He died before the outbreak of the war and ended a career that found its peak in the Thruer mountain gold rush in Central Idaho early in the century.

Friends here were advised today that his body was found late last week in the ruins of the cabin, which was built on snowbank.

It was not determined whether he died before the outbreak of the war or after. He was a well known character known to Pioneer residents here as "Blab-Blab Smith," "Hot-Flour" Davis and others.

As the gold holes petered out, Borden took to his cabin, panning for gold in the creek. Friends here said he probably had not left the Elk creek country for six years.

Unfamiliar Hush Settles On Opposite End of Battle Line With Whole Shanghai Front Quiet Most of Day

(By MORRIS J. HARRIS Associated Press Staff Correspondent) (Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press)

SHANGHAI (Sp. 4 tuesday) S—Feb. 27—Japanese army and navy air fleets combined forces this morning for a fierce bombing attack on the Chinese forts at Woosung.

A fierce bombing attack on the Chinese forts at Woosung, the Japanese navy and air fleets combined forces this morning for a fierce bombing attack on the Chinese forts at Woosung.

Shortly before daylight Chinese batteries in Chapei started a heavy shelling of the Japanese fleet. However, this burst of activity lasted only a brief period and drew only a desultory reply from the Japanese.

Then the whole battlefront became quiet. For a few hours from the Japanese side of the battle line, the whole Shanghai front was quiet after the Chinese shelling.

A few Japanese airplanes flew over the city, but for some strange reason the Chinese machine-guns and anti-aircraft batteries were silent.

Shanghai residents, accustomed to the thunder of cannonading all most every hour of the day, didn't know what to make of it.

At 7:30 A. M. the Japanese broke the quiet for a short but severe bombardment of the city.

One possibility was that the Japanese were determined to sacrifice to get the city back into their hands.

Three additional divisions are being mobilized in Japan, the Daily News reported. The Japanese navy reported that new units would arrive in the southern division would be the first to land, the newspaper said, and would be followed by the rest of the force.

The short and fierce Chinese offensive halted the Japanese advance. The Japanese were putting into the front line somewhat north and west of the city.

The Japanese advanced last night against terrific machine-gun fire and almost completely surrounded the city.

However, the reports indicated a favorable runoff would fill both the Jackson lake and American Falls reservoirs.

day of the Republican state committee of New Jersey in recommending that that state's prohibition be rejected, support Hoover for re-nomination and work for an Eighteenth amendment repeal plank.

At the same time, however, Hoover is being urged by the president to stand for a "wet" or moist plank, but the general election here is likely to be fought out on the convention floor without any commitments from the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt's "position" to speak much more accurately of the amount of money that he and his associates have spent standing and misrepresenting the president than he is as to the president's views on the Eighteenth amendment.

It appears a little far-fetched for the chairman of the Democratic national committee to attempt to interpret the views of the president on the subject.

Orner's anti-Hoover assertion was in reply to a speech last night by Hoover, Ohio, in which the present Secretary of the state, said that President Hoover's leadership "made the Democrats 'just a little bit' better."

The country will determine the correctness of Janine's statements," the Texan said.

Representative Admirey, Democrat, North Carolina, today predicted trouble in Republican ranks over the "dry" issue.

"From what I saw here yesterday (the movement to sign a petition to permit a house vote on reestablishment of the Eighteenth amendment) and what Brother Rankin put up before the House last night," the witty Mr. Hoover told the press, "I think you are going to have a heck of a time with the liquor question—on the part of the Democrats."

Over on the senate side, James A. Reed, Missouri's candidate for the Democratic nomination, gathered a group of newspapermen around him and told them the party should nominate a man "who represents sound, old-fashioned Democratic principles and who puts the interests of America paramount."

He declined to discuss his own or any other candidate's chances for the nomination, gathered a group of newspapermen around him and told them the party should nominate a man "who represents sound, old-fashioned Democratic principles and who puts the interests of America paramount."

Meanwhile New York Republicans elected 11 delegates-at-large to the national convention. Eighty-five district delegates will be elected in the primary April 4.

Japan may "re-learn" Shanghai, to save her face, but whatever her original intentions were—and they may have aimed at the conquest and subjection of all China—she will hardly persist in them now. Japanese imperialism is probably stopped, at least for the present.

Those ragged, ill-fed, poorly equipped Chinese, holding devastated and blasted Chaipei and the Wu-sung forts as a forlorn hope, fighting their shells with their rifles and machine guns against air bombs, tanks, cavalry, field artillery and battalions combined, have accomplished more than all the treaties and diplomats.

Fighting valiantly for their own country, it may be that they have won a crucial battle in the struggle of civilization for peace, order and justice among nations.

The Claggett were starting for the bridge when the waters struck. The bodies of four men, buried when an avalanche of snow roared down the precipitous side of Diablo canyon in eastern Claggett county yesterday were still the objects of digging parties. Workers were thrashed throughout the day by smaller slides and huge boulders, tumbling upon them.

From every part of the state came word of falling rivers, flooded roads and washed-out bridges.

Snow and earth slides blocked transcontinental highways across the Pacific coast and state highways were flooded by at least a dozen rivers or closed by slides.

The state highway department reported the flood danger "at the most serious in years."

avalanches were being cleared from Bluffville pass and Snoqualmie pass in the Cascades but earthslides were threatening the coast and at Port Mudge blocked the latter road. East-West auto stage travel was suspended.

The Great Northern main rail road line was washed out a distance of 800 feet near Odessa in western Washington. Slides closed the Northern Pacific branch line to Bellingham.

Slides here were reported washed away when the Gatoap and Wynoochee Rivers "overloaded" in the Harbor country. Six fishermen were ditched by a washout near Gatoap.

In eastern Washington families fled from homes in Epwauk as water flooded the town. Two and one half feet of water covered the state highway between Odessa and Ellensburg. Many summer homes and tourist camps were swept away in the Issaquah region north of Ellensburg.

When rescues reached Johnson and his wife, the father died a few minutes later.

The rescued children said the son who was drowned cried, "Don't pay attention to me, papa. You save the other kids." Their mother and another son screamed for aid for two days.

Ten men in all were buried when the avalanche roared down Diablo canyon on Seattle's city owned railway to its Skagit river power project. Six were rescued and their injuries were attended by the 30 men at the city's camp at Newhalem.

Badly Beaten: When he got up the night following a beating, gory and battered fighter, with both eyes on the verge of closing.

It was Stribling's attempt to regain the height of the heavy-weight situation, but he faded and "faded" with "Schnap" passing him on the road that may lead to the heavyweight championship.

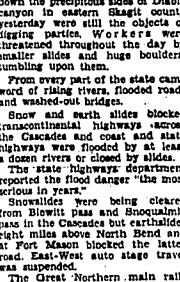

The battle was witnessed by a crowd of 1,000 spectators with a total of $30,000.

After being floored in the sensational fourth round, when things looked the blakest for him, Stribling came with a spectacular surge in the fifth which was characterized by his unaccustomed big fight against Max Schmeling in their world's title bout at Cleveland last July. So furiously did Stribling fight that it seemed for an instant that he might turn the tide in his favor.

But Schaal, who 200 pounds of advantage in weight, and power behind his broad shoulders, resumed his merciless attack with the start of the sixth round and had Stribling

The Georgian, bewildered, made no move to get up when the bell rang shortly after the count began. As the round ended, "Pa" Stribling, his father-manager, with other attendants, rushed to the ring to drag "Young" Stribling to his corner, where restoratives were applied.

It was Stribling's attempt to regain the height of the heavy-weight situation, but he faded and "faded" with "Schnap" passing him on the road that may lead to the heavyweight championship.

STEADY BATTING: BLOOM, Mos, Feb. 26 (AP)—Steady batting practice is in store for the Washington Senators beginning next Monday.

With the pitchers and catchers considered three or four days ahead of expectations, the word came down unofficially from the board of strategy that the hurlers will be allowed to lose in batting drills that much in advance of the usual training schedule.

Official Washington's attention was diverted somewhat today from the railway leading into Moscow by press dispatches saying Soviet Russia has become uneasy about fighting between Germany and Russia along the Chinese Eastern Railway between Harbin and Vladivostok and is concerned over its activities in the Far East.

Two major wars already have been fought over the Chinese Eastern railway, and disputes centering about it always are watched with great interest by the state department as well as the army and navy.

New representations made at Tokyo today by the British, French, Italian and American ambassadors, secured considerable comment when it became known the United States acted with the other powers at the recent request of Sir John Blanton, the British minister of foreign affairs.

This cooperation of the United States and Great Britain was regarded by officials as an indication there is no foundation for rumors that Great Britain is giving lukewarm support to American policy in China.

In today's representations the four powers urged Japan not to land more troops in the interior and settlement at Shanghai and to withdraw its flagships from the Hongkong section of the international waterway. It was stated that Chinese gunners may not be directed where it endangers the lives of foreigners.

Practise Base Stealing: PABO ROBERTS, Cal, Feb. 26 (AP)—Practise Base Stealing are expected to do a lot of stealing this summer—base stealing, of course.

Manager George Gibson intends to make a base running, particularly the pilfering of the second bag, one of the major features of the training schedule.

DRIVE FOR NEW JOBS PASSES 100,000 MARK

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP)—The 100,000 mark was passed today in the "war on depression" campaign to find 1,000,000 jobs for the unemployed.

Reports were received from 137 communities the largest number to send in returns on a single day. Since the drive began that 10,321 war veterans had been put back to work. That brought the total to 100,143.

It was pointed out that only 430 communities had returned 100 per cent of the larger towns and cities of the country, have taken part in the drive so far, while the number of jobs found is more than 100 per cent of the total set as a goal.

The United States consular officials published copies of the American law covering fighting of foreigners under foreign flags.

FORBES CALIFORNIA TITLE SANTA MONICA, Cal. (AP)—The California title heavyweight champion Ranspage was dinged hands when Leo Ranspage, San Diego battler, came in over the 175-pound limit for a bout with Oscar Rankin, Los Angeles fighter. Besides the forfeiting of his title, Ranspage was fined $50 and broke his hand in the second round of the fight. However, he gave Rankin a sound 10-round trouncing.
