NEW YORK, April 8.—For the third successive year, the champion St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Athletics have the backing of the majority of experts to win the major league baseball pennant races. The most striking feature of the sixth annual Associated Press pennant poll, compiled today, is the apparent conviction to be mainly a two-club contest in each circuit. The Manhattan entries, the Giants and Yankees are named as the only real challengers to the present rulers of baseball's big league rosters.

In the balloting by sports editors and writers of the major league ballclubs, the World Champion Cardinals proved much stronger favorites than the Athletics to repeat their title. The Philadelphia club, which has been the only real challenger to the present rulers of baseball's big league rosters.

Schmelzing Lands At New York City Whip Seals, 9-3

World's Champion Appears Physically Fit As Date For Exhibition Tour Nears

NEW YORK, April 8.—Max Schmelzing, German holder of the world heavyweight boxing championship, arrived today from the Philadelphia to begin an exhibition tour and training camp which will culminate in a championship fight against Jack Sharkey in New York June 18.

The black Union of the ring, landed by the North Atlantic union, looked as fit as always and said his weight was 182 pounds, within three or four of his best fighting weight. Unwilling to predict the outcome of the fight, Schmelzing said that the indications he believes himself a much better fighter when he was two years ago when he defeated Sharkey by knocking Sharkey before being fouled into the title in the fourth round.

Those two years on Sharkey's age, he explained, will be a plus for me. I don't think the fighting has been too hard on me. I have had anything to his experience. As for himself, Schmelzing said he has had a long and hard fight and his winning 10-round fight with W. L. Young, fighting in Cleveland, Ohio, has been a very hard one.

Schmelzing said he would have liked to have fought Sharkey again if he so desired, but that he did not want to do that. He said he hoped to fight as long as he could give a creditable account of himself.

Noting that he will keep him busy until April 28, he will rest a few days, then take in the Kenilworth training camp and will be ready for his fight at Kenilworth, New York, May 10.

SYNOPSIS: Unknown to her husband, Gar, Kitty has learned that she has a little girl named Alice. She has learned it by accident, but she has learned it. Alice's father is not Gar, but she is his daughter. She has learned it by accident, but she has learned it. Alice's father is not Gar, but she is his daughter. She has learned it by accident, but she has learned it.

SWEET DEADLY POISON
Jan had no reverence for these dear things of his mother's; he wanted a run out of doors. He made his impetuous to claim that David and Kitty laughed and yielded to it. They left the house by the wood-shed door.

The yard, the empty weathered barns and outsheds, seemed to swim in a soft haze. The pigeons sunned themselves on the barn roof. Outside, as in the house, everything was meticulously clean, orderly. A path of old flagstones led to a strip of garden where still bloomed a few forget-me-nots.

And David's alliance, his smile of appreciation that was partly for what he saw and partly for her delight, was good to her.

She was shyly conscious of depths in David which she never had suspected. She had never known him as she always when she had been with him she'd been so wrapped in her own pride of his class, something when she was young.

"And you don't remember her?" he asked. She said she did. This place had helped me. She used to come here with me, summers, I suppose.

"I was silent, held in deep content. She divided swiftly how much David needed that sense of love. She remembered how he'd hurried out of his class, something when she was young.

"DRY" CAMPAIGNERS DELIVER MESSAGE TO MEETINGS HERE

Dr. Ira Landrith and Oliver W. Stewart, Outstanding Prohibitionists, Address Second of Two Assemblies

Dr. Ira Landrith, Winona Lake, Indiana, clergyman, and Oliver W. Stewart, Chicago, lecturer, addressed approximately 200 persons at a public meeting in the Christian church here yesterday, concluding a two-day visit of the Allied Campaigners for Prohibition.

Comparing the existing situation with respect to prohibition with the task confronting prohibitionists and his associates, Mr. Stewart asserted, "Under the standard of loyalty which constantly beset the people from N. W. to coast, the Allied Forces (C Prohibition will carry this campaign by next June into 361 strategic centers and then face the great presidential nomination conventions with a warning, 'dry' army in the field, equipped and at attention, ready to deal with those leaders or parties who give license to the 'wet' element. If the liquor traffic be restored by the process of amputation or law violation...

"We have gone far enough to know that the people are with us in this fight." Mr. Stewart, once a Prohibition member of the Illinois legislature and a Prohibition candidate for mayor of Chicago, reviewed the national conventions in 1924 and 1928 instating upon dry planks in both platforms.

Landrith stressed as his thesis "Prohibition is the law; it is a good law; it cannot be repealed and it cannot be modified; it should be enforced and it shall not be nullified."

"We are undertaking to visit every political capital and commercial and national center in continental America, to organize the friends of law and order and to tell the truth from the house tops and the hustings, and through the printing press and the radio to the end that the next referendum on all other areas since 1920 shall elect a 'dry' congress and a president committed to obeying and enforcing the law."

"I am here primarily," he said, "to warn the (let us call it) cold-footed, cautious prohibitionists, and secondly, to make the women intelligible to us. When the woman meets encounters the 'wet' she deals with it as she would with anything that's well-known it out and hang up to dry."

"A man isn't taken by the company he keeps, but by the enemies he makes, unless he is a 'wet' politician and then he is known by the company that keeps him."

"It is my purpose to show these fanatic, freaks and pharisees who come out to repeal prohibition, that they can't repeal it and they can't nullify it, and they're not running this United States."

"Bolshevism Will Fail!" "The bolshevik in America—the bolshevik with a hate cult—who is trying to undermine prohibition, will have for anything that is 'wet.' They have quit voting for a yellow dog and are voting for water snakes."

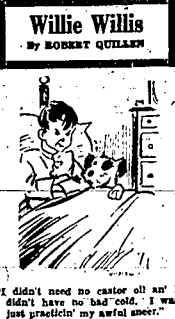

Dr. Landrith classified prohibition opponents as "wet citizens and 'wet' citizens."

"The 'wet' citizen who is trying to repeal prohibition deserves our respect and our sympathy because he is in funny society," the speaker declared.

"The 'wet' citizen will never be enough person 'dry'-wets to win," he declared, "and they can't win except by assistance of thugs, pugilists and enemies of the underworld."

"France's win is no longer a shocker in the liquor business as he used to be when his 'damp' dividend reached almost $400,000,000 a year, practically one-third of his annual income. Sober, and with clean hands, unscathed by graft and liquor revenue, he is a 'dry' ally now. Having secured prohibition by a majority of more than two-thirds of congress and 48 out of 48 states and by our Uncle Sam's will and at great national, not real, cost to him, we should experience small difficulty in passing at least 10 states."

Speakers yesterday were introduced by P. S. Bell, Twin Falls attorney who is chairman of the local organization of Allied Citizens, under whose auspices the Allied Campaigners came to Twin Falls. All addresses both days were broadcast by radio.

Harry C. Parsons, With Two Years to Serve in Court House, Would Be Auditor

Harry C. Parsons, southern Idaho county auditor and recorder since 1927, yesterday announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for auditor of Idaho election law. As chairman of the legislative committee of the State Association of County Auditors, Mr. Parsons has gained wide acquaintance with the state legislature and has been instrumental in securing the passage of the state election law which provides for the election of county auditors and recorders in conformity with the terms of Idaho election law.

OREGON YOUTHS FACING AUTO THEFT CHARGES

Two 14-year-old boys, Bill Bonwick and Paul MacIn, accused of stealing three automobiles in the course of a trip from their home at Pendleton, Oregon, to Hansens will be taken back to Pendleton to answer there to a charge of auto-theft. They had started on a hitchhiking trip to California, and that they admitted having stolen in Twin Falls, Oregon, to Hansens will be taken back to Pendleton to answer there to a charge of auto-theft.

CROPS PRICES FIGURE IN FORECLOSURE SUIT

Ray D. Whitaker, who in 1925 was the owner of a 160-acre Buhl district farm and contracted to sell it to C. P. Johnson, Twin Falls, secured a judgment of foreclosure on $2500.00 and mortgage which Johnson gave to make the purchase. The $12,000 mortgage was subject to a previous $12,000 mortgage.

Whitaker asked for appointment of a receiver to take charge of the property and impound rents and revenues during the period of redemption.

Johnson's poles were payable in January, 1925, and January, 1927. It was his contention that Whitaker in January, 1924, agreed to extend the contract to January, 1925, if Johnson paid interest due, and to extend it an additional year "if prices of farm products showed no improvement."

S. L. Wright and his wife, Mrs. Helen Wright, lenders on the property, who were named as defendants, asserted that they had leased the farm from Johnson for the year 1925, and had paid rent of $12.50 in advance, giving notes which they believed had passed into the hands of this person.

J. H. Sherry, Buhl, was Whitaker's attorney in this action, the case being captioned being presented by O. C. Hall, Twin Falls.

Never Falls. The evening sermon will be to the subject, "The Greatest Love Story in All The World."
