Key Man In Gigantic Undertaking Finds Inspiration As 'Men and Women of Great Nation, Suddenly Stirred, Rise Together Like Vast Army From Dismal Bivouac'

WASHINGTON, July 25—An estimate that between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 workers would be re-employed before Labor day was made tonight by Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator of national recovery, as he told the nation that "nothing can stop" President Roosevelt's program.

Thousands of employers informed President Roosevelt that they were raising the pay and shortening the hours of their workers.

From villages and crowded metropolitan centers, there came a steady flow of yellow and blue messages pledging whole-hearted cooperation to his appeal that might lead to national or increase present pay rights and shorten working hours to put more persons to work.

Addressing Nation As the key man of the administration program for other lines, Johnson addressed the nation July 25 at 10:30 a. m. from the White House.

Johnson said he had received for the first time 10,000 replies for his appeal to the nation. He said that the White House pledges support to the program.

Chief Executive Councils Governors In Long-Distance Call To San Francisco

WASHINGTON, July 25—President Roosevelt, in a talk across the continent tonight to the conference of governors at San Francisco, asserted that "one of the great problems before us" is "to determine the joint responsibilities of many great tasks" by the federal and state governments.

The president cited the proposition of oil production control and the handling of national oil production and consumption.

But in coming to grips with the problem under the states have a function to perform which is of great importance.

Another problem is a considerable factor in the effective use of the lands over wide areas of the country.

There are problems which are of national importance and which require the cooperation of both the federal government and the states.

Roosevelt thanked the governors for their cooperation and for their support of his national industrial recovery program.

The exchanges are expected to open their books to public inspection and to agree to these limits soon.

OCEANSIDE, Calif., July 25—Seven men were killed today in the wreck of a giant, twin-motor army bomber, which lost a wing in mid-air and careened downward from 1000 feet into a hollow at the Oceanic side of the Pacific.

The credit for saving those who perished from a fiery tier in the wreckage was given by pilots who veiled the scene to Pilot Murray, who cut the switch as the plane went into its death dive.

Those killed were: SECOND LIEUTENANT CARL H. MURRAY, Filer, Idaho, the pilot, who was attached to the Seventeenth group headquarters at March field, Riverside, home base of the plane.

Private Walter B. Taylor, Los Angeles, of the Ninety-fifth squadron, Private Stanley O'Keefe, Coronado, California, of the Ninety-fifth squadron, and Private Vincent Galdin, Grand Rapids, Michigan, of the Ninety-fifth squadron.

The plane, an amphibian, was bought from March field to Rockwell field, San Diego, on a service trip to the Hawaiian Islands. It was on a mission to land at noon. It flew smoothly until it crashed, the southeastern city.

Mr. H. W. Glasco, near whose house the crash occurred, said that he was attracted to the wreckage by a loud report which was overheard.

The decline of 4 degrees has given instruction to a group of Twin Falls student fliers, under an arrangement which includes the use of the plane. This is why GENERAL JUMBOS are Safer Easier Riding

Jumbos run with the lowest pressure ever known—only 12 to 15 lbs. with no shimmy or jolting. The tight lock section fits so close that the Jumbo is built like a bridge—meets the base for support. This design bears the car's hold it steady at all speeds—provides stability and safety especially with the use of the Jumbo's so-called "doghead" rim. The Jumbo never tumbles—no matter how rapid the power loss—leaves size, even, even tread wear.

May Be Of Interest To You
We thought it was so timely that we wired for permission to use it. This article appeared in one of Babson's business bulletins for his clients only, and was not intended as a spur to increase retail sales. He did not have stores in mind when he wrote it; he had their customers.

The Babsonchart INTERPRETED BY THIS Barometer Letter
Advice To Your Wife
We very seldom "descend" to speak of such homely, practical affairs as pantries, cup-boards, linen-chests and clothes-closets. This page of the Barometer Letter is usually reserved for "dignified" discussions of fundamental principles and the weightier matters of business and finance. But at this particular time we do feel that we ought to speak a frank word to our clients as individuals,—not in investors, not business executives, but rather the men and women of the home. Hence, this is now our earnest advice to you: Stock up fully on personal and household equipment and supplies at the earliest possible moment. Retail prices are going higher. In saying this, we have no thought of stimulating national recovery. We are merely trying to save you hundreds of dollars on your own larder and wardrobe while prices still remain relatively low.

Clothes, overcoats, shoes, shirts, underwear, stockings, socks, dresses, sheets, pillow-cases, towels and other goods are going to be marked up. Nobody can say how much higher,—but plenty. Do not forget curtains, rugs, floor-wax, and paint. By acting promptly you can find some stores which still have low-cost goods on the shelves; but your retailer cannot replace that merchandise except at much higher prices. While they are still left, pick up the bargains. Fall prices will make you wince. Get the children outfitted for school now. Just a year ago we told you that securities were at their lowest point* and we begged you with tears in our eyes to buy them. Now retail prices are in the same position and we now likewise urge you to replace your home needs.

Lay in a good supply of canned goods: Tomatoes, beans, corn, peas, spinach, pears, pineapples, peaches. Same for preserves, pickles, olives; likewise cocoa, sugar, flour, raisins, prunes. Dishes, silverware and paper products are also a buy. So is furniture: Chairs, tables, beds, mattresses. Rush your orders for home mechanical articles,—refrigerators, washing-machines, radios, electric stoves,—not forgetting automobiles and accessories. In last week's Barometer Letter we gave you the arguments why retail prices will advance. The time has passed for argument; the time has arrived for action.
