

FILER YOUTH WINS SCHOLARSHIP AWARD

Kendall Dayley, Successful Student Farmer and Beet Grower, Achieves Goal

Among the student-farmer candidates, Kendall Dayley, filer, yesterday named to receive the Union Pacific 1031-1032 scholarship for vocational agriculture for Twin Falls county's Smith-Hughes students.

The award, which was made on a basis of previous work, scholarship and leadership qualifications as indicated in student body, class and agricultural activities, gives to the recipient $100 and transportation to and from the University of Idaho agricultural college. Similar awards are made by the Union Pacific system in 10 Idaho counties each year.

Herschel Kline, filer high school student, was selected as alternate for this year's scholarship, and Bob Pierce, Don Miller and George Kline, all of Twin Falls, had outstanding sheep and swine projects and were strong contenders for the scholarship but, not having as many years experience in high school, they did not rank quite as high in leadership activities.

William Kerr, Boise, state director of vocational education, announced that the board of award was Mrs. Rose J. Wilson, county superintendent, and a number of other prominent citizens.

Each of the candidates for the scholarship was interviewed by a committee of the board here yesterday, in addition to submitting written records of project work and other activities.

Persistent Contender

Kendall Dayley, winner of the scholarship this year, was chosen last year as alternate to Ray Lincoln, filer, who received last year's award. He had been a candidate for the scholarship each year in high school. He was president of his class as a freshman, and member of the student council all four years in high school, besides taking an active part in all kinds of athletics.

During his three-year high school career, he has won several seed judging teams, Future Farmer activities, and last year as a senior he was president of the student body, editor of the school paper and captain of the football team. He expects to continue the scholarship at the University of Idaho in the fall of 1933.

His scholarship-winning project consisted of a 10-acre crop of sugar beets which yielded 253.84 net tons of beets delivered to the sugar factory. He kept cost of total crop at $10.52; 35 1/2 hours of horse labor at 5 cents per hour totaling $17.77, and 131 machine hours valued at $20.04.

In addition to the $1116.90 initial payment on the beets, Kendall estimates subsequent payments of at least $124.10. He also placed a value of 15 cents per ton on beet tops of 128.04, making a total of $179.96 credited to the 10-acre crop of beets.

The landowner received one-half of the returns from sale of beets, $230.50, and paid one-half the expense for seed, thinning, topping and hauling, which cost him $179.45, leaving a net of $440.89, and giving Kendall a book credit of $235.94. In addition to this, Kendall earned other labor on the farm against part of the cost of labor on the beet crop. This amounted to $118.75, which, added to his book credit, gives him actual returns of $475.77.

Stresses Cultural Methods

The land on which Kendall raised his beets had produced two crops of beets since it was plowed up from alfalfa. Kendall fall-plowed the land and was one of the first of the Twin Falls district's growers to get his crop planted. He secured an even stand, and was frequently complimented during the growing season for having one of the district's outstanding sugar beet fields.

Herschel Kline, named as alternate for this year's scholarship, won mainly on his scholarly standing and student activities. It was announced, he was president of the Future Farmers chapter during both his junior and senior years, was the state chapter and was third in its system states in an essay contest on livestock marketing, and has taken an active part in livestock judging contests in the state.

He is a speaker, and has spoken on 175 hens and pullets, and showed a net profit, even under trying conditions of last year.

ROTARIANS HEAR STORY OF GERMAN GOVERNMENT

Kaleidoscopic operations of the republican form of government established for Germany following the World war, and an explanation of that system of government made the subject of an address delivered by Ernest Paul Willy (Bill) Gerber, Twin Falls, guest speaker at a regular meeting of Twin Falls Rotary club at luncheon yesterday.

Mr. Gerber, who has been a resident of the United States since 1926 and is a naturalized American citizen, served for 10 years as an officer of the German army, including four years in the field during the World war period. Since coming to this country he has continued observation and study of German fiscal and political affairs.

In his talk at the Rotary club meeting yesterday, Mr. Gerber indicated features of the governments of France, England and the United States that had been incorporated in the German republican governmental scheme; outlined the development and objectives of the numerous German political parties, and traced the chain of events leading to the present critical state of affairs in the German government.

LOCAL BUTTERFAT PRICE RECORDS 3-CENT FALL

The price of butterfat in Twin Falls dropped 3 cents yesterday to 22 cents from a high mark for the year at 25 cents per pound. The high mark was attained with successive increases during the past three weeks carrying the price upward from 18 cents a pound.

O. E. Koster, Twin Falls manager for the Jerome Cooperative creamery, explained the price decline with the statement that while butter sold in San Francisco recently for 3 cents a pound more than in the Chicago market, butter could be hauled from Chicago to the Pacific coast for less than 1 1/2 cents a pound.
