DOLLAR RESERVES DIZZILY ON MART Stocks and Commodities Borrow Inflationary Wings to Score Rises

MARKETS AT A GLANCE NEW YORK, April 19 (AP)—Stocks and commodities were buoyant; inflationary wings to score rises. Dollar: irregular; gold-edged rise. Curb: strong; industrial rise sharply. Grain exchange: buoyant; leading currencies rose. Sugar: moderate; central buying strong sterling exchange. Sugar: higher; Cuban buying. Coffee: firm; commission house buying. CHICAGO: Wheat: buoyant; inflation reports suggested. Corn: higher; sympathy with wheat. Cattle: unevenly weak to strong; lower; sheep 10c lower; sugar 10c.

By JOHN L. COOLEY (Associated Press Financial Writer) NEW YORK, April 19—Stocks and commodities borrowed inflationary wings today and swooped forward on foreign exchange markets in response to the government's new foreign currency and commodity price levels.

A lighter gold embargo and the cessation of a renewed credit expansion campaign to which it seems as yet to be added measures, were factors in the rise of the public lands, says speculators. The impression that higher quotations should logically follow and markets swept upward under increasing momentum.

Dollar dips slightly. With the dollar dipping slightly, staples hastened to bridge the gap. Wheat, sugar and other staples were today more buoyant than copper, silver, steel, rubber, tin, bacon, and other commodities. Bacon was buoyant as war material markets soared. Utilities were troubled by news that the Federal Reserve had raised interest rates early today. Ralls, affected somewhat by another report, continued to lag most of the day, but finally pushed upward. United States Smelting, Iron-ore, Alaska, and Pacific, however, were buoyant as war material markets soared. # SCHOOL BANDS OF DISTRICT VIE IN MUSIC FESTIVAL

Event Brings Nearly 500 Student Musicians Here For Stirring Afternoon And Evening Programs

An audience which packed all available standing room at Twin Falls high school auditorium heard the closing program of a South Central Idaho district band music festival in which musicians from the local high school and schools of seven surrounding communities participated during the afternoon and evening. Senior bands from Buhl, Eden and Gooding played in the auditorium, and the Twin Falls band and the climaxed numbers, two marches played by mixed bands, were heard in the gymnasium.

In the afternoon, bands from Buhl, the Eden Junior band, Halley first year band, Hansen band, Kimberly first year band, Gooding Junior band, Buhl Junior band and the Twin Falls Junior band played selections in turn.

Blas, with R. L. Ewert directing, sent a band of 18 instruments, their first year of organization, and played in a manner that provided a bright future for band music at the school.

Eden's first year band was made up of 15 youngsters, some of whom joined the senior band of 24 pieces for the evening's program. It is the third year of band music at the school, and has L. W. Beebot, capable band musician, for director.

Halley's First Band Although Halley is one of the oldest settlements in the state, his first year band is the first school band. It is director, brought a 34 piece organization that pleased the audience with coordinated playing and snappy response to the director.

Gooding's junior band, perhaps the only organization of "real" instrument in the program, was composed of 58 musicians, all under 14 years of age.

Five of these young trumpet players drew spontaneous applause from the large crowd during the evening performance, when they marched out before their senior band and blared out the "trumpet flourish."

To add a bit of well placed humor to the program, Gooding was represented by 80 musicians in Twin Falls yesterday.

The younger band from Buhl demonstrated that O. B. Luke, director, has potential material for years to come. These youngsters played a march and an overture in mature manner as did their senior band on the evening's program.

Twenty-two young musicians from Hansen made up their first year band and played their three numbers in good rhythm. They were directed by R. E. Cihb.

Twin Falls' nearest neighbor, Kim## berly, also had a first year band at the festival, and their performance under W. Frank Warner's direction had the same music as the school should go far.

Thrilling Climax

Junior and senior bands from Twin Falls played the concluding numbers on both the afternoon and evening programs. The junior band played its two selections, a waltz and a march, in good tempo and harmony. The senior band with 75 pieces and complete even to shoe, bassoon and trumpet, played in the gymnasium proceeding the mixed bands appearance, and rendered Strauss' difficult "Don Quixote" suite and Herbert's "March of the Toys" in thoroughly professional manner.

The climax of the evening with nearly 80 instruments massed in the gymnasium, with six giant Sousa-shocks bobbing above the heads of the players and the directors, J. T. Chamberidge, standing on a chair at the front of the assembled bandmen, drew long applause from the crowd that followed the music from the auditorium to the gymnasium. They played their two marches, "Our Director" and "Washington Post" in well-nigh perfect rhythm, and blared out "fortissimo" with sharpness that set the ears ringing and the audience to stamping rhythmic feet.

DEATH SUMMONS FORMER LEADER IN LOCAL ACTIVITIES

Alvin Harbour, Prominent Twin Falls Business Man For Decade and Sometime State Official, Succumbs

John Alvin Harbour, 66, former Idaho commissioner of public works and for nearly 10 years a prominent citizen of Twin Falls, died Wednesday morning at Muskogee, Oklahoma, according to a message from Mrs. Harbour delivered to the Elk lodge here.

The former commissioner who left here last January with Mr. Harbour, was visiting relatives in Oklahoma.

His health had failed steadily for more than two years, and shortly before leaving here he was stricken with a slight paralytic attack.

No other information than that Mr. Harbour had died was contained in the message, that came here yesterday. Herman Delos, secretary of the Elk lodge, acted as the Muskogee lodge for word regarding arrangements for funeral services.

During most of the period of his residence in Twin Falls, Mr. Harbour was engaged in the produce trade, with which activity he had previously been identified for many years in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

He disposed of business interests here when he accepted appointment as commissioner of public works in January, 1921, and served in that capacity for one year. During that time he was stricken with severe illness, and following his return to Twin Falls after leaving the commissioner's office, his condition became worse.

Twin Falls Company's Directors Spend Day in Comprehensive Survey Here

Headquarters of the Twin Falls canal system at Miller will be re-opened sometime today in order for water deliveries through the system following a three-day period when water was turned out of the ditch, John Iron, Twin Falls Canal company manager, said last evening.

During the time water was out of the canal, watermeters and ditch riders made a thorough examination of the system, and members of the board of directors spent the entire day yesterday in a comprehensive survey of canals and laterals. This examination, Mr. Iron said last evening, indicated the system is apparently in excellent condition.
