Trip Whets Zane Grey's Ambition To Catch Three-Ton Fish

AUTHOR RETURNS TO WRITE ABOUT JAUNT OVER SEA

Angler-Writer Holds World Record For Big Fish—But Hopes For Bigger Ones

SCRIBE ESTIMATES COST OF TRIPS AT $500,000

Passion to Hook Largest in Ocean Takes Famous Novelist Into South Seas

By HUBARD HEAVY (Associated Press Writer)

ATADENA, Cal., March 3.—Zane Grey is home again to rest and to write about his longest fishing trip—the white-plumage search for larger and gamier fish.

Although the author landed scores of devilfish, sailfin and swordfish and other large game varieties on his recent nine-month voyage to the South seas, still he isn't satisfied.

For Grey, while on the expedition, there's lived deep in the Indian ocean, off the coast of Asia, swordfish reputedly weighing three tons.

Grey would then and there have turned the prow of his yacht toward the Indian ocean had it not been ill.

Here Caught Big One

On his best and eighth swordfish weighing as much as 1000 pounds—a world's record, incidentally—but he suspected that life would be sweeter if he could hook a three-ton monster with a dangerous swordfish's teeth.

Grey, a deep-sea fisherman for 20 years, estimates that his hobby has cost him half a million dollars. This does not include the price he paid for his boat, the former Fisherman and the present Fisherman II, the latter a number of planes, a motor for large catches, including the largest of Nova Scotia. Another is the world's biggest sailfin, to feet, 1 inch long, and weighing 115 pounds.

To catch the biggest swordfish, which mainly in the South seas on a previous trip, Grey had a nine-hour fight.

While Struggles Frenzied

The passion, as Grey calls it, to catch the biggest fish in the ocean has taken him to many strange places in the Pacific.

He has spent much time in the Galapagos Islands, 700 miles west of Ecuador, in the Society group, which include Tahiti, in the waters around New Zealand, in little known spots off the coast of North America and in the South Pacific.

"Do I write when I am away on a fishing trip?" Grey asks the question. "I have to, or I couldn't stay away so long. When you're sitting all day waiting for a strike, you can't do anything but think. I've developed some of my best plots while waiting for a bite."

Grey spends at least two hours each day to his work when he is away from home and writes best about the desert while at the hotel. He wants to write about the sea and his adventures thereon, he goes to the desert.

JAPANESE AND CHINESE GENERALS ISSUE ORDERS FOR CESSATION OF WAR

The Japanese and Chinese general staffs met on the east bank of the Yangtze river at the southern bank of the Yangtze between Wuning and Lihou, appeared still to be in the hands of the Chinese but they were hemmed in by the three land sides and in the river there were numerous Japanese ships of war.

Since the beginning of the major offensive on Tuesday the Japanese lost 700 men killed or wounded and captured about 100 prisoners whom they disarmed and released. They estimated the Chinese losses at 10,000, saying they had found 3000 Chinese

Although Gooding district started out the school year with ample revenue in prospect, to run the nine months, the commissioner was advised that the payment of $13,000 of back warrants left the district, under the new tax law, with insufficient funds for more than seven months. The seventh month was believed by the committee to have ended sometime this week.

Commissioner Vincent advised the district trustees to call a mass meeting of Gooding citizens to determine on procedure.

up" for her husband. She was not held, however.

During their earlier investigation of her case, the dentist's wife was questioned and released after spending a night in jail and the elder brother, Royal McKeeven, also was brought into the case.

"The physician had told Lenihan, the prosecutor said, of his irritation over the way in which his younger brother had obtained money from his mother and had said that affairs had reached a crisis between them on the day of her death.

A portion of a blood-washed piece of canvas and a piece of charred rope was taken from the furnace in the dentist's home after she was found dead. After explaining he had found her body in the basement, the dentist said he had covered her with charcoal and then threw her into the furnace, and substituted a blanket.

His early story to authorities was that he believed a murderer had slain her in the basement, seeking $5000 in bonds which he said she would send to carry in her clothing.

Mrs. McKeeven came west last December with her younger son from her home in Iowa.

Book Recalls How Keynes Foresaw Economic Upheaval Following War

English Prophet of World Affairs Politely Remarks "I Told You So"

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 3.—James Maynard Keynes, English economic prophet, looks back on 12 years of predicting a world upheaval, and says, in effect, "I told you so." He says it most politely and somewhat modestly—but he says it, nevertheless, in his book, "Essays in Persuasion," published tomorrow.

Now, twelve years ago he said Germany could not pay reparations on the scale demanded. Today Germany has announced she can pay no more.

Twelve years ago he said repudiation of war debts would become a political issue. It has.

Twelve years ago he said war debt payments would cease after very few years. A full-scale moratorium recently was granted; and foreign governments indicate that an extension, with drastic scaling down will be necessary.

Twelve years ago, he fixed Germany's capacity to pay at $7,500,000,000. It was fixed actually at $35,000,000,000 after the war. In 1922 it was cut to $20,000,000,000.

Now there are those who claim it will be entirely eliminated.

In 1923, before England restored the gold standard, he predicted dire consequences were his advice ignored. It was restored in fact, whereupon Professor Keynes forecast great unemployment, unequal wages, financial considerations, and a move to leave the gold standard a few months ago.

He early said tariff would be necessary in England, not because such tariffs were, economically valid, but to remedy false steps.

He said Germany would have

to borrow huge sums to pay reparations, since world tariffs would prevent her from obtaining a sufficiently favorable trade balance. Germany did borrow huge amounts.

Professor Keynes calls his forecast the "forecast of a Cassandra who could never influence the course of events in time," comparing himself with the Greek woman, who granted the gift of prophecy, afterwards incurred the wrath of her celestial patron, Apollo, and brought upon herself his decree that, despite the accuracy of her predictions, no one would believe them.

His principal suggestions to remedy the situation in 12 years ago and to which the still holds, included cancellation of war debts and money stabilization with respect to purchasing power.

To help support Missouri state parks a fee of 25 cents a day will be charged visitors remaining longer than one day.

E. J. Steel, basketball coach at Wilmington, Ohio, college, proposes having 10 points constitute a basketball game instead of playing on a time basis. He contends it would encourage stalling tactics.

A Junior city golf tournament for players under 18 years of age is planned for the first time this year at Springfield, Missouri.

MOSCOW EXPERT ADVISES ON JOGS

Breeders Who Save Six Pigs of Litter Instead of Five Double Profit, Says Nordby

MOSCOW, March 3 (Special to The News)—Swine breeders who save six pigs per litter instead of five, double the profits of the entire litter, says Professor J. E. Nordby, assistant animal husbandman, with the University of Idaho agricultural experiment station.

Under normal conditions the fifth pig is the first one upon which there is a net profit. Returns from four are required to pay for the sow's feed and care. A litter of six is twice as profitable as a litter of five, and a litter of eight doubles the profit again. The average number of pigs saved in the several million of litters fattened each year in the United States is a little less than six.

Save the profit-producing pigs in the sow's regular mating, breaking even with four, advises Professor Nordby. Observe the following approved practices: make it possible for the sow to produce thirty pigs by reducing her skim-milk and linkage of alfalfa hay in addition to grain; equally feed the sow highly with an acre and clean, well ventilated quarters; for a few days before farrowing feed the sow highly with a ration composed in part of bran.

Equipment needed provide the pen with ironing rails, and thus give the pigs a chance to protect themselves; give the sow attention while farrowing; guard against round worm; the pigs' sow ency even in Idaho, by scrubbing quarters with boiling water and keeping the sow and pigs on clean ground not occupied by pigs the previous year.

Feed costs comprise from 15 to 25 per cent of total cost. Good pasture producing hogs. Good pasture will reduce the grain requirement 20 per cent, says Professor Nordby. Alfalfa makes the best. It all calls cannot be grown successfully, try wheat, oats, peas, or other green feeds.

Do not feed only one kind of grain. Where prices are about the same, provide some ground oats, shorts, barley, wheat or corn, skim-milk and other protein feeds. Costs are invariably reduced when grain mixtures, properly supplemented, are fed.

EARLY MORNING BRINGS CLUE TO WHEREABOUTS OF INFANT'S KIDNAPERS

Perish Activity... After a period of feverish activity by the police department...

The mass of new clues and leads which held the attention of investigators included: A communication from an ex-convict in Hudson county...

A report that Frank W. Kelly, a lumber dealer, had recognized the hood used in the ladder left behind by the kidnapers...

A tip from a Union county man, whose name was unable to be disclosed, that two friends had threatened two months ago to kidnap the Lindbergh child...

One posted in South Orange, New Jersey, read: "Baby will die." It contained two words had been changed. Another found in the Elizabeth, New Jersey post office read: "Kidnap follow instructions in next letter. Baby is safe. Well taken care of. Don't worry. If any harm comes to the child, I'll come to baby. Follow instructions carefully."

A third intercepted at Auburn, New York, bore this message: "Baby taken good care of. Look for instructions Saturday. If police too close look out."

Investigator were inclined to believe all were the work of "grands." The first message was taken to all the senders. The South Orange card corresponded in several details with one found in a Newark mailbox yesterday.

More than 325 persons, many of them employees or former employees of the Lindberghs, were paraded through the Lindbergh garage, where all the law enforcement agencies working on the case had set up a consolidated headquarters.

Question Nursemaids... Betty Goo, the nursemaid who discovered the empty crib, and her predecessor, Maria Cummings, were among those subjected to a rigid questioning.

After they had left cabarets were sent to Scotland Yard asking for the names of all persons who had been seen in the neighborhood of the Lindberghs...

But the governor quickly made it clear that he knew of no "outlets." The Lindberghs' attorney, Charles C. Bannister, had no contact had been made with the kidnapers by either police or the Lindberghs...

What, he was then asked, "is the basis for Colonel Lindbergh's own close look out?"

of net income. While the standard deduction for married couples is approximately half of the property in Colorado is untaxed. Now, if this startling inequality of taxes were to be applied to the citizens of Idaho, who would not the same shameful condition exist in Idaho?

Your truly, D. E. BURKEY. Publ., March 2.

"All-Star" Back

Expectation, that something will happen any minute... "Oh, I guess it's just psychic," the governor replied...

Late in the day police disclosed by Colonel Lindbergh that the search be called off and an appeal made for a non-communication...

Clues and possible leads developed and exploded with the passing of each minute. Nearly 2000 letters and cards had been received by Colonel Lindbergh from all parts of the country...

In Boston a woman about 40 years old posted an air mail letter to Colonel Lindbergh. On the envelope were written these words: "Please spare no effort to have this message concerning Colonel Lindbergh's son rushed with all possible speed; this is no hoax but is of vital importance communication."

A search on Provincetown road near Princeton, New Jersey, disclosed there was no such address as the one mentioned in the letter. State police headquarters at Trenton also looked the letter as a possible clue.

Both the Boston Evening American and a copyrighted story said Henry G. Wilson, self-styled clairvoyant, admitted to having written the letter which received the information contained in the letter through Indian control from a "good hood, whose name was not given."

A search on Provincetown road near Princeton, New Jersey, disclosed there was no such address as the one mentioned in the letter.

While the state reporters and detectives were working in the garage, police 13 newly-installed telephone booths in the Lindberghs' home, peeped up and down in the big hilltop house.

Both the father of Colonel Lindbergh, once a Minnesota congressman, and Senator Dwight Morrow, are dead.

Governor Moore, in explaining why police had decided two persons took part in the abduction pointed out that the window of the nursery, from which the Lindbergh child was taken, is "pretty narrow" and that it would have been difficult for anyone to climb through it while holding a baby.

The police think," he continued, "that one of the kidnapers entered the nursery and the other waited at the top of the ladder. Then the baby was handed through the window to the man outside."

He said the time of the abduction had been narrowed down to between 8:30 and 9:15 P. M. Colonel Lindbergh came home at 8:30, and the same road the kidnapers must have used. "That was his car" in the road at that time. At 9:15 he went to his desk, which is under the nursery. If a ladder had been raised to the nursery window then, he read: "You read this and keep your nose close. Don't open your trap to a living soul. If you do it will be your last. Your father has planned this for you."

Beauty, Social Position and Wealth Figure in Selection of "Miss Philippines" in Pageant

(By The Associated Press) MANILA, P. I., March 2.—No beauty alone, but poise, social position and wealth govern the annual selection of Miss Philippines, coveted prize of many a grand maiden.

The girl chosen queen at the annual Manila carnival in February will be crowned at a coronation ball that is one of the leading social events of the year, attended by leading Filipinos and Americans.

No Basking Beauty Parade... But she will not necessarily be a basking beauty. For when the group of semi-finalists parade before the judges they are amply attired in full Philippine evening gowns with lacy sleeves.

To parade in a basking suit would be unthinkable to the Filipino. She will wear gowns and jewels worth possibly thousands of dollars, and be sought after socially and her matrimonial prospects will soar.

The Manila carnival, started by Americans but now managed by Filipinos, is a combination of a state fair and a fiesta. It is given government support because of the display of native products.

Miss Philippines is selected through the agency of the donor or leading publications, newspapers and magazines, each of which nominates three candidates and by voters of its readers select one of these for the final judging.

Money Affects Results... The contest is to some degree a matter of wealth, for money to buy the luxury of the donor or leading publications, newspapers and magazines, each of which nominates three candidates and by voters of its readers select one of these for the final judging.

The proclamation of the queen and her three princesses, their coronation and the subsequent signing of royal court sessions form a pageant typical of the orient and the tropics.

Knife Wound Ends Life of Ed Morris

CENTURY, Feb. 27.—March 2.—A wound of a knife plunged into big Ed Morris' chest during a fight at a fish fry given in his honor Monday night caused the death of the veteran plucker for the Boston Red Sox today.

Soon after he died, Joe White, a gasoline station operator at Brewton, Alabama, arrested and charged with murder.

Witnesses said he and the plucker engaged in an argument at the party that was intended as a farewell to Morris on the eve of his departure for the Red Sox training camp at Savannah, Georgia.

GOLD-MINING IN IDAHO ADVANCES

Activity On One Field Contrasts With Depression's Effect in Other Lines

Lead, silver, zinc and copper are four of the principal metals produced in Idaho, and the price of these metals governs the prosperity of the mining industry. Stewart Campbell, Halsey, Idaho, inspector of mines, says in a review of the mining industry in Idaho during 1931, released today.

During 1931, the inspectors receive says, silver and copper reached the lowest price in the history of the world; lead, the lowest since 1914; and zinc, the lowest since 1914. Heretofore, when lead was selling at a low price, silver was worth from 50 to 65 cents per ounce, as compared with 27 cents per ounce in 1931. As almost all the silver produced in Idaho is recovered as a by-product from lead, zinc, and copper ore, the mining companies had the alternative of accepting low prices or closing their mines; consequently, at most of these mines production was curtailed. There was but a small amount of new plant construction; no new enterprises started; and mine development work was greatly reduced. The totals being the smallest that the state has witnessed for many years.

However, gold mining witnessed a decided impetus; most of the operating companies were continuously active; a large number of new enterprises started; the interest shown by mining companies, promoters, brokers, and prospectors contrasted that of many years; and the large expenditures for new construction were by those companies whose principal product is gold. Two new mills and a new dredge of small tonnage and a large number of small mills were constructed; much with Calumet's Double-Action!

MAKE THE WORLD'S BEST HOT CROSS BUNS!

They're jiffy-quick!
They're easy to make!

Yes, Calumet is the real baking powder bargain! A bargain—because it avoids costly failures—because it always brings spot-on success! Try it today! Calumet is a product of General Foods Corporation.

HOT CROSS BUNS
(Crossed rolls)

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon shortening
1/2 cup milk (about)

Beat four once, measure, add baking powder and salt and mix again. Cut in shortening. Add milk gradually until soft dough is formed. Knead lightly for 2 to 3 minutes. Cut small pieces from dough, and roll in palm of hand into balls 1 1/2 inches in diameter. Place in greased pan; cut a cross on each with pointed knife. Brush top with melted butter. Cover and let rise in warm place 20 minutes. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 10 minutes. Brush top with mixture of equal parts sugar and milk, and finish baking. Makes 15 buns. All measurements are level.

Here's why Calumet can do it—its extra-quick action. As soon as you add liquid to your dry ingredients, Calumet's first action begins and starts the leavening. Then, in the oven, Calumet's second action begins. This carries on the leavening. Up... up... it keeps raising the dough and holds it high and light, until every roll is baked to tender, fluffy goodness. And it's this same double-action—the extra protection—that makes all cakes and all your quick breads so unusually delicate and delicious when they're Calumet-baked.

So, hurry! See! The simple, tested recipe given here is a Calumet recipe—specially designed for the Calumet proportion—only one level teaspoon to a cup of sifted flour. That's the usual Calumet proportion and should be followed for best results. A splendid economy for you!

GET PROOF! Use Calumet and TYPED instructions. You'll see the difference. Try it first, you'll know. Good buns every time.

A 2-cup package of Swans Down Cake Flour—given with the purchase of a pound can of Calumet. Get yours! Use your pound for 2!

They had several hundred samples on a long table out of which they allowed me to select garment for garment exactly what I wanted. In this way you get the cream of the crop. The price was a steal and it's passed along to you. I wanted this special to come from Scalpa because we consider their make to be second to none as far as workmanship and fit are concerned.
