Southern California Stars Stand Out in Mythical Eleven

Four Trojans Find Berths on Eleven Picked by Experts

Triple-Threat Stars in Backfield, Pass-Snagging Ends And Rare Combination of Linemen Feature Choice

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—Triple-threat stars in the backfield, pass-snagging ends and a combination of line linemen that might have deforested the change of the light brigade, make up the mythical eleven chosen by experts in the annual all-Pacific coast football team presented today, as the consensus of leading experts of the West.

Southern California, conference for a second consecutive year, was accorded four places on the first team as a tribute to a season that thus far has neither given nor its Washington State, California, St. Mary's, Stanford, Washington, Santa Clara and the University of California, which placed a man on the mythical eleven that would line up under the standard of the Pacific slope.

Represents All collisions More than 30 sports writers, officials and coaches polled their own memories of the season of first, second, third and fourth place, and once listed, nevertheless placed four players on the second team, while St. Mary's college claimed the majority of positions on the third team, with three. Strangely enough, Washington State, which finished second in the conference race, placed two men, one on the first line and the other on the third string. In this case the selectors were confronted with the problem of placing a team that had no individual stars but functioned in impressive fashion as a unit.

St. Mary's and Montana were able to muster sufficient votes to place men although each had candidates that received mention. Willis Smith, a quarterback from St. Mary's, and a fullback from Montana, were the only players to receive more than one vote.

Black-haired Angel Brown, St. Mary's, was picked as fullback by more than three times the vote of the other rivals. "Mike" Mikulak, Oregon, and Max Kruse, Gonzaga, chosen for the second and third teams.

Joe Coates, University of California, was picked as quarterback, while Howard Christie, California, for the center position by a scant margin. Dave Hackett, Washington State, was chosen as a guard, and as a center, received the call for one end while Frank Williams, Stanford, was chosen for the other end. The team was moved in on the other flank. Black-haired Angel Brown, St. Mary's, was picked as the "handy" man of the team. Coates, the team's leader, besides handling regular end duties he was often called upon to throw passes or run with the ball.

While the Giant Rosenberg was a big favorite for one of the guard positions, his line mate, Stanford, was chosen for the other end. The team was moved in on the other flank. Black-haired Angel Brown, St. Mary's, was picked as the "handy" man of the team. Coates, the team's leader, besides handling regular end duties he was often called upon to throw passes or run with the ball.

Ketchell Whips "Ace" Hudkins In Coast Arena

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29 (AP)—Wesley Ketchell, the Portland, Oregon, southwest mauler, hammered out a decisive victory over "Ace" Hudkins, Nebraska, in a light heavyweight battle before 100 at the Olympic auditorium tonight. Ketchell entered the ring weighing 167 and his opponent was two and a half pounds heavier.

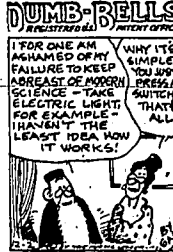

Although felled by a terrific left to the body for a nine count in the tenth round, Hudkins was able to weather the storm and saved himself from what looked for a moment would be the first battle he was ever to lose a knockout.

Hudkins trainers said after the fight that the wildest suffered two fractured ribs in one of the early rounds.

Through the early part of the fight the referee was far from his former self in the ring during days when he was a threat to titleholders from the light weight ranks on up, was able to hold his own. In the early rounds he lost his enthusiasm for the encounter, appearing 300

OF THE ELEVEN men selected from a consensus of coaches, officials and sports writers assembled by The Associated Press, four were from the University of Southern California while Santa Clara, Washington, Stanford, University of California at Los Angeles, Washington State, California and St. Mary's each placed one. Ernie Smith, Trojan tackle, was the only player accorded a place on the squad for the second successive year. (AP Photo)

Observations from the sidelines. Speeded the Game. Referee Les Dempsey thought the addition of the new rule to direct operations speeded the play considerably, but he thought the youngsters acting as field generals were the real stars.

The extra man managed to work up much enthusiasm as he harangued the players, and the referee reported he did not hear any order challenged by a player on either side.

They have been some who thought, however, it was pretty soft for a player to do a full back play with his volleys alone, with no blocking, and with no ball carrying or kicking to worry about.

The crowd reaction was the same as might have been had the quarterbacks been first active players. If the plays devised by the inexperienced twelfth men were successful, he immediately was classified as a star.

When time was called, the defensive line general rushed out to give his fellows the benefit of his

Given their unconditional release under the 10-year rule, the two veteran moundmen will be free to negotiate with any club for their services.

Mitchell has pitched for six major league clubs since joining the Detroit Tigers in 1917. He spent this year coaching the Glant pitchers.

Hoyt's major league career during the past two years had been one of ups and downs. Following 10 years of brilliant pitching for the New York Yankees, during which he won six and lost three world series, he was released to the Athletics on waivers this time to appear in his seventh world series.
