SHOTGUN SHOOTING OF IRVING RANCHER Baffles Officers

Robert Shankel, Former Twin Falls Resident, in Room at Time of Slaying in Mountain Community

(By The Associated Press) SALMON CITY, Idaho, June 1.—A shotgun shooting through an open window that brought instant death to Milton Merritt, 65, mining man and rancher, today baffled officers seeking the man who shot him.

Sherriff T. J. Stroud of Lemhi county said he had questioned several men in connection with the shooting, which occurred last Sunday night, 45 miles west of here in the isolated mountain community of Forney. None of those questioned, he said, could give any explanation as to the motive for the crime.

"It may be a grudge," said the sheriff. "But I can't find what the motive was. The man was in the room of his home about 10 p. m., the sheriff said, a shotgun charge from outside the window struck him in the shoulder and was immediately followed by another bullet in the abdomen, killing him instantly."

Robert Shankel in the room with him at the time the shooting took place, the sheriff said, was Robert Shankel, a Potomac city dentist, formerly of Twin Falls, and a man named Key. In an adjoining room, the sheriff said, were Mrs. Merritt and Mrs. Key. Two sons of Mrs. Merritt by a former marriage, one aged 18 and the other 14, were in the room with the victim.

Finding his search for information unavailing in the vicinity of the ranch, Sheriff Stroud said he had turned to the local police to inquire of friends of the dead man to learn of any possible motive for the slaying.

Shankel, the sheriff said, held a mortgage on Merritt's ranch but was not in the habit of visiting there. Merritt was a well-known figure in the community and was well liked.

Shankel said Merritt had been in the habit of visiting the ranch for some time.

LEFT WING GRASPS SOCIALIST REINS

Convention Splits Into Bitter Dissention; Old
Guard Routed

DETROIT, June 1 (AP)—The left wing forces of the Socialist party tonight routed the "old guard" in the voting on committee membership and split the convention into bitter dissention in advocating a "dictatorship of the revolutionary masses" for the assumption of power.

The left wing, led by a coalition of the revolutionary, policy committee and the New York militants, completely obtained all but one member of the platform committee and a majority of the organization committee. The leftists then introduced a resolution of interest policy, establishing the methods of a social democratic party of Germany, and urging the party to advocate the "dictatorship of the revolutionary masses" for the assumption of power.

WALLACE RELATES FARM OBJECTIVES

the policy of an annual crop carry-over of basic commodities is essential to a program of reducing domestic consumption, since surpluses must act as insurance against drought and crop failures.

Turning to a phase of legislation involving sugar, Secretary Wallace stated: "We treated sugar in a very just way, arriving at a quota less burdensome to the domestic industry and yet restoring external conditions."

The secretary viewed the present situation as a "very serious one" and would surmount its ravages. Aware of its widespread extent, he declined to admit that the program was materially disrupted by the scores.

On a tour of the West, Secretary Wallace was "very much" surprised here by Governor Henry H. Blood. He is accompanied by his secretary, Paul H. Simpson, and Mr. H. H. Blood, chief of the division of irrigation in the bureau of agricultural engineering, U. S. department of agriculture, San Francisco, assistant chief of the bureau of public roads.

Several hundred officers, 18 police radio cars, six ambulances and all available patrol wagons responded to the general alarm.

Police Chief James E. Davis when informed that the gathering was storming the offices of the county welfare department.

Income Tax Yield In Idaho Trebles 1933 Collections

BOISE, June 1 (AP)—Income tax receipts during the first five months in Idaho this year more than trebled the collections of the same period a year ago. Ben Dieffender, commissioner of finance, reported today.

Collections to June 1 this year totaled $109,811 compared with $31,533 in the same period a year ago.

The increase was attributed to a combination of improved conditions and to increased taxes and lower exemptions. During the first five months of last year, banks were closed by the national holiday.

The same department reported chain store tax collections of $24,100 for this year, compared with $10,000 a year ago.

The increase was attributed to the fact that the state supreme court decided recently that the tax was legal but an appeal to the United States supreme court is considered likely.

Century Of Progress Signs With Parents To Show Quintuplets

CORRELL, Ont., June 1 (AP)—Showered with gifts and offers of every kind, the humble farmer parents of the Dionne quintuplets gathered tonight upon a contract to appear at the Century of Progress this summer at $250 a week.

Olivia Dionne, 31-year-old French Canadian, mother of the five little girls born last Monday, was somewhat bewildered by the international attention focused upon her family affair.

It was announced today that he had really signed a contract with two Chicagoans to appear with the quintuplets and Mrs. Dionne at the world's fair if the infants continue to live and gain strength.

In addition to the $250 a week during the time they are at the fair, Dionne, according to terms of the contract, will receive $100 a week, 10 per cent of all receipts, and $100 weekly, starting at once, during the time the infants must have permission from medical authorities to make the long journey.

The physician, Dr. A. DePoe, believes the quintuplets would be a good thing to live. He said today they are gaining steadily.

The world's fair offer was only a portion of the good fortune that has befallen the Dionne family.

The Ontario government moved today to help the family but exempted the infants from the midwest states. The Ontario government instructed members of the department of health and the children's aid society to fill the needs of the family.

The farm administration will proceed with its plan to help the farmer to the emergency that arise and striving to do whatever it can to protect farmers from the worst series of emergencies they have ever faced.

Idaho Theatre to Show "Private Scandal"

Nice people this Philipe Holmes and Mary Brian, who get mixed up in Paramount's "Private Scandal," a thrilling under-mystery garbed with rich comedy-making by Ned Sparks and Zasu Pitts, which comes tomorrow to the Idaho theatre. The biggest mystery in "Private Scandal" is whether the laughs outnumber the thrills or vice versa.

FOUR FOUND DEAD IN SPOKANE HOME

A. E. Hooker, Wife and Two Daughters Victims of Fatal Shootings

SPOKANE, Wash., June 1 (AP)—The bodies of Arthur E. Hooker, long in the business department of the Spokane Daily Chronicle, his wife and two daughters apparently police said victims of murder and suicide were found at the Hooker residence here yesterday.

The discovery was made by Roy L. Moore, a local coroner and neighbor, who investigated, not having seen any of the family during the day.

All were shot to death, apparently, police said, Wednesday night. Peering through a window, Lowe saw the body of one daughter in a bed, called by name Detective Sergeant Frank Keenan and Detective Arthur Atkinson found the bodies of the wife and other daughter in another bed room.

Beside the body of the first daughter, an invalid, was that of Hooker. He was lying on his left arm, with his right arm stretched toward his daughter, as if to comfort her in death.

Rambling notes Hooker left indicated he had been brooding and contemplating the act for some time, police said. They said he could no longer stand to see his daughter suffer, and his head was "boiling" to feel quiet, and he could see nothing else to do.

All four were in night clothing and in bed. Hooker had drawn a pair of trousers over his pajamas.

Work on Boulder Dam Two-Thirds Complete

LAS VEGAS, Nev., June 1 (AP)—Boulder dam will be two-thirds completed at 2 p. m. tomorrow when Six Companies, Inc., the contractor, pours the two-millionth cubic yard of concrete.

Six Companies began work on the dam proper on June 6, 1933. The first millionth yard of concrete was poured on January 7, which means the second million yards was poured within a period of five months, or an average of 20,000 cubic yards a month.

This in itself is a new record, the previous mark having been set on the Bagnell dam in the Osage river, Missouri, when 15,000 cubic yards of concrete were poured in one month.

Six Companies plans to pour the three millionth yard of concrete in six months. The entire dam will contain 4,220,000 yards of concrete. The dam now rises 404 feet from bedrock, leaving 284 feet yet to go. It was tapered from a width of 650 feet at the bottom to 250 feet at the top. The canyon is 650 feet wide at the present top of the dam.

President Sees Son Awarded Diploma By Bay State School

ROTON, Mass., June 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt today saw his youngest son, John, graduated from Roton school, just as he himself had been 34 years ago.

On the quiet of the campus, surrounded by members of his family, including his wife and son, and his old friends, the chief executive, who motored here earlier in the day from Worcester, his wife and two daughters, and later the athletic events that rounded out the afternoon program.

For one day at least, complete recognition was his. Newspaperman who accompanied him from Washington were not permitted to enter the grounds of the exclusive school where privacy long has been a strict rule. The president was just another father and son, and a student. Tomorrow he will return here to participate in the exercises marking the fiftieth graduation of the school's founding, and after that will leave by train for Worcester to spend Sunday at the family home at Hyde Park, New York.

There Are More Ways Of Cooking Mountain Trout Than By Frying

All those fish that got away from you last day are laughing. Let us laugh. Their days are numbered, and before the summer is over some of Twin Falls' expert fly fishermen will bring them home to the frying pan or the baking dish. Or it's possible that they'll end up as the piece of resistance of a campfire supper, or in the good old Mexican Indian manner.

Fishermen who have frequented the trout habitats of southern Idaho for a number of years are undoubtedly familiar with the outdoor method of cooking fish, but for the information of the novices, who still get a thrill out of the novelty of catching, instead of missing, a trout now and then, and who are not as yet wedded to the lure of outdoor cooking, here's a suggestion for an outing treat.

Buy Then Well Suppose you've spent the day wading the streams, wrangling with the finny fellows. You don't have a yen to eat them that night, but you figure trout for breakfast would be just about right. You can prepare your fish this night before, leave it all up to the Mexican system of cooking, and in the morning there's your breakfast.

Buy a hole about two feet deep. Fill the bottom six or eight inches with hot coals; clean the fish, wrap in butcher paper, encase in wet gunny sacks held together with strips of wire, cover over with hot coals, and fill in the rest of the hole with dirt. This slow-cooking process retains all the flavor, and your fish are ready in the morning.

Garlic lends an interesting flavor to the larger trout, which are delicious when baked. At intervals of three inches along the back of the fish, score a bit of garlic before baking.

Try Frying Hot In preparing both large and small fish it is advisable to salt and pepper them inside and out. For frying, the fat should be very hot. Larger trout may be scored deeply on each side, the narrow strips of bacon inserted in the cuts. Brown on one side on top.

Buy a hole about two feet deep. Fill the bottom six or eight inches with hot coals; clean the fish, wrap in butcher paper, encase in wet gunny sacks held together with strips of wire, cover over with hot coals, and fill in the rest of the hole with dirt. This slow-cooking process retains all the flavor, and your fish are ready in the morning.

of the store and then place in a hot oven for 6 or 7 minutes until browned. Taste once two minutes before removing from oven.

One of the most satisfactory sauces to serve with trout is a lemon sauce. Take one-third juice from the pan in which trout are cooked; one-third melted butter, and one-third lemon juice. Add chopped parsley and season with Worcestershire sauce to taste.
