POLICE OF PRUSSIA SMASH NAZI PLOT FOR INSURRECTION

Officers Find Evidence of Hitler's Intention to Start Civil War and Seize Power by Force of Arms

By LOUIS F. LOCHNER (Associated Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, March 17.—Headquarters of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party were raided today by police officers in order to smash a plot to plunge Germany into civil war and seize power by force of arms.

In addition to visiting the offices of the party, the police searched the homes of many Nazi leaders. They confiscated numerous files of correspondents and membership lists.

Prussian officials declared they had made ready for mobilization at various points throughout the state.

A code message—"Grandmother dead"—was to be broadcast throughout Prussia, these officials said, and it was to be the signal for each unit to march upon the nearest large city.

Hitler issued a press communique in which he acknowledged that a concentration order had gone out to his men, so 40 of his comrades had been killed and thousands wounded in the last few weeks by "red savages."

The communique added that he had established that 100,000 Hitler "storm troops" including automobile and motorcycle detachments, had been made ready for mobilization at various points throughout the state.

While he was taking the girl to a dance at Canyon City on his horse, Seymour was alleged to have told street, they dismounted to walk across a muddy ravine.

"The white star began to hit me with a bag and lease me," the confession said.

"I took hold of her. . . . Afterward she got mad. She threw rock and hit me in chest. Then she took knife out of the bag and started throwing another rock. Just then I threw a rock at her and knocked her down. I don't know if I hit her or not. She fell on her face. I went and took knife away from her. I put my hand under her head and stabbed her in neck, possibly about here."

"She got up and walked short way down ravine, and then lay down. I went and stood on bank and cried—I felt very bad then. I tried to talk to her but she was faint. I went down and laid a stick across her body. She was still breathing."

"When he went to the house of his brother-in-law, Robert Osterwood, the statement said, washed the blood from his hands. Ed Osterwood had to sell, and went along to the dance."

Doughtery painted a picture of an Indian youth whose emotional grip had been loosened by intoxicating liquor given him by the victim.

Miss Schermer, he asserted he would show, accompanied Seymour to the dance at her own insistence, playing the young Redman with liquor to gain her points when he demurred.

and Bulky, Democrat, Ohio.

The bill seeks to encourage branch banking, to curb chain banking and to direct efforts corporation from national banking institutions. It also attempts to restrict brokers' loans from member banks a reminder that these loans were more than $4,000,000 during the 1928-29 stock market inflation. It seeks to put open market operations under jurisdiction of the reserve board.

The legislation, in fact, is an outgrowth of the inquiry into the cause leading up to the record increase in stock market prices preceding the 1929 collapse. Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, is prepared also to propose a tax on stock and bond sales and transfers.

The measure specifically provides that federal reserve facilities "shall not be extended to member banks for the purpose of making carrying loans covering investments, or facilitating the carrying of, or trading in, stocks, bonds, or other investment securities other than obligations of the government of the United States."

Dickie Moore Proves Self Real Boy as Well as Charming Actor

Ambition Runs From Garbage Man to Doctor, But Play Time Holds Main Interest

(By The Associated Press)
HOLLYWOOD, March 17 (Special to The News)—Dickie Moore's first ambition in life was to be "a garbage man so I can wear white gloves."

Now he wants to be a doctor "because their offices smell nice."

His father, a native of Bordeaux, France, is a baptyist and he has a red nose, his nose curly head, enormous dark eyes, and baby voice become famous in pictures.

His mother, an attractive young Irish woman from Belfast, doesn't know what Dickie will be when he grows up. She hopes he won't be an actor.

He's Just Himself
"He isn't acting now," she says. "He's just being himself. He takes his part as a matter of course. I took him to see one of his pictures recently, and he wanted to leave in the middle of it after he learned there'd be no Mickey Mouse picture on the bill."

Dickie himself, a real boy, is most charmingly indifferent to interviewers. He's a busy young man, is Dickie, and he doesn't want to know him anyway? He had things to do that were really important.

With his mother we found Dickie in his bed, reading a story, holding his hand in blue overalls, touting in his hand a fair-sized dead fish which he had just caught. Dickie himself, played, "fair" top summer fishing.

The fish was obviously a problem to Mrs. Moore.

Has His Fort Too
"Dickie," she said, "may be you see your tent this morning—or is it a fort?" Dickie looked at her and said, "It's a fort." He was near by a small tent spread low on the ground, bulged with an overturned wagon and a bucket of dirt lumps.

These, Dickie explained, made excellent ammunition, especially when soaked in water (as he proceeded to demonstrate) and hurled at the face of a certain child who was a common enemy of himself and Iria, the little girl next door.

His Own Target
Mrs. Moore, remonstrated, but Dickie—well, even if they didn't actually throw the mudkakes at the face of the mover, they like to be looked around for a target for the oozy mass he held.

Dickie Moore of the Movies is busiest of all being a real boy with no ambition to be an actor. At various times he has decided to become a garbage man or a doctor, but playtime overalls, mudkakes and funny papers mean as much to him as to other children.

Mutterer persuaded Dickie that to use the side of their own garage would be ethical, and the way that mudkake splashed was a joy. It satisfied Dickie, who turned again to his fish.

"Why don't you give it to Snooks?" she suggested, tactfully. Snooks, Dickie's cat, "It probably won't keep until July."

"The fish won't mind if they bait it with a yeast and a half of fish. He is a 'funny paper' fan, although he doesn't read yet. At the school he is in the first grade, and excels in arithmetic.

His movie dialog he learns quickly and easily by having his mother read the lines to him. After one read-and-one rehearsal—he is perfect in them. And then he can play some more.

Dickie came into pictures when he was a year and a half old because a production manager chanced to see him one morning. He played "John Traveller" as a baby in "The Beloved Rogue."

Played Many Roles
At six years now, he has had parts in many films, including "Son of the Gods," "Seed," "The Passion Flower," "The Star Witness," and "The Expect in which he was co-starred with 'Chic' Sale."

The Moore's still live in the same bungalow, comfortable and tastefully appointed, they had before Dickie went into pictures.

Propped From Films
Along with hats and Snooks, and the fish—never forget that fish!—Dickie cherishes his first wrist-watch, a gold one presented him by Barbara Stanwyck in appreciation for his grand work in "So Big."

W. Dvorak, E. M. Cline, Wayne Newcomb and L. C. Fisher, The Easterners of the Idaho club, decorated and menu. Spring flowers were used as table centerpiece.

Endeavor society of the Christian church will have a social at the church Friday evening. On Monday evening Mrs. B. P. Wyatt and her girls will serve a dinner after at the church to which the public is invited.

Mrs. and Mrs. Roy Painter entertained 16 friends Monday evening. Pinocle was enjoyed at four tables after which a card party was served. A St. Patrick motif was used in the decorations.

Bradley SWEATER SPECIAL

Friday and Saturday, March 18th & 19th

To procure these wonderful Bradley Sweater values I made a special trip to the little town of Delavan in North Central Wisconsin where their model factory is located.

Here is another factory that does big things for us in return for our regular business. Our stores are one of the oldest accounts on their books in the Intermountain country. Bradley was pretty heavily stocked on close out numbers this time and it took several hours to go through their big ware room selecting the most desirable numbers in each lot. I will say that of all the close-outs we have made from Bradley this one is the most outstanding. The patterns are smarter, the quality better and the close-out prices are much lower.

IF YOU BUY ANY OF THESE SWEATERS I WANT TO ASK ONE FAVOR OF YOU

Please don't think of them from the standpoint of the price paid. Don't be price-conscious, BE VALUE-CONSCIOUS. These are all high quality, high priced sweaters in a regular way. You are entitled to all of the clothes-pleasure you can get when you slip into one of these garments. We want you to have it because we went to a lot of effort to obtain them for you and we know what wonderful values they are.
