away from him much as a man inside a burning boiler would see the fragments rushing into the air.

Actually, of course, he cannot see the motion. The nebulae appear to him to be receding only because the light waves from them are displaced from their normal positions in the spectrum toward the red—or long wave length—end.

Displacement Hinted Motion

The distance the light is displaced is the amount of displacement that would occur if the nebulae were receding at 13,000 miles a second. Whether the nebulae actually are receding still is an open question.

The radius of the universe actually known to man was increased by 35,000,000 light years—the distance a ray of light would travel in 35,000,000 years at the rate of 186,000 miles a second—when the two new nebulae marking the "new frontiers of space" on the above diagram were photographed by Drs. Edwin P. Hubble and Milton Humason through the 100-inch telescope at Mount Wilson observatory.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW—Essentially clear in the mountains; moderate temperatures.

Minimum and maximum temperatures in the Twin Falls vicinity in the 24-hour period preceding 3 P. M. yesterday were 21 and 40 degrees above zero, according to the report of Dr. E. B. Chese, government weather observer here. The day was cloudy and the barometer registered 30.16 inches at 9 P. M. Wind was westerly, humidity 70 per cent, saturation 100 per cent in the 24-hour period totaled .03 of an inch of moisture.

candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Here you are, boys," he said, "but remember, it's not to be published until Monday morning."

There was a hush while 46 newspapers, representing printing associations and papers in all parts of the country, read the statement.

As the 46 copies of the pronouncement were being pocketed, Smith was asked what he thought would be the dominant issue of the coming campaign.

"I don't know," he said, and looked at the ceiling again.

behind the Chinese front, witnessed this declaration.

The Japanese are opposing the Nineteenth route army, supposedly the best fighting outfit in the country, by modern standards they appeared deficient in training and short of equipment.

The most impressive thing about these troops is their extreme youth. Many of them seem to be no more than 14 years old, but they took a hazardous position with as much stoicism as any veteran could show.

They were armed in all sorts of fashions. Some of them carried antiquated long-barreled pistols, and some a considerable number of them were equipped with steel helmets and these obviously had been salvaged from the Japanese troops in the Manchurian war.

The whole countryside to the rear of the Chinese line has been covered with an intricate system of trenches and fortifications.

Although roads leading away from the front were jammed with Chinese troops, a considerable civilian population remained not far from the lines.

The Wanking road was so crowded that it was difficult to get an automobile through the plodding masses. Other safety features, besides low under heavy loads of household goods, marched along the Wanking road, the railway leading to Hankow.

While air raiders were showing bombs on Chapel Saturday afternoon, it was reported that two American mission houses within the international settlement had been bombed.

One report was that Japanese Blue Jackets forcibly entered and searched the American Presbyterian mission and pressed on North Szechuan road, well within the area occupied by the Japanese, despite the fact that an official notice of the American consul was nailed on the entrance to the property.

The mission of the American Methodist Episcopal church, South of Szechuan, which was assaulted by Japanese Blue Jackets last week, was shelled by light artillery, and officials who were in the building were forced to flee.

Whether the projectiles came from Japanese or Chinese guns was not known.

Two big air raids were put on Saturday by the Japanese. Shortly before noon 14 planes appeared over the Twin Falls settlement, and seven bombs were raining down. The attack was brief but at 3 o'clock the planes swept out of the north over the lower Yangtze and dropped new loads of death and destruction.

Then the artillery and machine gun fire rolled on. Chinese anti-aircraft gunners opened up in places at 3:30 P. M., but the ships were not hit.

Observers of the battle did not see any Japanese planes brought down. Whether the projectiles came to suffer the fate of the three Japanese airmen killed Friday, the bombers stayed in high altitudes as much as possible.

The airmen withdrew just as darkness fell. Then a heavy gun attack was launched which could not, definitely, be determined, opened up, flinging shells into Chapel at fre-in every community will be initiated next week under the leadership of Colonel Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

A White House statement after the meeting said:

It was agreed that a large portion of the hoarding was due to misunderstanding of the national effect of such acts—that it arose out of unnecessary fear and apprehension and that nothing could contribute more to the resumption of employment, to the stability of agriculture and other commodity prices, than to restore this money to work. This would turn the tide of depression on its face.

Mr. Roosevelt temporarily cut off Roberts from the highway leading out from Idaho Falls, but not until he had been moved to the Roberts-Dubois street to take care of 25,000 head of sheep there.

Reports to the headquarters of the Idaho State Wool Growers' association indicated fear conditions about Roberts were precarious on account of heavy snow.

Snow plows were broken down at Leland and at Dubois, contributing to the difficulty of the highway department. Both were old plows, the new ones being reported on 24 hour operation.
