Babson Reveals Fact—Supported By History—That Bargain Days In Commodities Won't Last Forever

Those Who Hoard Currency Instead of Making Purchases of Goods and Securities Will Wake Up to Find Their Currency Has Depreciated in Value As Prices Move Upward

By ROGER W. BABSON
 BABSON PARK, Mass., Aug. 15.—The recent sharp upturn in prices of stocks, bonds, wheat, and other commodities emphasizes the fact that bargain days won't last forever. Those who hoard currency instead of making purchases of goods and securities will wake up to find that their currency has depreciated in value where goods and securities have appreciated. In other words, as prices rise, the buying power of the dollar will fall, and goods and securities will be worth more than the money.

Opportunity has knocked at the door of the hoarder of currency, but those who delay too long will find the bargains are gone. The way both under and over is to buy when the reward is to buy when markets are greatly undervalued and sell when they become overvalued. In this period that means to buy commodities, stocks, and bonds—with discrimination of course, but nevertheless, to buy.

Sell Money And Buy Equities
 The outstanding successes financially, intellectually, and artistically have been men who dared to break away from the crowd and follow the dictates of their own judgment. No student of history can be pessimistic today. He knows that prosperity will return just as it always has after the great depression of the past, and that prices will rise.

Indeed, we may now be rounding the turn, as the recent encouraging action of commodities, bonds, and stocks tends to show. The man who comes out of this depression stronger than he went into it will be the one who now refuses to follow the pessimists and who accumulates goods and securities instead of currency. The time to sell goods and securities and to buy money was in 1928 and 1929. The time to sell money in exchange for goods and securities is in 1932.

Such great opportunities as exist today occur not more than once in a generation. Wholesale industrial commodity prices are now the lowest since 1914. Agricultural commodity prices are 37 per cent below 1929, and the lowest in the twentieth century since 1914. Agricultural commodity prices are 33 per cent below that of three years ago. A number of individual commodities are selling the lowest in this century and some of them lower than they were in the depression of 1929-30.

Whether the "recoil" upward means the final low has been passed remains to be seen, but should serve as a warning to those who are delaying need purchases that currency is being hoarded, cannot be done forever. Here again discrimination must be used as all commodities do not move alike.

Stock Market Opportunities
 At this writing the stock market has shown encouraging gains following the rise in the price of bond prices. Here again is confidence that the security markets are tending to stabilize. Whether the final low point in the market has been seen or not, it is foolish to overlook the exceptional bargains that can be picked up in good stocks.

Notwithstanding the recent advance in the Dow-Jones index, the stock average at the present writing is at the 1914 level, whereas the value of the corporation of the total wealth of the country are far greater than they were in 1914. Some of the reasons for this are net quick assets and some hoarded at not more than the cash holdings of the company.

This cannot last. The investor who waits too long will miss the bargains.

Whether it is a mere coincidence or not, the last real market depression of the major business depressions since the Civil war ended between 1873 and 1877. The Dow-Jones index was reached in June 1893. In the period from 1893 to 1896 the final low point was reached in August 1893. In the 1907-1908 depression the final low point was reached in October 1907. In the 1929-30 depression the final low point was reached in October 1929. Some observers point out that if business is to recover this year the stock market will reflect it during the next two months.

Working Men
 I recognize that not everybody can buy. The purchasing power of the mass of the people is low. However, there are many who could buy if they would and if those who would get over their fears and make purchases near their normal purchasing power, the depression would give an end. The dollars, whether in the bank or hidden in the home, mean to trade, mean working men, Afford employment and the purchasing power of the masses will not once more.

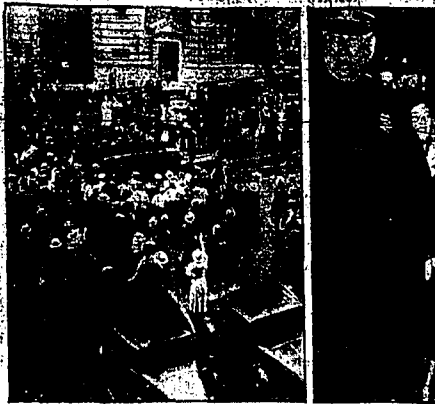

The banks are full of money. The corporations have very large cash balances. The credit for money instead of goods has increased. The amount of currency outstanding from $4,764,000,000 in July 1929 to $2,742,000,000 today. The trouble is that the money is not circulating fast enough. This is shown by the decline in check transactions which were running at the monthly rate of $77,918,000,000 in 1929 and are now at the rate of only $25,000,000,000.

By buying needed goods and securities at their present prices, people can do more to give employment and relieve suffering than in any other way. Not only will they better themselves by doing, but they will perform a great service to their fellow-men.

The only way to make money in the long run is by rendering service, and this is the important thing to remember. The reward for service is rendered in higher prices, higher employment, higher business, and higher human progress. Furthermore, in buying other stocks, bonds, or commodities, the greatest rewards will be obtained in the greatest degree by buying only in those companies which are themselves performing a real service and are operated by men of character.

Business as estimated by the Babson Park Institute is given for the year 1930. (Copyright, 1932, Publishers Financial Bureau.)

The banks are full of money. The corporations have very large cash balances. The credit for money instead of goods has increased. The amount of currency outstanding from $4,764,000,000 in July 1929 to $2,742,000,000 today. The trouble is that the money is not circulating fast enough. This is shown by the decline in check transactions which were running at the monthly rate of $77,918,000,000 in 1929 and are now at the rate of only $25,000,000,000.

By buying needed goods and securities at their present prices, people can do more to give employment and relieve suffering than in any other way. Not only will they better themselves by doing, but they will perform a great service to their fellow-men.

Idaho's Hopes Hinge on Ability of Sophomore Linesmen

Twin Falls, Filer, Burley and Rupert Contribute Talent

List of Lettermen Includes

Nels Fowler, Paul Taylor, Russell Hill, Melvin Spokett and John Norby

Idaho's hopes for the national championship hinge on the ability of its sophomore linesmen. The team, coached by the University of Idaho's Coach, has a roster of 13 lettermen. In the line seven of the 10 leading candidates from Idaho. Each will be added to the squad. Pre-season dops for Idaho points toward a whitewash and plenty of good work and one unknown factor. A green line—a powerful line was the notable feature of last year's freshman eleven, and men from that team who move into the varsity line this fall will make some of the veterans hump to hold down their jobs.

Far from unlucky for Idaho will be the following 13 lettermen: Nels Fowler, Burley; Lawrence Hanzell, Moscow; Cyril Schmitz, Lewiston; Jule Hanford, Los Angeles; Paul Taylor, Twin Falls; Leslie Russell Hill, Filer; Max Bolso, Boise; Charles Williams, Schellie; San Diego; halfbacks—Melvin Spokett, Twin Falls; John Norby, Rupert; quarterbacks—George Wilson, Moscow; and Willie Smith, Boise; fullbacks—Leo Tyrrell, Moscow.

Added to this group will be several varsity reserves and an outfit of sophomores who went like houses in spring practice. They are these sophomores, averaging 180 pounds in weight, will fight it out as rookies with letterman Hill. They are Edward McInerney and Marion Malmo, Spokane; Robert Moser, Rupert; Bernard Robert, St. Maries; and Clifford Berg, a Canadian.

Albert Berg, Idaho Falls, and Richard Nutting, Rupert, are a pair of good sophomore guard candidates. George Hogan, Lorenzo, and William Stratford, Twin Falls, are 1931 reserves who should play right well as guards in spring practice. For reserve centers Idaho will have Herschel Green, Orofino, pivot man of last year's freshman eleven, and Daniel Aukett, Spokane, a reserve lineman whose big hands qualify him for the job.

Harry Jacobs, Bonners Ferry, is a reserve who will play regular halfbacks a hump and Orlin Blain, Camas, midget of the squad, showed enough stuff last spring to earn him a spot in the regular quarterbacks. Cyril Geraghty, fastest man on the Idaho basketball squad, will also be in the running as a signal-barking ball player.

Paul Berg, Idaho Falls, brother of the guard candidate, is the most promising sophomore backfield prospect. Douglas Gordon, Ashton, a new man at fullback, practically clinched a varsity berth with his sparkling play in practice games last spring. Earl Smith, 190-pound sophomore from Filer, will further fortify the fullback position. He is the "Big Smith" who played with Willis "Little" Smith on the 1930 freshman team.

Football practice will open this fall on September 10, a week earlier than usual.

Desperate Spurt Keeps Bears World Champions

CALIFORNIA'S varsity crew won the Tenth Olympiad eight-oared championship by a margin of inches in one of the most spectacular rowing finishes ever witnessed. Italy's University of Pisa boatload was so close that only a desperate spurt swept the Golden Bears to victory on the very last stroke, only a matter of inches ahead of the Italians. The Californians covered the 2000 meters in 6 minutes, 37 3/5 seconds, Italy a tenth of a second behind, closely followed by Canada, third, and Great Britain. Less than a boat-length separated the four crews. Four years ago California crew won the Olympic title at Amsterdam. (P) Photo.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.—Brooklyn Dodgers, continuing their headlong dash toward the top of the National League, advanced within half a game of second place and one-half game of the pace-setting Chicago Cubs as they humbled the Pittsburgh Pirates, 11 to 6, in the only game played in the major leagues today.

In accounting for their twelfth victory in their last 20 games, sending the second-place Pirates to their fourteenth defeat in 15 games, the Dodgers scored all of their runs in the first two innings. Nine of the runs crossed the plate in the first frame and two in the second.

Edwin Mains started on the mound for the Pirates but was forced to give way to Bill Harris in the first. Mains' run, sent to the show by the Dodgers in the second inning, Chicagoan finished the game, holding the Brooklyn scoreless.

Breaks Helene's Mark

Beatrice powdered her nose thoughtfully. "This is a great contest, don't you think?" she asked calmly. "Especially things you see kept quiet. It's a nasty little way they have." Beatrice had said, but to his way of thinking it was nobody's business, certainly not her. "A fine sort of 'beat' here," she told Sondra. He thought grimly. "I want to see Merriman yesterday," he said after a moment. "He's in a hospital, you know... Didn't look so bad, I thought... but both and white, but the eyes been ill. Always liked Merriman myself." "Simply love him," Beatrice agreed. "But I can't help seeing that it was a mistake for Sondra to marry him." (Copyright, 1932, by Ruby M. Ares.) (To Be Continued)

ENGINEER PLANS FOR FEDERAL HATCHERY

Possibly that work may start on the federal fish hatchery on the old site of the late Stegman within the next 30 days, was indicated last night by U. S. Chief, San Francisco, engineer of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, who has established headquarters at the Park hotel while negotiating preliminary surveys for the hatchery, department's residence and water supply.

Mr. Gilroy said that there had been some cut in the original appropriation, the extent of which he had not ascertained, which would probably in a measure affect the size of the house and the hatchery. Further announcements will probably be made shortly and in the meantime he would proceed with preliminary engineering work which would be completed within a couple of weeks. He would then go elsewhere on the preliminary survey for the hatchery, department's residence and water supply.
