

CALIFORNIA'S CHIEF EXECUTIVE ANSWERS SUMMONS OF DEATH

James Rolph, Jr., colorful political figure, died at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, surrounded by his resigned but grieving family and a dozen close friends in the ranch home of Walter Linforth near Los Angeles.

The end came to the picturesque political character about three hours after he had lapsed into a comatose condition brought on by the encephalitis of disease that had disabled him two months ago and struck him brutally during May. He was 61 years old.

Into the official place vacated by the death stepped Lieutenant Governor Frank P. Merriam of Long Beach, a former town state legislator who came to California 24 years ago. Merriam, himself a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, will retain the title under which he was elected and will serve as the acting chief executive.

Political Factor
Rolph's death, officially attributed to heart attack and lung congestion complicated by kidney trouble, came before long for the state primary election in August, and although he was not a candidate, his death was a factor in the situation. He was a Republican.

James Rolph, as he was familiarly known, even far beyond his own California, was a political phenomenon. He was a man who more persons by name and sight than any other man in the state, and that he was called "Jim" by millions of individuals than anyone else.

Rolph also was an outstanding figure in the game of business. He had made a fortune and lost it, but success did not attend him there as it did in political life. He made a loss of fortune and was left with a small fortune.

He was heavily insured, reputedly for $100,000, and having been widely said that his creditors kept up some of the premiums on his life policies for their own profit.

Widely Acquainted
Air-minded and addicted to traveling often on his big state, Rolph became known as "the flying governor." The strength of his personality, his acquaintance with California and his readiness to crown business affairs, even led to his being named in the state's events, met incoming dignitaries and visiting firemen and officers of various organizations.

His dress, immaculate. One of his peculiarities was his addiction to high leather boots, which he always wore except on rare occasions.

Governor Orders Men Put To Work on Raft River And Elsewhere

BOISE, June 2 (AP)—Confident the projects would win approval of the Federal Relief Administration, Governor Ross today ordered men put to work drilling wells in the Raft river district in Idaho county and other crews to work in several sections where shortage of water is threatening.

"The work must be done within the next 30 days," said the governor, "and we can't wait for too much examination of the plans."

Two suggested projects are under general supervision of R. W. Faria, commissioner of reclamation, and already examined many of the proposals for developing water to meet the emergency.

A relief administration crew has been working several days on cleaning the Peon river channel, he said, eliminating obstructions causing loss of water.

Clearing Springs at Malad
Clearing of spring water started in the vicinity of Malad, and that work will be undertaken soon, he said.

Approximately 39 engineers and men experienced in irrigation are in the field in southern Idaho studying the feasibility of developing emergency water supplies from wells, swamps and springs.

The governor estimated projects requiring all the $250,000 now allocated to Idaho for drought relief would be under way by next week and request for more aid to be on the way to Washington. He predicted the state would receive and receive all the $250,000 in aid.

Intense Heat Continues; Grain Prices Slip When Drouth Relief Appears

Midwest Chorus Reports Emphasizing Increasing Gravity Of Situation; Death-Toll Halts at 41

(By The Associated Press)

Nature's hot scythe cut a wider swath over the central plains yesterday as crops entered a two-week crisis facing the partial resuscitation of rain.

From nearly every section of the midwest came reports emphasizing the gravity of the situation, and stories of drastic measures adopted to cope with the drought.

Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, announced in Washington that a telephone call to President Roosevelt at Groton, Massachusetts, that plans had been drawn to launch immediate action in the drought country and to provide cash for stricken farm families.

Scattered showers and cooler winds were to check the death toll after more than 41 persons had succumbed to the unprecedented heat, but the mercury continued to ride through the burning 90's in the prairies west of the Mississippi.

The weather bureau at St. Louis, Mo., reported that the drought conditions had been badly damaged and added that there must be a substantial rainfall before June 15 if production is to be salvaged.

World-Wide Drouth
News from most of the world's wheat exporting countries told of the adverse effects of protracted aridity on fields of grain.

Governor Floyd Olson of Minnesota mobilized the national guard to enforce his embargo on shipments of livestock into the state for grazing. Governor Landon of Kansas pleaded for quick federal aid. Official Washington perfected a relief program in response to the mounting impasse of agriculturalists.

Western railroads announced emergency reductions in rates on emergency shipments of starving cattle and horses from the drought-stricken areas.

Farmers prepared to unlock stores of corn placed under seal in keeping with federal corn-hog contracts.

MUSSOLINI STIRS 10,000 VOLUNTEERS WITH FIGHT TALK

Italians Roar Approval as Duce Asks Whether They Are Ready for War; Promises Independent Action

(By The Associated Press)

ROME, June 2—Premier Mussolini made a fighting talk today before 10,000 war enthusiasts, and was given an enthusiastic shout of approval when he asked if they are ready to fight again if necessary.

He promised them, though, that if they do fight, it will be for Italy alone and not on behalf of other nations pretending to be allies.

"Italy's volunteers," he said, "if war is necessary, will shed their blood for Italy alone. Experience has shown them that it does not pay to help by land and sea the people who pretend to be our allies."

Charges Bred Of Promise
France, he declared, did not give to Italy the colonial territory promised in the treaty of London in 1919 which opened the way for Italy to enter the world war.

His reference to allies also was interpreted as a warning to Yugoslavia.

"Do you feel that tomorrow, if it is necessary to fight, that victory will embrace our flag?" he asked after the volunteers had declared they were ready to fight again if necessary.

The answer was another enthusiastic shout.

Then the premier declared they had continued their foreign policy of collaboration with all peoples, but began, "It is not, unfortunately, certain that other nations will collaborate. It is necessary to be prepared."

Spectacle Of Discipline
"Not only are times hard," he said.

PURSUERS BELIEVE PRETTY BOY DEAD

Investigation Indicates Outlaw Victim Of Bullet

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 2 (AP)—The mysterious disappearance of Oklahoma's "pretty boy" desperado, Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, has led his faithful pursuers to believe he may be dead or crippled.

Once the terror of the southwest with his blazing machine gun, Floyd, 34, was shot and killed, apparently by a robbery in Oklahoma about his companion, George Birdwell, was shot to death by a Negro banker while attempting to rob a bank at Muskogee, Okla., two years ago.

He has not visited the family for more than a year. Previously he had occasionally in his flight from the law to spend an hour or so with relatives.

Oil Fire Strikes CALIFORNIA FIELD

Huntington Beach Blaze Sweeps Five Blocks; Costs $125,000

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif., June 2 (AP)—With the disastrous fire which swept five square blocks of the old oil field here tonight and today, a summary of damage completed today fixed the loss at approximately $125,000.

The fire, which started in the bottom of two 12,000-gallon tanks of butane gasoline and two 500-barrel tanks of oil, but the fire had been smothered out in the remainder of the field with chemicals.

The refining plant of the O. C. Field Gasoline company, 11 other 12,000-gallon tanks of butane gasoline, two other oil tanks, derricks and the pumping equipment were destroyed.

The blaze started shortly after midnight when a hose connected between a gasoline tank and a truck broke, spraying gas into a fire box of the refinery.

The refinery tanks suddenly exploded, shaking surrounding territory for several miles. Within a few minutes the flames had spread throughout the five-block area, and the walls prevented further progress.

Chemical trucks of private companies and a fire truck company from Long Beach joined the local crew in combating the conflagration.

Illuminating the sky, hundreds of tanks, and the field, the flames which are about two miles south of the beach and just beyond the city limits, have been burning for several days and is known as "Old Field."

Although at first it was believed that the 25 persons trapped in the five-block section were burned, it was later established that no one was hurt.

The fire occurred on the first anniversary of the Signal Hill explosion in Long Beach, which killed eight persons and caused damages of $250,000.

CONGRESS GAUGES TASK WITH NEW TO EARLY WIND-UP

Leaders Shape Program of Peremptory Legislation With Labor Measure Possible Cause of Delay

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 2—Labor troubles have helped to complicate the congressional situation.

In the pressure for an early winding up of the session, the program with an eye to putting over to the next congress such legislation as did not fit into a peremptory budget of bills they drew up.

Labor leaders and they have argued that the Wagner labor bill would put into the statute books a power that might be used in advantage in the prevailing labor situation. Threatened strikers in the steel and cotton textile industries have added to the urgency of their demands.

Whether this bill will wriggle through the jam at the end of the session remains to be seen. It has not been placed on the calendar, but has been passed by the house or approved by a house committee.

New Labor Measure for Speed
The new law adopted in the house yesterday would enable labor leaders, if they could muster a two-thirds majority, to jam through, unchanged, any bill sought by the administration. It would be in the manner, if already carrying the approval of the senate, would not go to conference, but could be patched promptly to the White House for signature.

The measure is a bill to amend the National Labor Relations Act, which was passed by the house in 1933.

The measure would give labor leaders the power to force a strike on any industry, if they could muster a two-thirds majority in the house.

Union Rejects Proposal

Meanwhile federal mediators cling to a slender hope of peace but the general contention was that regardless of their efforts both sides were preparing for a "fight to the finish."

Edward P. McGraw, assistant secretary of the I.L.A., said:

Butchers, busmen, street car operators, filling station attendants and brewery employees swelled the ranks of strikers Saturday while efforts to prevent a strike in the textile industry were successful and moves were under way to halt a threatened walkout in the steel industry.

These were the salient developments in the capital-labor litigation:

Washington—The cotton textile industry strike set for Monday was called off after a series of conferences between union leaders, recovery administrator Hugh S. Johnson and Governor B. H. CHICAGO, June 7.—Charging through the stretch like a hurricane, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Cavalcade, today galloped to impressive victory in the $25,000 added American Derby to thrill 30,000 spectators with his dramatic finish.

The Kentucky derby winner by his victory equalled the achievement of Spokane in the same year, shattering tradition that spanned 45 years. Spokane won both races in 1889.

SCOUTING SPORTS

By RUSS NEWLAND

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7 (AP).—McLannin loses his waterweight title to Barney Ross and McLannin's manager, "Pop" Foster immediately left the scene.

"Jobbed," "robbed," "does the Foster" was the complaint as an inch high, stout, dressed in the fin of a cherry crop season.

Old Pop hasn't been exactly a dandy during the decade he has managed a long list of fighters who have cried "Jobbed" after their fighters lost McLannin. The gist of Foster's remarks was "Well, you ain't that too bad. They should be more careful."

It was Foster, who not only promoted the fight between Corbett and McLannin, but provided McLannin with the waterweight crown, but later, in a moment of anger, saying that he had a chance to get even would be decidedly unporting.

Waits in Vain
Corbett is still waiting for the return bout which will never take place because he has outgrown the division, and McLannin doesn't rule it anymore. After winning the title from Corbett, the McLannin-Foster combination has so many obstacles in the way of a return, fight the promoters gave up in disgust. Corbett, who was paid $25,000, declined to be bothered by the fight.

That was a case of Corbett and his representatives being "Jobbed" but Foster simply flicked the ashes of a fight which was a mere sham, ultra conservative, thirty or at the most, a few minutes of the situation which was a mere sham.

There is the matter of sparring partners. A long knock-out in the immediate members of the boxing fraternity and which bears repeating for the general reading public.

Pop Saves Money
For sparring partners before the Corbett fight, Foster got together several amateur boys. Because they were amateurs had no punch, McLannin had back his men. He believed the boys were "Jobbed" and they were finished. Foster gave the boys money, because he had no desire to lose the fight. He saved from $750 to $10,000 for every amateur used as this is the daily fee for a sparring partner.

Some rival managers were unkind enough to intimate the amateur boys were "Jobbed" and they were finished. Foster gave the boys money, because he had no desire to lose the fight. He saved from $750 to $10,000 for every amateur used as this is the daily fee for a sparring partner.

Star Sprinter Eliminated While Unknown Schoolboy Dashes 100 Yards In 9.5

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP).—In the picturesque setting of Travers Island where the country's oldest track meet originated 66 years ago, college and club athletes of the East and West produced a series of sparkling performances today in the 132nd semi-annual New York C. C. track and field games.

A record crowd of nearly 10,000 banked around the historic oval, saw six meet records tumble and a seventh equaled.

The University of California's four-man team contributed the most interest in the 100-yard dash. Competing from scratch, the Golden Bears' Dick Clark, intercollegiate breaker of the 100-yard dash, was defeated by a schoolboy, Bill Folsom, an 18-year-old New York school boy.

Clark gave the best exhibition of "bush-jumping" in American competition for the year when he cleared 24 feet 10 inches, the highest jump in the meet.

Three Track Records Broken at Eugene as W. S. C. Squad Wins

EUGENE, Ore., June 2 (AP).—Washington State college won its second consecutive Northwest division coast conference track meet here today but was surpassed closely by University of Oregon and University of Washington.

Washington State scored 44 5-12 points, Oregon 42 7-12 and Washington 40. Oregon State made a good showing with 22 5-12 points, Montana scored 9 5-6, and Idaho 5 3-4.

Trailing Oregon and Washington with only one event to go, Washington State swept 8 points in the discus for the slim margin of 2 points to win.

Three records were broken and a fourth tied in the spectacular meet which saw three teams battling for first until the finish of the meet.

Grid Glint Sets Record
It was George Theodoratus, giant football star of Washington State college, who set a new conference record in the shot put and then came back with another first place in the discus today.

He bettered the old record almost a foot and a half when he put the shot 52 feet 4 inches. The old mark was 49 feet 7 inches.

Angels Win Ball Game, But Lose Newspaper Decision In Hand-To-Hand Struggle
 LOS ANGELES, June 2 (AP)—In a wild, bloody contest featured by a riot between opposing players in the fourth inning, Los Angeles made it six straight over Hollywood here today. While the Angels won the ball game, 4 to 1, they lost the newspaper decision in the attendant fight.
 In the last half of the fourth, several players on both squads scored hits not directly applicable to the box score as J. Millard Campbell, Los Angeles hurler, was knocked out of the game because of being ineffective rather than being weak.

Striking Pitcher Returns to Work

Details of Settlement Involving Dean Brothers Not Disclosed

ST. LOUIS, June 2 (AP)—Frank Dizzy, pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, announced a one-day "strike" of pitcher Dizzy Dean, involving his brother, who was injured by a pitch from Dizzy today. He was credited with winning the first game. Details of the "strike" settlement were not disclosed.
 Dizzy offered a "sore arm" as his reason for refusing last night to don a uniform for yesterday's game with the Pirates; but he added that he would not pitch again until Brother Paul got a raise over his present $5,000 salary. Dizzy apparently was satisfied with his own $2,500 salary.

Brother Paul was quoted as saying he "would stick with Dizzy," but he refused to show up for the settlement. Having worked Wednesday and Thursday in Cincinnati without framing fancy expectations, he is expected to appear in the present Pirates series.
