Strict Enforcement of Traffic Code Reduces "Autocides"

NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL ENROLLS CITIES IN DRIVE

"Three Es" of Security—Enforcement, Engineering and Education—Cut Toll

437 MUNICIPALITIES SUPPORT CAMPAIGN

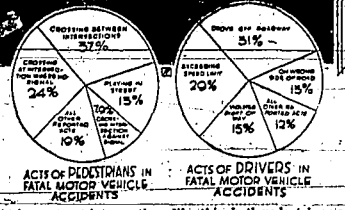

Busy Street Intersections Prove Scene of Greatest Hazards of Travel

CHICAGO, May 21—(Special to The News)—"Big stick" methods are winning decisive victories against the bugaboo of every American city, automobile fatalities, which now average about 38,000 yearly and exceed homicides in the United States three to one.

In the face of figures which show that automobile deaths were more than doubled in the last 10 years, a few cities have cut their death rates from 100 to 25 per cent.

"Three-Es" Plan Used

Their formula might be called the "three E's" of highway safety—enforcement, engineering and education. The emphasis on "big stick" methods of enforcement by which several cities have become "hot spots" of traffic safety, which the National Safety Council, which has 47 cities enrolled in a campaign for traffic safety results—figures show that 35 per cent of all municipalities have reduced their death rates in any great degree.

At busy street intersections like this, both pedestrians and motorists often are guilty of negligence that leads to serious accidents and sometimes death. The circles, prepared from National Safety Council figures covering 48,000,000 population, 75 per cent urban, show how responsibility for accidents is divided.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW—Fairly cloudy; rising temperature.

Temperature in the Twin Falls vicinity in the 24-hour period preceding 5 P. M. yesterday ranged between 38 and 60 degrees, according to the report of D. B. Cheyne, government weather observer here. The day was mild and uneventful as regards precipitation of .46 of an inch in the form of rain and hail. The barometer registered 29.8 inches at 5 P. M. Thursday ranged between 100 and 60 per cent of saturation. Wind was in the west.

Letter Writers Clarify State Representative's Record in Legislature

E. N. Pettigrove Takes C. D. Thomas' Interrogations as Compliment, Questioning Only Four Out of Approximately 1200 Votes in Five Years Service to Commonwealth

In correspondence made public yesterday, E. N. Pettigrove, member of the Idaho house of representatives since 1927 and a Republican candidate for reelection, defended his legislative record under attack on four points by C. D. Thomas, Twin Falls real estate and loan agent and former Republican leader.

In his reply, May 20, to Mr. Thomas' letter written April 23 and given to the press last Friday, Mr. Pettigrove pointed out that during his five-year period of service in the legislature "I have been my duty to pass legislation and vote on bills which have been introduced in the legislature, and I have voted on approximately 1200 separate and distinct bills. After searching the records, you make me to take on only four, and you are terribly mistaken regarding my position. In regard to two of the bills referred to the record to show that I did not vote for a law which permitted out-of-state building and loan associations, and denied paternity of potato grade quality, I have voted in favor of the measure relative to redemption of property on account of delinquent taxes, both called in question by Mr. Thomas.

THOMAS SAYS LAWMAKERS DRIVE OUT FOREIGN CAPITAL

E. N. Pettigrove, April 22, 1932, Hansen, Idaho.

Dear Sir: I see by the papers that you have asked to be re-nominated to represent Twin Falls County in the next legislature. I think that you will agree that if a person asks for re-nomination and is not re-nominated, it is a reflection on the voters of the district, and it is not the duty of the voters to re-nominate him. I have been vitally interested in the affairs of the state of Idaho, especially regarding legislation, for I have felt for some time that the taxation laws are a detriment to the state of Idaho. They place almost the entire burden upon real estate taxes.

I have been vitally interested in the affairs of the state of Idaho, especially regarding legislation, for I have felt for some time that the taxation laws are a detriment to the state of Idaho. They place almost the entire burden upon real estate taxes. I have been vitally interested in the affairs of the state of Idaho, especially regarding legislation, for I have felt for some time that the taxation laws are a detriment to the state of Idaho. They place almost the entire burden upon real estate taxes.

Further, investors of foreign money in Idaho are constantly withheld from the state, because they have not been given due consideration by past legislatures, and secondly because the taxes are so great that they are practically afraid to invest money.

1st—Why did you vote to shorten the period for delinquent taxes to go to tax deed, and thereby make the 1928 and 1929 delinquent taxes both go to tax deed on January 1, 1933, next January? This law that makes two years taxes go to tax deed at one time works a great hardship during times like these, and at any time a law of this kind is a detriment to any state. Can you defend your vote on this point?

2nd—The Kilowatt tax law was undoubtedly a Democratic measure, but I was a member of the legislature of the state of Idaho, and I voted for laws that were beneficial to the state regardless of who introduced them. It is a poor time to be political to the detriment of the state.

3rd—You understand that you made a speech on the floor against the Kilowatt tax law. You must have known that the amount of the assessment of the Idaho Power for tax purposes was very much less than the value that they claim for rate-making purposes. Therefore, their assessment for tax purposes was not in keeping with the assessed valuation placed upon farms in Twin Falls county.

4th—You understand that you claim that the tax was just as unfair as it was to place a tax on each bushel of wheat that was raised on a farm. I was the member of the legislature who introduced the amendment that the assessed value of a farm should be based upon its productive value. Therefore, to a certain extent indirectly it is based on each bushel of wheat that you raise. For example, if I own a farm which will average a yield of 25 bushels per acre, I should not pay more taxes on that land than a dry farmer should pay on land that will only produce an average of 10 bushels per acre.

You must know that if we can reduce our tax structure, so that the Idaho Power, the mining interest, and the lumber interest, and the bond interest pay their just proportion of the taxes, that we reduce the tax on real estate. Therefore, will you please explain why you voted against the Kilowatt tax law?

5th—You supported a bill to tax foreign money invested in Idaho, although the same bill exempted domestic capital. This was a bill fixing a tax on foreign building and loan doing business in Idaho, and it

PETTIGROVE TELLS STAND ON LEGISLATIVE RECORD

Hansen, Idaho, May 20, 1932.

Dear Sir: I received your letter dated April 23, and in reply I have written you and left it your typewriter, I have waited patiently for almost a month, but you have not written me. The question that you asked me to take on only four bills, I can find more than that number myself. In regard to two of the bills referred to the record to show that I did not vote for a law which permitted out-of-state building and loan associations, and denied paternity of potato grade quality, I have voted in favor of the measure relative to redemption of property on account of delinquent taxes, both called in question by Mr. Thomas.

I was the member of the legislature who introduced the amendment that the assessed value of a farm should be based upon its productive value. Therefore, to a certain extent indirectly it is based on each bushel of wheat that you raise. For example, if I own a farm which will average a yield of 25 bushels per acre, I should not pay more taxes on that land than a dry farmer should pay on land that will only produce an average of 10 bushels per acre.

how do you expect in the two remaining days before the election, to gather up all the political mud you can get your hands on for the next three years? Mr. Thomas, receiving your letter almost on the eve of the election, and you have written me on the paper before that day, smacking it with the kind of questions that I have asked you to answer. However, I shall not let your questions go unanswered. I am in complete harmony with your opinion that the record of my legislative record should be made public. I am not at all concerned with the publicity of my record. I am not at all concerned with the publicity of my record. I am not at all concerned with the publicity of my record.

1st—Why did you vote to shorten the period for delinquent taxes to go to tax deed, and thereby make the 1928 and 1929 delinquent taxes both go to tax deed on January 1, 1933, next January? This law that makes two years taxes go to tax deed at one time works a great hardship during times like these, and at any time a law of this kind is a detriment to any state. Can you defend your vote on this point?

2nd—The Kilowatt tax law was undoubtedly a Democratic measure, but I was a member of the legislature of the state of Idaho, and I voted for laws that were beneficial to the state regardless of who introduced them. It is a poor time to be political to the detriment of the state.

3rd—You understand that you made a speech on the floor against the Kilowatt tax law. You must have known that the amount of the assessment of the Idaho Power for tax purposes was very much less than the value that they claim for rate-making purposes. Therefore, their assessment for tax purposes was not in keeping with the assessed valuation placed upon farms in Twin Falls county.

4th—You understand that you claim that the tax was just as unfair as it was to place a tax on each bushel of wheat that was raised on a farm. THOSE ECONOMIC LAWS

"We know as little about economic laws today," says an editor, "as we know about sanitary laws one hundred years ago."

The price of any statement would have been denied. Economics, particularly business economics, was thought to have become an exact science. We had come into the age of statistics.

SAFE WATER SPORTS

Every week now there is news of drownings. It is the season for fishing, swimming, boating and generally playing around streams and lakes.

People who are going to the water for recreation should know a few things about the water. It is necessary, too, to know the location of the accidents available.

BRIGHT INFANTS

It comes with somewhat of a shock when Dr. W. N. Kellogg, professor of psychology in Indiana University, reports that a young chimpanzee brought up with his own child, and given the same opportunities to learn, proved itself smarter than the human baby.

To the same environment the chimpanzee baby behaved almost exactly like the Kellogg baby. The two ate together, played together, were the same kind of chatterbox, so on. When the professor taught them simple tricks and gave them little tasks, the chimpanzee surpassed the professor's child in quickness of perception and ability to learn.

Guiding Your Child

THE NON-FIGHTER

Peter is a highly intelligent, ambitious, large and well developed for his age, he likes to swim, hike and play hand-ball. But he is afraid of his right. He is not afraid, he is bored.

INTERESTING WEATHER

The weather is a perennially interesting topic. People have always liked to talk about it, whether they approved or disapproved. Recently weather interest has been taking a mildly depressing turn.

Personal notes of a New Yorker's cut: Jack drivers, so one of the taxi jockers reports, are finding it a case of all-hands-no-fish-days.

Babson Points to Opportunities For Investors to Purchase Many Good Bonds From Municipalities

Bay State Statistician Expresses Faith in American Public's Intention to Repudiate Obligations, and Believes Most of Cities' Securities Will Come Back to Normal Price

By ROGER W. BABSON
 BABSON PARK, Mass., May 21.—Next to United States government bonds, the bonds and notes of towns and cities have always been considered the safest investments. Hence, it is a great shock to investors to find the number of towns and smaller cities in default, and even some of the larger centers having difficulty in meeting maturities. The shaking of confidence has been reflected in a general decline of municipal bond prices, so that fields are now very attractive to investors who are willing to buy at a discount.

It is not the habit of the American public to repudiate its obligations, and there have been no instances of towns or cities defaulting on their obligations. The credit situation gradually improves and the more toward municipal economy gains force, most of these bonds will come back to their former price.

Owing to hesitancy of banks to loan cities and towns, they have been unable to refund their maturities in the normal way. Declining tax revenues and the severe drought of public works have added to the difficulty.

This situation will ultimately be remedied for the following reasons:

- 1.—The public is not thoroughly aroused to necessity for public economy. There will be a movement toward new load building and improvements until municipal budgets are balanced.
- 2.—The movement is on foot to have a portion of the gas taxes now paid to the states turned back to the towns to meet service of their debts and interest on city bonds.
- 3.—The very fact that cities cannot borrow more money will force municipalities to reduce expenditures and to encourage banks and investors to resume lending.
- 4.—Securely Behind Municipalities

Municipal bonds rest for their security upon the taxing power of the city. A certain part of the taxes is dedicated to service of the public debt. If necessary the bondholders can bring suit to enforce the collection of taxes with which to pay interest or principal on their bonds. If public officials about to default are unwilling or unable to levy and collect such taxes, the bondholders can secure a writ of certiorari to compel the officials to do so, or file a declaration in contempt of court. Courts are ready to grant such writs if necessary. In this period the courts have steadily upheld the rights of the municipal bondholders and will continue to do so.

Even stronger than the legal security is the pressure of public opinion and the public for a solvent city government. When a city is in default on its bonds, the effect on retail sales, mortgages and business generally is very bad. The man who does not know what taxes or assessments may be levied to will, therefore, do everything in his power to keep the city's bonds straight. If only to save their own business.

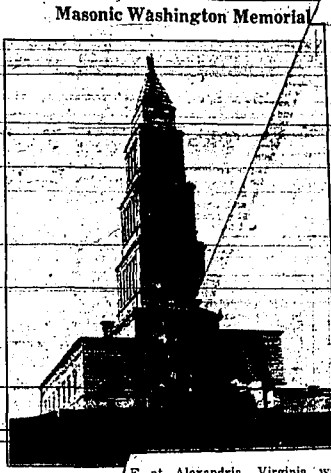

Moreover, every city must do something to make necessary improvements. Until any defaults or defaulted obligations are cleared up, of course, impossible for a city to borrow again. Such a situation is to the liking of the inhabitants, and they may be counted on to exert every effort to keep the city's credit good.

The great mass of the American people pay their taxes and they do not want their city to bear the reputation of repudiating its obligations. Municipal bonds cannot thus be abandoned like private corporations. When they get into difficulty, they get into it difficultly. They cannot run away and hide in business and where the whole community is temporarily insolvent bondholder who has patience without in the city.

Exempt Features Already

The scramble for tax exemption certificates is already under way in some of the midwest of pay on high income taxes. As a result, the tax-exempt features are more desirable than ever.

A cup of high grade municipal bonds will yield a current yield of 5 per cent. There are excellent opportunities in many times such bonds sell on a 1.50 basis. The investor who picks up the

Babson Points to Opportunities For Investors to Purchase Many Good Bonds From Municipalities

Bay State Statistician Expresses Faith in American Public's Intention to Repudiate Obligations, and Believes Most of Cities' Securities Will Come Back to Normal Price

By ROGER W. BABSON
 BOSTON, May 21.—Next to United States government bonds, the bonds and notes of towns and cities have always been considered the safest investments. Hence, it is a great shock to investors to find a number of municipalities and smaller cities in default, and even some of the larger centers having difficulty in meeting maturities. The shaking of confidence has been reflected in a general decline of municipal bond prices. 90 per cent of the municipalities are now very restrictive.

It is not the habit of the American public to repudiate its obligations, and I have every confidence that as the credit situation gradually improves and the move toward municipal economy gains force, most of these securities will come back with a strong price recovery.

Owing to hesitancy of banks to loan cities and towns has been one of their mainstays in the normal way. Declining tax revenues and the severe burden of public works and unemployment relief have added to the difficulty.

This situation will ultimately be righted for the following reasons:—The public is now thoroughly aroused to necessity for public economy. There will be a mobilization of the public mind to repudiate programs until municipal budgets are balanced.

A movement is on foot to have a portion of the gas taxes now paid to the states turned back to the cities to meet their necessities and interest on city bonds.

The very fact that cities cannot borrow more money will compel reductions and this in turn will encourage banks and investors to resume lending.

Recently the Municipal Bondholders' Association has been organized to protect the security upon the taxing power of the city. A certain part of the taxes is dedicated to service of the public debt. If necessary the bondholders can bring suit to enforce the collection of taxes with which to pay interest on principal on their bonds.

If public officials should be unwilling or unable to levy and collect such taxes, the bondholders can secure a writ from the federal court compelling the officials to do so. Such drastic measures are rarely necessary. In this period the cities have steadily upheld the rights of the municipal bondholders and will continue to do so.

Even stronger than the legal security is the pressure by business men and the public on the city government. When a city is in default on its bonds, the effect on real estate, mortgages, and business generally is so serious that no one wants to buy property where he does not know what taxes or assessments may be levied to satisfy bondholders' claims. Citizens will, therefore, do everything in their power to keep the city bonds straight, if only to save their own businesses.

Moreover, every city must do some borrowing to make necessary improvements. Until any default or threatened default is cleared up, it is, of course, impossible for a city to borrow again. Such a situation is not to the liking of the inhabitants and they may be counted on to exert every effort to keep the city's credit sound.

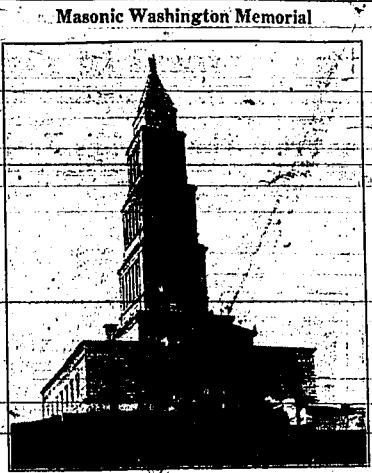

The great mass of the American people pay their taxes and they do not want their city to bear the reputation of repudiating its obligations. The situation is being cleared up and the light along in business; and, even where the whole community is temporarily inattentive, the bondholder who has patience will win out in the end.

My exempt feature attractive for the taxable for tax credit securities is already under way. Congress is in the midst of passing an income tax. As a result, many states are transferring their funds from taxable to tax exempt issues.

The day of a pay credit feature is fundamentally sound city and local bonds will soon pass.

A group of high grade municipalities has recently advanced from a yield basis of 5 1/2 to a current yield of 5 per cent. There are still excellent opportunities in ordinary lines. Each bond sold on a $50 to $100 basis.

AGED JEROME WOMAN ANSWERS LAST CALL

JEROME, May 21 (Special to The News)—Martha H. Hardwick, 66 wife of William D. Hardwick, died at her home this morning, at 9:30 o'clock. Death was due to old age with complications of heart trouble.

She had been ill for two weeks, but her condition was not serious until a week ago. The Hardwicks have been residents of Jerome since 1915. Their son, William N., came here in 1922.

Martha Rhodes was born in southern Illinois, October 3, 1846. She was married May 7, 1869, to William D. Hardwick, a civil war veteran who survives her.

Six children were born to them, three of whom survive and were at her bedside: A. B. Hardwick, Salt Lake City; T. J. Hardwick, Corvina, California; and William N. Hardwick, Jerome county assessor. In addition, she leaves a brother, A. B. Rhodes, at Portland, and seven grandchildren.

Mrs. Hardwick had been a lifelong member of the Baptist church, from which place the funeral will be held Monday, May 23, at 2 P. M. Rev. O. L. Johnson will officiate.

JEROME MAN PAYS ON CHARGE OF ASSAULT

JEROME, May 21 (Special to The News)—Carl Callen was fined $100 and costs amounting to $28.25, and sentenced to 30 days in jail when arraigned in probate court Friday morning on the complaint of L. C. Bevaus, who charged that Callen struck him down in a ditch and held him under water.

Jail sentence will be suspended on payment of the fine and costs, but only if he will have to serve the jail sentence on failure to pay the balance of the fine and costs at the rate of $2 per day. Ten days were given in which to appeal.

A WASHING MACHINE NEVER BEFORE CARRIED SO MANY MARVELS!

Cares that wash as silently, as easily, and as surely as a glove fits the hand—submerged agitators that move the clothes through the water, and move the water through the clothes, washing faster—wringers that flush the dirt and water out; but leave the buttons on—porcelain enamel tubs on Armco Iron or pressed aluminum tubs—roller ball bearings that are bronze and self oiling and never wear out.

Almost any one of the many features in Haag Washers would have been sufficient to have caused 1922 to go down in history as a banner year in washer design. Come in and let them show you these remarkable washers.

MANY NEW VOTERS ON REGISTRATION LIST FOR PRIMARY

Twin Falls Registrars' Figures Indicate 40 Per Cent Of Electors Enrolled Did Not Vote Two Years Ago

Unexpected last minute heavy registration of voters was an outstanding political development in Twin Falls county on the eve of the primary elections next Tuesday.

On the basis of registration figures in six Twin Falls precincts which showed 512 registered voters when the lists closed last night, 40 per cent, or 203, were registered for the first time this year.

There was no basis for determining whether the heavy registration indicated intense interest over any issue in the election of candidates, or whether registrars had been making an intensive canvass to earn 15 cents allowed for each new voter enrolled.

There are two outstanding changes in the new rules under which Idaho voters will cast their ballots in county-wide nominating elections. In the first place they will nominate not only candidates for state legislature and county offices, but for the first time in several years, they will nominate also candidates for congress and state offices. In the second, they will nominate candidates for congress and state offices who have already served in those offices. The second outstanding change in the new rules is the abolition of requirements for the filing of a declaration of political affiliation. One election board will now handle in each precinct the registration of voters, and each voter may ask, and receive the ballot of either of the two parties that may have candidates in that party. No record is to be made to indicate which party's ballot any voter asked for.

MASTERS REPLIES TO CONGRESSMAN SMITH

Mr. J. Masters, Pocatello, aspirant for Democratic nomination for congressman of the Second congressional district at the primary Tuesday, was in Twin Falls yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Masters.

Commenting on a reply issued yesterday from Washington, by Congressman Smith's office, Mr. Masters said: "The charge is contained in the paragraph of Mr. Smith's answer, which reads:

"Mr. Smith further stated that his only connection with the oleomargarine legislation pending before the Idaho legislature six years ago was to answer an inquiry from Hawley and Hawley (attorneys), Boise, requesting information concerning the rumored antagonistic attitude of Southern senators and representatives concerning this legislation, because of their interest in finding a market for cottonseed oil."

"This is the charge that I made concerning Congressman Smith's activities in this connection. I charged that he had a part in furnishing the information to the above named attorneys which caused three state senators to reverse themselves and vote for the passage of the bill, which passed the Idaho senate. It is useless for Congressman Smith to deny his part in this project, which was admitted in this statement just what I charged and I am glad it is no longer so to admit the truth of my charge."

KESSLER SPEAKS AT METHODIST CHURCH

By special arrangement, Harry B. Kessler, Boise attorney, will speak at the First Methodist Episcopal church this evening at 8 o'clock, according to announcement by the minister, Dr. Elijah Hull Longbrake.

It had been previously arranged that Kessler would meet J. T. Stratton, a dealer in Twin Falls, but owing to conflicts with other engagements the debate was delayed. The address of Mr. Kessler will in no way be a political speech, but will deal with the Prohibition question. The public is invited to attend, it is announced.

REGISTRAR REPORTS INDICATE INTEREST

Returns from Six City Precincts Show More Than 5000 Names on Books

Names of 5126 persons were on the registration books last evening at the time of closing in six of the seven precincts of Twin Falls city according to returns received by the registrars or from their homes.

There was no information received regarding registration in precinct number 1. In precinct number 2, the registrar was not at home when called on for returns, but was given by a member of the family. In some other precincts, a check had been made but it was stated that a recheck might show slight alterations.

The following are the figures as received: Precinct number 2, old 500, new 287; precinct number 3, old 498, new 398; precinct number 4, old 500, new 425; precinct number 5, old 475, new 225; precinct number 6, old 387, new 400; precinct number 7, old 545, new 241.

An Announcement

We are pleased to announce that our MR. ZENAS SMITH will go on the air, over K.T.F.I. at 10:30 A. M., MONDAY, MAY 23d and each morning thereafter, giving a series of short talks on BREAD MAKING IN THE HOME.

Mr. Smith feels that the making of yeast fermented bread, in the home, by the housewife, is becoming a lost art, which he greatly deprecates, and he plans to give these radio talks in an effort to alter this trend.

ROYAL BAKERY
 Bakers of Butter-Krust and Butter-Nut Bread

To The Housewives of Southern Idaho

I want to tell you how to make bread, easily in your own home. Bread is your one best and cheapest food, and about the only basic food over which you have absolute control. You cannot grind your own flour; nor furnish the meat, eggs, milk, fruit, vegetables, etc., you serve unless you have at your command a flour mill, a slaughter house, chickens, cow, orchard and garden but you have every facility in your own kitchen for making your own bread, if you are not satisfied with the bread you find for sale. You, therefore, should know how to make it, and try a batch occasionally although you may prefer not to do so, steadily. Where is the housewife, who, giving a dinner party, would not like to serve fresh, hot homemade rolls to her guests? Just think! rolls she made herself, that she started just 2 hours before she served them, piping hot, from her own oven. Would you like to do this? I know you would.

I expect to tell, over KTFI just how this can be easily done, in the home, and will answer, over the air, questions that come to me by letter or phone.

It has been suggested that I will kill my own business by telling the housewife how to make the products we sell but I do not agree with that idea. Rather, do I think, the housewife and the members of her family, will become more "bread conscious;" will develop an appreciation of and a liking for good bread; will eat more bread and will want and demand the best Baker's bread they can get when they buy what they do not care to bake.

Therefore, ladies who can tune in on KTFI, remember please, that I will begin my talks on Monday, May 23d at 10:30 o'clock A. M. and daily at that hour thereafter.
