Nation's Employers Throw Weight Behind Administration

PRESIDENT EXPECTS JOHNSON'S SCHEME TO BRING RESULTS

High Officials Express Confidence in Success of Gigantic Undertaking As Volunteers Appear

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—President Hoover and Hugh B. Johnson, administrator on national recovery, were confident of success tonight in their plan to bring the nation's employers into the wage-strike column being to bring results.

First reaction to the program launched last night came to Johnson in a wave of enthusiasm from employers and organizations pledging to do their part in coming to the voluntary agreement to increase the pay of their workers and have new jobs by limiting hours.

The president, meanwhile, was represented as well satisfied at the progress made in the new order, and as feeling that the cooperation to date has been excellent.

Among the employers who did not wait until the first agreement was the American Volunteer Union, which announced it would support the plan.

The United States Independent Telephone Association, representing the telephone companies, representing the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, and John Deere among others, have announced their support.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company, representing the telephone companies, representing the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, and John Deere among others, have announced their support.

A group of voluntary civic organizations, including the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., and others, have also pledged their support.

Today the chief executive agreed to the plan, which would be put into effect by the end of the month.

There is no enforcement power back of the plan, which already applies to silk, rayon and the thread industry.

Other industries to sign under the plan include the rubber and tire industry, the automobile industry, and the clothing industry.

There is no provision for blanket exception of any class of employees, but the plan is subject to the discretion of the Federal Labor Board.

For the present Johnson and his associates are circulating the agreement's main provisions. It applies to everybody everywhere who employs more than two workers.

HEAR SCRIBES Sunday, Elvira O'Leary First Edition, 10:30 AM. Subject: "DRIVING A DREAM"

Officials List Purposes Of Approaching Campaign

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—Briefly stated, here is the essential purpose of the immediate campaign to bring about a new wage-strike agreement, with limiting agreement: To reestablish the purchasing power of the working population, so that consumption may catch up immediately with mounting production and keep business moving. To get wage increasing movement, with curtailed working hours, spread to the whole collar class, and to the whole class of unorganized business.

This purpose is to be achieved in the following manner: By asking all employers of more than two persons to sign an agreement to limit working hours and wage terms, with assurance against undue price increase and a pledge to help bring in a new wage-strike competition for their particular line by September 1.

By obtaining pledges from the employers to stop their shopping at competing business establishments.

The drive begins officially August 1. All signatures on agreements are to be in by September 1, and by then also are to be submitted to the Federal Labor Board, every form of business enterprise.

The temporary voluntary agreement will be in force until, meanwhile, applied by order until the last day of December.

However, after September 1, the Federal Labor Board will begin holding hearings for every industrial and trade line that the not volunteered to sign, and every employer of more than two persons.

By the time the Federal Labor Board has held its hearings, the Federal Labor Board will have a list of all employers of more than two persons who have not volunteered to sign.

STOCKS CAREEN—GRAIN PITTS REMAIN CLOSED—ROOSEVELT WATCHES

The cotton and security market at the board of trade will be open for two hours, starting at 9 and closing at 11, one hour shorter than usual.

The decision was reached after the directors had wrangled for almost five hours at an emergency meeting. F. C. Carey, president of the exchange, made the announcement and said that it was in compliance with numerous requests from outside exchanges and from the grain trade generally.

Carey also said that the last of Thursday's market was not closed until 11:45 o'clock this afternoon.

There were mounted to 2,952,570 shares, largest since October 30, 1929, when 10,727,300 shares changed hands on the New York stock exchange.

For more than an hour this afternoon trading was professional. Heavy orders from outside built up strong groups of professional traders who had helped build the margin accounts and from right-wing owners of stocks.

Support seemed entirely lacking and a very narrow Wall Street averaged when the bottom would be reached.

About 2:30 o'clock, with the tape running half an hour late, the market found relief and staggered upward. United States Steel common was high of $52.50, all a net loss of $5. American Telephone, suspended, fell to $14 where it was $2.75.

The Associated Press Standard Statistics agency, thanks to this late recovery, showed a smaller net loss than on Thursday—$7.40 a share against $20 yesterday. There were many net declines of $2 to around $10, and a few still larger.

Wall Street was stunned by the abundance of the break, which developed suddenly around 1 o'clock.

With leading grain markets closed, the market may have taken fright at a plunge of $4 a bushel to about 70 cents, there was nothing in the day's grain market but a mild case of alarm.

Prices had been moderately higher throughout most of the morning.

Offers of grain were plentiful, but a slow increase of selling orders quickly disclosed the vacuum which the market had harbored.

At this situation became more apparent, offering swelled and prices edged, until early in the last hour the break had reached a point unimagined since the previous week.

Whether the support would finally be thrown together, or "barren" would be the result, was not disclosed, but presumably the market would be a natural result from so violent a decline.

The financial district was filled with rumors that the stock exchange contemplated closing, if for no other reason than to give a respite to country farmers at their summer houses. However, governors of the exchange, who alone have the power to close the market, had no meeting and it was said that no plans were afoot for a suspension.

market's readjustment from a "State." "I have much hope," he said, "that Congress will find a way to limit it. I do not put an end to this great enterprise in two days and industry will be suffering to the extent of a wheat price in business days which led to the closing of grain markets. Senator Arthur Capper said today that the stock exchange and the grain crop are "making ready to take us for another ride" and that if permitted to go, "they will lead us to another and worse smash than had in 1929."

READY FOR ANOTHER RIDE GLEBEUR, Kas., July 21 (AP)—Senator Arthur Capper said today that the stock exchange and the grain crop are "making ready to take us for another ride" and that if permitted to go, "they will lead us to another and worse smash than had in 1929."

The senior Kansas senator, a Republican, told Potomac and other country farmers at their summer community picnic "something must be done at the next session of Congress to stop market gambling if we are to have—and to maintain—stable and prosperous business conditions in the United States."

CLOSE EXCHANGE KANSAS CITY, July 21 (AP)—Director of the Kansas City Board of Trade said today that the stock exchange closed tonight to permit the clearing up of accumulated orders following the drastic grain price descent of Wednesday and Thursday. The exchange was closed because of business conditions in the United States.

MINING PICKS UP IN NORTH IDAHO

William H. Simmons, State Inspector, Reports on Observations on Tour

BOISE July 21 (AP)—Mining activity in northern Idaho, principally gold, is increasing rapidly, reports William H. Simmons, state mining inspector, on his return Thursday afternoon on a trip to Clearwater and Idaho counties. In the course of the tour, the inspector visited the Elk City district on the south fork of the Clearwater river in Idaho county and the Elk River and Pierce City districts in Clearwater county.

Many small placers, more than ever before, are at work around the river, the inspector said, and most are making a last year's haul. Some are doing considerably better. Pierce City territory also is opening up. The Clearwater has been reopened and a mill is being built. The Idaho Open is making good headway in its second year, and the Clearwater is taking out about 1700 a day, and if the operations can be maintained, they plan to put in new machinery.

Plan for Placering
On Hays creek a dam has been built, and the overburden is being removed by a realigning of the stream, preparatory to extensive placering.

As a result of lines near Elk City is being opened up, with the making of the best commercial deposit made since 1920. The quality of the rock makes it easily one of the best in the West, and it is so good that it is being used as a substitute for iron ore in a number of furnaces. One kind is now in operation.

More than a thousand persons have gone into the Elk City region this year to search for gold. Simmons estimated, and there has been much development, chiefly in the reopening of old properties. Some of these "look very good."

DERN, SECRETARY OF WAR, COUNSELS OPTIMISM IN UTAH

The great depression came upon the state and was worse as it spread as any other class in checking the decline. They were as barren of ideas as the farmers in suggesting practical methods of recovery.

Industry's greatest failure, in my opinion, was lack of leadership. Its leaders gave no evidence that they knew the impending changes, and almost revolutionary in character. They were not prepared to meet the new conditions with any new program of their own. They were not prepared to make their own efforts a source of planned production and operation to meet these changing conditions.

Defending the act against the criticism of radicalism, Secretary Dern said: "It is too radical to say that women shall not be drafted through extremely low wages and that children shall not be crippled by excessive work. It is too radical to say that men and women who want to work shall not starve. It is too radical to say that business shall not prosper, that big business shall not expand and develop small business."

"It is too radical to say that property cannot be restored as long as the purchasing power of the currency and of labor has been maintained, and when business and industry are growing blindly to maintain their resistance. It is radical to try to do away with what is willing to work for depression and to substitute therefore a sane and balanced program of reasonable prosperity with its work for a sense of permanency. It is radical to seek to provide employment for every man who is willing to work for a fair wage? It is not think so."

Declaring the sole hope of revival, and ultimate salvation of industry is in the policies adopted under the new deal, the secretary added: "It is too much to expect that every small of the present's vast program will be set out exactly as anticipated. But let us not lose our sense of proportion. The fight is to have a nation and a civilization. Let us keep this great objective before our eyes and refuse to be discouraged because of minor or isolated reverses. At the very least we can give our untapped resources to this plan with the certainty that it will do more to dispel the clouds that resulted from the application of outmoded Nineteenth century economic methods to Twentieth century economic conditions and circumstances."

Governor Dern will proceed tomorrow on the army transport plane in which he is traveling to Boise, to address the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce and other officials, and then to Sacramento, California to speak at the national governors' conference next week.
