TWO AIRMEN BEGIN FRANCE-CALIFORNIA 6100-MILE FLIGHT

Veteran Aviators, Paul Codo and Maurice Rossi, Head Westward; Plane Carries 2,000 Gallons of Fuel

They were following closely the route which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took on his historic flight... They headed for the Selby Islands.

By JOHN EVANS (Associated Press Foreign Staff) LE BOURGEOIS, France, May 27 (Sunday)—Continuing westward from California, the two men made a non-stop flight, the veteran French fliers Paul Codo and Maurice Rossi soared into a dawn-streaked sky today in the plane which holds the present world record.

They took off at 4:10 a. m. (1:17 p. m. Eastern Standard Time) from the Selby Islands, north of the Azores, and rose slowly and steadily after bumping dangerously over 5,000 feet.

Suddenly deciding Saturday, after weeks of quiet preparation, that the time was ripe, the two fliers who flew 2,035 miles in 1933 from New York to Syria, set out on the most ambitious non-stop flight ever undertaken.

Weather reports favored them in their dangerous westward Atlantic journey. Last reports, shortly before the flight, showed that the weather was good over the Atlantic with full winds.

The fliers took 20 minutes to minutes of the time they had announced. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

DRIVER INVOLVED IN CRASH JAYLED

Collision Victim, Mrs. A. J. Hartley, Reported in Grave Condition

Injured in a low-car head-on collision on the highway a half-mile east of Pileo last night, Mrs. A. J. Hartley, Curry, was reported late yesterday to be in a critical condition following a blood transfusion which was made earlier in the day, and Marshall Wilson, Shull, 23-year-old farm laborer, was taken yesterday from the hospital to the county jail to face prosecution, officers said, on a drunken driving charge. Wilson received cuts over the left eye. Both cars were demolished.

Wearing from "one side of the road" to the other, the car that Wilson was driving dashed headlong against the car in which Mrs. Hartley and her daughter, Mary Hartley, were returning from a picnic at Pileo.

The girl escaped serious injury, as also did Wilson's companions, William Rambo and Edson Day, both of Buhl.

Other motorists brought the injured persons to the hospital, and officers were summoned to the sheriff's office.

Wilson, who came to Idaho from Hawaii, was driving a Buick sedan which was being driven on the Clay Cox farm at Pileo.

Mrs. Bailey died at 1:30 o'clock in the morning.

MRS. BAILEY DIES AT HOSPITAL HERE

Funeral Services Will Be Held Monday for Resident of Curry

Mrs. Jennie Rainier Bailey, widow of the late A. M. Bailey and a resident of the Twin Falls district since 1910, died early Saturday morning at the county general hospital here, following a long illness of about six weeks duration. She was 68 years old.

Surviving children, all of whom are living, when she expired, surviving children are one daughter, Mrs. Mary Louise Deatley, Twin Falls, and three sons, Rex E. Bailey, Quincy, Illinois; Benjamin Noel Bailey, Piler, and Albert S. Bailey, Curry. She leaves also her brother, Earl G. Bailey, Twin Falls, and sister, Mrs. Ollie F. White, and nine grandchildren.

Born in Missouri, Mrs. Bailey, with her family, came to Idaho in 1910 and has since resided here. During the past several years she has made her home on a farm near Curry.

She was a member of the Christian church in Twin Falls.

Funeral services will be held at the Christian church tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Dr. W. E. Anderson will be in charge of the services. Interment will be in Twin Falls cemetery. The body rests at the Twin Falls mortuary until the hour of service.

DEBATE ON PIPE LINE, HIGHWAY SCHEDULED

Scheduled for hearing in the district court here at 10 o'clock Monday morning is Twin Falls city's answer to an order to show cause why the city should not be enjoined from continued use of a water pipe, 17 1/2 miles long, which the Twin Falls highway district contends is saturating a road foundation and standing in the way of a $70,000 improvement of the seven-mile Godwin-Twin Falls loop of United States highway route 23. The pipe, once used as a water supply line, extends from Twin Falls water filtration plant to the city.

A lawsuit scheduled for trial next Monday was postponed on request of attorneys yesterday, and members of the jury were thereafter granted an indefinite leave of absence.

During the current court term, juries were empaneled only twice, once for trial in a criminal action, and again for trial in a civil suit decided last Thursday.

MURDER SUSPECT HELD TO ANSWER

Blackie Wilson, Accused Of Girl's Death at Bureley, Awaits Trial

BURLEY, May 26—Accused of first degree murder in connection with the death of Della Stone, 22, in a Burley hospital last April 28, E. E. (Blackie) Wilson, American Falls restaurant operator, was held without bond to answer to the charge in the district court, following a preliminary hearing in the probate court here today.

A coroner's jury, reconvened to receive a report by the state chemist, found Miss Stone's death had been caused by poisoning. Witnesses said Wilson was with her in a hotel room shortly before she was taken from the hotel to the hospital where she died shortly afterward.

Preliminary hearing in Probate Judge Henry W. Tucker's court today was held behind closed doors no evidence of any such injury.

Investigating police and sheriff's officers said the boy wheeled directly in front of the car in which W. J. Sackett, Twin Falls school trustee, was riding with his brother-in-law, Joe Houston. Officers said the man in the car could not have seen the boy in time to avert the accident, and that it was apparent that the boy did not see the car. They praised the manner in which the car was handled to avert what they said might have been a more serious accident.

Hundreds of Thousands Of Ford V-8 Owners Say GREAT!

There isn't a lukewarm owner among the hundreds of thousands of Ford V-8 owners. They're all "sold" on their V-8's. Thousands and thousands of letters prove it.

And the Ford V-8, itself, did the selling.

The sensational V-8 engine sold them. This engine—the only V-type 8-cylinder engine selling under $2500—develops more power than any Ford engine ever built. It's fast. The fact that you can do over 80 miles an hour means you can drive 55-60-65 without engine strain. The reserve power is there. And it's smooth as only the inherently balanced design of the Ford V-8 engine can make it. Ford V-8 economy sold them. Costs for gas and oil are low, very low. And up-keep costs are light.

Ford comfort sold them. The comfort of transverse springs that act on all four wheels, of deep, soft cushions, and of wide seats.

We urge you to compare Ford V-8 performance with that of cars costing twice its price, and more. Once you have done so, you, too, will say "It's great!"

Ford V-8 prices start at $515, f.o.b. Detroit. Authorized Ford Finance Plans of the Universal Credit Company offer convenient terms of payment.

FEWER FAILURES

For the second week in May, Dun & Bradstreet reported the fewest failures for any similar period since 1920. In pre-depression years the average weekly failures were more than 400. A year ago they were 497. In the week referred to they were only 222.

If business concerns are not making money these days, at least they are holding out and getting along. And the "little fellow" in business cannot be doing so poorly as he has been generally supposed to be.

Nobody knows now whether there will be a relapse this year, as there was last year. But there is another of the many indications that so far, at least, conditions are fundamentally better.

ENGLAND'S RECOVERY

England, it has been said, is recovering from its depression faster than the United States and, without the drastic measures which were found necessary over here.

Apparently England has not yet stopped studying fundamental problems of depression and still seeks ways out and preventives for the future.

Recently the Parliamentary Council passed a resolution urging that shorter working hours be combined with longer school days and other measures to cure unemployment. It urged also that the school age be raised, that old age pensions be paid earlier than at present, that programs of public works be carried out, and that rural life be made more attractive.

STOPPING WHOLESOME MURDER

In moving to place an embargo on shipments of arms to Paraguay and Bolivia, the United States government is acting in harmony with world sentiment and making a practical move against war.

It is no secret that weapons, ammunition and war planes have been shipped to the belligerents from this country. There was no law against it. There have been heavy shipments also from Great Britain and other countries.

This will make a good precedent, too. It is time the so-called civilized nations began fighting war by the common-sense process of starving it out.

BELLOWED ADS

Profacts of Police in Paris in recent years have been trying, as have authorities in some American cities, to make the advertiser thought of something which bids fair to make the fight necessary all over again.

At an important street intersection the advertiser erected a two-story picture, illuminated at night, showing the Eiffel Tower against the background of a gigantic format representing the front page of an evening paper.

Common sense and good taste ought to prevent this sort of thing, but don't so laws are necessary. Some one has said that noise is the most impertinent of interruptions.

A NATURAL CHURCH

A tendency toward spiritual decadence among the American people has been the theme of alarming warnings voiced recently in recent years by various conscientious religious leaders.

Whichever truth is behind this anxiety, however, is not susceptible to mathematical demonstration. The statistics, to the contrary, all point the other way.

NO MORE "FREE POWER"

Perhaps the most important one thing in the primary was the proof it gave that the radical political preference now goes to the man who serves the people no less faithfully because he uses his shirt as a covering for his body instead of a flag.

BREAKFAST FOOD

A woman had gone to Spokane for the first time in her life. On her return to London she expressed herself as quite surprised at the comparative creation of the North.

PERHAPS

It is no secret that weapons, ammunition and war planes have been shipped to the belligerents from this country. There was no law against it. There have been heavy shipments also from Great Britain and other countries.

This will make a good precedent, too. It is time the so-called civilized nations began fighting war by the common-sense process of starving it out.

Stirs Community Interest In Re-Painting And Remodeling Homes

Remodeling Easy, Inexpensive

Modernizing Simple Matter If Definite Plan Is Followed Carefully

In recent years, a great deal has been written about the possibilities in remodeling. Convincing proof that there are possibilities in remodeling is offered in the accompanying illustration.

Shown below is an actual photograph of a nondescript old house of no particular architectural interest and certainly of no particular charm. Along with it is an architect's rendering graphically portraying unthought of possibilities heretofore unnoticed by the unaided owner.

In place of the uninteresting old house, there now stands a modern structure of pleasing proportions. Authentic architectural detail and increased value. This was accomplished without spending a great deal of money.

It was a problem of rehabilitating rather than reconstruction, for in this case, the general lines and proportion of the superstructure were good. The secret was to recognize them and bring them to the fore.

The porch was ugly and detracted from the simple beauty of the main structure. It should have been removed, so off it came. Old windows were replaced with new ones, both decorative and having divided lights. Colorful tile awnings were added and the house began to take a style identifying it with a "Colonial Period."

The bedrooms were made more livable by the addition of small ash in the front. A stock, six panel Colonial door was placed on the front and over it was hung a simple lantern type fixture. In the rear, an inexpensive trellis was added to decorate and shield the back porch.

Probably the most effective aid in the transformation was terracing and the foundation plan. In this manner, the awkwardness of the original home was eliminated by tying the house more naturally to its lot. A splendid chimney was enhanced by a bushy climbing vine.

Three good coats of paint furnishing the final touch to this exterior transformation. Before painting, a blow torch was used to remove all old paint, new white coat, with an aluminum base, was applied, after which came two coats of red and oil. With proper upkeep, this home should now be good for another thirty or forty years.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS AS OF MAY 1.—April saw reaction, after the Easter buying rush, notably in commodity prices, securities and textile trade activities. Raw and manufactured cottons, wheat, corn and oats all sagged sharply. Silk, rayon and wool dulled, iron and steel prices held relatively firm. Because of irregular comparisons, the March and April retail trade statistics showings, though combined to give a color view of spring results as a whole. Strikes were numerous but not long and a railroad strike was averted. Advances in automobile prices were credited with slowing sales but in iron and steel, the contrary seemed the case.

In agriculture the strength of cattle contrasted sharply with the weakness in other farm products. Foreign trade increased, with exports holding a comfortable margin. Exports of raw wool from the United States were the largest in four or five years. April saw 200 banks reopened, bank clearings the largest in 27 months. Business failures fell to their lowest point in years. Cigarette output broke all records.

THE MAP—Diversified industries in the East, East Central and Southern States kept those areas relatively active despite price declines. Dry cold weather in the Mississippi Valley and the Great Plains areas hindered growth of planting of cotton. High cattle prices in nearly two years helped breeders.

Color-Schemes
Before you determine upon a color scheme for your room it is important to know what the windows face—north, south, east or west, if you are to have a bright, cheerful room. A picture of your room, with a color chart that will aid you in selecting colors, wisely, for a particular room of definite exposure.

Oil Paint Finish Is Best For Radiators
According to heating engineers, heat drawn off by a radiator is increased or decreased, depending upon the type of paint with which the radiator is finished. It is their contention that an oil paint finish will make a radiator about 18 per cent more efficient than if it is painted with bronze or aluminum.

Roof Modernizations Simple Task Today
Tremendous improvements have been made during the last ten or fifteen years by the roofing industry. The improvement has come not only in the actual materials used, but in the color, design and method of application.

Convert Attic to Practical Room
Attic space is waste space and makes expensive space. It is a waste of space and what attic isn't since the advent of "pull-down" stairways—its transformation into a practical living space is a simple and inexpensive. It can easily be converted into one of a number of interesting types of rooms. These are known as attic bedrooms, sewing room, or just plain bedroom.

Prime Coat Important
The alterations made were equally simple. Since this house was built in the days when the tendency was toward smaller, cut-up rooms, it was necessary to tear out a few partitions combining two small rooms into one of more generous dimensions.

ENAMEL-KOTE
For use on any surface, new or old, woodwork, furniture, walls, floors, etc.

HANLEY GOES DRY AS FARMER PLOWS

R. E. Buttram Again Strikes Water Pipes After Winning Court Verdict

HANLEY, May 26—Hanley's water supply has been cut down this week. As another step in the fight between R. E. Buttram and the people of West Coast Power company, Buttram plowed over the pipe which carries his property and also the pipe in a number of places. The supply for the city is now being pumped from the river.

A decision of the state supreme court some time ago in an action where Buttram was charged with plowing into the pipe, was in favor of Buttram, the court holding that the company should bury the pipe below ground level. Apparently the company was doing nothing to remedy the situation; therefore, Buttram plowed again.

Wednesday, the company's employees said that pipes had been ordered from the Coast and that they would be runched to lay them properly.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

SYNOPSIS: The evidence points to the fact that the two men found shot dead in Pierre Dufrane's breakfast room killed each other, sergeant starrer up. He believes that, however, although the only fact that supports his theory so far seems to implicate Mrs. Dufrane herself. The Sergeant begins a reconstruction of the crime.

Chapter 20
RECONSTRUCTION
"All right, let's try to reconstruct the whole thing," said Harper. "We've got certain basic facts to serve as foundations and we'll fill them in as we go along. We'll take eight o'clock last night as our starting point. Hamill had just made his report from the call-box. It was growing heavily, there was a cold, high wind.

"Hamill walked along on his beat for three blocks. That would bring him to the corner of the street. He crossed the street above here, but halfway over he changed his mind and turned down the street. Terrace instead. What made him do that? Obviously, something he saw or something he heard. He turned off the corner of the street. From the spot where Hamill turned off it is doubtful that he could have heard any sound from inside this house, even a shot or a scream. If there had been a noise and sound enough for him to hear, certainly some of the neighbors would have been up and investigating. We'll have to make inquiries about that. Harper looked down at the random, adding other pertinent questions from time to time as he pursued the course of his story.

"It is much more likely," he continued, "that Hamill saw something which would lead him to believe that the electric switch had been turned off at the source. The curtains of this one lighted room were drawn close. That fits in with the idea, Jack. Suppose that man slipped up the fire, poked the light bulb, and the light went out. It would be as well on a rainy or snowy night for a damp chimney, choked off the normal draught.

"A shower of sparks would shoot out the top of the chimney. I've often seen it on winter nights. Hamill's attention. This is assuming that Hamill knew the house was unoccupied. The whole thing hinges on that. We've got to find out whether or not the Dufranes were staying elsewhere.

"On the other hand, if deduction overlooked an important point. What Hamill heard was the front door banging alone in the wind. That was the sound that led Constance to believe that the door could not have been touched after the shooting. I've not overlooked that. We're hanging down the door like this one could see that Connally and Hillery were booming from a quarter past eight to nearly ten o'clock without arousing the other residents of Foxhall Terrace is nearly impossible. But there again is something we can inquire about.

"However, be that as it may, we have officer Hamill coming up that walk. We're safe in assuming that his suspicions were aroused. Now, did he find the door shut and locked or open and banging? It should have been shut and locked. Hamill did find it that way, he knocked or rang the bell.

"Wrong again, Steve. Lafferty objected. "The door was open and banging. He would go first and have a quiet look around the outside of the house. But the footprints in the snow prove that he didn't, he walked straight up to the front door—without—detours."

"Instead, they go into the breakfast-room, through an unlighted doorway. Harper returned. Hamill would have been suspicious and kept his gun in his hand. Harper would probably call or whistle his lights a cigarette, whips out his gun and shoots Hamill in cold blood.

"On the other hand, assuming that the door was unlocked, and possibly banging, as Hamill's direct approach might indicate, he would probably step inside and try to turn on the lights. That might be the point to attract attention. Perhaps he noticed the light shining under the breakfast-room door. He would open it and look inside.

"Our stranger is drinking very comfortably at the table, sitting and smoking. He is in the kitchen. Everything is in normal order. The man is in formal dress and is a startling resemblance to Mr. Dufrane. So, if Hamill recognized him at all, he would mistake him for the master of the house. Constance there is no reason why Hamill should want to shoot Dufrane, but nevertheless they killed each other.

"That's a pretty stiff dose of theory to swallow!"

"It sounds crazy to me," Lafferty agreed. "As you say, a door could hardly be banging away for nearly two hours without some of the neighbors doing something about it. On the other hand, doors don't open of themselves and set their locks automatically. Lafferty agreed, "but you've heard the door banging at the house? Hamill had left the door unlighted behind him, it would have banged shut just once and locked itself."

"Well, like it or not, all our evidence states that the door could not have been touched after the shooting, since both men were dead. We're hanging down the door like this one could see that Connally and Hillery were booming from a quarter past eight to nearly ten o'clock without arousing the other residents of Foxhall Terrace is nearly impossible. But there again is something we can inquire about.

"However, be that as it may, we have officer Hamill coming up that walk. We're safe in assuming that the dilemma either our intruder shot through the brain, which is surely impossible, or else Hamill drew it into contact with the artery after being shot in the breast twice, once through the heart.

"Now in a single exchange of shots they create a heavy mist which chance for two men to plug each other so neatly, but that third bullet struck Dufrane. It has no mist, guessing and it has Constance guessing, too."

They sat silent for a few moments and both pairs of eyes were thoughtfully focused on the row of twisted bullets. The thin wires that held their tags glistened brightly in the pleasant morning sun.

Harper straightened up with determination. "Let's pass on to the unknown man's movements," he suggested. "So far as we know, he was not here when the house was being visited by the intended victim until he learned which spot he was taking, then passed him and hurried ahead to the back—out—a good—look—the ambush, where he waited.

"That means he had a car at his disposal," Harper returned. "Yes. After he had fired at Dufrane and the latter made good his escape, he returned to the car and called back to the city by some other road. That would be easy.

"The autopsy has shown that he ate about five o'clock. As this was a cooked meal, he could not have come directly here and forged for food. By the time he got to the alley between five-thirty and six, the snow was coming down in earnest, but the fall was still so thin that his tracks were completely covered over later."

"It would not have been safe for him to come sooner," Lafferty said. "Remember, there were painters working on the third floor rooms until four o'clock and the Whites did not lock up and go to their rooms—over—the garage—until five."

"We don't know how he got in," Harper resumed, "but there are no marks of forcible entry anywhere and there were neither keys nor burglar tools found in his possession. In fact, so little was found on his person that I've come to the conclusion the pockets were looked over by someone else's clothing."

"That's an idea!" If he put on a facial disguise to look like Dufrane, perhaps he put on one of Dufrane's coats.

"Exactly—there must be some traces of him in this house that we have found. For instance, it is more certain that he shaved himself after he got here."

"Lafferty whistled. "One up on me there, Steve. That one got past me."

"If you had looked closely at his facial features, you would have seen they were freshly shaved. Here and there he missed a hair, which no self-respecting barber would have done."

"I have a neighbor whose husband makes a handsome income in the cold storage business—buying produce when it is cheap and keeping it until prices are high. I can't do the same with my Norge. You'd be amazed at how much I save." Before you buy your refrigerator,

Kiesel, Bonthon Turn in Dazzling Double Victories

Small But Sturdy Band of Athletes From West Pull Away From All Opposition at Philadelphia

By ALAN GOUD (Associated Press Sports Editor) FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, May 26.—Stanford University's small but sturdy band of athletes learned the 58th intercollegiate A. A. track and field championships into another Far Western rout today, pulling away from all opposition in a capacity that has been met otherwise featured by two dazzling double victories from "Bull" Bob Kiesel, University of California sprint ace from Ogdon, Utah, and Bill Bonthon, Princeton's champion middle distance runner.

His Squad Wins

"DINK" TEMPLETON, (above), Stanford university track coach, yesterday, witnessed at Franklin field, Philadelphia, the sweeping triumph scored by his Stanford field team over the rivals in the intercollegiate A. SCOUTING western SPORTS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—More tales of the turf: Rows of horses spread over ground what once was even sea level. The rugged and the old rugged strip has long been forgotten but the memory of "Horton the dog horse" lingers on. Horton wouldn't even be a secondary except for the fact he once won a race by the unbelievable lead of an eighth of a mile. Unless a bunch of coal wagon plugs were matched up with a thoroughbred it would be practically impossible for a winner to romp home with such a lead as Horton had on that for bound late afternoon.
