Pacts Form Steel Wall Against Aggressor In Europe

PEACE CERTAIN IF NATIONS MAINTAIN STRICT OBSERVANCE

Interlocking Promises of Good Will Tie Europe With Political Forms; New Alliances Formed

By MELVIN E. COLEMAN. (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Pacts and more pacts—interlocking promises of family and good political will today in the political world.

If observed in spirit and to the letter, no one country could attack another without bringing down an avalanche of armies to crush the aggressor.

In the score of years since the Belgian neutrality pact became a scrap of paper and the Wilsonian principle since "self-determination of peoples" remade the map of the world—dependence on common sense has been making new alliances designed to reverse or nullify the borders specified in the post-war treaties.

Four Major Agreements

Aides from the peace pacts themselves and the covenant of the League of Nations, there have been four outstanding agreements. Oldest and probably tightest of these is "The Little Entente" between Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania in measures of mutual aid and cooperation.

The second is the Locarno pact, great sections of the dismembered Austro-Hungarian empire, it was brought into being as a buffer zone for members and they were given the Orange obligations by the worthy master, Harry Barry, both present and gone a short time ago.

FIRST SKY TRAIN'S FLIGHT SUCCESSFUL

Glider Switched Off Between Washington and New York

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 (AP)—The first sky train came through yesterday a bit behind schedule but, after what Jack O'Keefe, who piloted the flight, called a "perfectly successful" one despite the fact two days were consumed in switching of gliders between here and New York.

After a detail of park police, photographers, newspapermen and a sizable crowd of curious onlookers had gathered yesterday and today, the single-motored biplane with its one remaining glider in low appeared high up over the White House. It circled widely once and cut loose a mail-laden glider. O'Keefe brought the glider to a smooth landing just south of the White House grounds after circling half a dozen times to reduce his momentum.

Forty minutes before, the plane piloted by Edward Kelly, had left Baltimore where it had to retreat after dropping off letter number 2, piloted by Stanley Smith, the 1933 glider champion. The nearly two-hour flight to Baltimore was delayed when the sky train ran into a storm yesterday south of Philadelphia where it had cut loose the first of the three trailing gliders, piloted by Dr. R. E. Franklin, glider designer and professor of aeronautics at Michigan state university.

Each glider carried approximately 4000 letters bearing special cachets but not officially recognized by the postoffice department. That is, the pilot of each glider had to take his sack of stamped but unsorted mail to the postoffice where he landed and mail the philatelic packets. Had it been official mail, it would have borne New York post marks, but the department ruled there was no law permitting it to authorize mail carrying by gliders.

WATER RIGHT AT STAKE IN HEARING

Reclamation Department to Consider Perrine Case September 30

BOISE, Aug. 4 (AP)—The state department of reclamation will determine at a hearing here September 30 whether J. B. Perrine of Twin Falls is entitled to preempt some 8000 acres of land on the Snake river and its tributaries. It was announced today by reclamation officials. Perrine seeks a renewal of his permit.

Early in 1922, officials said, Perrine filed on the water in question and indicated his intention to use it for irrigation of lands both in the so-called Bannock project and on the north side of the river west of Mountain Home.

His filings called for 3000 second feet on water west of Mountain dam, 4000 second feet at Upper Salmon fall on the Snake river and 2000 second feet at Blue Lake, all of which are on the Snake river.

Terms of his original filing required completion on 25 per cent of his project in two and one-half years. The two and one-half year period elapsed yesterday.

Thousands Gather to View Four Day Fort Hall Centennial

Will Rogers in 'Handy Andy' at the Orpheum

POCATELLO, Aug. 4 (AP)—Sunday Pocatello will officially assume the role of host to the thousands of Idahoans expected to the Fort Hall centennial celebration, which is destined to be one of Idaho's greatest celebrations. The centennial will continue until late Wednesday night.

From the firing of aerial bombs early tomorrow until dawn Thursday, there will be four days filled with events in commemoration of the founding of Fort Hall on the Old Oregon Trail, 100 years ago, by Nathaniel J. Wyeth.

It is an event for the honoring of pioneers of the past and rejoicing with the progress and permanency of the great commonwealth that has arisen from the dust of the pack trains of the trappers and the heavy lumbering wagons of the hardy pioneers — founders of the great Pacific Northwest.

Early tomorrow the United States and religion flags will be raised with the proper salute, and the Jason Lee sermon will be given at the centennial coliseum in the University of Idaho, southern branch campus, by Dr. Stephen Pentrose of Whitman college, Walla Walla, Washington.

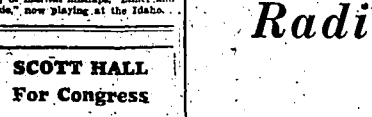

Oratoric Presentation
The feature of the first day's program will be a presentation of Hayden's oratorio, "The Creation," with a choir of 100 voices. An air circus, as well as carnivals and circus attractions, will be held each day.

Historical meetings, Indian villages, Idaho wild life, historical, home product and other exhibits will be featured during the four days.

Parades with covered wagons, Indians and other remembrances of the Old West, will be held each afternoon starting Monday. A varied sports program has also been arranged.

Starting Monday evening, a historical pageant depicting old Fort Hall and the Snake river valley will be presented with a cast of 1000 persons. The welcoming address will be given by Norma Keller, centennial queen. Wednesday will be designated as Pioneer day, with an appropriate program.

Paris Modists Decree Streamline Clothes for Well-Dressed Woman

By ADELAIDE KEENE (Associated Press Foreign Staff) PARIS, Aug. 4 — Streamline clothes, cut on an allover as slender as a reed, were launched by Modistes today as the 1934-35 profile.

The edict: "No diaphragm," rules both day and evening frocks which sometimes are without bodice and cut in an unbroken line from the shoulder to the hem.

Button at Wrist
As a further accentuation of the streamline effect, some of the black wool frocks had their sleeves and gloves cut in one, buttoning at the wrist so that the gloves may be tucked back when their occupant is indoors.

The hems is lightened by touches of dark brown, forest green and beige are the outstanding colors for the day fabric, which are of soft wool and crepe.

Day frocks were shown in two lengths. The first, for morning dresses, 12 inches from the ground; the second, sophisticated afternoon frocks reaching just above the ankle. Their necklines were high and sometimes accented over the collarbone by two bright velvet flowers or a gay velvet scarf with many tunic effects.

The day dresses were often accompanied by matching slipone three-quarter length jackets lavishly fur-trimmed.

Black suede shoes rising 3 inches above the ankle-bone and lacing up the side were launched as the last word in feminine footwear when Worth displayed his winter collection.

Other day shoes were designed with a high line covering the instep and medium low heels while evening slippers featured black satin sandals entirely covering the front of the foot and leaving the heel bare.

"I Always Feel Safer in a Ford"

ALL-STEEL BODY AND SAFETY GLASS—The strength of steel protects you when you ride in a Ford V-8.

Around you is an all-steel body, electrically welded into one piece. Beneath your feet is a rigid, X-type steel frame.

Out in front of you and behind you are strong steel axles, triangularly braced by steel radius-rods and supported by a steel torque tube.

You ride upon steel-spoke wheels, also electrically welded into one piece. The windshield before your eyes is safety glass. (All Ford V-8 De Luxe closed cars are equipped throughout with safety glass at no additional cost.)

Another reason why you feel safer in a Ford V-8 is something that makes every driver a better driver... ease of handling. There is always less strain and less likelihood of tight situations when you drive an alert, obedient car.

The Ford V-8 gives you an extra margin of safety because of its quick acceleration, eight-cylinder speed and power, ease of steering, stability on curves and rough roads, and powerful, oversize brakes.

SENATOR LONG PERFORMS Louisiana ought to be proud of Senator Huey P. Long. Perhaps never before in the history of the country has the country been treated to quite such a spectacle as that now being witnessed in New Orleans.

Governor O. K. Allen, elected through the influence of Long and for years a part of the Long machine in Louisiana, is apparently now lined up in opposition to his chief. But no matter what the line up or the causes which brought about the row, the Long brand of politics is responsible and the entire controversy just another manifestation of Boss Long at his worst.

Long has brought into current politics an element which politics can best get along without. For years he has posed as a virtual dictator and through gang rule and all its attendant evils he has built up a degree of power which would be dangerous in the hands of any man and which is disgraceful when wielded by a man of the Long stripe.

The time will come when Long will reap the reward which is his due, but it may take a long time. A clever and thoroughly unscrupulous politician he commands a following which is to be reckoned with. But his methods and his work are inimical to the best interests of his state and the country as a whole, a fact which is becoming steadily more apparent as his antics are brought to light.

Louisiana should heartily welcome the end of the Long regime.

Suppressed Criticism One by one foreign publications are banned from Germany. "The Nation," published weekly in the United States cannot be sold there. The London Times, The Temps of Paris, The Observer and the Sunday Times of London, have all been prohibited. These publications—and doubtless others—have been outspoken in their description and criticism of events in Germany. Consequently they must be kept from the eyes of German readers.

Plenty of German publications also have been discontinued or suspended, so this treatment is no discrimination against foreign papers. It is as stern a commentary on their system as anything outsiders say about them, that the Nazi rulers dare not permit frank criticism to circulate. They appear to distrust their own cause when they behave as though it could not stand up under denunciation from any source.

Forests Doing Well Farms and pasture lands may be burning up, in the hottest and driest summer within memory, but the woods seem to be doing well. In a season when more and worse forest fires than usual would be expected, there has been a surprising lack of such disasters. It is partial compensation, not to distressed farmers but to the nation as a whole, for the crop destruction and the widespread suffering brought upon livestock and human beings by lack of forage and water.

The credit for this showing is given mainly to the Forest Service, supplemented as it has been by the Civilian Conservation Corps. The contribution of the latter is so evident that, on this ground alone, there would be justification for making the CCC a permanent institution.

At last we are learning to take care of our forests. The long labors of conservation enthusiasts, begun with the support of Theodore Roosevelt a quarter of a century ago, begin to bear fruit. And as we learn to take care of the forests, the forests begin to take care of us. With the continuance of the new forestation movement we shall have more timber, more vacation, more tempered climate, less flood and drought.

LET UNCLE SAM DO IT

The apprehension and final disposal of Dillinger in Chicago, by federal police, is pointed to as "another slap at Chicago" and another example of the way federal authority has to step in and do jobs that cities should do for themselves.

It is easy to say in reply that a criminal like Dillinger, operating in several states, thereby makes himself an interstate problem. The same thing was said of Al Capone. Yet Capone was primarily Chicago's problem; and Dillinger, if not the problem of any particular city, might easily have been regarded as a special responsibility of either Illinois or Indiana. The United States government's only hold on Capone was his evasion of the federal income tax, one of the least of his offenses; and the government is said to have had no more serious federal charge against Dillinger than crossing a state line with a stolen car. If so, shooting him at sight, through a mortal duty, may have had no legal justification.

For these two cases the government is praised. For many another assumption of duty blasted upon it by city and state neglect, it is blamed, usually with the accusation or implication that it is arrogantly usurping the power of lesser governmental units. Doubtless there is some usurpation; but on the whole, Uncle Sam only takes over duties shelled by his nephews. Thus responsibility flows to Washington, even when Washington doesn't want it.

While the government's building that thousand-mile forest from Canada to the Gulf, why not make it a complete job by digging another system of Great Lakes? Everybody knows how lakes temper weather and alleviate drought.

TWENTY YEARS AFTER

The World War began 20 years ago today and if you can find anything that was made better because of it you have better eyes than most people. Throughout the world, hatred, greed, etc., etc. For every problem settled by the conflict, and few were, a dozen new ones have since sprung up. The dislocation of a million delicate adjustments by so vast a conflict continues and apparently will for many years more. All that can be said is that it would have been much worse if the other side had won.

By some queer trick of fate a situation similar to that launched the carnage of death in 1914 arose at the 20th anniversary of the killing of an Austrian ruler. But this time the governments lack the money and the people lack the enthusiasm for a general conflict so apparently there is to be none—not that the world learned so much from the folly of the last one though.

SERVICE

Let me be glad If I have chiseled out of idle dream And with open the agent mind to soul. The day's long work which God apportioned me For good of humankind.

Let me be glad If I have learned to live so far beyond The vision, and see the things that are. The hidden best in all my fellowmen. In stranger even to me.

Let me be glad If for all will have given I am understanding heart. Forged in the furnace with the strength To play the larger part.

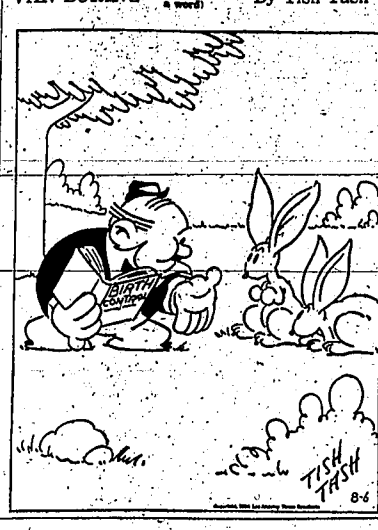

Let me be glad If on life's sands the impress of my feet Unfurling, straightaway leads To where the tide of peace so gently laps The shore of human needs.

WASHINGTON By George Durno BOOTLES A tight poker game is in progress over the problem of getting liquor prices back somewhere near pre-prohibition normalcy. Three of the players are wearing leather tois. They are, reading from left to right, Uncle Sam, the Distiller and the Bootlegger.

As the game stacks up on the surface it's a question of eliminating the bootlegger or cutting federal distillery subsidies. Whichever, more than one allele is stuffed with acceptance.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau and cabinet members are in progress over the problem of getting liquor prices back somewhere near pre-prohibition normalcy. Three of the players are wearing leather tois. They are, reading from left to right, Uncle Sam, the Distiller and the Bootlegger.

REASONS—Many of the important think there has been entirely too much fo-fo-fo about bootleggers in any event. The government, took the last pre-prohibition year, consumption as a basis and estimated what it ought to get in revenue after repeal. When tax returns fell short by 60 per cent and more the cry was raised that bootleggers were continuing to operate. Morgenthau's figures into this situation. In the first place people had a lot more money than they had before. Second, 14 years of aridly educated a whole generation of people, many of them and other strong but inferior liquor and like it. Also, back in 1920 they got drunk on anything. Anywhere near the current consumption level, the cost of keeping gas in the bins very-roads and auto travel being what that are today.

It looks like a publicity battle between the government and the distillers. Morgenthau's figures holding the most acre before, and being in a position to take up and win a 700 on the last card.

DROUTH The New Deal isn't half so worried about the drought's terrible toll as many of those Wall Street gentlemen who are transcribing their fears and beliefs into a long and long list of stock market.

FOSTERED The New York grapevine business that Federation of Labor officials are none too cordial towards the Recovery Administration. The city's labor leaders fear the growth of the radical labor movement is being fostered by the Recovery Administration.

Don't misunderstand—if additional aid needs this month Washington stands ready to spend whatever necessary is beyond the original August allotment.

Film Stars' Gowns Influence Style Trends

WHILE Hollywood is not regarded as the world's style capital, the gowns of glamorous women flashed on the screen have made indelible impressions on feminine-puritons of picture theatres. For example, hundreds of two-men tonight and worse copies of the Letty Lyton dress first worn by Joan Crawford (right). Another outstanding film influence on women's fashions is the "more yardage" mode, which is demonstrated by Kitty Carlisle (left), whose gown of tan lace, interwoven with horsehair and gold thread, uses three times as much material as is actually necessary. "The Rebel Raider," by Howard Swiggert (Bobbed Merrill). It has been a long time since a biography so steeped in romantic incident as Howard Swiggert's "The Rebel Raider" has come over the bar. Or one so curiously introduced.

The book was sent to reviewers by Howard Swiggert, and called for an unannounced review. Now it returns with an introduction by Robert S. Henry which states frankly that though "it realizes that the author of the War Out of Niagara is a conscientious student of history, entitled to his own conclusions... I am unable to accept them all."

It is an odd sort of situation that seems likely to stimulate the reader's curiosity. There is plenty of material to excite the curiosity upon. For the "rebel raider" is none other than the Kentuckian John Hunt Morgan, in whose raid into Indiana and Ohio proved such a tragic failure, whose whole life is tinged with the same tragic failure, or with the most astonishing success, depending upon the point of view.

Mr. Swiggert himself seems to have started out with the latest view, and to have been forced by the evidence as he gathered it to change his estimate somewhat. Briefly expressed the author considers Morgan a case of arrested development—a man whose gauding qualities were almost entirely offset by a finer uncertainty which grew out of his uncertainty.

But the book advances a mass of facts and inferences that is, at least new to this reader. Mr. Swiggert has gone very deeply into the details of Morgan's life, and his movements on both sides of the lines. He connects the Ohio-Indiana raid with these conspiracies, and many other movements made by Morgan as well. And he gives a portrait of the man and a panorama of the Civil War, and the author's view that is fascinating in the extreme.

"The Rebel Raider" is provocative in its handling of the word and not merely in the meaning it usually is given by book reviewers.

ARCHITECTURE 'PAINTED ON' Device Secures An Interesting Modern Room

Chairs carry out the decorative design.

(Prepared by The Decorators' Club of New York For The News) Here is an interesting modern room, with the feeling of architecture created by a clever use of paint.

The walls above the dado are white, with interest brought to the upper part of the room by a fringe of squares of deep blue alternating with yellow-pink between narrow moldings. Columns of the chair are painted on one wall at either side of the entrance to the room, and also on the opposite wall between the windows, which are wide and separated by wall space just wide enough to take the painted columns.

These columns lead the eye to the dado which is painted in light and dark terra cotta shades, finished with a line of deep blue. The metal is painted white, and faced with deep blue.

On the right wall, at either side of the entrance, are built-in shelves of glass, with the back of these spaces in deep blue. At the windows on the opposite of the room, white Venetian blinds, carpeting of pinkish brown covers the floor.

The chair at the right is of deep blue moire, bound with silver. Another upholstered chair in the room reverses this combination. Several chairs like the one at the left have seats of deep blue with the pattern in gold. Occasional tables, modern lamps and other accessories complete this room for which Kerstin Tausa was the decorator.

Mickey Cochrane Says His Club's Fight and Hustle May Lead to Championship of League

With their team well on its way to what would be its first American league pennant since 1909, Detroit fans are reveling in an epidemic of "Tiger-crazing," as this typical scene at the portals of Navin field indicates. Manager Mickey Cochrane (lower inset) is being hailed as a new baseball "miracle man" for the fire and dash he has put in the team, while "Goose" Goslin (left) has been wielding his big bat potently and has inspired his younger mates with countless possibilities. Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe (right), his arm strong again, is being counted on for 20 or more victories.

BY EARL J. HILLIGAN (Associated Press Sports Writer)
DETROIT, Aug. 4.—They're a fighting, hustling bunch of ball players—this is the Detroit Tigers.

Mickey Cochrane, manager of the championship aspirant Detroit Tigers, sat in his office at Navin field, nattily attired in a brown sport coat, flannel and sport shoes. His mind was on the approaching afternoon game against the Washington Senators, but in his low-pitched, nasal drawl he was willing to tell why his Tigers "might" win the American league pennant.

ON THE SIDELINES

The longer those tearing Tiger department, and Marberry, pitching of Mickey Cochrane keep breathing as he did in his prime at Washington, the more obvious it becomes that miracles do happen, and that one of them is fairly right now to bust all over the baseball world.

Cochrane says a greeting to reason why we are up in the standings. Owen's improvement is another reason and I believe he will make one of the greatest third basemen in the league—if he isn't already.

Cochrane thinks the "hot" "rabbit ball" is hurting the game. "That kind of ball makes it easier for the 'broad-back' clubs—those with a powerhouse attack. But I don't think it's hurt us any more than it has benefited our success."

CHASES PAY DIVIDENDS

Here at least the purchases of American league magnates, made mostly behind the scenes last winter, are paying dividends. Earnshaw has meant nothing to the Chicago White Sox. Ledy Grove and Ruben Walberg, and happens suddenly, the American league half of the world, seems to have a first time in over a decade.

More Birthdays Per Season For Sam Jones Might Help White Sox

By ROBERT WALTON CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—If someone could arrange for Sam Jones to have a birthday every day, maybe leading the American league instead of trailing it.

As an example of what can be done for the Sox cause, the veteran Sam celebrated his 42nd birthday the other day by plucking the flice to a 9-to-0 victory over the Washington Senators.

Sox followers, unaccustomed to victory, would have gone home happily with a mere one-run win achieved in the 14th or 15th inning, but the shutout Sam turned in sent them out of Comiskey park delirious with joy.

Sox teammates contributed to another purpose and so did the Senators; so all in all it was quite a day for the Jones family.

It seems things usually happen on Sam's birthday. On his 22nd anniversary he made his debut in the American league. On his 24th he was married in Cleveland.

"I finally got to Niagara Falls on my honeymoon three years ago," said Mrs. Jones.

Sam hasn't many comments to make on the present dilemma of the Sox but he does like to talk about his two decades in big time baseball.

Thor Hurls Bolt For 'Hole In One'

WASHINGTON (AP)—It took only one ear-splitting blast for the god of thunder and lightning to score a "hole in one" on a golf course near here during a recent storm.

Passing up the bamboo flag pole, marking the regular cup on an elevated putting green, the lightning cut a hole of its own, 43 inches deep, in the putting surface and spread three narrow paths of seared grass across the green.

The fact that the lightning bolt passed up the flag pole as well as a clump of trees puzzled weather bureau meteorologists, who welcomed the chance to study the strange antics of a celestial backfire at close range.

Members of the golf club had other and less scientific reactions to the incident.

SUGAR BEET PLANT CLOSES AT BORLEY

Factory Discontinued Due to Tongue Shortage in Southern Idaho

The Borley plant of the Amalgamated Sugar company closed last night after a week of operation. The plant was owned by the company of Friday, N. E. Tallman, company manager for southern Idaho, and was the last of the company's plants to be closed due to a shortage of sugar beets this year, Tallman said.

This leaves Idaho without an Amalgamated plant in operation, and the twin Falls plant was closed down earlier in the summer. However, many would continue operations in southern Idaho and would continue to buy beets. These will be processed in Utah plants.

"Due to the short beet tonnage it was decided that the Borley plant could not be run at a profit," Tallman said.

The Borley plant employed 23 workers when it closed operations.

LAW ON PRIMARY ELECTION QUOTED

Question of General Interest to Voter Explained by County Attorney

"Many persons have inquired recently whether or not a person can vote who will not, on August 14, primary day, have arrived at the age of 21 years and has not been in the state six months and in the county 30 days," prosecuting attorney O. W. Witham stated last evening.

"Inasmuch as this question is of general interest to the voter and is vitally important to those who cannot on said day qualify but who will be fully qualified on the day of the general election, I hereby quote the law governing the point:

"No person shall be qualified to vote at any nominating election unless he will be a qualified elector of the county and state at the next general election, and at the time of the nominating election he is duly registered in the precinct wherein he offers to vote," according to law 33-613 E. C. A.
